The marriage of Miss Helen Thompson, the eldest daughter of ex-Councilman Wm. Thompson, will take place at her home on Central avenue, during the first week in June.

Mr. Edward Milligan and family, of Brooklyn, N. Y., have returned to their Summer residence in Washington Valley, much to the pleasure of their many friends in this vicinity.

A three-year-old son of Street Commissioner Geo. Conover, of North Plainfield, wandered away from home on Saturday morning and was afterwards found some distance away from the house.

Cards are out for a fete champetre on the lawn of the Hyde residence, May 17, in honor of young Mr. Hyde. The affair will probably be the most elaborate of its kind ever known in this vicinity.

Twenty-eight years ago Monday, occurred the Battle of Williamsburg, and among the 200 New Jersey Second Brigade prisoners captured on that day, was Mr. Albert Runyon of this city.

Mr. J. C. [illegible] of No. 105 East Front street, is confined to the house, suffering from bronchial troubles and a relapse of the grip. His friends will be glad to learn that he has passed the critical point and is now on the road to recovery.

The funeral of the late Charles Aborn, whose death resulted from a fall, recently, took place from his late home on East Seventh street, Monday at noon, the Rev. W. R. Richards officiating. Interment was made at Providence, R. I.

The Rev. Father J. P. Smyth, pastor of St. Mary's church, announced at the morning service in that church Sunday, that on Saturday next he would sail for Europe for the benefit of his health. Father Smyth will remain abroad until September.

Messrs. F. M. Demarest, H. P. [illegible] and Chester Colgate, of the Englewood Wheelmen, took a run to this city Sunday morning, and returned in the afternoon. Captain F. L. C. Martin of the Plainfield Club, escorted them as far as Elizabeth.

The funeral of the late Mrs. F. O. [illegible], who died on Thursday, took place from her late residence, No. 114 Richmond street, on Saturday afternoon at one o'clock, the Rev. E. M. Rodman officiating. The remains were taken to Somerville for burial.

The marriage of Miss Ella Moffett, of this city, and Mr. William H. [illegible], of Trenton, will take place at the home of the bride, 15 Orchard place, Thursday evening, June 5, at seven o'clock. Miss Moffett is the daughter of President Moffett of the Common Council.

Mr. C. E. Tyler, the late able teacher of the [illegible] class, was at Warren Mission chapel, Sunday afternoon, and spoke a few cheering words to the class and school. He extended the hand and heart to all, and blessed the mission in his usual eloquent and highly appreciative style.

James Evans, aged 27 years, and until recently an employee of the Potter Press works, died at his home, No. 2 Spooner avenue, on Saturday afternoon, after a lingering illness from consumption. The funeral took place from the house, on Monday at one o'clock, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck officiating. Interment was made at Lebanon, N. J.

The Alumni Association of Elmira College, for New York and vicinity, met at Clark's in 23d street, on Saturday last. An elaborate dinner was provided, when some twenty or more of the ladies met and welcomed the Rev. Dr. VanNorden, the newly elected President of the college. Miss Delano from the High school and Miss Flora Petrie represented Plainfield.

Another of the series of subscription musicales was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Runkle, on April 30. The appointments were exquisite in every way. Miss May and Miss Holmes were the piano soloists. They were heartily encored, as was also every artist on the programme. The Mendelssohn Quartette and Mrs Clark were the vocalists. There were besides, the usual violin and 'cello solos.

The wife of Samuel B. Underhill, died very unexpectedly, on Tuesday, at their home on East Fifth street, corner of Sycamore. She was well Monday, and full of anxiety about the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Osborne, and full of consideration for the slight indisposition of her husband. Death is reported to be due to rheumatism of the heart. Besides her husband, the immediate relatives who survive her are three children: Mrs. Theodore Osborne, Mrs. John Christison and Mr. Frank Underhill.

Mr. J. Augustus Hinchman, one of the best known Summer resort habitues and correspondents, is already at Netherwood for the season. Mr. Hinchman is a connoisseur of the most expert type when it comes to hotels, their service and their cuisine. He knows by experience every factor and environment necessary to the thorough success of a Summer resort and the utmost gratification of its guests. Mr. Hinchman says there is no place like Netherwood, and shows his judgment by taking up his residence there, already, at Woodside Cottage, where he awaits the opening of the Hotel on the 15th.

Mr. F. A. Dunham is slowly recovering from an attack of erysipelas.

Mr. Geo. W. F. Randolph returned from his Southern trip on Monday.

Sarah Isabella, the eight-months-old daughter of Mr and Mrs. W. H. Langer, died Tuesday afternoon.

RAYMOND—DORMAN.

The altar and pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church, on April 30, was buried beneath a mass of cherry blossoms surmounted by Harrisii lilies. The occasion was the wedding of Miss Lillian Dorman and Mr Frank Raymond. The church was never more crowded, nor have more ladies in evening dress ever been seen within its walls.

The bride wore white faille francaise, rich in its simplicity. The corsage was cut low, but filled in from the lace trimmed edge to the throat with shirred tulle. The short sleeves met the gloves just below the elbow. She entered on the arm of her father, carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley bordered with Niphetus roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Dr ke in white India silk. She carried pink roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Edward Raymond, the groom's brother. The ushers were Messrs John N. Moore, Andrew McKinney, Howard Beebe, and Harry V. Borden of this city; and Messrs John G. Elliott and Wm. F. Hoan. The Rev. Asa Reed Dilts performed the ceremony—the Rev. Wm. R. Richards making the prayer of supplication.

A reception was held from six to nine at the home of the bride, which is adjoining the home of the groom on Central avenue. There was a large number of guests present. The supper was served by Mazetti, and the music was Landers. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond left Plainfield on a late train. They sailed for Europe on the "Aurania," Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. A large party of young society people of Plainfield saw them off.

Two Persons Killed in a Wreck.

A wreck occurred on the New Jersey Central Railroad, near the Springtown station, Wednesday, which delayed travel over the road at that point for over an hour. It is reported that two passenger trains came in collision and that two persons were killed and seven others badly injured.

An Accident at Amphion Hall.

An accident which fortunately terminated without fatal results, occurred at Amphion Hall, during the performance by the Australian Folly Company, Tuesday night. The Coulson Sisters had just made their concluding bow before the footlights and were leaving the stage, when one of the scenes fell with a crash, tearing down a portion of the ceiling.

A Peddler Plugged.

While Judge Codington was engaged at the station house last Thursday, a German peddler, whose name contains most of the letters in the alphabet, sauntered in, his face being covered with blood, and his clothing badly disarranged. The peddler claimed that he had been assaulted by a man named Dawe, who was at work on the Crescent Avenue chapel. Officer Hiler went to the chapel and arrested Dawe who subsequently pleaded guilty to the charge of fighting and disorderly conduct. Judge Codington thereupon imposed a fine of five dollars.

The Boys Were Treated to Cream.

The moonlight run to Westfield, over the new county road, taken Monday by 26 of the members of the Plainfield Bicycle club, led by Captain Martin, was thoroughly enjoyed by the participants. About a mile before reaching Westfield the party was joined by several members of the Union County Wheelmen of Westfield who escorted the Plainfielders about, taking them to the end of the new road, about 1½ miles beyond Westfield. On returning to Westfield one of the members of the Plainfield Bicycle club—Mr. Frederick Decker a resident of Westfield—did himself proud by treating the "boys" to a spread which he had arranged for them. The distance of the run was about 15 miles.

The Composition Competition and Conditions.

The subjects for essays to be written in competition for the year's prize in English composition, in the public school, are as follows:

The teachings of our school flag; A dream in a library; Literary associations of the Hudson; A story from the Old Testament; What becomes of the pins? A day in Caesar's Army; Before books were made; Historic Friendships; Bannockburn, Flodden; Trees in poetry; Apple Blossoms; Mosaics; Keys.

The conditions of the prize are 1st—Books of reference may be consulted for facts. 2d—Full credit must be given for any quotations. 3d—No assistance in material or correction is expected, as the composition is to be the pupils' unaided work.

A New Band of Mercy.

A Band of Mercy has been organized in the Peace street meeting house of Friends under the title of the "Plainfield Friends' First Day School Band of Mercy," and by the election of Aaron M. Powell as President, Nathan Harper Vice President, Ella U. Osborne Secretary, Robinson Pound Treasurer, and an Executive Committee of twenty one. The first meeting was held Sunday and developed earnest interest.

Bands of Mercy originated in Massachusetts, and have spread throughout the United States until now many thousands, both young and old, are recorded as active members. The pledge is simple but effective, reading thus—"I will try to be kind to all harmless living creatures, and try to protect them from cruel usage," which bespeaks practical christianity, encouraging as it does the spirit and practice of kindness to not only the dumb creation, but to all human beings. "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

A Pretty Home Wedding.

There was a houseful of relatives, kindred and friends, afternoon of April 30, at the home of Mrs. L. Prescott. They were gathered to witness the marriage of her daughter, Miss Emma U. King, to Mr. Theodore Hardy. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

The parlor mantel was banked with apple blossoms, and potted plants and palms formed a back ground for the couple. The bride's gown was of white [illegible] trimmed with silver lace. She carried a magnificent bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her maid was her cousin, Miss Lillian A. Force, and the groomsman was Mr. G. W. Moreton. The ushers were Mr. Will Williams and Mr. John Force. The presents were very many indeed. Miss Amy Colgate, of Brooklyn, played the Mendelssohn bridal march.

The happy couple looked unusually young and gratified, and the affair throughout was one of the most charming home weddings ever seen. A wedding supper was served that beautifully satisfied the tastes and appetites of all. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy left amid a shower of rice, and the well wishes of their friends, for Washington.

After the ceremony and congratulations, the guests had a merry dance on the spacious lawn. Prof. Jerry Blair led the orchestra in good old Southern style. So merry a wedding has not been enjoyed in this city for many months.

The value of a remedy should be estimated by its curative properties. According to this standard, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best and most economical blood medicine in the market, because the most pure and concentrated. Price $1. Worth $5 a bottle.

PLAINFIELD'S INVESTMENTS.

The Assessed Valuation, Capitalized Stock and Gross Receipts of Its Corporations.

The following figures will undoubtedly prove of general interest to the readers of THE PRESS. They represent the gross receipts a year, assessed valuation or capital stock of such incorporated companies as are doing business in the city of Plainfield.

The gross receipts last year of the Plainfield Electric Light company, were $12,434.14.

The gross receipts of the Plainfield Gas Light company were $10,000, and by Daniel M. Runkle, lessee, $18,842.25. The Plainfield Gas Light company paid $2,000 dividends in excess of the regular four per cent.

The Music Hall Association of Plainfield, however, with an issued capital stock of $40,000, has never paid a dividend of one cent, but keeps on declaring a slight deficit each year. This is not the fault of the management. All sorts and conditions of entertainments are offered, and at all prices. But the Board of Directors, will neither make such alterations and improvements as are unquestionably necessary, nor lease the Hall to anyone who will.

The capital stock of the Netherwood Hotel company, is $7,000. This represents a balance subscribed by the residents of Netherwood to create a personal interest among them, in addition to the $60,000 paid by Mr. F. E. Miller for the property and the Hotel furnishings.

The issued capital stock of the Plainfield Land and Improvement company, is $45,000; that of the Plainfield Lumber company, is $5,000, and that of the Plainfield District Telegraph and Fire Alarm company, is $25,000.

The Times Printing and Publishing company is capitalized at $9,000.

The Carrabelle Land and Lumber company, made up of Plainfield capitalists, has an issued stock of $240,000. Its property consists of valuable pine lumber lands in the South.

The New Jersey Telephone company which supplies this city with its valuable and efficient service, is capitalized at $500,000.

Land outside main stem, Netherwood depot grounds, 2.754 acres	$1,[illegible] 00
Land outside main stem, except between Berckman and Richmond streets, north of main stem, 4.260 acres	[illegible] 00
Land outside main stem, Plainfield depot grounds, [illegible] acres	[illegible] 00
Land outside main stem, Evona depot grounds, 1.[illegible] acres	[illegible] 00
Land outside main stem, Grant avenue depot grounds, [illegible] acres	[illegible] 00
Sidings outside main stem, [illegible] feet	4,447 00
One stub switch	45 00
Freight house	1,000 00
Two flag houses	[illegible]
Two water tanks and stand pipes	[illegible] 00
Tool house	75 00
Total value	$[illegible]

The lands owned by the Roselle and South Plainfield Railway company, at South Plainfield are 4.59 acres, valued at $600.

Let the Good Work Continue.

Dog catcher James Babbitt started out on his rounds Monday morning, capturing five unmuzzled dogs the first thing. Let the good work continue, James, and when this city is free from the nuisance, then make application for a dog-catcher's license in North Plainfield. Fifty cents a dog is the regular price paid the dog catcher.

Death of an Expert Shooter.

Norwich, Conn., papers chronicle the sudden death of Mr. E. W. Gerrington, on Thursday last, after an illness of two days. Deceased was a well known expert trap shot, and recently won the championship of Connecticut at inanimate targets. He was 61 years nine months of age, and of commanding stature and fine physique in life. He was well known among the members of the Middlesex Gun Club, on whose grounds he has won many a hotly contested fight at the traps, and had many warm friends throughout New Jersey.

A Great Musical Feast.

Every seat in Music Hall is preempted for Thursday evening of next week, upon the occasion of the last of the three subscription concerts of the Plainfield Choral Society. It will be the finest—it might be termed, grandest—musical event ever known in this city. The chorus of this season in this city, is absolutely one of the best in the State.

Handel's glorious oratorio, The Messiah, is to be rendered as the closing concert. The soloists will be of the best: Mrs. Gerrit Smith, soprano; Miss Marion Weed, who scored such a success at the concert of January 2, contralto; Mr. Wm. Ringer, tenor, and Mr. Dempsey basso. There will be the regular rehearsal of the chorus next Monday evening; an extra one on Tuesday; and on Wednesday afternoon, probably, there will be a rehearsal with the orchestra in St. Mark's chapel, corner Eighth street and Second avenue, New York city.

Quick Work by the North Plainfield Firemen.

The members of Warren Engine Company, No. 1, of North Plainfield, made a trial "run" to the Grand View avenue well at 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening, arriving there and getting wat r through three lengths of hose in 9½ minutes actual time. The well is located nearly half a mile away from the engine house, and taking this fact into consideration the time is considered very fast.

At precisely eight o'clock an alarm was sounded in the engine house, and in 2½ minutes thereafter the driver arrived with his horses, from the stable over a block away. Six minutes in all were required to reach the well, and in just 9½ minutes from the time the alarm was sounded, water passed through the nozzle. In connection with this, it must be stated that the water in the boiler was cold when the engine left the house.

North Plainfield's Health Board.

A regular meeting of the above-named board was held at the residence of Dr. J. H. Carman, Monday night, with President T. L. Murphy in the chair. All the other members were present. Among the business transacted was the adoption of the scavenger ordinance.

Complaint was made to the Board to the effect that some of the practicing physicians have neglected to report certain cases of a contagious nature.

Health Inspector Beiseracher sent in his resignation, but action was deferred for a month.

The Secretary was requested to ask a co-operation of the Health Board in abating the nuisance of permitting cesspools to empty in Green Brook. One case in particular was brought to the notice of the Board, where the water has become so polluted that cows will not drink it.

Two applications for scavenger's licenses were received and will be granted.

For biliousness, sick headache and indigestion, take Dr. Pierce's Pellets. One a dose.

The Park House Sold.

At the Court House in Elizabeth, at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday, Sheriff Glasby offered at public auction, the Park House, located at the corner of Park avenue and Eighth street, in this city. The property was purchased by the mortgagee for $16,100.

Spasms—Catalepsy.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY, in catalepsy and epilepsy, at once causes the spasms to vanish, and when taken as directed, prevents the recurrence of others. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or address Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by I. G. Miller.

THE PUREST WATER IN THE COUNTRY.

Millions of Gallons of It Pumped in Plainfield, Yet Not a Drop Is Missing.

From seven o'clock in the morning, until six o'clock at night, for many days past, big steam pumps have been at work on the ten six-inch driven wells of the Water Works company, yet the supply below has not lowered a drop. Two and one-half millions of gallons have been pumped out every ten hours, but the level in the test tubes remained the same.

During Saturday noon, photographer Langhorne took pictures of the streams of water as they were thrown out of the earth by the pumps. It was a beautiful sight—the water glistened like steel in the sunlight. Large troughs for the purpose of measuring the quantity pumped, first receive the water which then overflows the sides like folds of silver silk. One picture shows Contractor Moore's son James Moore II, sitting on the edge of the fall.

The test of the ten wells being entirely satisfactory—in fact beyond all expectation—the pumping is now stopped and the additional ten wells provided in the contract will be driven at once. When these are completed, the supply will be more than sufficient for the demand if the city contained ten times its present population. Some experienced men who have viewed the test, even claim that there is enough of the purest water in the country, below Plainfield, to supply New York.

THE SHELVING GAVE WAY.

An Accident at the City Pharmacy Which Creates Considerable Excitement.

At twenty minutes before two o'clock Sunday morning, as night-watchman Benj. Wright was making his rounds along West Front street, he noticed that the interior of the City Pharmacy was filled with smoke. He hastily notified one of the clerks who boards on the opposite side of the street, and the latter soon responded to the call.

Meanwhile Dr. Charles Thiers, who occupies rooms over the pharmacy, was awakened by a stifling odor in his rooms, and he also gave an alarm. Mr. L. W. Randolph, the proprietor, and Chief Doane of the Fire Department were soon on the spot, and a hurried examination disclosed the fact that the shelving in the passage way leading from the store to the cellar had fallen down with a crash, breaking a number of vessels containing acids. The smoke arising from the acids filled the store, and led the night watchman to belive the place was on fire.

A generous application of marble dust by the proprietor, soon allayed all fears, and in an hour's time the building was free from smoke.

Yet There Isn't Ten Ton in Plainfield.

The Plainfield ice dealers must be a pretty slow lot. Even such buckwheat towns as Flemington, are all stocked with ice even from Canada. The New York papers advertise "Ice, finest quality, 20 inches thick. Parties having ice houses holding upward of one thousand tons can arrange to have them filled on easy terms."

New Y. W. C. T. U. Officers.

At a recent meeting of the Y. W. C. T. U., the following officers were elected for the year beginning May 20:

Superintendent—Mrs. Wm. Taylor.
Vice President—Miss Grace Lewis.
Recording Secretary—Miss Rachel Benson.
Corresponding Secretary—Miss Lillian E. Frink.
Treasurer—Miss Mabel L. Potter.

The City Should Have a Licensed Dog Catcher.

Dog catcher James Babbitt signifies his intention to give up his office. He says there is no money in the position for him, and besides that it interferes with his private business of chimney sweeping. He further says that as soon as he starts on his rounds, worthless curs are housed up and kept in seclusion until he again stops looking for them.

Send Your Real Name, it Will Not be Known.

"A subscriber who subscribes herself Lillie," sends a most interesting contribution to the symposium of general public interest that THE PRESS has been publishing in reply to the query: "Why is not Music Hall better patronized?" But such are the nature of the reasons "Lillie" gives, that she must send her real name in confidence before the communication can be published.

Only One More Flag Wanted.

The Board of Education has received a communication from Franklin Council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, of this city, expressing that organization's desire to present an American flag to one of the public schools.

The Board accepted the offer with sincere appreciation of the liberality and commendability of the gift. The Secretary was instructed to inform the Council that either Bryant or Franklin school would float the flag from its roof.

Death of Eliza C. Johnson.

At her home on Park avenue, Thursday afternoon, occurred the death of Mrs. Eliza C Johnson, wife of Mr. John S. Johnson, in the 75th year of her age. Mr. Johnson had been complaining for some time past, but nothing serious was anticipated by those who were with her daily. Her death was sudden and unexpected. She was the mother of Mr. J. Wesley Johnson of LaGrande avenue, from whose residence the funeral took place on Sunday at 2:30 o'clock P. M. Interment was made at Samptown.

Death of Charles Aborn.

Mr. Charles Aborn, an old and respected resident of this city, died suddenly at his home on East Seventh street a little before one o'clock Friday morning, in the 79th year of his age. Mr. Aborn fell down a flight of stairs leading from his office at 94 Wall street, New York city, Thursday afternoon, receiving injuries which resulted in his death. He was a member of the Crescent Avenue church and leaves a wife and two sons. The funeral took place from the house on Monday at noon. Interment was made at Providence, R. I.

Election of Officers.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the Trinity Reformed church, took place in the church Monday afternoon, and resulted as follows, both the president and secretary being re-elected:

President—Mrs. Chas. P. Leggett.
1st Vice Pres—Mrs. Craig A. Marsh.
2d Vice Pres—Mrs. W. H. VanDeventer.
3d Vice Pres—Mrs. A. Swalm.
Treasurer—Mrs. W. J. E. See.
Secretary—Mrs. C. Frank French.

The society is in a good healthy condition, and much good work has already been accomplished.

—The Hope chapel Boys Brigade held their drill Monday night in the Chapel at 8 o'clock, before their Honorary Colonel, R. C. Squires who after the drill gave them a hearty vote of thanks for their good behavior and order during the evening. The boys were then supplied with iced cream by their superiors.

A SECOND ANSWER.

A Man of Experience Tells of Reasons Why Music Hall is Not Patronized.

To THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I have heard so many different reasons since my return home regarding the cause of the lack of patronage of "Music Hall," that I feel (now that THE PRESS has solicited opinions) I can, without assuming too much, express my ideas however limited or inconsistent they may appear to many of your readers, or however weak from a literary standpoint to those appearing in your edition of yesterday, under the nom de plume of "Critique."

I fully agree with that very ably expressed opinion in almost every point taken. If I take the matter up from a selfish stand I could say nothing, for the good people of our little city, have never failed to tender me a most cordial welcome, and have always turned out (without one single exception) most liberally upon every occasion that I have appeared at Music Hall. Whether it was due to my individual popularity, (N. B. Please pardon seeming conceit) or to the fact that they hoped it was, (on each occasion) to be my last appearance in America—as my vocal rival, Patti, puts it—I am not prepared to say. However they have always been with me, I am proud to add, and in goodly numbers.

I must therefore be counted out as a performer, and express my opinion for the lack of patronage, as I take it, from a view in front of the footlights. I have attended two performances at Music Hall since my vacation began, and I find the most imperfect accoustics I have ever known in any place of amusement. On each occasion I occupied what was termed "choice" seats. My first impression was that I was growing a little hard of hearing, but I was speedily convinced I was wrong by a young lady who was sitting next to me chewing gum. She had the air of a Summervillian, and when her precious lips closed on that tuti-fruti, there was a vibration that told me plainly my hearing could not be affected.

To get to the point, Mr. Editor, we all know that when one goes to the theatre, he or she, as it may be, wants to hear what the actors have to say. If we don't, how are we to have the thread of the play, and the plot, if it has any? That very efficient janitor, Mr Mattox, has hung wires, yards of yellow canton flannel, and tried every other device, but the voices that we longed for never came, and one has been compelled to leave Music Hall with the impression that he saw something, but didn't know what it was all about. Then again, as "Critique" remarks, "We have a great barn, cold, desolate and forbidding." Why not tear out the interior; make the house more cosy and compact; put in a few elaborate private boxes and form them as a sounding board with the proscenium above; raise the dome a trifle higher, and put in two galleries so that a scale of prices may be adopted to suit every class and pocketbook. In fact make it the modern playhouse of today, instead of a relic of the past generation. Give the public a handsome foyer, with retiring rooms, smoking rooms etc., neatly furnished and carpeted. Make your lobby a miniature art gallery. Let the old place be reconstructed till it becomes inviting. Convert that dreary entrance that looks like a deserted bowling alley, into an attractive spot, with rows of lights, prettily frescoed and a waiting room spaced off, near the box office, where escorts may place their ladies while securing their tickets. Give the Plainfield public a proper theatre, with the proper attractions, and I earnestly believe there is no place with the same population in the entire country that would be better appreciated or patronized.

In the meantime the only remedy that I could suggest would be a portable ear-trumpet attached to each seat in the house, or to devote it exclusively to entertainments under the patronage of the deaf and dumb asylum.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE THATCHER.

COLORED SOCIETY WEDDING.

A Large Audience Witnessed the Ceremony in Mt. Olive Baptist Church Thursday Evening.

Perhaps the greatest society event in colored circles, which has taken place in this city for a long time was the marriage in Mt. Olive Baptist church, above evening, of Mr. John T. Corley of Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. Alice White of this city, both of whom originally came from Richmond, Va. The hour announced for the wedding was eight o'clock, and at that time the church was well filled with eager spectators, many of whom were white.

The ceremony was delayed for an hour, however, on account of the absence of John Scudder, who came in later accompanied by a mastiff dog. He was escorted to a seat on the porch. The delay was long and tedious, during which the ushers discussed the best method of disposing of the bride's ring in case the ceremony did not take place.

The bridal party arrived at nine o'clock, and were ushered into the parsonage where the Rev. Geo. H. Boswell, pastor of the Zion Baptist church of New York, was in waiting to fill out the marriage certificate. The wedding march, La Priere D' une Vierge," a la "The Maiden's Prayer," was played by Miss Laura Belle Robinson. The bride was charmingly attired in white cashmere, en traine and at her request the four bridesmaids also wore training dresses. The groomsmen, Messrs Arthur Venable, Ed Washington, John Randolph and Chris Maden were dressed in broadcloth with flesh-colored socks and shiny slippers. The ceremony was solemn and impressive and as the groom saluted his wife with a kiss, there was general commotion in the audience. A reception was tendered the newly wedded couple at the residence of the Rev. Mr. Carey in North Plainfield, after the ceremony. Iced cream, candy and wine were served.

The bridesmaids were Miss C. B. Allen, in white albatross trimmed with white satin; Miss Daniels in white albatross and ribbon to match; Miss Adiue Burton, in cream colored satin and white lace, and Miss Peterson in white albatross and brocaded satin.

Will be Watched at the Hospital.

James Sherlock, the young man who was committed to the city jail on Wednesday evening, pending an examination as to his sanity, was examined by City Physician Andrew Manning and Dr. M B. Long, in the station house, Thursday afternoon. The man appeared to be perfectly rational, and showed no signs whatever of insanity. He admitted, however, that at times his head troubled him, and said that he could not remember what happened when he was so affected. Of the various questions which the doctors asked the alleged demented man, the subject of marriage seemed to strike the patient most forcibly.

Captain Grant took Sherlock to Muhlenberg Hospital, Thursday night, where he will be closely watched, and in case he becomes violent he will be committed to an insane asylum for treatment.

Where Sidewalks are Needed.

The attention of the Street Commissioner is respectfully called to the wretched condition of the sidewalk on West Second street, between New and Liberty streets. There is, in fact, no made sidewalk on either side of the street, for the greater part of that distance, and in stormy weather the mud is almost ankle deep. The street is the main thoroughfare to and from the boulevard, and the property owners should be compelled to lay sidewalks without delay.

RADAM'S
MICROBE KILLER
Cures All Diseases.

After myself and wife had used your Microbe Killer with great benefit, although I have not a farthing's pecuniary interest in your remedy, unsolicited and on my own responsibility, I wrote to nearly forty of those whose certificates you publish, embracing nearly all diseases, "please give your present impressions of Wm. Radam's Microbe Killer." I am happy to state the replies were not only favorable but enthusiastic. Many of the cures of complicated diseases almost surpass belief.

Sincerely yours,

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. Write to F. I. WHITNEY, G. P. & T. A. St. Paul, Minn., for maps, books and guides. If you want a free farm in a lovely land, write for the "Great Reservation" read it and resolve to accept the golden HAND OF FORTUNE!

LIGHT AND LAUGHABLE.

"WELL," said an Irish attorney, "if it please the court, if I am wrong in this, I have another point that is equally conclusive."

THE single eyeglass only has two faults. It's awfully hard to keep in its place, and it is of no earthly use when you have succeeded.

THE sight of a fat man trying to look graceful in a bathing suit is what makes the little bald-headed fishes stand on their tails and grin.

A BOOK recently appeared entitled "Lectures to Married Men." It did not sell, as there was no demand for it, the present supply being ample.

IN Siam, it is death to mention the King's name. As the name is generally a mile long and the people are lazy, not many incur the penalty.

A TWENTY-MILLIONAIRE says he would give all his wealth for good digestion. There are several hundred of the gentleman's employes who would give all their wealth for something to digest.

A THOUGHTFUL man says: "Why should the beehive be taken as a symbol of industry? Not a bee in it is seen all winter long, while the [illegible] is up at five in the morning and never goes to bed till midnight. Let's change this thing."

A BISHOP, reproving his dilatory page, said: "Wretched boy, who is it that sees and hears all we do, and before whom even I am but a crushed worm?" The boy replied: "The missus, my Lord." His Lordship said that was not the right answer.

A PERSONAL item says that a fair Georgian is "a rising portion of Augusta," but it doesn't name the hour she rises. It is hoped that she rises early enough to help her mother wash the breakfast dishes and pare the potatoes for dinner. That's the kind of rising portions this country needs.

WE often read remarkable stories of motherless squirrels and rats being raised by sympathetic female cats, but in Tarrant County, Tex., an eagle raised a young pig that weighed over forty pounds. A short time previous the same eagle raised a young lamb. The eagle's wings measured nearly eight feet from tip to tip.

"MY own!" he cried, falling on his knees before his betrothed, "to be always near you I shall be prepared to sacrifice every thing—my relatives, my friends, my honors, my titles, my fortune!" "Then I must beg," replied she, with a calm, matter-of-fact tone that stabbed him like a knife, "that you do nothing of the sort. Why, if you did there would be absolutely nothing left for me."

WHEN a man runs a quarter of a mile to catch a train and jumps on the platform of the last car "all out of breath" as the locomotive steams out of the station he feels as if he had won a great victory. But when the train stops before it has proceeded fifty yards, backs into the station and waits half an hour for some unexplained cause he is mad enough to blow up the whole business with dynamite. But he simply "[illegible]" the railroad company with his mouth.

An Unjust Suspicion.

Country Grocer (severely)—Anything you want to buy this mornin'?

Customer (who has been munching crackers and cutting off cheese for the last five minutes, severely)—[illegible], yes; I want one dozen clothes-pins. How much 'll they be?

Grocer—Four cents.

Customer (laying down a nickel and reaching for another cracker)—There it is, [illegible]. (Takes change and goes out.)

Grocer—'S long 's he buys something it's all right. I didn't think he was goin' to buy nothing.—Puck.

CORONETS OF NOBILITY.

FRENCH counts have nine equal pearls in their coronets.

THE British baron is entitled to a coronet of four big pearls.

THE English viscount has a coronet of seven pearls of even size.

THE earl's coronet shows five small pearls and four strawberry leaves.

THE English marquis is entitled to three strawberry leaves and two large pearls.

FRENCH marquises bear three strawberry leaves and two clusters of three small pearls.

FRENCH viscounts are entitled to a coronet containing three large pearls and two smaller ones.

FRENCH barons are not entitled to a coronet, but to what is called a tortil, a circlet of gold having a necklace of tiny pearls turned three times around it.

THE German Prince's coronet is very peculiar with its graceful curves of pearls, its ermine circlet, and the globe and cross, indicative of an Imperial grant. It is used in all countries on the continent with or without the interior velvet cap, and is allowed only to descendants of sovereign families or members of the higher House of Parliament.

WORDS WORTH WEIGHING.

LOVING is a congenial exercise of the imagination.

AN ounce of encouragement is worth a pound of fault-finding.

NO MAN can be happy without a friend, nor be sure of his friend till he is unfortunate.

ALL our actions take their hues from the complexion of the heart, as landscapes their variety from light.

IT is right to begin with the obligations of home—no minor duties can possibly be substituted for them.

THOSE men of the world who go through it in armor, defend themselves from quite as much good as evil.

THE way to wealth is as plain as the way to market; it depends chiefly on two words—industry and frugality.

HAPPINESS is more frequently found among people who have but little, among those who have good hearts and [illegible] well.

HE who is conscious of his ignorance, viewing it in the light of misfortune, is more wise than one who mistakes superficial polish for real knowledge.

HE that hath pity on another man's sorrow shall be free from it himself, and he that delighteth in and scorneth the misery of another shall at one time or another fall into the same gulf.

THE best thing to give to your enemy is forgiveness, to an opponent tolerance, to a friend your heart, to your child a good example, to a father deference, to your mother conduct that will make her proud of you, to yourself respect, to all men charity.

According to the Lancet, Dr. Lederle has recently made a number of observations of the destructive power of coffee upon various microbes. He found that the organisms all died in a longer or shorter period. In one series of experiments anthrax bacilli were destroyed in three hours, cholera spores in four weeks, cholera bacilli in four hours, and the streptococcus of erysipelas in one day. Good and bad coffee produce practically similar effects.

Genius and Photograph.

THOMAS A. EDISON has been at work for a long time on a new scheme in connection with the phonograph. It consists in the application of instantaneous photography to the illustration of phonographic sounds. Early in 1889 he began a series of experiments with this end in view. To prosecute them it became necessary to erect a special building, where the camera would be entirely free from the disturbing tremor in the main laboratory caused by the jar of the machinery. In this he had a masonry pier constructed, running down to the solid rock. He then perfected an ingenious piece of mechanism by which it was possible to take in a single camera a series of consecutive pictures, the exposure for each of which was not more than the 500th part of a second. These pictures followed each other at the rate of from eight to twenty a second, the principle being that of taking the views in a perfectly dark room, the exposure being effected by means of an electric flash.

After many discouraging failures Mr. Edison was at last successful. His idea was that a speaker might be photographed from eight to twenty times a second during his entire speech, while at the same time the phonograph was recording the spoken address. The photograph and the mechanism of the camera were so arranged that when the reproduction took place, both spoken words and the photographic pictures would continue synchronously together, and that when the photographs were thrown on a screen, by means of a stereopticon, the rapid recurrence of the pictures would be such that the effect would be a continuous one, and as the phonograph reproduced the address, the gestures and the facial expression would appear to be that of the living speaker.

The experiments were completely successful, and Mr. Edison now has in his laboratory a large number of these dual reproductions. As yet there does not seem to be any practical commercial value to the invention.—New York Tribune.

A Snake Rock.

There is a rock on a lot near William Van Fleet's farmhouse, at May's Clearing, which became an object of general interest as spring approaches. It is a flat rock about twelve feet long and rising three feet above the surface. The sides are perpendicular, and evidently lead down the rock as far as it goes beneath the ground. The rock is not more than ten rods from Van Fleet's house, and the same distance from the public road. For twenty years or more it has been known as the snake rock. In April, [illegible], a man who worked for Van Fleet was passing close to the big stone, when he saw a snake crawling slowly out of one of the crevices. It was what is known as the milk snake. While the man was watching the snake other snakes began to appear at different crevices until he counted forty. There were black snakes, blowing adders and common striped snakes. The hired man went back to the house and got Van Fleet, and the two remained by the rock until they had killed 200 snakes.

All through that month snakes kept coming out of the rock and over 500 were killed. How many got away was not known, but there must have been quite a number, for the next spring the rock yielded just as many more that had gone there to hibernate and winter over. The snake bearing rock became locally famous [illegible], and for years, as soon as the weather began to get warm in the spring, farmers and others came to Van Fleet's lot from far around to see the snakes come out, and to have a hand in killing them.

The rock has never failed to give up hundreds of snakes every spring, and the curious part of it is no one has ever yet been able to discover any going into the rock in the fall, although it has been closely watched. Where and how the great collection of snakes gets into the winter quarters in Van Fleet's rock is a mystery yet to be solved. It is supposed the serpents slip in at night when no one is watching.—New York Sun.

The Modern Newspaper Woman.

What would our grandmothers have said could they have glanced down the years and have seen the newspaper woman of today as she wields her pen, passes through the office, past the reporters' desks, takes her little case into the chief's sanctum, has the audacity to give him ideas and tell him generally how to run his journal? Nay, more; she rummages jails, reformatories and lunatic asylums; she rides on engines and ambulances; she puts a circle round the globe, and one of these days I doubt not some enterprising feminine journalist will start on a search for the North pole. She will find it too and hang her best Sunday bonnet on top of it.

The life of a newspaper woman is full of experience, change and excitement. No [illegible] notion of existence here, but one whirl of employment, one round of vicissitude. One day toiling in a shop or factory in order to write up the lives of prisoners of poverty; the next interviewing the wife of the president of the United States. Of necessity she sees many strange things; she hears many a tale other than fairy tales; she stumbles upon odds and ends [illegible], and as for the family skeletons to which she is introduced, they would delight the artistic soul of Tommy Traddles.

Where Gobelin Is Made.

The panels of French tapestry, which pass under the general name of Gobelin, are in reality mostly made by the Maine factories of old time Aubusson carpets. They are woven from the wrong side, the worker guiding his work like the Lady of Shalott by a mirror which hangs before him all the year. These tapestries are shown chiefly in landscapes. Old scenes of knightly warriors and high born dames in medieval dress, with surroundings of turreted towers and stately castles, are sought for as panels in dining rooms and libraries. These tapestries do not equal in exquisite delicacy of tint and shade the old Gobelin work, few specimens of which are found outside the palaces of kings and princes. A single specimen of Gobelin work owned by a large house in this city measures about fifty-four by twenty-seven inches and is valued at $[illegible].—New York Tribune.

Times Change.

Trembling Attendant (Eighteenth century)—Your majesty, I somehow got a little scratch on your third best crown.

The Czar (furiously)—Off with his head.

Careless Attendant (Nineteenth century)—Your majesty, I fell and broke your majesty's magnificent gold and diamond crown all to pieces.

Trembling Czar—Oh! Is that all? I feared from the noise it was another bomb.—New York Weekly.

It Grows Slowly.

There are seventy-three different orders in the United States which give a man life insurance, and hardly anybody knows how many regular companies, and yet only one man in six the country over carries any insurance. It is hard to beat a good thing into some people's heads.—Detroit Free Press.

ODDS AND ENDS.

In Newburg is a factory which is working night and day turning out ice machines. They claim their machines will make ice for $1.50 a ton.

An English lady is about to open a barber shop in London in which all the attendants are to be of the weaker sex.

Stanley's new book is to be called "The Darkest Africa, and the Quest, Rescue and Retreat of Emin, Governor of Equatoria." It will be issued simultaneously in England, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Scandinavia and America.

There is a House of Rest for Horses in London, regularly incorporated and with a lord for its president. It is said to have been very successful in a small way, and now is trying to get $25,000 endowment with which to buy and maintain a farm for the benefit of aged and decrepit horses.

The English inspector general of recruiting, in his annual report, just issued, tells that men on strike rarely enlist, and that the artificial demand for labor created by strikes does harm to recruiting.

There were 17,[illegible] books published in Germany last year, an increase of nearly 1,000 over the number in 1888. The list of educational books is the largest, [illegible], and of [illegible] books the smallest, [illegible].

The new City and Southwark subway in London has had a successful experimental test, fifty persons traveling in two cars through the tunnel underneath the Thames at a speed of thirty miles an hour by electric power. The road is from fifty to seventy feet underground, and elevators will take people up and down at the stations.

There are today many and important orders in the world, with a prodigious assortment of collars, crosses, stars and other fancy insignia, set up for the decoration of human vanities. [illegible]

The twenty-seventh annual exhibition of canaries and British and foreign cage birds has been held at the Crystal Palace. It was one of the largest, if not the largest, show of birds of this kind ever exhibited—the number of entries being 2,328, divided among 108 classes. The birds were shown in a tent in the nave, extending from the central transept to the tropical department.

Forty-five millions of dollars of capital have been invested in the building of the "new Rome" during the last six years. The larger part of this amount was supplied by mortgage banks on the security of the lands and houses. Between 1882 and 1887, when the building fever was at its height, rents increased enormously and are now much higher there than in any other Italian city except Naples.

A Florida fisherman recently baited his set hooks with small green frogs. He left his hooks in the water all nicely floating—having been told that this was the best of bait—expecting to return next morning and find fish by the dozen. He returned, and to his surprise all of his baited hooks were sitting out on the banks looking at him, and as he came close to them they would jump back into the water "kerchunk."

A practical joker with ability as a ventriloquist recently blocked traffic in a Paris street by standing beside an open drain and calling "Help!" in a voice that sounded down in the drain. The police summoned laborers, who made a thorough exploration of the drain without discovering the source of the cries, and the excitement became so intense that a cordon of police had to be formed to keep people away from the place. The ventriloquist being forced back with the rest of the crowd, the cries ceased and the excitement was over.

A doctor in Rome had compiled and published statistics showing that several thousands of persons are annually buried in a state of coma throughout Europe. The San Remo correspondent of The [illegible] says that he recently saw a body exhumed which showed signs that life had not been extinct when it had been placed in the coffin. The face showed marks of a struggle, and one hand, as if in despair, had firmly clutched the skin of the side, and had remained so clinched in death.

Manchester Ship Canal.

Orders have been given for the work to proceed by night as well as day. The company have purchased a large stock of lights of the Lucigen type, in order to facilitate the work after dark. Twelve thousand men are now employed and ninety-six steam navvies, the latter supposed to do the work of several thousand men. Two hundred miles of the temporary rails are laid, on which 100 locomotives are running daily. The locks are progressing rapidly, and the docks at Salford are nearly completed. The former are sufficiently large to accommodate the largest Atlantic liner, and around the Manchester and Salford docks are five miles of quay space. The contract expires at the end of 1891, and the representatives of the contractor are liable to heavy penalties if the work is not completed by that time.—New York Telegram.

Kissed by Mail.

A beau took a letter from his pocket in order to read something from it to a fair cousin who sat by his side.

"Ah, she mailed you a kiss," the girl remarked.

"Not that I know of," was the fellow's reply.

"Look there," and she pointed to a crinkled place down at the corner of the sheet, such as a damp spot might have left. "Haven't you learned the latest sentimental thing? A girl presses the paper to her lips, leaving a mark like that, and so incloses a kiss without writing a word of confession. That's what Jennie did, and you, goose that you are, never noticed it."—Buffalo Express.

The Wonderful Hat.

Take three pieces of bread (or any other eatable) and three hats. Place the three pieces of bread on a table and place a hat over each one. Now eat all three pieces of bread and ask the company which hat of the three they would like them to be under. If they say the first hat, place that hat on your head and tell them you have done what they requested.—G. Ben White in Sunny Hours.

The History of Engraving.

Engraving was known to the early Egyptians, who used wooden stamps marked with hieroglyphics for the purpose of marking their bricks. The art is first mentioned B. C. [illegible] by Moses (Exodus xxviii, 9), who was commanded to take two onyx stones and engrave on them the names of the children of Israel. The revival of the art dates from the fifteenth century, when the mezzotint mode of engraving was invented by Col. von Siegen.

Engraving in colors was invented by one I. C. le Blond about 1735, in imitation of pencil work by Gilles des Martines in 1756 and aquatint by Le Prince about 1762. Engraving on copper is said to have been practiced in Germany as early as 1450. Some early engravings by Albert Durer, dated 1515 and 1518, are thought to have been made from plates of steel. This metal, however, was seldom employed by the first engravers, owing to its hardness and the consequent difficulties to be overcome in working it.

Only one specimen of authentic steel engraving, that by J. I. Smith, was known to exist prior to 1818, when Mr. C. Warren exhibited a specimen executed on soft steel before the Society of Arts. The Smith steel engraving spoken of above was made in 1805. The earliest woodcut in existence represents St. Christopher with the infant Saviour, and is dated 1423. Wooden blocks were engraved and used as notarial seals and for making playing cards in France as early as 1440. Many "block books" of about 1430 grace the shelves of various museums in Europe, where they are valued almost as highly as the Gutenberg and Mazarin Bibles.—St. Louis Republic.

Are Newspapers an Index to Civilization?

The newspaper in France that has the largest circulation—probably a larger circulation than any other in the world—is Le Petit Journal, of Paris, a small sheet, sold for a sou, containing a meager epitome of the news, but rigidly decent and trustworthy. Is the moral standard in France, therefore, higher than in America? The newspapers in England having the largest circulation are not those in which personalities and veiled scandal are the chief characteristics. Is the general English taste less vulgar, are the morals of classes and masses purer in England than in America? If the American answers these questions by a negative, as he conscientiously can, how is he to account for the fact that the most sensational and vulgar newspapers in his country have the largest circulation? But, to be fair, what is it that attracts the decent, intelligent person to the sensational and vulgar journal? Is it that which is vulgar in it, or does he find in the newspaper that has this reputation something else that he needs? When he sits down at home or in his club, he denounces the newspaper as sensational, not to be credited, lowering to the public taste and morals; and the next morning he buys the same newspaper.—Charles Dudley Warner in Forum.

Rodney Was a Hero.

A little freckle faced, red headed boy, who wore a gingham waist and knickerbockers linked to the waist by one solitary button, which threatened at any stage in the game to break away and cause disaster, rushed into the principal's room of grammar school No. 9 between 12 and 1 o'clock and yelled, when he could get his breath:

"Say, teacher, there's a house on fire over on the drive!"

The school is at Eighty-second street and Eleventh avenue, and the "drive" was West End avenue. It was dinner hour at the school, and the children dropped their lunches and rushed pell mell down stairs to see the "house on fire."

The damage to the cottage on the "drive" was about $100, and all the school boys were present when the firemen put out the blaze. Then they escorted the red headed boy back to school and told everybody they met that "Rodney, he saw de fire first and he told der teacher."

For the rest of the day Rodney was a hero.—New York Evening Sun.

Jay Gould as a Pedestrian.

The marked improvement in Jay Gould's health, and in consequence his increasing activity in affairs, are causing considerable talk, particularly among those who knew what a dangerous physical condition he was in a year ago. George no longer represents his father in financial conferences, and on the street he is becoming once more a familiar figure. Outdoor exercise is the specific that has cured him of all his ills, and, to keep in good condition, every afternoon he walks from the Western Union building to his home above the Windsor hotel. George is his companion in these walks, and the pace they start out with is pretty rapid. Mr. Gould's overcoat is always thrown open and one hand stuck deep in his trousers pocket.—Cor. Richmond Times.

Hanged While Playing.

Leonard Stevens, 13 years old, of Whipple Hollow, Vt., lost his life a few days ago in a singular manner. He and a companion had been swinging in the barn on a rope, and to give variety to their amusement a large loop was tied in the rope for stirrups, so that they could take hold with their hands and swing out over a hay mow, and on letting go of the rope drop on the hay. This loop, which was large enough for the boy's body to pass through easily, passed over the lad's head, and when he let go with his hands it caught him around the neck and hanged him. He [illegible] arrived the boy was dead.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Speed of Electric Cars in Streets.

The board of aldermen in Boston recently passed an order limiting the speed of electric cars in the suburban districts to twelve miles an hour, and in the more crowded streets to seven miles per hour. It is argued that if the speeds mentioned were the average speeds, including stops, there would be nothing to complain of. For the suburban districts twelve miles per hour is altogether too low a limit and does not permit of rapid transit in any sense of the word. With an average of ten or twelve stops per mile, the average speed cannot exceed six or eight miles an hour—about the speed of an ordinary horse car.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Swagger Flowers.

Do you know how to tell the woman who wears flowers for their own sake from the woman who wears them as an accessory to her costume or simply to be swagger? Watch the promenades and pick out the women who are wearing a single Jack rose, with half a dozen jonquils. These are the women who wear flowers to be swagger, and this combination is the very swaggerest thing yet conceived of in the way of corsage decoration.—New York Evening Sun.

Of Burke and Burking.

It is common to laugh at the alleged "superstition" of negroes in regard to the "night doctors," who capture and kill vagrant blacks and sell their bodies to the surgeons; and, of course, the old time masters encouraged the delusion for obvious reasons. It is also common to ridicule the fear often expressed by ruralists that the corpses of friends will be stolen. Yet there is a foundation for the latter fear, and incredible as it may appear, there have been cases of killing people for their corpses. Of this incredible and truly reckless wickedness one individual gave such horrible instances that he added a new word to the language—"Burking."

This treply dyed villain and his associate Hare kept a cheap lodging house in Edinburgh, Scotland. Altogether they are known to have killed sixteen persons, and there was evidence that one of the corpses was in possession of Dr. Knox before the vital warmth had entirely departed. By the merest accident an intended victim, drunk and anxious to lie down, was taken to the wrong room, and found a recently strangled victim covered by straw. The horrible sight sobered him, and he escaped and gave notice. Hare, being almost an imbecile from intemperance, was allowed to turn informer, and Burke was hanged in 1829.

One such trial as that of Burke, with the inquiries and revelations which followed it, is enough to supply the popular mind with legends and horrifying superstitions for a hundred years, and it is quite likely that a scientific investigator taking up any current legend of murder for anatomical purposes might trace it back to its germ in one of the actual facts developed on that trial or in the subsequent inquiry. Now, the negroes of the south not only adopted greedily all the most horrible stories current among the whites, but they had their own traditions to draw upon. For many a year the Africans believed that their fellows were taken to foreign lands, not to toil, but to be eaten. A little later their American born descendants imagined that worn out old negroes were given to the doctors for dissection. Putting all these things and many more together, the blacks have evolved that truly blood curdling superstition about the "night doctor."

There is, they say, a black covered cart, with gummed wheels to make them noiseless, which goes its rounds in the negro sections of the city. Cart, horse and driver are all invisible in the midnight darkness; so the unwary darkey receives a fatal blow in the back, dies without a groan and is hustled into the cart, to be taken to those whose business it is to cut him up. The Indiana law is unusually severe, and Drs. Blackburn and Grant must face the lively prospect of a term in the penitentiary.—J. H. Beadle.

Pussy's Long Fast.

On Feb. 19 a live cat was dug out of a ruined building in Lynn, Mass. It is now known beyond a doubt that this animal had been confined in the ash pit of an old fashioned brick oven ever since the fire, Nov. 26, 1889. Instances of cats living without food or drink have been chronicled, but this one seems to have distanced all others. The old oven has not been used for over forty years, consequently nothing remains there for fodder. It may have been that mice and rats were confined with kitty and she made herself comfortable while they lasted. The place where the cat was confined is such that, when the smoking debris fell at the time of the fire, the hottest of the ruins were only a few feet distant. The animal, when released, could only walk a few steps at a time without falling over on her side.—New York World.

In overhauling the czar's civil list with a view to economy, recently, one of the items discovered was the payment of $730 per year for "lip salve," which has been made to one family ever since the time of Empress Catherine, who is supposed once to have had chapped lips.

Lake Chelan, in eastern Washington, never freezes, although in latitude 48 degs. north. The reason given is that it is so deep, and the warm water always rises from the bottom to supplant the cold, which goes down to warm itself. The Indians fish in the lake at all seasons and use salmon eggs for bait.

An Italian correspondent, writing in English from Rome, says that the pope "turned slightly pale" when Buffalo Bill's Indians "fell prostrate before him, then, with all the enthusiasm of their race, raised themselves from the ground, shouting with loud voices."

Printing in Germany keeps its 450th birthday this year, and the Teutonic printers' union intend to celebrate the anniversary right worthily. A grand commemoration was planned for the quarter century in 1840, but political disturbances prevented the festival, so that the German printers are anxious not to let the present anniversary pass unnoticed.

The woman reporter who is trying to get admission to the press gallery of the house of commons has got so far along as a statement by the speaker that there is no law to prevent her being admitted there. It was coupled, however, with the remark that as there was also no law to admit her there it might be just as well to let things stand as they are for the present.

The meteorological observatory at the Vatican, to be opened in May, is being fitted up with the newest and most elaborate instruments. The Emperor William's order is that no portrait of him or of the empress, or of other members of the imperial family, is to be published without his express sanction. Displeased with the photographic studies so far put before the public, the emperor is having his portrait painted by three artists—Koner, Profl and Becker;—to whom he gives sittings simultaneously. Sittings are also now given to a sculptor for the emperor's bust.

The use of electric lights is increasing with great rapidity among the London shopmen. A walk down the Strand or Oxford street after dark will show that every second or third store has now given up gas, which would have been entirely superseded some time ago if it were not so cheap. Many of the other large cities in England are now using the arc light, and at Brighton it is almost universal.

The will of a prominent attorney in Cincinnati is a peculiar document, and two of the provisions have attracted considerable comment. "I desire that no bar meeting be held for me, for such occasions are utilized by lawyers to exploit their eloquence without cause. I desire that no crape be worn by my family for me, but if any member chooses to do so the same shall be charged to his account."

AN electrician says that just what takes place in the human organism to produce death from an electric current seems to be an unsolved problem. One of the theories sometimes advanced concerning it is that when a being suffers death from electric shock, it is a pure case of internal rupture or explosion from the generation of gas or vapor. In support of this view the way in which telegraph poles are sometimes torn to pieces is referred to. The lightning follows the moist portion of the pole, which is the core or heart; in this case the moisture is vaporized and an explosion occurs. The high resistance produces heat, the heat in turn steam, and the steam an explosion.

MRS. CAROLINE DONOVAN, who has given $100,000 to John Hopkins University and made many other important public bequests, was such an admirer of General R. E. Lee that at the time of his death she was just on the point of giving him $100,000.

WUZER SHO'NUFF SPERIT.

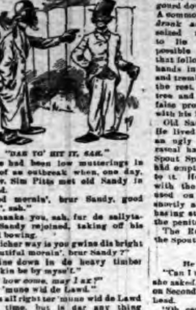
And it Broke Up the Revival at the Old Spout Springs.

How Old Sandy Came to Be Installed as Pastor of the Pine Knob Church—The Rev. Sim Pitts Was Overtoped and Haughty and Came to Grief.

COPYRIGHT 1890.

Trouble arose in the church. For years the Pine Knob congregation, colored, had been in a most happy condition. The revivals had been well attended, and the sisters had shouted with fervent lustiness; but ambition crept in and then trouble arose like a poisonous vapor.

It was old Sandy Bottomly's fault. He had grown jealous of the great and deserved popularity of the Rev. Sim Pitts, and wickedly rebelled against him. The truth is, old Sandy wanted to give up his trade of making horse-collars and devote himself to the ministry; and, not contented with the prospect of breaking away alone, he strove to create dissention and thereby lead a number of the members away with him.



"DAR TO' HIT IT, SAH."

There had been low mutterings in threat of an outbreak when, one day, the Rev. Sim Pitts met old Sandy in the road.

"Good mornin', brur Sandy, good mornin', sah."

"I thanks you, sah, fur de sallytation," Sandy rejoined, taking off his hat and bowing.

"Whicher way is you gwine dis bright an' beautiful mornin', brur Sandy?"

"Gwine down in de heavy timber whar I kin be by myse'f."

"An' how come, may I ax?"

"Ter 'mune wid de Lawd."

"It is all right ter 'mune wid de Lawd at any time, but is dar any thing special dat you has got on han'?"

"Nothin' dat needs ter consarn you, sah."

"But it is alius er pastor's business ter 'quire e' last any thing dat consarns one o' his flock."

"Oh, doan yo fret er 'bout de flock; de flock's all right. You go on now an' ten' ter yo' own affairs an' eat de dominecker chicken, an de red rooster an' de angel's food dat de sisters fix fur you."

"Oh, yas, it is all right fur me ter eat de angel's food," the preacher quickly retorted, "but I reckons dat angel's food would be outen place wid you. Deviled ham would be er bout yo' size."

"What do you mean by dat, sah?"

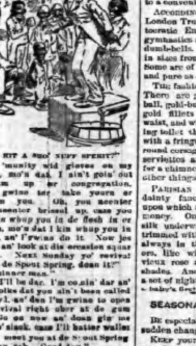
"Oh, ef you doan know, w'y I kaint hep it. De Lawd ain't called on me ter furnish langidge an' brains too."

"Dar you hit it," old Sandy exclaimed, "hit it dee sho, fer de Lawd ain't called on you er tall."

The preacher began to swell up like a toad.

"I grabs yo' meanin' by de ha'r, sah, an' I now sees dat de cat is dun jumped outen de tow sack. Fur some time, Mr. Sandy—ain't gwine call your brur no mo—ole Satan has been puttin' mischief in dat head o' yours. Dis yere church has snatched so many pussons er way frum de jaws o' torment dat Satan got powerful oneasy, an' he has dun chused you ez er agent ter hep him. Oh, I has got de thing down fine."

"Is you? Is you got it down fine? Wall, I reckon you has had it fine fur er good while. I reckon you has been libin' offen de fat o' dis yere lan' an' er wallerin' in de shade wid er hunk o' pie in yo' claw while de uder folks o' de munity is out in de hot sun makin' suthin fur you ter take yo choice frum. Yas, sah, dat's er fack, you has got it mighty fine; but lemme tell you, ole posson, I'se gwine hab er little o' dat ar pie myse'f. I'se er gittin tired o' makin' hoss collars an' I'se gwine ride roun' de 'munity wid gloves on my han's; an, mo'n dat, I ain't goin' out ter drum up er congregation, but is gwine ter take yourn er way from you. Oh, you needn't splode, needn't brissel up, case you know I kin whup you in de flesh in er minit; an, mo'n dat I kin whup you in de sperit, an' I'm gwine do it. Now jes keep cool an' look at dis occasion squar in de face. Next Sunday yo' revival begins at de Spout Spring, doan it?"



"WUZ HIT A SHO' NUFF SPERIT?"

"It do, sinner man."

"Wall, I'll be dar. I'm comin' dar an' show de folks dat you ain't been called fy de Lawd, an' den I'm gwine to open up er revival right ober at de gum spring. Go on now an' doan gin me none o' yo' slack, case I'll batter waller you. I'll meet you at de Spout Spring nex' Sunday, sah. Good day."

On the following Sunday a great crowd of the brothers and sisters gathered at the Spout Spring. The day was beautiful and the mocking bird had sung all night in herald of its coming. Butter-flies blazed against a moss-covered bank, and a humming bird flew down to gaze at himself in a dew drop caught by a violet.

The Spout Spring flowed through an old log, and fell on the pebbles with a splash of silver. Old Sandy came and quietly took a seat on a rock. The preacher, strong in confidence, gave the rebel a contemptuous look. A hymn was sung, a prayer was offered and then the Rev. Sim Pitts arose. He spoke a few commonplace words and then turned upon old Sandy and began to skin him. Sandy arose and leisurely strolled up the hillside. The people shouted in derision—the minister had crushed the rebellion. After a while Sandy returned.

"My frien's," said he, standing on a rock, "you is de las' folks in de worl' ter take de 'vantage o' er man; so I now prays dat you will yere what I has ter say. It has been norated erbout de 'munity dat I wants ter preach. I does, bruders, but fur why? Case I think dat you needs er honest man ter talk to you. At one time Mr. Pitts was a fuss rate posson, er visitin' de sick an' hepin' ter bury de dead; but like de pen-fed hog, he is got fat an' lazy, an' lemme tell you dat when er man gits lazy it is mighty hard fur him ter be honest. So, now I is gwine ter take his place. Hol' on, folks."

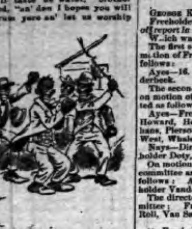
The people had begun to cry out ag'inst him.

"—er hol' on er minit, for it is wid yo' leave dat I am gwine ter do dis. Las' night suthin' er come ter me in er dream an' tole me dat dis man was corrupt. But suthin' said dat we would all find it out dis day. I axed how, an' den de sperit said dat as proof de very water whar he preached would be 'taminated. I said sholy not, fur dar want no purer water in de world den de Spout Spring, but de sperit 'sisted on it, an' now ef it doan prube ter be er fack, w'y, I'll hab no mo' ter say, an' dis posson dat has got fat offen us kin go ahead. Bruder Fin," old Sandy added, addressing a well-known deacon, "will you please step down thar an' taste o' dat water, sah?"

"Oh, stop yo' foolin' an' let dis yere revival go on," brother Fin answered. "You know dar ain't no better water in de world."

"Dat's jest what I blebes myself," said old Sandy, "but I wants ter see an know of datwus er sho' nuff sperit."

"Oh, I'll taste de water," brother Fin replied, "an' den I hopes you will go away frum yere an' let us worship in peace."



WITH THEIR THORN STICKS.

He dipped up a gourdful of the water, drank a swallow, threw the gourd down and heaved distressingly. A commotion followed. Other brothers drank and gagged. The preacher seized a cupful, drank, and had to lie down. It would be impossible to describe the scene that followed. Women threw up their hands in terror, and old men stood and trembled. One fellow, bolder than the rest, seized the bough of a thorn tree and lit in on the preacher. The false prophet ran away, glad to escape with his life.

Old Sandy was installed as pastor. He lived high for a few weeks. Then an ugly secret leaked out. The old rascal had discovered the source of the Spout Spring and at a timely moment had emptied a barrel of soap grease into it. He was unmercifully whipped with the thorn bough that had been used on the Rev. Sim Pitts, and, shortly afterward, upon conviction of having stolen a hog, was sentenced to the penitentiary for three years.

The Rev. Sim Pitts will preach at the Spout Spring next Sunday.

He Got Used to Cheekiness.

"Can I use your telephone a minute?" she asked, and she ran into a neighbor's on Second avenue with a shawl over her head.

"Oh, certainly."

"I'm going to give a party next week, and I want to invite a few friends."

"Yes?"

"Only my friends."

"Yes?"

"And therefore you—you won't be—?"

"Angry if I am not invited, nor won't consider it cheeky if you use my telephone to invite others! Oh, no. Any one who keeps a telephone in the house for use of the neighbors soon gets used to anything. Why, a man came in here the other day and used the line to call my husband up down town and dun him for a bill! Go ahead and call up the sub-office."

FRESH FADS AND FANCIES.

THE monocle for women is another quite startling fad.

A NEW corsage pin is a tiny mirror, the glass of which is made of a flat diamond and the rim and handle of diamonds and moonstones.

A FASHIONABLE freak in Paris is a looking-glass stand for the menu, so that the ladies may see how they look at the table.

THERE are a lot of new things in jewelry. The watch, which has of late been carried everywhere but in the place which seems specially designed by Providence for it, is now hung by a short chain from the brooch.

A RECENT conceit for a bachelor's writing table is the hand and forearm of a woman, preferably of some particular woman, with the hand made to hold an inkstand and the fingers arranged into a convenient pen rack.

ACCORDING to Editor Labouchere, of London Truth, the newest whim of aristocratic Englishwomen who go in for gymnastics and athletics is for cut glass dumb-bells. The newest toys are made in sizes from four ounces to two pounds. Some are of polished French glass, clear and pure as Japanese crystals.

THE fashion of the hour is gilt-edged. There are gilded kid slippers for the ball, gold-buckled garters for all times, gold fillets and girdles for hair and waist, and with the white and gold evening toilet there are ivory satin corsets with a fringe of gold to fall out over the round corsage of the bodice. Bed quilts, serviettes and doylies, and the curtain for a chimney or panel window, are some other things fringed with gold.

PARISIAN ladies have very odd and dainty fancies concerning underwear, upon which they spend fabulous sums of money. One lady wears nothing but silk underwear of the finest quality, trimmed with frills of delicate lace and always in the most out-of-the-way colors, like willow green, gobelin blue, vieux rose and other equally æsthetic shades. Another lady recently ordered a set of night-dresses made exactly like a baby's first [illegible].

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

BE especially careful of draughts and sudden changes.

KEEP your feet dry, but do not wear overshoes all the time.

DO NOT overwork. Of what use is wealth without health?

REMEMBER that the pores of your skin, when in health, are always open, and that closing them causes sickness.

DRESS warmly, but not heavily. Woolen clothing that permits the exhalations of the body to escape is best.

EAT strengthening and hearty, but not too much greasy food. It is a mistake to suppose that fat food contains the most vitality.

Out of Her Social Sphere.

FREEHOLDERS' PROCEEDINGS.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 17, 1890.

Pursuant to adjournment the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union met on Thursday, April 17, 1890, at 2.30 o'clock p. m.

Present—Director Hubbard and Freeholders Briant, Doty, Donahue, Howard, Houston, Jones, Kyte, Kleinhans, Pierson, Roll, Thompson, Vanderbeek, Van Saun, Wright, West and Whaley.—17.

Absent—None.

The minutes of last meeting (omitting list of bills ordered paid) were read and approved unanimously as read.

A committee from Elizabeth city council who desired to be heard in relation to extension or adoption of county road, from city line at El Mora station through Westfield-ave. to North Broad-st in the city of Elizabeth, whereupon motion of Freeholder West given unanimous consent to be heard.

After remarks by Mayor John C. Rankin, ex-city Attorney Bergen, City Attorney P. H. Gilhooly, ex-County Attorney J. A. Fay and Councilman Benjamin H. Campbell and the reading of petitions from taxpayers and citizens, Freeholder West moved the request be referred to committee of the whole.

Which was adopted unanimously.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

From committee of the whole:

To the board of chosen freeholders of Union county:

GENTLEMEN—

The committee of the whole would report and recommend, that Westfield-ave., within the limit of the city of Elizabeth, be adopted as a county road to North Broad-st. Also that a committee of five with the county attorney be appointed to inquire into the expediency and legality of improving Westfield ave., inside the city line of Elizabeth, by means of a direct tax if necessary.

WM. T. WEST
Chairman.

GEORGE KYTE, Secretary.

Freeholder Doty moved the adoption of report in sections.

Which was carried.

The first section was then read and on motion of Freeholder Howard adopted as follows:

Ayes—16. Nays—1. Freeholder Vanderbeek.

The second section was then read and on motion of Freeholder Kleinhans adopted as follows:

Ayes—Freeholders Briant, Donahue, Howard, Houston, Jones, Kyte, Kleinhans, Pierson, Roll, Van Saun, Wright, West, Whaley—13.

Nays—Director Hubbard, and Freeholder Doty, Thompson, Vanderbeek—4.

On motion to adopt the report of the committee as a whole it was adopted as follows: Ayes—16. Nays—1. Freeholder Vanderbeek.

The director named the following committee: Freeholders Howard, West, Roll, Van Saun, Donahue.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Thompson:

Resolved, That the director appoint a committee of five on the road between Rahway and Westfield, which road has heretofore been adopted as a county road, for the purpose of acting with the engineer in the laying out and improving said road under the county road act and performing such other duties as may be necessary in looking after and supervising the construction and improvement of the aforesaid road under said act.

On motion of Freeholder Roll adopted unanimously.

The director named the following committee: Freeholders Thompson, Howard, Pierson, Van Saun, Kleinhans.

By Freeholder Howard:

Resolved, That the committee on Milton avenue drawbridge, Rahway, be empowered to make a contract with Frank C. Martin as drawtender of said bridge at the same compensation as last year, namely, two hundred and fifty dollars.

Freeholder Thompson moved its adoption.

On roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Houston:

Resolved, That the committee on Elizabeth drawbridges be empowered to make contracts with tenders for the ensuing year.

First. To contract with John W. Van Pelt for tending South Front-st bridge, at a salary of four hundred dollars per year.

Second. To contract with David Bush for tending South-st bridge, at a yearly salary of one hundred and twenty-five dollars.

Third. To contract with William Ogden for tending Bridge-st. draw, at a salary of forty dollars per year.

Freeholder Roll moved its adoption.

On roll-call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Doty:

Resolved. That the opening of bids or estimates for road leading from Rahway to Westfield and the county road running through the townships of Summit and New Providence, be fixed for Monday, May 12, 1890, at 3 o'clock p. m.

On motion of Freeholder Howard adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Pierson:

Resolved, That a notice specifying the work and materials and inviting bids or propositions to perform and furnish the same, for regulating, grading and paving with telford macadam pavement Westfield avenue, through the city of Rahway, from the intersection of said Westfield avenue, with the centre line of St. George's avenue to the boundary line of the township of Clark, be published for three weeks, at least once in each week in the Elizabeth Daily Journal, Central New Jersey Herald, Engineering News of New York city, and Engineering and Building Record of New York city, and Daily News of Plainfield, in discretion of county engineer.

Freeholder Howard moved its adoption.

On roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Howard:

PEERLESS DYES [illegible]

A VARIETY OF VERSE.

The Conquest of Goodness.

It takes a thousand roses,
All gorgeously in bloom,
To make for dainty noses
A spoonful of perfume;
One onion, when it's feeling good
And able to be out,
Will tackle a whole neighborhood,
And put the folks to rout.

And so in life our kindly deeds
Seem weak and unobserved,
Their goodness very faintly speeds,
Their strength seems quite unnerved;
But let us something evil do,
The world will wildly shout,
And get us into such a stew
We never can get out.
—Chicago Herald.

What the Stair Clock Saw.

Up on the landing the stair clock stood—
The prim old clock,
As staid as rock—
And ticked away as hard as it could;
"Tick-tock, tick-tock,
'Tis late, go back."

Down in the doorway a lover wooed—
A sighing swain,
A cooing twain,
Each heart with love in a melting mood;
To part was pain,
'Twas plain, quite plain.

The sighing swain took a final kiss—
A resounding smack,
A bold attack—
The dying note of their soulful bliss;
Alas! Alack!
A parting crack.

The old clock saw, and it hid its face—
A shocking sight
So late at night;
It woke the echoes about the place;
"Not right! not right!
Young man, take flight!"

It looked again, and behold a sight—
An old man mad,
The young girl's dad—
A fleeing form in the cold, dark night,
A maiden sad,
Half sad, half glad.
—Frank B. Welch, in The Jewelers'.

Words!

Listen to the words around us,
Bodies of the thoughts they serve;
With their forces they confound us,
Touching every quivering nerve!

Stirring us to strife or kindness,
Striking for the wrong or right;
Sometimes cursing us with blindness,
Sometimes blessing us with light!

Angry words, like tempest swelling,
Beat against the soul with rage;
Sear the spirit's inner dwelling,
Stain with spots life's sacred page!

Kindly words, God's message bringers
Lift the good from out the sin,
Sweeten like the songs of singers
All the troubled life within!
—Ella Dare, in Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Book Canvasser.

Let me tell you confidentially
Of men who, deferently,
Will "chin" to you potentially,
By the quarter hour or less.
You may frown and scowl malignantly,
You may slam the door indignantly,
They'll smile on you benignantly,
If you say yes.

Their forte is affability,
They're men of marked civility,
Of most pronounced humility—
On this I lay some stress.
By reasoning quite synthetical,
They'll prove that you're poetical
And far from apathetical,
If you say yes.

They're public benefactors,
And, while they have detractors,
As who has not? The fact is,
And this you must confess,
They broaden human knowledge
Without any aid from college,
This much you will acknowledge,
If you say yes.

The fund of information
Revealed in conversation
With men of any station,
Or outward form of dress,
Shows clearly to the skeptical
That, in matters intellectual,
You're sure to be effectual,
If you say yes.

I've a feeling that's fraternal
For those visitors diurnal
And "droppers in" nocturnal,
Which I always will express,
And the height of my ambition
Is to better their condition,
Which can only reach fruition
When we all say yes.
—Philadelphia Press.

She Showed Him Stars.

For every shooting star he claimed a kiss.
She, seeming coy, at first demurred to this;
But he, persisting, would not be denied
When he at length a flying meteor spied.
And so, as evening grew apace, their eyes
Oft scanned the glittering aspect of the skies;
And when a darting star caught either's sight
A sound of kissing broke upon the night.
And so it came to pass anon that she Longed for a shooting star as much as he.
Nay, if by chance a star escaped his view,
She called his wandering fancy to it too.
When intervals seemed long between each beam
She called him on a passing lightning-bug;
And, ever taxing her ingenious mind,
Her ready wit enabled her to find
More shooting stars in three short, fleeting hours
Than would compose whole meteoric showers.
But when she did her last pretext exhaust
And was about to yield her cause as lost,
She saw a switchman's lantern circling swing
And got the youth down to a steady thing.
—Vassar Miscellany.

Noontide Hours.

All beginnings have their zest;
Every ending bringeth rest:
Rhythmic throb, impelling tress,
Rest and zest—ease and endeavor.
Morning hours are filled with zest,
Evening hours are crowned with rest.

But calm eves and mornings green
Have their long, bright day between.
When the noontide burneth hot,
Zest hath vanished, rest comes not.
Still the labor must be done;
Rest comes not till set of sun.

Patience, then, O soul of mine!
Now thy labor grows divine:
For in sultry noontide hours
Duty girds thee with fresh powers.
Duty, though should fail thy zest,
Leads thee, victor, to sweet rest.
—Mrs. Merrill E. Gates, in S. S. Times.

Gretchen.

Gretchen, so lithesome is thy maiden grace;
So blue are those Teutonic violet eyes;
So flax-n are those wondrous braids of thine,
Thou dost persuade me 'twas an ancestress
Of thine who first inspired old Goethe's pen;
So gazing on thy beauty I forget
Thou art waitress in a German restaurant
Where steaks are served miraculously tough.
Such eyes as thine—a cup of coffee, please—
Would win a Faust without the demon aid
Of that red plotter, Mephistopheles—
Bring me some ham and eggs—thy frank, bright smile
Outdoes a spell—some fried potatoes, too—
That long abides with me—an omelet—
Thou art modern Hebe—bring some rolls—
And Jupiter were blessed among gods
To have a handmaid beautiful as thee
To spill ambrosia down his god-like neck.
Fain would I linger longer to admire
But I'm half starved, so "hustle," if you please.
—America.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

PARIS sends to foreign countries annually $800,000 worth of bonbons.

WHALEBONE is so scarce that it now sells for $12,500 per ton in London.

A WINE company in California lately received an order from England for 50,000 gallons of sweet wine.

THE Mexican Government lately ordered 1,000,000 grape cuttings from California, and will distribute them free to all who wish to plant them in Mexico.

THE prices of camphor and gum promise to rise. The German Government is making gigantic purchases of these articles for the manufacture of smokeless powder.

A PRACTICAL dyer of Rockford, Ill., has discovered a process by which he can stamp burlap in absolutely fast colors. This has heretofore been considered impossible, and the discovery is considered quite important.

THE petroleum production of Southern California last year reached 15,000,000 gallons, valued at $1,500,000. The article is of special value to that region. Its utilization as fuel for manufacturing purposes has had much to do with solving a vexed question.

IT is said that George T. Smith's middlings purifier has increased the wealth of the Northwest fully $200,000,000, and the American Millers' Association has awarded him a gold medal for bringing out the most important invention ever made in milling machinery.

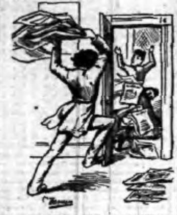
WOMAN'S SUNNY SMILE.

It Now Shines Cheerily on the Busy Marts of the World.

And the [illegible] of Man's Toil Is Getting Almost Too Lively for Some of Us Quiet People.

COPYRIGHT 1890.

For some years I have had a hankering to write an essay on "The Increasing Prevalence of Woman in the Fields and Pastures of Human Industry." It is really wonderful how the big office buildings of New York are now thronged with fair typewriters—indeed, they range all the way from fair to middling—and some of them have even learned not to write yours truly with two capitals. Then, too, the wives of business men drop into these offices much more frequently than formerly, to give advice and to see that everything is going all right; so that the influence of woman is felt with ever-growing force in the busy marts of the world.



WHEN PATIENCE CEASED TO BE A VIRTUE.

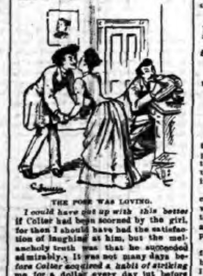
It would have been my object in this essay to show how women had come to labor side by side with man and cast the sunlight of her smile on the steep and rocky pathway of our toil. I proposed to welcome her to the struggle; to express my pleasure that she had taken upon herself one half of the world's work, and my willingness that she should take the other half if she wanted it.

I am glad that I did not write the essay in the first flush of enthusiasm. I agree with Hoyle that it doesn't do to bet too rashly on a flush of that kind. I should then have dwelt only upon the advantages of industrial co-operation for the sexes and should have wholly neglected its inconveniences. I now propose to dwell upon its inconveniences, and neglect its advantages.

Some time ago, I went into a sort of partnership with an artist named Colter. We sublet an office together on the understanding that he should bor ow the rent one week and I the next. He has stuck by the agreement ever since, and has touched me for the amount as regularly as his Saturday came around. Nevertheless we did not fight at first. We were mutually useful to each other. When he wanted a model for a Grecian hero or one of those elegant cuts for clothing house advertisements, I posed for him in graceful and fetching positions. And when I struggled to express a tender sentiment or a subtle witticism he would sometimes help me out by drawing a picture of it look at while I wrote.

And speaking of tender sentiments recalls me to the subject of this essay. Our office was on the top floor of a down-town building, and the window opened on the light-shaft. Directly across this shaft was the office of a lawyer, and next his window sat a fair young typewriter whose nimble fingers drummed out tunes on her machine all day long. I used to sit and listen dreamily to these melodies and fit words to them like "H. Fielding, call and settle the account of John Smith, tailor, or we shall bring suit; yours affectionately." When a man is nervous, little things like that annoy him.

But Colter was not troubled with any such reveries. The merry click of the keys sung love songs to him, and he would stand before the window many hours when he ought to have been out scrapping for work. I asked him if he didn't think the light of Heaven had a hard enough time struggling down to my desk through this muggy and grippy atmosphere, and whether, in view of this fact, he wouldn't get out of my light and give me a chance to earn the rent.



THE POSE WAS LOVING.

I could have put up with this better if Colter had been scorned by the girl, for then I should have had the satisfaction of laughing at him, but the melancholy truth was that he succeeded admirably. It was not many days before Colter acquired a habit of striking me for a dollar every day just before lunch time. Formerly twenty cents was luxury to him, and when I coupled this fact with the observation that the typewriter always disappeared from the window shortly after my dollar dropped into Colter's palm, I began to suspect that the two were lunching together.

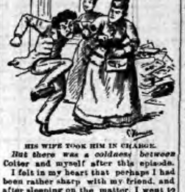
Then he took to sketching her, and the office got all littered up with her head, in pen and ink or crayon. The first time I saw one of those pictures I hoped that it would separate them forever, but either he did not show it to her or else she forgave him, for they were the same old turtle doves. And by and by they got to flirting openly across the light-shaft, when the lawyer was out. They didn't mind me at all. Nobody ever does in occasions of that kind, and it wounds me deeply to be thus treated like a piece of furniture, but it is one of the penalties I pay for being an honest, simple-minded, and thoroughly good young man, and not ashamed to let people know that I am married, except on my wife's account.

They were not very rabid at first for the girl was one of those shy and modest creatures who do not rush madly into a flirtation, but can eat a great many boxes of candy before their hearts are really touched. She contented herself with timid glances across the shaft for a time, and it was more than two weeks before she threw him the first kiss. I had to carry him away from the window or I should not have had any more light that day.

After this, the affair became more serious. Colter was evidently hit hard. He couldn't draw a cut for a soap house or a piano factory without working in Mamie's face or figure. I didn't mind this at all, but there were some developments of the flirtation which I did seriously object to. When the lawyer was out, Mamie would stand by our door with one eye on the elevator and the other on Colter. They didn't dare to get out of the hall for fear the lawyer would come in, so they stood by the open door while the cold wind whistled in, and blew the long skirts of my office dressing gown wildly about my shivering form.

"Colter," I would howl, "in the name of mercy will you shut that door?"

Then Mamie would giggle, and Colter would whisper in her ear, in a voice which disturbed the janitor on the ground floor, that I was a little jealous, but was a good enough fellow under ordinary circumstances. After this they would go right on exchanging soft nothings, regardless of my bearing them and heartlessly indifferent to my influence. On one of these occasions it chanced that several hundred numbers of one of the big monthlies lay beside me. Colter had them to steal pictures out of. I picked up about a dozen of them by the corners and threw them in one great bunch at the back of my enemy. The magazines spread out like angel's wings, and they descended on the lovers with a noise calculated to scare a guilty conscience out of its boots. It knocked Colter clear out into the hall, but before he vanished from sight, I reached him with the magazines for the years '88 and '89, after which I knocked the door to with '87, and was at peace.



HIS WIFE TOOK HIM IN CHARGE.

But there was a coldness between Colter and myself after this episode. I felt in my heart that perhaps I had been rather sharp with my friend, and after sleeping on the matter, I went to him next day and told him that I hoped that one hasty act on my part would not sever the cordial relations which had existed between us. I expressed my desire that he should let everything be as it had been before, and he took the hint and borrowed the usual dollar for lunch. He did it in a friendly way and not as a man who cherished animosity, and so my secret fears of retaliation were lulled. I was always too trustful.

A few days later Colter got an order to illustrate a love story for one of the magazines. He said that he proposed to throw his whole soul into it. He was going to get his inspiration for the heroine from Mamie. Would I object to having her come into my office once in a while, so that he could study her face? I said that I hadn't the least in the world. So they cut down their lunches after this and spent the time thus saved in the study above referred to. They usually persuaded me to stand in the window at such times and watch for the lawyer. One day, however, Colter got a new idea; he would have Mamie and I pose for one of his illustrations. I didn't suppose that it would be anything very tender on account of Colter's sentiments. And it wasn't. He only wanted us to clasp hands and gaze into each others eyes with a last, long lingering look of love. I said that if it was going to be the last I thought I could stand it. So we posed. Mamie did it to perfection. She began by imagining that I was Colter, and then she cast a look upon me that broke the backstrap of my vest.

Colter took up his sketching tools and went to work. Just as he was putting in the most tender lines, and had persuaded my countenance to assume an expression of desperate, everlasting devotion, there came a step in the hall, and a hand was laid upon the door-knob. Colter got down on the floor and crawled under a pile of old newspapers; but Mamie and I stood there because we hadn't presence of mind enough to let go of each other's hands. Then the door opened and my wife entered. I need say no more.

As she led me away (see cut of mar with his ear in chancery), I addressed some reproachful words to Colter, but he only stuck one foot out from under the pile of papers and wagged it in a way that said: "I never interfere in family affairs." The coldness between Colter and me was even more intense than before when next we met; and, as I hinted in the beginning, my ideas of the industrial future of women and of her mission and usefulness in the fields of our toil had undergone a change.

NEW YORK'S BENCH SHOW

Some of the Dogs That are Sure to Take Prizes.

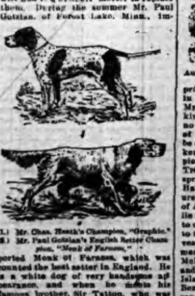
H. W. Lacy Picks the Winners—Owners of Blue-Blooded Dogs on the Qui-vive—At the Show There Will Be No End of Pretty Girls.

COPYRIGHT 1890

A lover of dogs, in looking back over the past decade, will find much to surprise and admire when he strolls between the benches in such a show as the Westminster Kennel Club will hold in New York.

My experience of bench shows in this country dates back nearly ten years, and what vast strides have been made in that time!—both in the breeding of the animal and the position it now occupies in the estimation of the public.

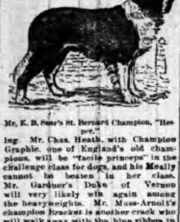
We have had to depend on England for our best importations, but in many breeds, and these the principle ones, as I shall endeavor to show, we now have the best that the world can afford. This is especially the case in English and Irish setters, pointers, mastiffs, St. Bernards, collies, beagles, bull-terriers and fox-terriers, with several other breeds almost keeping pace, such as spaniels, pugs and Great Danes. English exhibitors say themselves that in taking from them such setters as Monk of Furness, Sir Tatton, Cora of Wetheral, Rockingham and Count Howard, the breeders over there will find it a difficult matter to replace them. During the summer Mr. Paul Gotzian, of Forest Lake, Minn., imported Monk of Furness, which was counted the best setter in England. He is a white dog of very handsome appearance, and when he meets his famous brother, Sir Tatton, who was imported last spring by the Item Kennels, Bethlehem, Penn., in the show ring, Mr. John Davidson, the judge, will need to bring all his experience and knowledge into play to place the ribbons correctly.



(1.) Mr. Chas. Heath's Champion, "Graphic."
(2.) Mr. Paul Gotzian's English Setter Champion, "Monk of Furness."

In Irish setters America has long been able to hold her own, and we shall see at New York an exhibition of this breed which could not be equalled in the world; especially when such cracks as Max Wenzel, Chief, and Tim; E. W. Clark's Blarney; Kildare Kennels: Laura B., and E. Maher's Larry S. are sure to be winners in their classes. Then Gordon setter enthusiasts will have a grand display, as I hear that such noted dogs as Dr. Dixon's Champion Little Boy, and Dr. Meyer's Beaumont, will fight their battles over again in the dog challenge class, and the latter's Champion Belmont cannot be beaten by any of her sex.

Admirers of the pointer breed will have enough to talk about for many a day. The Westminster Kennel Club's dogs will as usual be on exhibition only, though as the leading pointer kennel in the country they can hold their own against all comers with such dogs as Naso of Kippen, Lad, and Lass of Bow, and others of their own breeding. Mr. Chas. Heath, with Champion Graphic, one of England's old champions, will be "facile princeps" in the challenge class for dogs, and his Meally cannot be beaten in her class. Mr. Gardner's Duke of Vernon will very likely win again among the heavyweights. Mr. Muss-Arnolt's champion Bracket is another crack who will walk away with the blue ribbon in his class though King of Kent will push him hard.

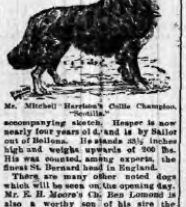


Mr. E. B. Sear's St. Bernard Champion, "Hesper."

Taking leave of these sporting dogs I now turn to the mastiffs which have long enjoyed deserved popularity. Mr. E. H. Moore, of Melrose, Mass., is the leader in this breed, having expended large sums to get the best that England could furnish.

In Minting, which he purchased in 1887, he had the best mastiff in either country, but he unfortunately died of heart disease last summer, and he will be sadly missed at the coming show. Mr. Moore also imported Ch. Ilford Caution, who also died within a day or so of Minting, entailing a heavy loss to his owner, as he was undoubtedly the best mastiff stud dog which ever reached these shores. Mr. Moore is not easily daunted, and the sod had hardly covered the dead ones before he had imported Ilford Chancellor and Cambria Princess, the latter considered then the best mastiff in England. These will be at the W. K. C. show, with several others which cost their thousands, among them the Lady Colena, the Lady Phyllis and the Lady Dorothy.

The popular St. Bernards have never been so well represented as they will be this year, as we have now within our shores the best, with one exception—Sir Bedivere—that England or Switzerland could supply us with; these are Ch. Hesper, Prince Regent and Hector. Mr. E. B. Sears lately purchased the rough coated Hesper for $2,000. This dog has been carrying all before him on the bench in England, and your readers can judge for themselves whether he deserves his position by the accompanying sketch. Hesper is now nearly four years old, and is by Sailor out of Bellona. He stands 33½ inches high and weighs upwards of 200 lbs. His was counted, among experts, the finest St. Bernard head in England.

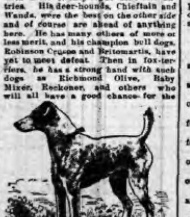


Mr. Mitchell Harrison's Collie Champion, "Scotilla."

There are many other noted dogs which will be seen on the opening day. Mr. E. H. Moore's Ch. Ben Lomond is also a worthy son of his sire the great Philimmion. Saffron and Lady Miles will also come from Mr. Moore's large kennel, and the contest will be very keen. American breeders this year will make a big showing of native-bred stock and the judge, Miss Whitney, by the way the first and the only one of her sex to don the ermine, will have a busy time to place the winners.

In Newfoundlands, funny as it may seem, America is far behind and fairly passable specimens are few and far between and they may be passed with the remark that Mr. Marsh's Prince George will be the best shown.

Mr. John C. Thayer of Lancaster, Mass., one of New England's millionaires, has for some time had a large kennel of deer-hounds, bull-dogs and fox-terriers, and he will be on deck with some twenty-eight different entries. His deer-hounds, Chieftain and Wanda, were the best on the other side and of course are ahead of anything here. He has many others of more or less merit, and his champion bull dogs, Robinson Crusoe and Britomartis, have yet to meet defeat. Then in fox-terriers, he has a strong hand with such dogs as Richmond Olive, Baby Mixer, Reckoner, and others who will all have a good chance for the prizes.

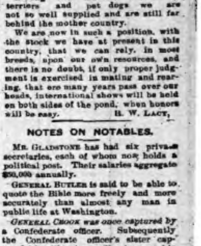


August Belmont, Jr.'s Fox Terrier, "Dusky Trap."

America is particularly strong in collies, thanks to the enterprise of Mr. Mitchell Harrison, one of the sugar kings of Philadelphia, who has spared no expense in getting together a kennel of the farmers' friends such as cannot be equalled in the universe. When one kennel can show a quartette of champions like Dublin Scot, Scotilla, Nancy Trefoil, for which $1,500 was given last spring, Flurry II, and The Squire, Mr. Harrison's latest purchase at a long figure, there is every prospect that instead of Americans going to England for collie stock the Britishers will soon have to come to Uncle Sam. A recent visit to these kennels, the Chestnut Hill, revealed some 98 collies, all of great merit. Other noted breeders are Messrs. McEwen & Gibson, of Ontario, Canada, and the Hempstead Farm kennels, Long Island, who imported the champion Bendigo, and Bertha, sold to Mr. Pierpont Morgan for $1,500.

Mr. August Belmont, Jr., takes great interest in foxterriers, and his kennel at Hempstead contains a team which would completely smother any similar one in England. He has purchased, regardless of expense, but at the same time with excellent judgment. His champions Rachel, Lucifer, Bacchante, Dusky Trap and New Forest Ethel are collectively the best the world can produce.

Bull-terriers will be represented better this time than ever before. Mr. Frank Dole of New Haven, Conn., is an old breeder and his Bendigo, Chessels, Flyer and Starlight are all cracks and so are Mr. Hobbie's Enterprise and Spotless Prince.



Mr. John E. Thayer's Bull Dog Champion, "Britomartis."

Among the smaller breeds of terriers and pet dogs we are not so well supplied and are still far behind the mother country.

We are now in such a position, with the stock we have at present in this country, that we can rely, in most breeds, upon our own resources, and there is no doubt, if only proper judgment is exercised in mating and rearing, that ere many years pass over our heads, international shows will be held on both sides of the pond, when honors will be easy.

NOTES ON NOTABLES.

MR. GLADSTONE has had six private secretaries, each of whom now holds a political post. Their salaries aggregate $50,000 annually.

GENERAL BUTLER is said to be able to quote the Bible more freely and more accurately than almost any man in public life at Washington.

GENERAL CROOK was once captured by a Confederate officer. Subsequently the Confederate officer's sister captured him likewise. She is now his widow.

SENATOR ALLISON is said to be a pleasant man to "interview," but he is very diplomatic in his talk and avoids committing himself to positive statements.

IT is estimated that Stanley traveled 5,400 miles through Africa in the late expedition, all but 1,000 of which were on foot. The time occupied was three years.

DR. BROWN-SEQUARD is still engaged on his youthful elixir at Paris, and persists in believing that his experiments will at last be successfully established.

HON. PERRY BELMONT has received the decoration of commander of the Legion of Honor, in recognition of his services to the French Republic in connection with the Paris Exposition.

LEO XIII. has directed that his monumental tomb shall only consist of his figure recumbent in white marble upon a sepulchral urn of porphyry, on the sides of which are to be the statues of religion and justice; many of the popes proscribed their monuments, though Pius IX. did not leave any directions in regard to his.

JAMES A. BAILEY, Barnum's partner in the greatest show on earth business, is one of the richest men in the United States to-day and half owner of the biggest and most successful show of all time. It was Bailey who bred the first elephant and lion in captivity, who bought and boomed Jumbo and who bribed King Treebaw to let the sacred white elephant leave Siam.

A PARIS paper thus describes Louise Michel, who has been nick-named the "stormy petroleuse of French politics:" "Her face flames with color, from the center of her ostrich-egg-shaped forehead; her untidy hair cascades upon her neck. She is dressed in black, and no ribbon, flower or jewel shows trace of feminine grace. Her eyes are not fierce; they are filled with tenderness—that tenderness which is the origin of all socialism. For Louise Michel is more a socialist by heart than by reason."

THE German Emperor rises early, takes a very light breakfast, and goes for a little exercise, after which he takes a second breakfast, this time of an omelette, ham and eggs, a mutton chop or a chicken. He dines at 1:30 on bouillon or broth, boiled meat with vegetables, followed by roast meat and pudding, and if there is company present an entree and an ice. His supper is of meat or fish and pudding. His favorite dishes are poulets sautees, with potatoes or baked fish, especially perch, pike, sole or turbot.

MR. MOODY'S recent meetings at New Haven, Conn., were remarkably successful. Many of Yale's well-known athletes and society men were converted. Among them are Calhoun, captain of the nine, and an editor Yale Record; Allen, captain and stroke of the crew; Harvey, half-back on the foot-ball team; Graves, of the nine and eleven; Newell, a member of the eleven and crew; Harrison, bow oar on the crew; Heffelfinger, on the crew and eleven; McBride, first base on the nine and full back on the eleven; Dalzell center field and change pitcher; Poole, catcher; McClung, change catcher and short-stop; Balliet, substitute on the crew.

THE WORLD'S UNIVERSITIES.

NORWAY has 1 university, 46 professors and 880 students.

FRANCE has 1 university, 180 professors and 9,300 students.

HOLLAND has 4 universities, 80 professors and 1,600 students.

BELGIUM has 4 universities, 88 professors and 2,400 students.

SWEDEN has 2 universities, 173 professors and 1,010 students.

RUSSIA has 8 universities, 585 professors and 6,900 students.

PORTUGAL has 1 university, 40 professors and 1,300 students.

ITALY has 17 universities, 600 professors and 11,140 students.

DENMARK has 1 university, 40 professors and 1,400 students.

SPAIN has 10 universities, 380 professors and 16,200 students.

SWITZERLAND has 3 universities, 90 professors and 2,000 students.

GERMANY has 21 universities, 1,020 professors and 25,084 students.

AUSTRIA has 10 universities, 1,810 professors and 13,600 students.

GREAT BRITAIN has 11 universities, 334 professors and 13,400 students.

THE United States of America has 360 universities, 4,240 professors and 69,400 students.

BUSINESS BREVITIES.

NATURAL gas saves Pittsburgh 7,000,000 tons of coal per year.

THERE are thirty-six car-building companies in the United States, and in the year 1889 they turned out 70,546 cars.

ONE of the big life insurance companies of New York intends to put up a building in Salt Lake City that will cost $1,500,000.

IT is stated that one real estate firm at Salt Lake City cleared $140,000 last year on commissions alone. Another broker banked $80,000 in six months.

THE petroleum supply of Pennsylvania seems to be inexhaustible. During the month of February 476 new wells were opened, adding 10,450 barrels daily to the yield of the oil [illegible].

PLAINFIELD'S POSTAL RECEIPTS.

A Record of All Mail Matter Handled for a Week Closing Monday.

Few persons have any idea of the magnitude of the business transacted in the Plainfield postoffice. In accordance with a general order sent out by the postoffice authorities at Washington, every postmaster in the United States was obliged to keep a record of all mail matter handled, together with the receipts, etc., for the week beginning at six o'clock A. M., on Monday, May 5, and closing at six o'clock on the morning of May 12.

During that time Postmaster E. R. Pope reports that in all 33,709 individual pieces of mail matter was handled in the Plainfield office. Of this number, 13,[illegible] were letters, 2,500 were postal cards, and the balance was made up of packages, etc. The total weight was 603 lbs 3 oz., and the total amount of money received for postage was $361.86. During the week 207 money orders were issued and paid, and 120 registered letters were received and sent out, all of which speaks well for the Plainfield office.

TWO MORE LICENSES GRANTED.

The City Council Grants the Applications of Frank E. Miller and Frank Linke.

The City Council held an adjourned [illegible] Monday, [illegible] the applications of Messrs. Frank E. Miller and Frank Linke, the former for a hotel and bar license at Netherwood in the building owned by him, and known as the Netherwood Hotel, and the latter for a wholesale license to sell in quantities ranging from one to five gallons at No. 42 West Front street.

President Moffett called the Council to order promptly at eight o'clock, and besides himself there were present Messrs. Gallup, Hatfield, Johnston, Roberts, Smith and Spangenberg.

Upon motion of Mr. Hatfield the reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with.

The same Councilman moved to take up and grant Mr. F. E. Miller's application. The Clerk read the application and it was unanimously granted, all present voting aye.

The application of Mr. Frank Linke was next taken up, the License Committee having reported that it was in conformity with the ordinance. Mr. Smith moved to lay the application on the table until the next meeting. He explained his motion by stating that there are others conducting the same kind of business, and he wanted time to investigate the matter. The motion was not seconded, and the application was, upon motion of Mr. Hatfield, granted, by a vote of 6 to 1—Mr. Smith voting "No."

There being no further business to come up for consideration the Council then adjourned.

Awarded Damages, but Must Pay the Costs of Suit.

After a long and tedious suit, the jury in the Watson-Livingnolo case, Monday, awarded the plaintiff, Mrs. A. Livingnolo, the sum of $50 damages. Her suit was for $2,000 against Mr. Watson for alleged abuse of furniture and property rented of him.

A Contemporary's First Mistake.

It has not been for lack of observation but for lack of space, that THE PRESS has not before spoken of the change in the shape of the Elizabeth Journal. It is the first mistake ever known in the history of that illiberally edited but, by all odds, best newspaper in the county. Its contents are not now so easily recognized, and the most of its advertisers will object to position on half its pages.

Where is Mrs. Tousley.

There is a letter in the Plainfield Post Office addressed "Mrs. W. S. Salter, Kansas City, Miss.," which contains a pension claim of the war of 1812, No. 31703, issued to Clarissa Tousley, widow of Bozwick Tousley, Corporal in the Vermont militia. This letter was sent from Plainfield to above address March 17, and finding no owner for it at Kansas City, was sent to the Dead Letter Office, and from there returned to this office May 6, to find Mrs. Tousley, who, however, is unknown to the Postmaster. The documents are valuable to the owner.

Family Gathering at Bound Brook.

Between fifty and sixty persons from this city and Somerville were present at the 70th birthday celebration of Mrs. Rebecca Fenner of Somerville, held at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. George Wortman, at Bound Brook, on Saturday. All of Mrs. Fenner's sons and daughters were present, together with about twenty-five grandchildren. Among those in attendance from here were Mr. H. V. Mildeworth and family and Mr. H. J. Marsh and family of North Plainfield. The entire day was passed in various social ways, the guests departing for their homes at night fall.

[illegible]

A bigoted Plainfield paper says that: "During the entire year of 1790, when no [illegible] prevailed, the arrests for intoxication, were only fifty-one." This is valuable information from an antediluvian standpoint. We have often beguiled our leisure hours wondering whether the arrests in 1790 were fifty or fifty-one. It would also be interesting to know how many persons were sober during the same period. As far as we can find out, fifty-one was a pretty fair percentage of the population in 1790. If the paper named continues its prehistoric research, it may yet be of some use to the community.

Changes in Real Estate.

During the past week the following changes have been made in real estate in this city, and Scotch Plains:

Caroline Miller to Annie Miller, Park avenue.

Caroline Miller to Annie Miller, Scotch Plains.

THE OLD BOARD ELECTED.

Last Year's Financial Statement Shows a Balance in Favor of the Music Hall Association.

The annual meeting of the Music Hall Association was held on Monday, and as usual only a minority of the capitalized stock was voted on. Out of 800 shares, only 270 votes were cast in person or by proxy, in the election of a board of directors.

For the first time in the history of the association, an opposition to the old and [illegible] board developed. But it was merely the forerunner of a coming change. There was present in [illegible] 191 votes for the opposition ticket; but only 79 votes were cast for it. This ticket included the following: E. R. Pope, J. W. Johnson, E. H. Coon, O. T. Waring, R. M. Stelle, W. S. Voorhees, J. F. Hubbard, J. H. [illegible], J. W. Murray, C. A. Marsh, A. T. Gallup.

The old board ticket as follows, received 199 votes, and was re-elected: W. E. Potts, W. J. Boone, W. E. Lowe, O. T. Waring, M. W. Tyler, L. V. F. Randolph, J. B. Dumont, D. A. Hegeman, J. W. Murray, C. A. Marsh, A. Gilbert.

The seventh annual report of Treasurer O. T. Waring, for the year ending May 1, 1890 is as follows:

COMMITTED TO THE INSANE ASYLUM.

A Well-Known North Plainfielder Declared Insane and Judge Emerson Sends Him to Trenton.

Noah Drake, a well-known character about town, and a resident in North Plainfield, was on Wednesday committed to the Insane Asylum at Trenton, it having been clearly established that he was of unsound mind and a dangerous person to roam at large. For a long time past Mr. Drake has been acting strangely and a few weeks ago he was committed to the Somerville Jail pending an examination as to his sanity. He was, however, soon released, and his strange actions have since resulted in his commitment to the asylum.

At the North Plainfield Township Committee meeting on Friday evening last, Overseer of the Poor, J. W. A. [illegible] brought the matter before the committee, and it was then decided to send the demented man to the asylum. Dr. J. H. Carman made an examination of his mental condition, and it is said found it very impaired. Judge Emerson of Somerville sent down the commitment papers yesterday, and Special Marshal Coddington took Drake to Trenton this forenoon.

SUSTAINING THE WILL.

Judge McCormick Decides that the Moore Will Must Stand.

In the Union County Court at Elizabeth, Wednesday, Judge McCormick rendered his decision in the famous Moore will case, by sustaining the will. Mr. John Moore, a son of the testator, who is contesting the will, will probably bring an ejectment suit, and take an appeal from Judge McCormick's decision. The will as drawn up, leaves the contestant the use of one-half of the large estate, until such time as the executor may be satisfied that the legatee would put the money to good use than he (the executor) would pay over to him the entire one-half of the estate.

The contest has been going on for several months.

Another County Road.

The board of chosen freeholders met Monday afternoon for the purpose of opening sealed proposals for the improvement of the county road from Rahway through Clark, Westfield and Summit townships to New Providence. The bids were examined and contracts awarded, after which the board adjourned until 2.30 yesterday afternoon, when the final meeting of the year was held, and the adjournment sine die declared.

An Insolent Tramp.

An insolent and dangerous looking tramp applied at a boarding house on [illegible] street, on Monday evening, and demanded something to eat. The fellow said he was a moulder at Pond's, but it is believed that he has no occupation. As it was after supper time the man's request was not complied with, and he became desperate. Mr. Frank McClurg, one of the occupants of the house, attempted to throw the tramp out, and in so doing the man turned and made a lunge at him with a knife, cutting through his coat sleeve and inflicting a slight wound on the wrist. The brute then made good his escape.

The Marriage License Bill.

For the benefit of those persons, if any there be, who anticipate leaving town for matrimonial purposes, it may be well to acquaint them with the fact that the Marriage License bill introduced by Assemblyman Woolman, of Camden, passed the House at Trenton, Tuesday morning. The bill provides that no marriage shall be performed unless the parties to the contract shall have first paid the Surrogate of the county and secured a certificate from him. A penalty of $100 is provided for any violation of the law, either by the contracting parties or the clergyman.

In advocating the measure, Mr. Woolman said that such a law as this was absolutely needed in Camden. The influx of couples from Pennsylvania where license was required had become a nuisance and a disgrace, while larger cities like Trenton only showed 700 marriages last year. The records in Camden showed that 4,[illegible] marriages had been performed in that city in one year. A glance at the records showed that the first twenty-seven couples married were [illegible] of age. The bill passed by a vote of 39 to 7.

An Excellent Traveling Companion.

No person should travel without a box of MANDRAKE PILLS in his satchel, for they will be found invaluable when change of food and water has brought on an attack of indigestion, or torpidity of the [illegible]. IVANHOE COUNCIL.

Celebrates the Seventh Anniversary of Its Organization by Holding Appropriate Exercises in Music Hall.

Ivanhoe Council, No. 1074, American Legion of Honor, which was organized in this city seven years ago, celebrated its seventh anniversary in Music Hall, on Tuesday. The stage was appropriately "set" for the occasion, and the audience was one of the largest that has yet assembled in the building. The ushers, members of the Council, exerted themselves to comfortably seat all who applied for admission, and in this respect they creditably acquitted themselves.

Commander George B Titsworth, presided in his usual dignified style, and announced the numbers on the printed programme, the first of which was a piano and violin duett by Messrs Rogers and Conde, followed by an address by Judge J. Frank Fort of Newark, Supreme Counsel of the order. The Judge spoke of the lodge as a fraternal insurance company, and stated that the amount of good derived from it could hardly be estimated. He also alluded to the financial benefits.

Prof. Louis Boose followed with a cornet solo, which was heartily encored, and Mr. J. Leslie Gossin, well-known to Plainfielders, favored the audience with a recital, which was also heartily applauded.

The "hit" of the evening was the music rendered by the quartette composed of Messrs E. E. Runyon, M. C. VanArsdale, A. L. Titsworth and R. Gorton, all of which brought forth loud and prolonged applause, and the singers were obliged to respond to several encores.

Next came an address by the Supreme Treasurer, John M. Gwinnell of Newark, and that gentleman also took occasion to speak of the benefits derived from joining the order. He produced figures to substantiate his statements. The balance of the programme was as follows, and it is needless to say that each and every part was received with marked attention:

Violin and piano duett	Messrs Conde and Rogers.
Humorous recital	J. Leslie Gossin.
Quartette	Selected.
Address	By Grand Orator C. A. Church of Passaic.
Cornet solo	Prof. Louis Boose.
Patriotic recital	J. Leslie Gossin.

On the whole the entertainment was a pronounced success, and too much cannot be said in praise of those who had the undertaking in charge.

The present officers of Ivanhoe Council are:

Commander—Geo. B. Titsworth.
Vice Commander—T. C. Smith.
Past Commander—Wm. H. Rogers.
Orator—A. L. Titsworth.
Secretary—O. E. Stillman.
Collector—F. D. Fuller.
Treasurer—L. A. Sheminer.
Chaplain—J. A. Powlison.
Guide—R. R. Rogers.
Warden—B. B. Egel.
Sentry—C. F. Drake.
Medical Examiner—J. T. Fritts, M. D.

The American Legion of Honor was organized December 18, 1878, and is incorporated under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The order is firmly established in nearly every State and Territory of the United States, with a membership of 63,000, apportioned among 1,065 Subordinate Councils under the jurisdiction of 18 Grand Councils; since the date of organization more than fifteen million dollars have been paid to beneficiaries of deceased companions.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The First Anniversary Service in the M. E. Church Sunday Evening.

The first anniversary service of the Epworth League of the M. E. church took place in that edifice, above evening, the church being densely filled with an appreciative and interested audience. Mr. Walter McGee presided and beside him on the platform were the officers of the League.

The programme included the singing of anthems by the choir, prayer, responsive reading, and a five minute address of welcome by Master Frank Martin. Miss Morrison also gave a recitation on the "History of Methodism," and Miss Keitling gave an address on "The Aims and Methods of the Epworth League." Offerings for the general expenses of the League were taken up by six young ladies.

A sketch of the local chapter was given by Master Geo. M Rittenhouse, and after a hymn was sung, the Rev. C. B. Mitchell pronounced the benediction.

Will Realize Over Fifty Dollars.

The ladies who had charge of the recent entertainment in the Congregational church, entitled "An Evening with Orientals," and of which Mrs. A. France was chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, report that the net proceeds will aggregate over $55. The entertainment consisted of music, songs, addresses, readings and the serving of refreshments, all of which were very enjoyable to those present.

Sawed Off His Hand.

Benjamin Gavin, a single man, aged 22 years, of Green Brook road, North Plainfield, while at work sawing wood with a circular saw, at half-past one o'clock on Tuesday, accidentally caught his right hand in the saw, almost completely severing the hand from the arm. Doctors Boone and Field attended the injured man, and amputated the hand. The young man is a son of Mr. E. P. Gavin, and has of late been driving a milk wagon for his father.

In Recognition of His Faithful Services.

The annual report of the President of the Y. M. C. A., as published Friday evening, omitted to mention the name of Mr. C. J. Robertson, draughtsman at Scott's Press Works, who has taught the advanced classes in mechanical drawing since last October.

As these classes have been conducted this season without a cent of expense to the association except for lighting the class room, it is only fair that Mr. Robertson's valuable services should have this recognition.

The Boys Help the Building.

Any of the audience who had visited the Paris Exposition had their experiences of that wonderful event recalled in a most delightful manner on Tuesday, as they listened to the lecture of the Rev. C. B. Mitchell at Reform Hall. While those who were not so fortunate as to have been at the French Capitol last Summer, were enabled to look at many of the most prominent features of that exhibition, and to carry with them a fair idea of its extent and magnificence.

The audience listened with close attention to the remarks of Mr. Mitchell, as he related his own experiences and gave vivid descriptions of the great exhibit and its surroundings. There were sixty stereopticon views of the different buildings and interiors, the Eiffel Tower, fountains and statuary, and all these were described and explained in a most interesting way.

The next best thing to visiting the Exposition is listening to such a lecture, and there is very little doubt but that this was the verdict of all who were present that evening.

A Flat Contradiction.

Some one has told you that your catarrh is incurable. It is not so. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure it. It is pleasant to use it and it always does its work thoroughly. We have yet to hear of a case in which it did not accomplish a cure when faithfully used. Catarrh is a disease which it is dangerous to neglect. A certain remedy is at your command. Avail yourself of it before the complaint assumes a more serious form. All druggists.

CRESCENTS WIN AGAIN.

The Most Satisfactory Game of the Season, Played Last Saturday.

The Rutgers College team that defeated the Crescents last season by a score of 19 to 5, were defeated in return, on Saturday, by a score of 7 to 3. Still they had no reason to be ashamed. It will be understood that they had to play a particularly good game to keep the score where it was, when it is remembered that the Crescents had defeated the Columbia College team of New York, only two weeks before, by a score of 13 to 1.

It was an enjoyable game all the way through. There were many safe hits and much lively base running. The play on both sides was often brilliant, and as Mr. Frank Bowman proved himself one of the best umpires ever on the grounds, the large crowd present were thoroughly satisfied with the afternoon's exhibition.

The Rutgers boys seemed to hit Livingston oftener than was expected, but on the other hand every man on the Crescents, excepting Walker, hit Lockett. A strange feature of this is that last Saturday Walker made four safe hits and four runs. McMurray was back in right field and captured a hard fly besides making two hits. The errors on both sides were not noticeable nor costly. The score was as follows:

Fell Through a Show Window.

About four o'clock Sunday morning some unknown person broke out one of the panes of glass on the Second street side of Mr. Jesse Hetfield's meat and vegetable market at Park avenue and Second street. The man was evidently drunk, and staggered up against the glass. The fellow made his escape before the police arrived.

A Grocery Clerk Bitten by a Dog.

John Johnson, a clerk employed by J. P MacDonald, was bitten on the foot by a dog owned by Mr. P. J. Leissaux of Chatham street, North Plainfield, on Saturday. The young man called at the house as usual to get his order, when the dog sprang upon him, biting him on the foot. It is said that the mongrel has since been treated to a dose of strychnine.

Speaks Well of The Church Choir.

A correspondent writes to THE PRESS, advising all admirers of good music to attend the First Presbyterian church, next Sunday evening. "I say it without fear of contradiction." The correspondent writes, "That they have the most perfect sweet voiced soprano to be found in any choir in this locality, and their alto can't be beaten. This is the opinion of one who heard the music last evening."

A Lost Child.

A three year old son of Mr. L. Bray of West Third street, wandered away from home, about ten o'clock on Saturday morning, and four hours later the little one was found on Berckman street by Mr. Michael Callahan, gardener for Mr. Wm. V. Stout. The child was placed in the care of Matron Lynch at the station house, and subsequently he was restored to his parents, none the worse from his trip.

And It's Not Good Beer Weather, Either.

One of the North Plainfield beer bottlers reports that his business is steadily increasing, since the liquor licenses were granted to the hotels and saloons in this city. He says that at the present time his weekly sales of beer alone average about eighty kegs, and he is but one of the several bottlers in the borough. At this rate fully enough beer is consumed in this city and North Plainfield every week to float a good-sized ship.

Slightly off Her Base.

A colored woman named Rosa Knott, who was employed as a domestic in a family on Somerset street, became slightly demented Sunday and attempted to dance a reel and jig on the sidewalk in front of her employer's home. A crowd soon gathered about her and evidently enjoyed the proceedings. The woman was arrested and locked up, and subsequently she was taken to her rooms on Manning avenue. She is said to be subject to fits.

The Sir Knights and Their Guests.

The Rev. A. D. Jennings of Sing Sing, N. Y., will address the Sir Knights of Trinity Commandery No. 17, at Grace church, this city, this Thursday evening, Ascension Day. The Sir Knights will attend divine service on that occasion in full dress uniform. It is expected that large delegations from Cœur de Leon Commandery, No 8, of New Brunswick, and St. John, No. 9 from Elizabeth, will also be present and participate.

Interesting Exercises at Reform Hall.

At Reform Hall Sunday night President Harper occupied the chair, Mr. Vanderbeek led the choir, with Mr. George Rogers as accompanist, and Mr. Nicholson conducted the devotional services. Two very practical, earnest and interesting addresses were delivered by Messrs Boice and Nicholson on behalf of total abstinence from liquor drinking, and the close relationship between temperance and religion. They were listened to with undivided attention. At the close of the meeting the President gave notice that the Rev. Dr. Rodman was expected to be the speaker next Sunday evening.

Bitten by a Gila Monster.

According to a newspaper dispatch from Tucson, Walter L. Vail of Los Angeles, son of Mr. Mahlon Vail of this city, was bitten by a Gila monster on the middle right finger. It required several minutes to dislodge the reptile. A doctor went and brought Vail to his home for treatment. He is suffering great pain, and his tongue is so swollen that he cannot articulate. Physicians say that he is in a very precarious condition.

The bite of the Gila monster is not usually believed to be fatal. All the cases of death so far reported from it are said to be of intemperate persons. This case is said to be important, as Vail is not addicted to the use of spirits, and the absence of alcohol will enable the physicians to determine the full effect of the poison of the Gila monster.

Mamma (to her little boy), "Now, Bennie, if you'll be good and go to sleep, mamma 'll give you one of Dr. Ayer's nice sugar-coated Cathartic Pills, next time you need medicine." Bennie, smiling sweetly, dropped off to sleep at once.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION EAT A NEW ENGLAND SUPPER

And Listen to the Reports of Their Committees, a Sound Address From President Murray, View the Building Plans and Elect Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A., of this city, was held at the rooms on Thursday. There was a fair attendance, about fifty being seated at the New England supper served by the Ladies 9. After its completion there was a gathering in the reading room, where Vice President D. E. Titsworth opened the meeting with scripture reading and prayer.

Mr. James R. Joy read the minutes of the previous meeting, and also the report of the Building Committee, as published in THE PRESS of last Friday. Annexed to the report was the following resolution adopted at a meeting of the Board of Directors, all of which was approved by the vote of the association:

Resolved, That the report of the committee be received, and that we desire to express our appreciation of the labors performed by them and the difficulties they had to encounter, and we hereby adopt and approve the recommendation in the selection of plans and authorize said committee to make contracts with responsible parties for the erection of the building at a cost not to exceed $35,000—when valid subscriptions for $35,000 towards lot and building shall have been secured and the consent of all conditional subscribers shall have been obtained.

Mr. J. W. Gavett reported for the reception committee its work for the year, and particularly mentioned the service of the Ladies 9 in preparing numerous suppers for the gratification of the Association's guests. On motion of Mr. George Cornwell, seconded by Mr. Wm. Thompson, the thanks of the Association were extended especially to the Ladies 9.

Mr. C. E. Boss presented the following report, and it was moved by Mr. H. B. Munger that it be published in full:

MR. C. E. BOSS' REPORT.

The Educational Committee have the pleasure of presenting the report of another prosperous year. The opportunities for work have come, gone and only results remain.

The educational work has been mainly mechanical drawing and shorthand. The instructors in mechanical drawing have been Mr. A. J. Gavett, civil engineer, and Mr. C. J. Robertson, draughtsman, and Mr. J. A. Robinson, instructor in shorthand.

The phenomenal success of the drawing class of a year ago has been repeated during the past year. The new departure of shorthand claims an equal share in interest and valuable work done.

Mechanical drawing began its work October, 1889, and has just closed. In this branch there has been two classes, one taking the advance and the other beginning work. These classes have had an average attendance of nearly twenty. Three members have attended every session and a number of others have missed but one. The attendance has been excellent. The instruction in these classes has been practical and thorough. The method followed has been to explain every part of a machine while the drawing was being made, so that instruction in mechanics has been given as well as the work shown by the drawings. One young man said the drawing class has been a practical benefit to me in reading, drawings and in shop work.

The attending difficulties and the need of a continued application for success, made the Shorthand class one of serious thought and grave doubt. But its results have proven its position. The first Saturday evening in December the class was started with 31 members and has continued until the present time with an average attendance of 20, thus proving the demand for such a class and its application. There are a number of reports from this class showing their estimate of the work: "It will aid me to get a position;" "It has taught me new words of the English language;" "It will prove useful in the future," etc. All this goes to prove the hold this work has upon its members.

Your Committee also planned to have a course of evening talks. The first was given by Mr. C. L. McBride of Reynolds' pharmacy, entitled "An evening in Chemistry." This evening proved by attendance and interest the good of these evening talks. The next was to have been by a Doctor, but owing to the general demand for doctors at that time, the lecture was given up. True assistance is, aiding so that one can help himself.

The drawing makes a better workman, commanding better pay, enabling him to do more for his fellow-men.

The shorthand training is sought after makes a better clerk, gives better pay and a chance for positions beyond the reach but for this aid.

It is plain that the men in these classes have been interested and that they believe they have been benefitted, and that they appreciate the work of the Y. M. C. A. in their behalf. Every week during the past Winter an average of 40 young men have been in our rooms to attend our classes and have received proffered advantages of a Christian Association. The final and best result is that some of the men who have been attending our educational classes are attending the meetings of prayer and it is hoped will find that wisdom which is above all other.

Respectfully submitted,
CHAS. E. BOSS,
Chairman Educational Committee.
Plainfield, May 8, 1890.

Messrs G. R. Cornwell, A. C. LaBoyteaux, and S. Cahoone read the annual reports of the committees on membership, invitation, and boy's work respectively. Mr. E. St. John presented the items of receipts and disbursements for the year, and reported the Association out of debt and paying its way. In the absence of President Murray in Albany, Mr. Joy read the following which was also requested to be published:

PRESIDENT MURRAY'S REPORT.

To the members of the Young Men's Christian Association of Plainfield, New Jersey.

In rendering to you an account of the trust confided to us a year ago, we call attention to the fact that it is generally true that a Young Men's Christian Association while engaged in a building canvass neglects its regular work. But we believe that our association during the past year has been an exception to the general rule. While a great deal of time and energy has been devoted to the building effort, the regular work of the Association has gone steadily on. The work has been done by nine committees composed of sixty-three men, who, under the able supervision of our devoted secretary, Mr. J. H. Manning, have brought whatever of success we have achieved.

We still believe that the most important work of the Association is that of leading young men into the Kingdom of God. It is a sad but true fact that young men, as a class, do not attend the services of God's house. It is to reach this class in this condition that the Young Men's Christian Association has been organized in the twelve hundred places in which it now exists in our country. The class to which it devotes its attention—young men between the ages of eighteen and thirty-one—contains one fourth of the male population of the land and nearly one half the voters. To cope with such a multitude nine thousand men have given their lives to the work, and over $1,500,000 are expended each year. So we say again our most important work is to lead these young men to the Lord Jesus Christ. In endeavoring to do our part of this we have conducted during the year a young men's Gospel meeting every Sunday afternoon at 4:15. The average attendance has been 34. Our two outposts have been continued every Sunday evening at Washingtonville and Mt Pleasant, with encouraging results. At the former place the people have recently dedicated a beautiful new chapel, largely the gift of one of our generous citizens. The friends at Mt. Pleasant would be happy to have such a friend arise in their behalf. Our Bible Training Class, now in its fifth year, has continued its good work. The class has visited Somerville and Rahway, and exhibited the methods of such a class, and as a result a Training Class has been organized in the former place. We have recently started a class in Prof. Harper's Inductive Studies on the Life of Christ, and also an Evangelistic Bible Class. The Ladies Training Class has been held regularly every week, and its members have undertaken to furnish the tea for the Evangelistic Bible Class every Sunday evening. Four members of the Association spent a delightful two weeks at D. L. Moody's Summer Bible School at Northfield, Mass., last Summer. We hope to send a delegation this Summer and the secretary would be glad to give information about the plans, expense, etc. The result of all our religious work has been increased vigor in the spiritual lives of those who have taken part in it as well as conversions at both outposts and the rooms.

Another important part of our work is that in which we touch the young man's social nature. We have tried to have a congenial place always open where young men may find a safe resort. We believe in all kinds of honest amusements and pure social enjoyments, not only as a means to bring young men under the influence of Christians in the Association, but because these things are good for us. Our accommodations have been so limited, however, that the Reception Committee have not been able to carry out all their plans. Several pleasant receptions have been given with profit, and the rooms have been the resort of many, some of whom might otherwise have fallen by the way. We are indebted to the Camera Club for an attractive reception. In all our social work good service has been rendered by our ladies committee. In their work they have exemplified the spirit of John the Baptist, in that they done all for the association and nothing for self. We have appreciated their devotion.

Besides our own use of the rooms they have been found useful by other organizations. The Board of Managers of the Children's Home, The Law and Order League, Choral society, King's Daughters, Lutheran church, and the pastors of the city have used our rooms on several occasions.

Our educational work has been in special branches, the night sessions of the Public school providing for all who desired to study the regular English branches. Mr. Andrew Gavett has taught each week a class in Mechanical Drawing, Mr. Robinson one on Stenography and Mr. Embury one twice a week in Singing. Some talks on special subjects have also been given. One class for whom we have always labored and shall always be glad to labor, is the boys—young men from twelve to sixteen years old. This work has been carried on during the year. The boys have been organized into a Young Men's Auxiliary and have held weekly meetings. The character of their meetings have been religious, business, literary and social. Besides their regular work they have added to the building fund the proceeds of entertainments given by them. Two of their representatives were sent to the State Convention.

The Building Committee has not been idle. During the year a lot on Front street opposite Peace street has been purchased for $7,000 cash. A competition was had between six architects and the plans submitted by Mr. A. L. C. Marsh have been adopted as the plans of the proposed building. A great many meetings of the committee have been held in the interest of the fund. The Young Women's Christian Temperance Union has assisted in increasing the fund by soliciting subscriptions and giving entertainments. At a conference held on May 1 a resolution was adopted that if the building could be built for $35,000 it would be wise to begin its erection when that amount was subscribed towards the whole fund. That sum is practically subscribed and we hope soon to begin operations.

Among the other committees, not already referred to is the Invitation Committee, whose duty it is to distribute invitations to our Young Men's meeting. It is a very important work but it has been found difficult to get men with consecration enough to do it. The Ways and Means, Rooms, and Bulletin Committees have done whatever has been necessary in their department.

The Treasurer's report shows that we have received during the year $4,329.01 and have expended $4,194.67. We believe that our work warrants the continued support which the people of this city have given us for the past twenty-two years and when we ask, as we do ask, for a more liberal allowance this year, it is not in the spirit of a supplicant, but rather as one who invites you to make a paying investment.

Under what, for lack of a better term, might be called "general usefulness," we would mention the attendance of sixteen of our members at the State Convention. Two members assisted at a conference in the interest of work for young men at Cranbury, and one took part in the District Conventions at Pennington and Vineland. Situations have been secured for twelve men; visits have been made to the sick; boarding places secured for strangers and letters of introduction given to young men leaving town.

As we look over our work it is good to bear in mind that we are a part of the State work. We have in New Jersey, as nearly every State has, a State organization, managed by an executive committee of twenty-four members. This committee employs a secretary who gives all his time to the work, and uses it in advising with and helping local associations, organizing new ones and generally in increasing the efficiency of work for the young men of the State. Our association contributes this year towards the $3,500 needed for this work, the sum of $100. All who are interested in the local work ought to be interested in the State work.

All our efforts have been to lead young men into a higher and better life. We have striven to occupy towards young men the relation which Elisha bore towards the Shunammite's son. Coming into the house he found the young man dead, and we read that the prophet "put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands," and life came. So we try to touch the young man upon all points, believing that no temptation has taken him but such as is common to man, and sympathizing with him in these temptations we have stretched out the hand of Christian fellowship, saying "Brother."

Our work is a hard work, but we know that "in due season we shall reap if we faint not," and some day we shall hear the Master say, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

WM. D. MURRAY,
President.

During a recess that followed, Architect A. L. C. Marsh explained the plans of the new building as already set forth in these columns. The amount subscribed to date is now $34,618 68, so work will begin in a few weeks. Upon reassembling the meeting listened to the report of a committee appointed to nominate a board of directors to include representatives of all the churches of the city. The following officers were then elected:

President—W. D. Murray.
Vice President—D. E. Titsworth.
Recording Secretary—J. R. Joy.
Corresponding Secretary—J. A. Robinson.
Treasurer—E. St. John.

Board of Directors—J. W. Gavett, S. Cahoone, E. L. Bonny, W. Thompson, G. R. Cornwell, H. J. Runyon, J. W. Jackson, Nelson Runyon, T. E. Hazell, E. B. Clark, A. B. Beers, R. H. Radford, C. E. Boss.

J. W. Jackson whose term of office expired, was reelected Trustee for a term of four years.

Fined for Jumping on Coal Trains.

As THE PRESS stated some time since, the Central Railroad authorities are determined to break up the dangerous practice of jumping on and off coal and freight trains, and to that end about twenty arrests have already been made along the main line.

Upon complaint of Detective J. M. C. Marsh of Westfield, Wm. Wilson, a one-legged peddler, was Monday arraigned before the City Judge, charged with stealing rides on coal trains. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and was fined five dollars.

A Scared Editor.

A rugged farmer stalked into the sanctum with a big whip under his arm.

"Be you the editor?" he asked. "I am," was the half apprehensive reply.

"Here's two dollars—send me your paper for life," he said.

"You see," he went on, "our daughter was sick and liked to died; she drooped and grew weak and pale, had headaches, no appetite, back ached, feet and hands like ice, couldn't sleep, hacked with cough, and we thought she had consumption. No medicine helped her till we tried that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription mentioned in your paper, when she began to mend in no time and is now well and handsome as a rose—put me down as a life subscriber."

Now the editor is looking for another scare. The medicine has cured scores afflicted as was the farmer's daughter. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction, or price ($1.00) refunded.

Mad Dogs on the Increase.

Owners of dogs cannot be too careful about letting the animals run at large unmuzzled. Dog catcher Babbitt was called to a house on East Fifth street, Friday, to shoot a dog which had been acting strangely, and later in the day he shot and killed a Newfoundland dog owned by ex-Senator Robert L. Livingston. This dog showed marked signs of the rabies, frothing at the mouth and snapping at everything in its way. Babbitt routed the dog from under a stoop, and the brute came near biting him before he had a chance to shoot.

A valuable St. Bernard dog owned by Mr. A. H. Streuli of Prospect avenue, acted strangely on Saturday, and the animal was promptly shot.

Dog-catcher Babbitt also shot a hound dog belonging to him, the same day, deciding not to run any risk.

A Plainfielder Injured at Newark.

At 5:15 o'clock on Saturday afternoon last, when a Central Railroad train for Elizabeth was at the East Ferry street station in Newark, a large stone came crashing through a window of one of the cars and struck a man named Chamberlain, of Plainfield, behind his left ear. The dastardly act was seen by the conductor, who sent one of his brakemen to catch the miscreant, while the train proceeded on to its destination. The brakeman succeeded in overtaking and capturing the ruffian, and he was turned over to Officer Wriggins, who took him to the Third Precinct Police Station. He gave his name as Jacob Kemp, and said he resided in Brooklyn. Monday morning when he was arraigned before Justice Rodrigo he admitted hurling the stone, and said he did so because the conductor had slapped his face. He was committed for trial in the Special Sessions.

Albert Suits, Cutaway Suits, Sack Suits, Youths Suits, Boys Suits, Childrens Suits.

Every rack in Watson's new suit department is now filled with elegant cut SPRING SUITS in many handsome new patterns that you cannot see elsewhere, all marked in plain figures fully 20 per cent below usual retail rates.

Their special display of complete SUITS AT $12 50 is drawing crowds around their Broad street windows, and it is almost impossible to get near enough to their Market street windows to see the handsome garments, gift pantaloons and elegant presents displayed there.

No such an immense stock of correct hand cut garments can be found in the city, and it would be a poor buyer who would spend his money without seeing the new garments.

Tell your friends that their NEW BOYS DEPARTMENT in their Market street extension is now open with an entire new stock of handsome Spring garments for youths, boys and children, and that extra pantaloons and choice presents are given with every Suit, as a special advertisement for Watson's new boys suit department, in building No. 168 Market street, the only entrance to which is through their Broad street store.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River St., Lowell, Mass.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

L. A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—There was a heavy white frost on Thursday night.

—The prospects are good for a big season at the New Jersey seaside Summer resorts.

—A new board walk has been laid on Washington avenue from Front street to the bridge crossing Green Brook.

—Governor Abbett has appointed Robt. E. Foote of Morris county, to be Fish Commissioner, vice William Wright, deceased.

—Dr George W. Endicott is remodeling his house at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, so as to obtain more room in the interior.

—Mr Fred S. Dunn has closed a contract with the Plainfield Electric Light company, and hereafter is to take charge of the company's wiring, etc.

—It is said that a series of trotting contests is being arranged for Decoration Day, to take place on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association on Park avenue.

—The seats directly in front of the ladies grand stand at the ball grounds, are also 25 cent reserved seats, and it is requested that the members of the League bear that in mind.

—By a new rule of the State Board of Education, no candidate for teacher's certificate of qualification shall on and after that date be granted a special oral or private examination.

—Miss Scribner and Miss Newton's school for girls and kindergarten, will reopen Wednesday, September 17. The popularity and success of this school is unequalled in the city.

—The lawns about the city never looked more beautiful than they do at the present time, and it is no wonder that strangers are so favorably impressed with the place, upon arriving here.

—The team match at live birds between fifteen members of the Middlesex Gun club and a like number of the Newark Gun club, has been postponed from the 15th of this month to some time in June, proper notice of which will be given.

—It does not take the people long to find out where to purchase whatever they want. The business men that receive permanent patronage are those whose goods are just what they are represented to be in their advertisements in THE PRESS.

—The female operators in the telephone office in this city, have been granted an increase in their salary. The action on the part of the telephone company will be duly appreciated by the young ladies who are so attentive to their duties.

—A consignment of 10,000 land-locked salmon fry, from the U. S. Fish Hatchery, to Mr. E. P. Thorn, will reach this city on Friday, and under that gentleman's and Fish Warden Force's directions, will be placed in proper streams for their future welfare.

—Owners of dogs in this city should be compelled to take out a license for each dog harbored by them. This would probably have some effect toward diminishing the number of worthless curs which are now allowed to roam the streets day and night.

—The contracts were signed on Thursday evening for the erection of the new public school house at Westfield. It will cost $25,000. James Moffett will do the carpentry and John Liddle the masonry. The Smead system of hot-air ventilation will be adopted.

—"Mac," the twelve-years-and-five-months-old dog, recently owned by Mr. E. M. Thorn, left this earth a few days ago, assisted by a bullet from a seven-shooter. The animal had arrived to such an advanced age that he had become a burden to himself.

—Judge McCormick of Elizabeth, has been appointed counsel for the township of Summit, and the people are greatly pleased. The local papers speak of the action of the Town Committee in securing his services as being worthy of the warmest commendation.

—On account of the rain storm, Sunday morning, the annual May walk of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein to the mountain was postponed until Sunday morning next. The start will be made from Stein's Hotel, in North Plainfield, about four o'clock A. M.

—The "Lees" of Brooklyn, who have beaten every ball team they have played against this year, will come to Plainfield, Saturday, and try the Crescents. The engagement with the "Wilsons" for Saturday, the Plainfield managers refused to keep, as that team has not been putting up a first-class game so far this season.

—In the article of May 7 in these columns, concerning Plainfield corporations, the gross receipts a year of the Electric Light company, were given as $12,434.14. This, however, was as last reported by the State Board of Assessors. Since then the receipts have reached $15,000 per annum, and another year will probably show a total of $20,000.

—There are a number of ways of selling goods at cost, but they are all misleading. Is it true that we like to be humbugged? The best goods cannot be sold in competition with goods of inferior quality. See E. W. Rice & Co's adv. on the first page. They have the best and finest goods, at the lowest prices, and their handsome store is a pleasure to trade at.

Will Fly From Charlotte, North Carolina.

The members of the Plainfield Homing club are already actively engaged in making trial flys from New Brunswick, Monmouth Junction and other near-by places. The club has not yet decided upon the places from where the flys will be made, but the longest fly will probably be made from Charlotte, North Carolina, a distance of about 500 miles.

James Forbing, the [illegible] who has been closely watched at Muhlenberg Hospital, of late, to ascertain whether or not he was of sound mind, sailed for Europe in company with the Rev. Father J. P. Smyth, pastor of St. Mary's church, per steamer "Umbria," of the Cunard Line, on Saturday. The young man is on the way to his native land, his passage being paid by his priest.

During his stay at the Hospital, the patient developed no signs of mental derangement.

The Sherwood Recital.

The lecture-recital given by Mr. W. H. Sherwood, the celebrated pianist, at [illegible] Hall, Tuesday, was well attended. Those who were present were well pleased as was evidenced by the encores the performer received. The programme was divided into five distinct parts, and before rendering a number Mr. Sherwood made interesting explanatory remarks regarding the piece, which is something entirely new to Plainfielders. The music-loving public of this city owe a vote of thanks to Mr. Henry W. Hyde, through whose efforts Mr. Sherwood was brought here.

PERSONALIA.

Mr. Warren Marsh, of Franklin place, is the latest victim of poison ivy.

Thomas H. Keller, (The Kay,) started for the East on a business trip Tuesday.

Mr. A. J. Everett of Somerset avenue, is visiting his brother, John F., at Orange, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore French arrived in this city from Georgia, on a late train, Monday evening.

Mr. J. P. Laire and family have taken possession of the house, at No. 81 Broadway, where they will hereafter reside.

Mr. Martin M. Thorn has received from his daughter in Santa Barbara, a box of the year's first fruits, loquats and figs.

Mr. Robert B. Connolly of East Third street, removed to Patchogue, L. I., Sunday, were he will remain indefinitely.

Mrs. D. C. Bird and two daughters, of West Second street, started this afternoon on a visit to relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Ida A. Pearce, daughter of Hon. H. O. Pearce of Haverville, Mass., is visiting Mrs. Eugene Everitt at her home on LaGrande avenue.

The many friends of Mr. David M. [illegible] of Crescent avenue, will be glad to learn that his condition is today slightly improved.

Mr. Wm. B. Proctor, U. S. N., of the U. S. S. Eagre, U. S. S. Coast Survey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent Sunday with friends on West Front street.

Miss Emma L. Hoffman of Orange, made a flying visit to friends in this city and the borough, while on her way to the home of her parents at Readington, N. J.

The funeral of Mr. John L. Spencer, whose death of Bright's disease was reported exclusively in THE PRESS of yesterday, will be private. He was 57 years of age.

The many friends of Mr. Raynor Tunison, will regret to learn that he lies dangerously ill at his home on Duer street, North Plainfield, with consumption.

Jacob Pentz, the able writer for the gun in the American Field and Sportsman's Review, was in our city Sunday last, and received graciously (?) by some of his friends here.

Mr and Mrs. Theo. H. Hardy (nee Miss Emma U. King,) returned Friday evening from their wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and took up their residence at 21 West Second street.

The lawn party which Mrs. Charles Hyde is to give on the beautiful lawn adjoining her residence on East Front street, on Saturday afternoon of this week, promises to be a great society event.

Ex-tax collector Lewis E. Clark was stricken with sudden illness on Friday as he was about to take the 7:56 train for his place of business in New York. The attack resembled apoplexy. He was conveyed to his home in a hack.

The funeral of the late John H. Spencer, who died recently at Scotch Plains, took place from the late home of the deceased on Saturday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. Parks officiating. Interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield.

Mr. Andrew E. Kenney has resigned his position as manager for the United States Express company in this city, said resignation to take effect on the 15th inst. Mr. Kenney will again return to the freight house, acting in the capacity of assistant station agent.

Ex-Collector L. E. Clark, Clerk of the Board of Education, is slowly recovering from a recent stroke of paralysis. His mind has been perfectly clear at all times, the only trouble being entire helplessness. But life is steadily returning to the paralyzed parts.

At the residence of her sister, Mrs. Wm. E. Sandford, on West Seventh street, on Saturday, occurred the death of Mrs. Margaret W. Jenner, aged eighty-two years. The funeral took place from the house, No. 72 West Seventh street, Tuesday at twelve o'clock, noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Morse, who have been absent in Holland for almost three years, returned to Plainfield, Thursday for a long visit. Mrs. Morse is the daughter of Mr. Morgan Bird of Park avenue. They are the guests of Mr. Morse's brother, Mr. James E. Morse of Franklin place.

The death is announced of Mrs. Naomi LeClair, which occurred at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. B. O. Bowers, on Franklin place, Tuesday, aged 72 years. The funeral took place from the house, No. 24 Franklin place, last evening at seven o'clock, and interment will be made at Albany, New York, today.

The Baptist Pastors' Association in New York city, recently, listened to a paper on "The Place and the Authority of the Elder," by the Rev. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church of Plainfield. It was announced that the Baptist Conference Monday would be held in the Peddie Memorial church at Newark.

Messrs Geo. E. and W. D. Craig of North Plainfield will start for Northern Central Texas, about the middle of the present month, where they will permanently locate. About a month later, Dr. Wm Brandon of New York, and Messrs Fred Ohls, Geo. Steiner and D. French of North Plainfield, will join them in Texas.

Mr. George B. Schoonmaker, of this city, a member of the Crescent Avenue choir, sang in the second private concert of the Metropolitan Musical Society of New York, in the Metropolitan Opera House of that city, on Thursday. A large party of Plainfield people were present. Miss Lola Tyler, formerly of Plainfield, was also one of the chorus.

Steps are being taken by a number of the wealthiest men in this city, towards the organization of a swell club and the building of a Casino on the plan of that at Newport. The ground is already purchased, but THE PRESS is not yet at liberty to disclose its location. The building is to cost many thousands of dollars and will contain a private theatre besides the usual club quarters of all sorts.

James R. Rose of Smyrna, N. Y., father of Principal Rose of the North Plainfield school, died suddenly on Thursday of heart failure, at the age of 71 years. He was a zealous Republican and active in all public affairs. He served the town as Bonding Commissioner in connection with its issue of bonds for railroad purposes and in other public trusts. He leaves only one son, Prof. Charles E. Rose of the Borough.

Mr. I. Swedberg, who was until recently in the draughtsman's department of The Pond Machine Tool Company, of this city, and more recently of Hamilton, Ohio, was a welcome guest for a short time Friday among his many friends in Plainfield. Mr. Swedberg has received the sad intelligence of the death of his father in Gothenburg, Sweden, and sails tomorrow for his former home there where he will remain. He leaves behind him in this city a host of warm friends and admirers.

Ex-Councilman C. M. Goddard of East Ninth street, started for Boston, Mass., Sunday, to accept a lucrative position as electrical inspector of the New England Ins. Exchange, with main office in Boston. Mr. Goddard was the successful one out of a dozen or more competitors for the office, and his ability as an electrician, specially qualifies him for the position. By his departure from the city Plainfield loses a good citizen, but what is Plainfield's loss is Boston's gain. THE PRESS bespeaks success for him in his new undertaking.

By loosening and dissolving the mucus, and by soothing and healing the affected parts, Ayer's Cough Cure gives prompt relief. Perfectly harmless. 25 cents.

A LANDLORD AND TENANT CASE.

Bullock & Co., Secure Two Judgments Against Mr. Wilson Fiske for Rent—An Appeal Taken in Each Case.

The case of Bullock & Co., vs. Wilson Fiske, on contract, for recovery of rent alleged to be due plaintiffs from defendant came up before J. Oakley Nodyne and a twelve men jury on the 7th inst., at ten o'clock A. M. The case had been adjourned twice at the request of defendant's counsel, just when the hour arrived for trial neither the defendant or his counsel put in an appearance.

The facts in the case are these:—On or about the 8th of October, 1889, defendant leased from Bullock & Co., their property situate at No. 51 Kensington avenue, this city, for the term of one year at the yearly rental of $564, payable monthly in advance. The landlords agreed to make necessary repairs, which they did, costing them about $900. Mr. Fiske took possession of the premises and paid the landlords the sum of $47 in full for one month's rent. When the next month's rent fell due Bullock & Co. made their demand for the same but Mr. Fiske refused to pay, on the ground that the repairs were not completed. An extensive correspondence between the parties was the outgrowth of this refusal which continued for over five months, when Bullock & Co., placed the matter in the hands of their attorney, Mr. Wm. A. Coddington of this city.

Suit was at once instituted against Mr. Fiske to recover the rent for the five months of which Mr. Fiske was in default. Mr. Fiske engaged the services of Counselor Wm. K. McClure to defend him. That case was tried before Justice Nodyne and a jury, and after the entire day was consumed in taking the evidence of witnesses, the attorneys summed up the case and left it for the jury to decide. After a few minutes deliberation the jury rendered a verdict in favor of Bullock & Co., for the full amount of their claim together with interest and costs of suit.

The defendant through his Counsel appealed the case. Since the above case was tried, two more months rent became due, and the defendant also neglected to settle, but has continued to occupy and enjoy the use of the house and lot. All the mechanics who repaired the house testified that the house was in a good tenantable condition, and this jury like the first, rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs for the full amount of their claim with interest and costs of suit. This case, it is reported, will also be appealed.

STATE CHARITIES AID ASSOCIATION.

Its Next Stated Meeting to be Held in This City, to Examine Plainfield's Poor Relief System.

Wednesday, April 7, the annual meeting of the State Charities Aid Association was supposed to be held in the Arcade building, Elizabeth. As with the exception of the secretary and one vice president, no officers were present, and no reports from committees were sent in, those in the room resolved themselves into a sort of experience meeting, to which several contributed their ideas and their experience as to outdoor relief and the desirability of establishing a Charity Organization Society such as that which according to the Elizabeth Herald, one gentleman from Plainfield said works so admirably in this city and serves pretty effectually to put down mendicancy.

The next stated meeting will be held in this city in November. At that meeting the Plainfield poor relief system already alluded to will be examined into, and the day for holding the annual meeting will also be constitutionally changed to some other day than Wednesday, as on that evening the Presbyterians and other religious bodies hold their weekly prayer meetings.

The Demented Woman to be sent Home.

Rosa Knutt, the colored woman who created some excitement in North Plainfield, on Sunday, by her peculiar actions, will be sent by the authorities to her home near Hackensack. The woman's mind is thought to be unbalanced, and she is not considered a safe person to be at large. Unpleasant domestic relations are said to have affected her reason.

Somerville's Grand Stand Stops the Trains.

The grand stand which formerly stood on the old West End base ball grounds at Somerville, was removed to the new grounds last Friday. When it reached the Hamilton street railroad crossing it was found that the telegraph wires would not permit it to cross the tracks. When this difficulty had been removed, one of the wagons broke down on the track, and for a little while blocked all trains.

"All That Glitters is Not Gold."

Mr. Fred Caspar, proprietor of Caspar's Hotel on East Front street was having an excavation made in the rear of the hotel, Friday, when the workmen struck a vein of some substance resembling gold quartz. The metal when exposed to the air became very brittle and crumbled easily. The ore was found about six feet below the surface of the ground. Mr. Caspar says he has refused a cash offer of $100,000 for the "mine."

Township Committee Meeting.

The North Plainfield Township Committee held a meeting in Spencer's Hall, Friday night, with Chairman A. P. Voorhis in the chair. The main business transacted was the looking over of Overseer of the Poor, J. W. A. Bauerbach's books. One or two of the township's poor applicants were dropped from the list, as it was found that the charges belong to Warren Township. A few claims were audited and paid and the meeting adjourned.

The Knights Will Attend Divine Service.

On the evening of Ascension Day, May 15, the members of Trinity Commandery, No 17, K. T., will attend divine service at Grace church, this city. Invitations have been extended to Coeur de Leon Commandery, No. 6, K. T., of New Brunswick, and St. John's Commandery, No. 9, K. T., of Elizabeth, to participate with Trinity. The Rev. A. B. Jennings of Sing Sing, has been invited to address the Sir Knights, who will appear in full dress uniform.

Lecture on Physical Culture.

Mr. William Blaikie, author of "How to get strong, sound bodies for our boys and girls," will deliver a lecture on "Physical Culture," in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, on the evening of Tuesday, May 20. The lecture will be for the benefit of the Young Ladies' Mission Band of the Presbyterian church, and will doubtless be largely attended.

Tickets for the lecture can be procured at Shaw's and Reynolds' drug stores.

Middlesex Gun Club.

An important meeting of the members of the Middlesex Gun Club, was held at Force's Hotel, Friday night. It was there and then decided to lease the interests of the club in their buildings for a term of years to Mr. Charles Smith of this city, (otherwise known as "Dutchey" in shooting circles), with certain proper restrictions and reservations. By this action the club has taken new impetus, and lovers of trap shooting may expect new life and lively times on the Middlesex Gun Club grounds after this. The dues of members were also reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents a month from May 1, 1890.

A clear complexion bright eyes and firm, solid flesh are a few evidences of its health-giving properties. "While not departing one whit from the mother's care, I thought lay too great stress on the merits of Mellin's Food," writes a father.

FORMING A LOCAL UNION

Of the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor.

There was a very large attendance of the members of the various societies of Christian Endeavor, present in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church Thursday night, gathered there to consider the advisability of forming a local union. Mr. D. C. Shaden acted as temporary chairman. After singing, led by Mr. H. J. Martin, Miss Jeannette Mattison accompanying on the piano, the Rev. A. R. Dilts led a responsive scripture lesson, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

The chairman then introduced the Rev. C. H. Jones, President of the Essex County local union, who gave a stirring and entertaining address on the benefits to be derived by forming a union of all the societies. At the conclusion of his remarks a unanimous rising vote was tendered to Mr. Jones for his very able and instructive address, after which a Constitution was introduced and adopted.

The Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was elected permanent President of "The Plainfield Local Union of Christian Endeavor Societies," Mr. B St. John of the First Presbyterian church, was elected Vice President, and Miss E. C. Benedict of the Trinity Reformed church, was elected Secretary and Treasurer. President Dilts made a short but spirited address, and the meeting closed with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Jones.

Broke His Arm in Two Places.

Willie, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Corlell of West Fifth street met with a painful accident on Thursday afternoon. The boy was playing leap-frog with some of his companions, when he slipped and fell, sustaining a compound fracture of the left arm near the elbow. Dr. J. F. Fritts set the broken bones.

Death of Geo. W. Pollion.

George W. Pollion, who died on April 7, aged seventy-eight years, at the home of his son, 1,284 Madison avenue, New York, was a native of that city, and was long engaged in business there. He retired from active business many years ago. Mr. Pollion leaves a widow and two sons, Winfield Pollion of New York, and John J. H. Pollion of this city.

Married at Grace Church.

At Grace church, 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening, occurred the marriage of Mr. Nathan R. Lowe of North Plainfield, and Miss Ida S. Naylor of this city, the Rev. E. M. Rodman officiating. The ceremony was to have taken place on April 30, but owing to the sudden illness of the bride, it was postponed to above evening. A reception followed the ceremony at the groom's residence on Pearl street.

In Other Hands.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Fanwood club was held at the club house on Tuesday, April 6. The members turned out in force and the ticket of the better element was elected, as follows:

President, A. D. Booken; Vice President, A. P. Pentz; Secretary, William E. Gibbs; Trustees for three years, E. P. Moore and Chas. E. Richardson; Trustee for one year, A. R. Brown. The new board of trustees will take immediate steps to make various improvements to the club property, among which will be the enlarging of the billiard room and putting the tennis courts in good order

This is the Case Every Day.

The only items of news in Policeman Carey's paper, the news, Thursday, were the following which the people will recognise as stolen from THE PRESS of the day before.

The coming garden party at Mrs. Hyde's; the announced marriage of President Moffett's daughter; the subjects for competition in prize essays at the High School; the causes of Plainfield people in the present term of Court; the day fixed for Commencement; the sheriff's sale of the Park House; the committee engaged in perfecting the project of a club house for Westfield; and the suit of the deserted Mrs. Stryker. This all, however, is merely the record of an everyday occurrence of sneak news thievery.

A Plainfielder's Invention.

Mr. Wm. H. Warner of West Front street, has secured United States letters patent for the manufacture of Ironolithic Stone for building purposes.

In many parts of the country, good sand for the making of artificial stone, is difficult to obtain. Mr. Warner uses pulverized and fine crushed iron slag, which contains carbonaceous and silicious matter and many other desirable elements in greater or less proportions, which when thoroughly mixed with other earthy matter form a stone which is not disintegrated by frost, and will stand a tensile and breaking strain equal, if not greater, than natural stone itself. Expert granite cutters, after the severest tests, say the Ironolithic is next to the Quincy granite. Samples can be seen at 31½ West Front street.

Some Changes That May be Annoying.

The Summer schedule of trains to and from this city hereafter, shows many changes. In the morning to New York they now run as follows: the 5:29 leaves at 5:24, the 11:24 at 11:09; in the afternoon the 1:07 leaves 1:00, 1:46 at 1:41, 2:15 at 2:07, 2:25 at 2:30, 5:17 at 5:08, 5:54 at 5:31. On Sunday mornings there is an additional train 11:16, and on that day the 5:29 A. M. leaves at 5:24, the 8:57 A. M. at 8:52, the 12:08 at 12:23, and the 7:48 P. M. at 7:10.

From New York the changes are; in the morning the 4:00 leaves at 4:30, the 6:00 at 5:45, the 10:30 at 10:00, and the 11:30 at 11:00. There is no change in the afternoon trains yet. On Sundays from New York, the 5:00 A. M. leaves at 4:30, and there is a train added at 9:00 A. M.

To the Friends of the Children's Home.

At our annual meeting held last Thursday, our treasurer's books revealed a sad and disheartening condition of things. We are not willing to believe our friends have lost faith in us or in the need of our work for the children. For some unknown reason the donations of money have been fewer and smaller than usual, while our family expenses have, kept up to the usual average.

With a family of about twenty, we have not cash in hand to meet our bills for June. We make this frank statement to our creditors, the generous men and women of Plainfield, and ask you to advise us what to do.

At the present time our "available assets" are sixteen helpless children. Shall we assign them for your benefit and will you assume their care and support? There is not a paid officer on our board. Our ladies give their time and strength gladly and most cordially to the work. Will you share with us in it, and give us funds to carry it on?

For the Association,
N. B. KIMBALL,
President.

May 6, 1890.

—The opening day for black bass fishing is May 30, Decoration Day, in this State. A penalty of $25 is liable for any person, taking or having in possession such fish before the 30th day of May or after the 1st of December in any year.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid in the blood; therefore, external treatment affords no permanent relief. To eliminate the poison and make a thorough cure of the disease, nothing else is so efficient as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Give it a trial. Price $1. Worth $5 a bottle.

Yet That's Not the Worst of It.

There are a poor but worthy couple in the adjacent village of South Plainfield, who have been married only six years yet they have buried three children and have five living.

A Real Curiosity.

Mayor Male is the owner of a curiosity in the shape of an umbrella which he has owned for the past thirty-five years, during which time he has carried it at least 75,000 miles, and has never lost or left it. The umbrella has been re-covered four times during that time.

Tennis Players, Attention.

The tennis players of the city and borough who would like to be members of the Plainfield Lawn Club, this season, are requested to send word to Mr. Wm. D. Murray, 110 Central avenue, at once. If a sufficient number join, the courts will be put in order and arrangements made for tournaments in June.

Holy Cross Choir Guild Election.

The annual election of officers of Holy Cross Choir Guild was held evening May 7 in the Sunday school building, and resulted as follows:

President—William E. Hardy.
Vice President—Henry Williams.
Secretary—George F. Taggart.
Treasurer—Charles J. Mackey.
Musical Director—Charles W. Kellogg.

To Repair the Town Clock.

Mr. J. M. Williams, a practical clockmaker of Newark, came to this city, on May 7, and examined the works of the town clock, which were recently removed from the M. E. church steeple. Mr. Williams comes highly recommended, and it is to be hoped that the committee of the Council having the matter in charge, will have the clock repaired without delay, and thus fill a long felt want.

Honored With Additional Honorary Members.

The Revs. W. R. Richards, E. M. Rodman, Cornelius Schenck, T. Logan Murphy and Charles B. Mitchell, were elected honorary members of the Crescent League, at a regular meeting held evening May 7. Letters of acceptance were read from the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, and the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, acknowledging their previous election to the the same roll of membership. Messrs B. T. Barnes and Robert Gorton were elected active members.

Only the Beginning.

Oale Franie was arrested last evening for being drunk and disorderly around the passenger station, at Westfield. He was taken before Justice Hart and committed to the county jail for 10 days. Franie is one among a number of other young men who make it a habit of loafing around the passenger station and using loud and offensive language. The authorities are bound to break this habit up if they have to land them all in jail.

Runaway on Grant Avenue.

A bay horse attached to a light buggy ran away on Grant avenue, at half-past three o'clock afternoon of May 7. The animal turned into Front street and ran along that thoroughfare until in front of Compton's bakery, when he ran on the sidewalk and was captured before doing any serious damage. The horse belongs to Mr. John M. Schorb, and was left standing in front of Mr. Schorb's lot near the corner of Third street and Grant avenue, while the owner was planting some potatoes.

The Dutch Will Take Holland.

A pigeon shooting match is on the tapis between Plainfield's crack shot from the Middlesex Gun Club, Charley Smith, better known in shooting circles as "Dutchey," and Gus Freche, another crack shot of the Newark Gun Club, who is also a descendant of the German element. The match is being arranged by old "South Paw," (Al. Heritage) and is to be for $100 a side, 50 live birds each, Hurlingham rules, to be shot either on the Middlesex grounds or the Jersey City Heights. Plainfield sportsmen back "Dutchey."

Debele—Winckler.

A very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of the bride's parents on Park place, North Plainfield, at eight o'clock Thursday, when Mr. William G. Debele and Miss Ida E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Winckler were united in marriage by the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church. The ceremony was strictly private, only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom being in attendance. The gifts were as usual, numerous and handsome.

Mr. and Mrs. Debele will take up their residence on Vine street, in the house already furnished by the groom.

The Juniors Win the High School Tournament.

Messrs Simmonds and Patterson of the Seniors, played Messrs Smith and Rockwell of the Juniors, a series of three matches.

The first day Simmonds failed to ap*pear, but instead of claiming the match* the Juniors allowed Holmes to play in the place of Simmonds. The Juniors won—6-2, and 6-4. The second day the Seniors won 6-1, 1-6, 6-1.

The third day, after the Seniors had won 6-5, it rained; and, as agreed, the match was to be played over if the rain interrupted before the end of the second set. The Juniors then braced up and won, 6-1, and 6-2, thus winning the championship for 1890.

A Collision on Park Avenue.

At about half-past 4 o'clock afternoon of May 7, a collision occurred on Park avenue, just Southeast of the railroad bridge, which resulted in the partial destruction of a phaeton belonging to Mrs. A. L. Sandford of North Plainfield. A daughter of Mrs. Sandford accompanied by an elderly lady, drove under the railroad bridge at that time, when they were run into by one of Hackman Patrick Lynch's vehicles, which was in charge of a colored driver.

Fortunately, no one was injured, but the phaeton in which the two ladies were seated was badly damaged, one of the front wheels being completely wrecked. Mr. Lynch's driver declares that his horse became frightened at a big heap of dirt on the side of the roadway, and that the animal became unmanageable.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NEWS.

The Century Dictionary Added, and Fourteen Dollars Made From the Loan Exhibition.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library was held on May 7. There were present Messrs Job Male, A. C. Baldwin, G. H. Babcock, J. W. Yates, J. B. Dumont and W. M. Stillman.

The art committee reported as the net proceeds of the Loan exhibition held on the evening of February 20, 1890, the sum of fourteen dollars and forty cents. The Treasurer reported the sum of forty-eight dollars and twenty-nine cents as the amount received from dues and fines during the last three months.

The following bills were ordered paid from the special fund: Chas. Scribner's Sons for books, $1[illegible].68; Century Co., for first three volumes of Century dictionary, $45.

The following bills were ordered paid from the general fund: Neumann Bros., book binding, $90.71; F. W. Christern, books, $76.72; Plainfield Electric Light Co., $6.90; Samuel Allen, janitor, April salary, $40; Samuel Allen, sundries, $1.64; Miss Adams, librarian, April salary, $50; Miss Adams, sundries, $12.46; W. H. Williams, papers, etc., $12.78.

The Secretary was directed to extend to the Rev. E. P. Ketcham the thanks of the Board for his generous gift to the library of some 43 bound and unbound volumes of the Eclectic magazine. The librarian was authorized by motion to dispose for the best price she can obtain, of such of the papers as are not desirable to be retained in the library.

The librarian's report for April, 1890, is as follows:

E. L. ADAMS, Librarian.

The librarian wishes to call the atten*tion of the patrons of the library* to the valuable addition to the reference department of the three volumes of the new "Century dictionary." The remaining volumes are ordered, and will be placed on the library shelves immediately upon publication. A complete list of the additions to the library during the past month may be seen at any time during library hours.

Changes in Borough Real Estate.

The following changes in real estate have recently been made in North Plainfield township, and the deeds for the transfer of the same have been recorded with the Clerk of the county at Somerville:

Carrie C. Boice et al to Elisha Coriell, property in North Plainfield, $10,750.

Geo. W. Corie and Joseph B. Coward, ex'rs, to Catherine A. Combs, property in North Plainfield, $980.

Had Respect For His Fellow-Beings.

THE PRESS recently published an account of the ravages of a supposed rabid dog at Netherwood, where several valuable dogs were bitten by him. Among the owners of them was Mr. Alfred Cocks, who Tuesday shot a valuable English setter which had been bitten by the mad dog. Although Mr. Cocks' animal showed no signs of madness, his owner thought best to kill him rather than run the risk of his having the rabies

Doctor Davis Elected a Vice President.

The State Homœopathic Medical Society met May 7 at the Trenton House in annual session. They discussed the bill before the Legislature providing for a State Board of Examiners to examine applicants to practice medicine, and elected the following officers:

President—Samuel Long of New Brunswick; Vice Presidents—T. S. Davis of Plainfield; M. F. Middleton of Camden; P. A. Banker of Elizabeth; Recording Secretary—A. W. Bailey, Atlantic City; Corresponding Secretary—Wallace Mc George, Woodbury; Treasurer—Dr. F. A. Gile, East Orange; Chairman Board of Censors—E. M. Howard of Camden; Necrologist—Jacob G. Streets, Bridgeton.

A Welcome Visitor.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Society of Christian Endeavor, of Trinity Reformed church, Monday night; about the time for the meeting to commence Mr. F. W. Morse, one of the founders of the Society, (between four and five years ago,) walked in and took a seat. The leader of the meeting, at the proper time, announced Mr. Morse's presence and gave the latter a hearty welcome in the name of the Society. Mr. Morse responded in his usual earnest and pleasing manner and congratulated the members upon the evidences he witnessed and heard on all sides of their steady growth in numbers and spirituality, closing his remarks by offering a prayer of thanksgiving. After an hour of pleasant communion with God, and just before the meeting closed, the pastor, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, gave him a warm, cordial welcome, after which the meeting closed. Mr. Morse received a hearty hand-shake by nearly all present.

Death of Mr. John Spencer.

Readers of THE PRESS will perhaps be surprised to hear of the death of Mr. John Spencer, which occurred at his home in Scotch Plains, evening May 7, his death resulting from natural causes. Mr. Spencer was a man about sixty years of age, and leaves a family to mourn his loss.

He had for many years past been a resident of Scotch Plains. During February of the present year, he became implicated in some unpleasant financial transactions in which several persons in this city were interested. On the 24th of February he suddenly left his home, and since that time his whereabouts have been a mystery, except to the members of his immediate family. It has since been ascertained, however, that he only remained away from home a month, when he returned and has since been kept in seclusion. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

When Mr. Spencer was compelled to flee, he is supposed to have gone to the home of his uncle, Mr. John Wilcox, at New Providence. He returned home soon after, where for the past few weeks Dr Westcott has been treating him for Bright's disease of the kidney of which he died.

—There is no use of denying it, the lawns and flower beds in this city are as pretty as can be found anywhere, and they add a hundred per cent. to the beauty of any city.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she was a Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

For the cure of the inflammation and congestion called a "cold in the head" there is more potency in Ely's Cream Balm than in anything else it is possible to prescribe. This preparation has for years past been winning a brilliant success as a remedy for cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever. Used in the initial stages of these complaints Cream Balm prevents any serious development of the symptoms, while almost numberless cases are on record of radical cures of chronic catarrh, after all other modes of treatment have failed.

RADAM'S
MICROBE KILLER
Cures All Diseases.
After myself and wife had used your Microbe Killer with great benefit, although I have not a farthing's pecuniary interest in your remedy, unsolicited and on my own responsibility, I wrote to nearly forty of those whose certificates you publish, embracing nearly all diseases, "please give your present impressions of Wm. Radam's Microbe Killer." I am happy to state the replies were not only favorable but enthusiastic. Many of the cures of complicated diseases almost surpass belief.
Sincerely yours,

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?
A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific Coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirits; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home-seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. Write to F. I. WHITNEY, G. P. & T. A. St. Paul, Minn., for maps, books and guides. If you want a free farm in a lovely land, write for the "Great Reservation" read it and resolve to accept the golden HAND OF FORTUNE!

MISS ELLA GREEN is the prettiest drummer on the road. She is traveling for a St. Louis paint house that employs eighteen travelers and receives the highest salary of any of them. She has saved money enough to buy a house in Topeka, Kan.

A SPRINGFIELD (O.) baggage handler roughly jostled an elderly gentleman and bade him "get out of the way." The elderly man was the superintendent of the road, and when he turned around the baggage man crawled behind a trunk and kicked himself.

DURING the recent floods at [illegible], Cal., every hummock was swarming with hares and rabbits that were driven from the plains. They were slaughtered by thousands by boys and men, who used sticks, and when tired of the sport would run the poor beasts off their dry places into the raging waters.

A TOPEKA (Kan.) preacher disguised himself in rough clothing and started out to see if he could make a living as a common laborer. Too Deliberate.

Clergyman (to eloping couple)—You are sure that you are doing the right thing in getting married; that you have deliberated on this step?

He—Deliberated! Parson, we made two hours on the road and the girl's father is only ten minutes behind us!

Clergyman—This hand—cash and with—splicing—two dollars. No; there's nothing like due deliberation in matters of this kind.—Judge.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Japanese chickens, with tails from 11 to 12 feet long, are being imported into this country.

The appearance of the guards' sentries in London, armed with the new magazine rifle and short sword bayonet, excites much conversation among military men.

The ancient Greeks used olive leaves for ballots, and the Australian voting system is a revival of the practice in Rome 2,000 years ago.

Paris cab fares will no longer be a franc and a half for all distances, but the distance is to be accurately measured by an apparatus in the cab, and the charge is to be seventy-five cents for the first kilometer and twenty-five cents per kilometer for any further distance.

The commencement of a complete history of all the wars in which Russia has engaged since the time of Peter the Great is announced from St. Petersburg. It will be edited by Gen. Leer, who will be assisted by some of the best known Russian authorities on military matters.

A new mineral has been discovered in the vicinity of the little town of Homer, Ky., and the inhabitants of that place expect to realize millions. The substance discovered is a black, pitchy formation, and is of a loamy appearance. When placed in the fire it burns with a clear, steady flame, and makes a brilliant white light. It is entirely consumed by burning, leaving no ashes or clinkers.

The annual catch of fish in the European and North American seas is computed by a German statistician to amount to 150,000 tons. A ton of fish corresponds with twenty-five sheep in weight and with twenty sheep in nourishing power. Therefore the total European and North American catch equals in number [illegible] sheep and in nourishing power [illegible].

For about a thousand years northern Siberia has exported a large amount of ivory to Russia. And at present it is estimated that a hundred pairs of tusks are found every twelve months and shipped to the tsar's commercial centers.

The English postal department is advertising for bids for the carrying of mails by coaches between London and several near-by places. The coaches are to run only at night and to take the mails which now go by train. There are now several mail routes in the United Kingdom where the mails are carried by coaches, although the routes are paralleled by railroads, and it looks as if the department was seeking to enlarge this branch of the service.

The grounds on which the White House now stands were once the orchard of David Burns, an old Scotch farmer, whose cabin still stands in lonely obscurity a few squares back from the executive mansion. It is said that Washington, when engaged in laying out the city, had many a long and bitter quarrel with Burns before he could persuade the old man to sell his land, even though it would be used in future for the home of the presidents.

The original flag of England was the banner of St. George, i. e., white with a red cross, which, on April 12, 1606, three years after James I ascended the throne, was incorporated with the banner of Scotland—a blue flag with a diagonal white cross. This combination was called the "Union Jack," in allusion to the union with Scotland, and the word Jack is probably a corruption of Jacobus, Jacques or James.

The gorgeous railway train which the queen and king of Italy had built for their journey to Berlin was burned in the Florence railway station. The cost of the train was more than 70,000 lire. It was furnished with a wealth of gold and silver ornaments, and was filled with the most costly upholstery. Most of the presents intended for the Berlin court had already been placed on it. Only a few of the most valuable bits of tableware and about a third of the presents were saved.

... showed 25.5 per cent. of the weight of the animal, and the ram Buckeye, shorn at the "State shearing" in Michigan in 1884, produced a fleece of forty-four pounds. These enormous fleeces, however, are apt to be so full of "yolk," or natural oil, that some have been known to leave less than a quarter of their weight in scoured wool; whereas it is commonly reckoned that unwashed fleeces should yield one-third and washed fleeces about one-half of their weight in scoured wool.—R. R. Bowker in Harper's.

How Cablegrams Are Transmitted.

With the first long submarine cables great difficulties were encountered in sending through them a current of electricity of sufficient power to record the message rapidly. The methods for overcoming these difficulties and in use at present are described as follows:

Keys which, when depressed, transmit positive and negative currents are employed at the sending station in connection with the regulation battery. The current of the battery does not pass directly into the cable, but into a condenser, which passes it into the submarine line. This greatly increases the force of the current used and serves to cut off interfering ground currents. The instrument first employed in receiving cablegrams was a reflecting galvanometer. Upon the magnet of this instrument is carried a small curved mirror. A lamp is placed before this mirror and behind a screen in which there is a vertical slit. Flashes of light moving across this slit as the needles moved from left to right indicated to the trained eyes of the operator the letters in the message being transmitted.

But this method of recording messages was found to tax the eyesight of the operator severely, a few years' work often rendering them almost if not totally blind. Recognizing the fact that there must be something wrong with such a system, inventors set about repairing the defect, which resulted in perfecting the syphon galvanometer, which has all but superseded all other receiving devices.

In the syphon receiver the movements of the needle are recorded by means of ink spurted from a fine tube. This tube is attached to a coil suspended between two fixed magnets, which swings to the right or left as the pulsations pass through it. The syphon galvanometer is a great improvement; is not hard on the eyes and enables the operator to receive much more rapidly than with the old flash receiver.—St. Louis Republic.

Bald Headed Men Not Lunatics.

The unfortunate being whose brain is turned is rarely a bald headed man. A great brain hasn't room to turn. In the Toronto Lunatic asylum at present there are 394 male patients. This number does not include those confined in the building at Mimico. Well, among the 394 male patients who are inmates of the asylum building proper there are only 62 who are bald headed. Of these 62 there are 49 over 40 years of age, that is to say there are 49 who have reached an age when the hair may begin to waver in its allegiance without being the cause of astonishment to the wearer or of merriment to his friends. So that there are only actually 13 out of the 394 male patients whose baldness is premature or whose bare scalp need attract attention. Thirty-nine of the 62 bald headed patients are over 50 years of age, 22 are over 60 years of age, 4 are over 70 years, and 1 over 80 years.—Toronto Mail.

Wild Beasts in France.

The agricultural estimate of the French financial department for the current year present some interesting features. Wolves continue to be still a serious danger and annoyance. The French budget accordingly includes a vote of £2,200, to be employed in hunting down and destroying them. More than seven hundred head of wolves are known to be killed annually in France. About £82,000 pounds is to be spent during the year in measures against phylloxera and other insects; £30,000 odd in encouraging horse breeding; £36,000 for buying horses and mares for the stud farms; £73,000 in encouraging agricultural improvements and drainage; £26,000 toward agricultural education; £22,000 in aid of various agricultural institutions, and about £40,000 in veterinary education, besides which £100,000 is to be given toward water engineering, irrigation and prevention of floods.

IN A JAPANESE THEATRE.

Sir Edwin Arnold Explains the Proper Way of Committing Hari-Kari.

Sir Edwin Arnold, writing from Yokohama, gives the following description of the Japanese theatre: For three nights past we have sat tactically on our heels at Japanese theatres witnessing the performances which so delight the Yokohama public. If you can put up with the "pins and needles" which creep into the hapless lower limbs of the European after about an hour of this position upon matting there is much to interest in such places. They are wholly unlike any temple of the drama at home.

The first odd sight is an anteroom where everybody hangs up his or her clogs and [illegible], and just imagine 600 pair of muddy pattens on pegs! Next is a teapot room, where scores of teapots are suspended for the refreshment of the audience, since, at every pause in the performance, attendants go about shouting "Irrasshai ka!" and "O cha! O cha!" which is "Give your orders!" and "Who wishes for the honorable tea?" The pit is a sloping floor covered with matting, and the gallery is divided into little square pens with railing a foot high, all nicely matted, and hither—if an habitue—you bring your cushion, your "tobacco stove," your charcoal fire, your pipe, your baby—when you have one—and see at your ease alternately a comic piece and the successive acts of some tremendous medieval tragedy.

Everybody goes about the building as he likes, especially the children, who lift up the curtain and survey the preparations for the next scene, scamper about the stage and play all sorts of private games until the acting recommences, when they are as good as gold and quiet as mice. The performers come on from the "boot and shoe room," along a narrow side stage, the female parts being taken by boys. The dresses are rich and the acting intelligent, though extravagant, accompanied almost always by a wild instrumental recitative of strings and drum.

Changes of the scene and the general business of the stage are accomplished by persons who flit on and off in black habiliments, which are supposed to render them totally invisible to the spectators. These are, like Japanese everywhere, attentive, patient, easily pleased, and imaginative to the highest degree. They are abundantly content to see a forest where two small shrubs in pots are placed upon the boards, and an impenetrable wall where a split bamboo or a couple of chairs have been deposited. The great character of some pieces is the samurai, the two-sworded swashbuckler, who comes prancing in with a terrific swagger, and ends by drawing his glittering blades to engage in fiery combat, or to commit the hari-kari. The correct mode of performing this latter rite is by a thrust—as I have learned—not a slash, and the weapon remains in the wound until all final dispositions have been comfortably effected.

Everybody smokes everywhere in a Japanese theatre; no one hustles for his place or wants more than his own heels to sit upon. A policeman in uniform occupies a private pen at the back, and, by a lighted paper lantern, reads loftily and apart the day's [illegible] while the entertainment proceeds. The scenery is either absent or of the simplest character. The verbose and lyrical pieces are given in the old pure style of Japan, enriched with the Chinese words which enter so freely into modern and colloquial Japanese.—Liverpool Courier.

Wonderful Baby.

One of the many thousands of wonderful babies was lately brought out for the inspection of a friend of the family. "Really, Mr. Seacock," said the mother, "I suppose it's perfectly natural for every mother to think that her baby is the smartest one in the world, but our baby just proves it."

"Indeed! What does he do?"

"Everything, Mr. Seacock; everything."

"Does he walk?"

"Walk! Why, he's too young for that! The idea of a baby not yet a year old walking! But just let me hold him up in my arms, and see how perfectly he executes the Highland fling."

The baby kicks his legs out. Mr. Seacock expresses wonder and admiration and asks:

"Can he say 'mamma'?"

"Oh, no; but you ought to hear him imitate a locomotive!"

"Dear me! How does he do it?"

"He puffs out his little cheeks and says, 'Oo! Oo!'"

"Well, now, that is surprising! What other remarkable things can the baby do?"

"Oh, Mr. Seacock, you should see him when I take him up in my arms, so! He looks up in my face just as sweetly and lovingly!"

The gentleman agreed that at last the most wonderful baby in the world had been found.—Youth's Companion.

The Favored Bachelor.

In some respects, the typical bachelor leads a charmed existence. Meals come noiselessly up to him; they are set daintily before him; at the lifting of his finger, they depart in like fashion, or they await his departure. [illegible] Messengers appear and carry his commands wherever he may designate, or bring him all that New York can afford. When he is ailing, [illegible] All humanity in his neighborhood holds its breath when he is asleep, and moves about on tiptoe when he wakes.—Kate Field's Washington.

Extent of the British Empire.

A slight conception of the extent of the British empire may be gained from that. The [illegible] would occupy a longer time in traversing the space covered either by the length or by the breadth of the Indian empire than it does at present to cross the Atlantic; yet, after eliminating India, England's possessions in Australasia and North America alone are sufficiently large to make four and a half more Indian empires, still leaving territory enough to cover the area of Great Britain and Ireland five times over.—Current Literature.

Kind Boaz.

A Sunday school teacher was giving a lesson in Ruth. She wanted to bring out the kindness of Boaz in commanding the reapers to drop large handfuls of wheat. "Now, children," she said, "Boaz did another nice thing for Ruth. Can you tell me what it was?" "Married her," said one of the boys.—Christian Register.

SOME BAD BIBLES.

Curious Mistakes That Have Occurred in the Various Editions.

Although the greatest care has been taken to make the various editions of the Bible perfect translations, still errors have been overlooked from time to time, and have given rise to various names by which the edition containing the error has been known. The following list of these curious Bibles is extracted from an article by W. Wright, D.D.:

THE BREECHES BIBLE.

"Then the eies of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked, and they sewed figge tree leaves together and made themselves Breeches." Gen. iii, 7. Printed in 1560.

THE BUG BIBLE.

"So that thou shalt not nede to be afraid for any Bugges by nighte, nor for the arrow that flyeth by day." Ps. xci, 5. Printed in 1551.

THE TREACLE BIBLE.

"Is there no treacle at Gilead? Is there no physician there?" Jeremiah viii, 22. Printed in 1568.

THE ROSIN BIBLE.

"Is there no rosin in Gilead? Is there no physician there?" Jeremiah viii, 22. Printed in 1609.

THE PLACE-MAKERS' BIBLE.

"Blessed are the place makers; for they shall be called the children of God." Matthew v, 9. Printed in 1561-2.

THE VINEGAR BIBLE.

"The Parable of the Vinegar," instead of "The Parable of the Vineyard," appears in the chapter heading to Luke xx, in an Oxford edition of the authorized version which was published in 1717.

THE WICKED BIBLE.

This extraordinary name has been given to an edition of the authorized Bible printed in London by Robert Barker and Martin Lucas in 1631. The negative was left out of the Seventh Commandment, and William Kilburne, writing in 1659, says that owing to the zeal of Dr. Usher, the printer was fined £2,000 or £3,000.

THE EARS-TO-EAR BIBLE.

"Who hath ears to ear, let him hear." Matthew xiii, 43. Printed in 1810.

THE STANDING-FISHES BIBLE.

"And it shall come to pass that the fishes will stand upon it," etc. Ezek. xlvii, 10. Printed in 1806.

THE DISCHARGE BIBLE.

"I discharge thee before God." 1 Tim. v, 21. Printed in 1807.

THE WIFE-HATER BIBLE.

"If any man come to me, and hate not his father * * * yea, and his own wife also," etc. Luke iv, 26. Printed in 1810.

REBEKAH'S-CAMELS BIBLE.

"And Rebekah arose and her camels." Genesis xxiv, 61. Printed in 1823.

TO-REMAIN BIBLE.

"Persecuted him that was born after the spirit to remain, even so it is now." Gal. iv, 29.

This typographical error, which was perpetuated in the first two Bibles printed for the Bible society, takes its chief importance from the curious circumstances under which it arose. A 12mo Bible was being printed at Cambridge in 1805, and the proof reader being in doubt as to whether or not he should remove a comma, applied to his superior, and the reply, pencilled on the margin "to remain," was transferred to the body of the text and repeated in the Bible society's 8vo edition of 1805-6, and also in another 12mo edition of 1819.—Leisure Hours.

Two Southern Women.

Mollie Moore Davis is now the first woman song writer in the south. She wrote, and wrote well, as early as her fifteenth year. Her poem, "Minding the Gap," created a great sensation and was written when she was only 16. She is specially well known for her contributions to the war poetry of the south, the stirring and martial character of her verse. Since then she has tuned her harp to softer measures, and has succeeded in every style of verse that she has written. She is equally facile in prose; her series of sketches, "In War Times at La Rose Blanche," are unique and beautiful enough to make alone the fame of any writer. She, like many of the best women writers in the south, makes New Orleans her home. The gulf coast seems to be a fertile field for developing literary talent, and it is surprising to note the number of writers of first class ability who make their homes in New Orleans, Mobile and neighboring cities.

Mrs. Mary Ashley Townsend is a singularly gifted woman, who has written much in prose and verse. "The Captain's Story" is a highly dramatic narrative poem of considerable length. "The Bather" is an exquisite idyl, and many other poems of hers are infused with light and tenderness. But, above all, her poem "My Creed" stands unmatched as a love poem, so thrillingly passionate and full of longing. That would have made her a wide fame if she had never written another line, and is worthy to rank with Gray's "Elegy" and Wilde's "Summer Rose."—Mel R. Colquitt.

Peter's Pence for 1889.

The sums received at Rome last year for Peter's pence are reported to have been as follows: From Austria, about £16,000; Spain, £9,000; France, £12,800; Germany, £7,200; Ireland, £8,000; England, £3,800; Belgium, £8,200; Switzerland, £3,200; Poland, £3,400; North America, £7,400; South America, £12,800; Africa, £8,000; Asia, £4,000; Roumania, £4,800; Italy, £14,800, and Portugal, £8,000. Other sums, making up £4,000, were collected in Australia, Oceanica, Russia, Sweden, Norway, etc. The whole sum received was about £120,000, being less by £8,000 than what was received in 1888. The European states which contributed nothing were Turkey, Montenegro, Greece and Servia.—London News.

Apprentice Stokers.

It is said that the English government will, at the beginning of the next financial year, enter 2,000 boys as apprentices in the navy, and it is suggested that 500 of these be set to work in the stoke hole, engineers in the navy now complaining that it is almost impossible to get good firemen on a man-of-war. In the Italian navy a steamer is kept constantly in commission for the sole purpose of training stokers before they are put upon the regular vessels of the navy.—New York Sun.

A Wealthy Actor.

The richest actor in America is said to be Joseph Jefferson (just turned 61), who, though one of the most liberal of men, has no bad habits. On the contrary, his life is simple, his tastes retired and scholarly, and he judiciously invests the profits of his seasons when they have ended. For fully twenty-five years he has been a money star; has always drawn handsomely, and is reputed now to be worth some $800,000.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Valuable Books Destroyed.

The magnificent library of Comte Quinsonas, estimated by connoisseurs to be worth over 2,000,000 francs, was completely destroyed by fire. Among the priceless treasures it contained were numerous unique documents in connection with the Cromwell period, the restoration of the Stuarts, etc., and documents concerning the history of Spain and Italy. Some of these had cost their owner as much as 40,000 francs.—Paris Letter.

Large Petroleum Tank Steamer.

A large petroleum tank steamer has been launched in England. It was built for a Russian firm for the transport of petroleum between Baku and Astrakhan. The steamer, which is built in two halves, so that it can be taken to pieces for the sake of passing through locks, is 300 feet long, 36 feet broad and 11 feet deep. She carries large steam pumps for the filling and emptying of the vessel. There is also accommodation for passengers both on deck and in a saloon, and electric lights are used entirely.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

MARK TWAIN is reported to be growing indolent with his advancing years. He no longer has the incentive of poverty to force him to work, and the products of his pen grow smaller every year. He retires early to bed and never breakfasts before ten o'clock.

MRS. HARRISON has been obliged to give up all reading and china-painting. To a friend she is reported to have said: "The letters of the people make me the slave of my pen. I meet the mail with a budget of letters. Write as briefly as I can it is impossible for me to get my writing-table cleared."

PERHAPS the late Walker Blaine's most striking characteristic was his unfailing good nature. Nobody ever knew him to lose his temper. There had been times, by no means remote, when politicians, office-seekers and [illegible] subjected him to a constant strain, but he never said a cross word, and was always the same well-poised gentleman.

A MAN TO BE PITIED.

How the Congressional Veterans "Play" the New Member.

The "Vanishing Trick" at the Barbers—Mercenary "Vampires"—He Lays a Bait With Loaded Cigars—A Panic in the Cloak-Room.

The new Member is now fairly in harness. The road to Federal legislation is becoming familiar to him. He knows what care to take to go to the Capitol. He usually enters beneath the arch of the House-wing of the marble pile, and wends his way to the postoffice. Here he taps his letter-box with his forefinger, and receives his mail with all the grace and dignity of an old Member. After securing it, if a Republican, he turns to the right and takes the Republican elevator. This lands him at the left of the Speaker's lobby. If a Democrat, he turns to the left and takes the Democratic elevator. This places him at the right of the same lobby.

There is another elevator in the restaurant, which he occasionally patronizes. There are two cloak-rooms: one is used by Republican Representatives and the other by Democratic Members. The new Congressman has learned where to hang his hat and coat. His name, title and State are placed above the hook allotted to his use. Upon entering the cloak-room a colored attendant is always at hand to take his hat, coat and umbrella. His knowledge of the Capitol is increasing. He can thread the corridors leading to his committee-room and he has learned to enter and depart from the building without losing his way. He can distinguish the Capitol guides and door-keepers from his fellow-members, and he has learned that fifty cents is the regular price for cab hire.

Some of the new Members have not yet learned how to avoid importunate visitors who lie in wait for them. The old Members do this very dexterously.

There are two barber-shops adjoining the chamber of the House. Republican Representatives patronize one, and Democratic Members the other. These shops are lighted by electricity. They have marble floors and frescoed ceilings. Huge double windows of ground glass open upon unfrequented corridors. Old Members, wishing to enter or to leave the House unobserved use these windows. They are really a pair of glass doors. Two wooden steps bridge the way from the sills to the corridor. The doors are opened and the Representative descends into the corridor and escapes. Others use private staircases which lead to the lower corridors of the Capitol. These stair-cases run from each end of the Speaker's lobby. By using them the Members can get out of the building without being annoyed.

The barber-shop exit and entrance is a mystery to new Members. A Member of the Fiftieth Congress patronized the Democratic saloon for six months without fathoming it. He saw brother Members occasionally slide out through the glass doors and heard others tap upon the ground panes for admittance. He never dreamed that the doors opened upon a side corridor. Upon making inquiry of an old Member, he was told that the doors led to a Turkish bath. The inexperienced Member thanked the wag for the information. He got a glance of the tesselated flooring when the doors were opened and had no doubt of its truth. His delight upon ascertaining the real use of the doors was intense, for no one had been more badgered by impecunious visitors and alleged constituents.

Although the new Member is now able to reach his committee-room without a guide, he is still at sea when hunting for the document and stationery rooms. They are hidden in the basement of the Capitol. His associates have instructed him how to draw requisitions on the Superintendents of Documents and Stationery, but he will remain in Congress a good many years before he finds out exactly what documents he is entitled to and how to secure them. If he comes from a great city he will be overwhelmed with offers from representatives of agricultural districts to swap for seeds and agricultural reports, commercial reports and statistical information. A score of House attaches will badger him for a barter. Some will offer a set of the Official Records of the Rebellion for his seeds. Others will want to trade a set of the Surgical and Medical History of the Rebellion for his agricultural reports. And others again will exchange a set of Wharton's International Law or volumes of ethnological reports for the government works on "Dairies and Dairy Farming."

The fledgeling Representative is gaining other valuable information. He finds that it is not safe to leave pens, pencils, Congressional Directories, Congressional Records, blotting paper, or in short, movable property of any kind, including even a pocketbook, upon his desk. Frequently when his back is turned, they disappear.

In the last Congress a New York Member had a singular experience. He was in the habit of leaving two or three cigars upon his desk while attending to business in another part of the chamber. Upon his return the Havanas were not to be found. There are always a greater or less number of Members smoking in the cloak-rooms. They sit around the fire-places conversing and enjoying their cigars. Day after day the New York Member missed his Havanas. One afternoon, however, there was a sensation in the cloak-room. Several Members who were smoking were astounded when their cigars exploded. It turned out that the New York Member had received fifty "loaded" cigars from a New York dealer. He had scattered them over his desk from time to time, and the explosions in the cloak-room were the result.

If the new Representative is a member of two or three committees he will find that he must stir himself right lively to keep track of what is going on.

This is not all, however. The new member introduces a score or more of bills at the request of his constituents. These bills are referred to committees of which he is not a member. The constituents interested will urge him to go before these committees and argue their bills. If he is the least bit nervous, his head will be in a continual whirl. He has to keep track of the days specified for the meeting of the different committees and also keep track of the sub-committees to which the bills have been referred. Add to this source of requests for public documents, some of which necessitate visits to the departments, and his troubles are increased. If in sympathy with the administration, he cannot pass from the House to his committee-room, or from his committee-room to the House, without being annoyed by men seeking office. Some days the office-seekers seem to be as thick as mosquitoes in Jersey. Even Democratic Members do not escape. Officials of their political faith, who have not yet been smoked out, are even imploring them to intercede in their behalf. Democrats who have been thrown out in defiance of the Civil Service law are ever around them, crying either for re-instatement or for vengeance. Grand Army Democrats point to their war records and demand satisfaction. Nor is this all. Scores of women appeal to the new Member. They appeal to his sense of courtesy and to his humanity. Some seek places in the Departments and others implore him to urge claims in their behalf. While trying to get an inkling of what is going on in the House their cards are hourly thrust before him. He will be importuned in every corridor and at every door. Appeals will be made to him in the elevator, in the restaurant, on the horse cars and upon the streets. If he is an obliging man he will soon find that he has so many irons in the legislative fire, that he can't tell one from the other.

Under the new administration of the House, there is a set of new employes. The new Member will not glean much information from them. A new door-keeper was asked the other day to designate the room occupied by the Committee on Appropriations. He declared that he didn't know where it was, although it was within thirty feet of the door which he guarded.

The new Member, however, is ever gleaning information. The fact that a United States Senator is of much more importance than a Member of the House of Representatives has begun to dawn upon him. He had a realizing sense of this when Chief Justice Fuller delivered his oration upon George Washington in December last. The new Member then learned that it was etiquette for Members of the House to give up their seats to Senators when they entered its chamber in a body. He has not yet learned that while it is etiquette for Representatives to sit behind Senators in the House it is also etiquette for them to stand behind Senators while in the Senate Chamber.

With all the information he has gained, the new Member is still in the primary class of the legislative school. He will enter the intermediate class when he tries to get a bill before the House. He will pop up a hundred times and wonder why the Speaker can't see him. He will long be unable to understand why it is that a score or more of old Members are allowed to talk upon any subject at almost any time, while he is unable to get in a word edgewise. And when he does get an opportunity to sail into the sea of debate he will be still more astonished. Unless his sails are well trimmed and he is on an even keel, some old Member will be sure to slack his sheet-rope or throw his wheel hard a-lee, when he is least expecting it.

DRIFT FROM ABROAD.

BRAZIL has a law for the medical examination of persons about to marry, to determine their fitness.

GENERAL VON MOLTKE says that "beer is a far more dangerous enemy to Germany than all the armies of France."

FREE meals are proposed for twenty-five thousand London school children who do not have sufficient food at home.

THE oldest member of the French Legion of Honor is a soldier ninety-nine years old, the last survivor of the battle of Trafalgar.

THE London City Council has swallowed up the ancient court of burgesses of the city and liberties of Westminster. One by one the old landmarks disappear.

THE adventures of a Vienna tailor who traveled from Vienna to Paris in a packing case as "fast freight," in order to save expense, are exciting the risibilities of the French capital.

THE Duke of Westminster is believed to be the anonymous donor of half a million dollars for a convalescent hospital in London. The Duke's income is $5,000 per day, chiefly from rents in Belgravia.

CHINA, with a population of 380,000,000, has only three newspapers at present. Considering that an editor's head is chopped off on the slightest provocation the wonder is that there are even three.

THE Mikado of Japan has had constructed a line of telephone between Yokohama and Strianoka, a distance of about one hundred miles. "It is the first telephone applied to the public service in Japan, and has so far been completely successful."

A SOCIETY in Vienna, the object of which is to furnish food for poor people at a nominal cost, has now ten cooking kitchens in which ten thousand people dine each day. The average cost of a dinner is eight cents, the menu including soup, meat, with vegetables, bread and sweets, and the cost of a supper is four cents.

IN his speech at the opening of the Legislature of the Province of Quebec the Lieutenant-Governor announced, among other things, that during its session the Legislature will be asked to pass an act granting one hundred acres of land to the father and mother of every family of twelve or more living children born in lawful wedlock.

A MONTREAL man has been condemned to pay the sum of one dollar as damages for having called upon a person in a factory with a view to collecting a debt. The court held that the domicile of the debtor is the proper place at which to demand money that is owing. It further declared that to ask on the street for money that is due constitutes an assault.

THE Czar keeps very close watch over his son, the heir apparent. During the young man's recent visit to Paris he announced to a member of his suite that he was going to see a certain rather scaly comedy. In the course of the day he was surprised to receive a telegram from his imperial father, telling him on no account to be seen in the theater where that play was performed.

THE hangman in New South Wales is looked upon with such horror that he recently found himself completely boycotted on reaching Wagga-Wagga to perform an execution. The cabmen refused unanimously to drive him away from the railway station, the porters also declined to carry his luggage and the unlucky executioner was obliged to trudge off on foot, struggling with his various traps.

A CLUB of German students in Bohemia has been dissolved by the police. It had adorned its assembly-room with portraits of the Emperors Wilhelm II. and Friedrich III., of Bismarck and of Moltke, and with two pictures of the German national monument on the Niederwald, all of which tended to glorify the triumph of the new German empire. This was brought forward in the Austrian reichsrath as a sign of the anti-Austrian sentiment of the German element in Bohemia, and the club was suppressed.

BOTANICAL BREVITIES.

PANSY plants if protected during the first winter will give larger flowers the second spring and summer than the first.

A VERY rare species of orchid is called the pitcher plant. This is a sort of mottled red and the cup of the blossom will hold water.

THERE grows in Ceylon a nut called kola. It has been used for many years as a drug. It is now proposed to make it a substitute for coffee. It possesses as a stimulant and article of food the essential qualities of coffee; it possesses, furthermore, the valuable attribute of enabling those eating it to endure long fasts without suffering or danger. The kola nut came originally from Western Africa.

THE travelers' tree, a native of Madagascar, is a species of palm with long leaves, used by the natives to cover their huts. The peculiarity of this tree is the shape of the leaves, which form a sort of receptacle near the stalk, where water is held in a pure state for at least a month. This water settles in the base of the tree, and travelers, knowing this, eagerly tap for it when they can not find any springs.

IN the Philadelphia gardens there are at present several rare and beautiful plants in bloom, notably "the Holy Ghost plant" and some tropical palms. The Holy Ghost or dove plant blossom is so called from the flower having the appearance of a dove with expanded wings hovering over the stalk. The flowers are white and open from the end of a long, green stalk. They are very fragrant and beautiful.

WHAT is called a Siberian sunflower has been discovered in Northern Siberia, where the ground is continually covered with frost. The wonderful object shoots forth from the frozen soil early each year—usually the first week in January, and lives but a single day. The leaves are three in number, and each about three inches in diameter. They are developed only on that side of the stem toward the north, and each seems covered with microscopic crystals of snow.

FARMYARD FRAGMENTS.

IT is not the full-fed cow or horse that kills itself by overeating when it happens to break loose and get at the meal or oat bin.

THE farmer must have a long bank account who can afford to breed immature animals, or to keep animals for the shambles after they approach maturity.

THE cost of a farm is not the heaviest expense to the beginner. The outlay for horses, cattle, machinery, utensils and extra labor the first year is often more than the cost of the farm.

THE good cow is a wonderful machine—almost a creator; for, feed her $40 worth of appropriate foods per annum, and she will furnish a family with more food than they can buy in other as palatable forms for $100.

IT may save labor to allow the cattle to have free access to the straw stack, but it may be more profitable to cut the straw and feed it with the hay. If you have more hay than you can use procure more stock, so as to feed the hay on the farm.

WHEN milk is unfit for the farmer to drink it is also unfit for the young calf. Scours frequently result from the calf not receiving milk that is fresh and sweet. The natural conditions in feeding young calves should be observed as closely as possible.

FLAT roofs make the warmest buildings for stock, but they will also increase the heat within such buildings in summer. In constructing a stable, poultry house or pig house with a flat roof make ventilator holes near the highest point, so as to close them in winter or open them in summer.

MAKE a note of things not yet attended to. Hundreds of little things about every farm need attention. Each one of these considered alone is of small importance, but when aggregated they make a large total. Make notes of these things as you pass about, and don't fail to make frequent reference to your memorandum book.

THE cattle, horse, sheep and swine raisers are unanimous in the assertion that warmth is one of the essentials to successful stock raising in winter. The same is equally true with poultry; in fact, it is one of the branches of stock raising, and their comfort should be looked after and guarded as carefully as that of the larger and more costly animals. There is money in a comfortable poultry-house.

THE saving of the various substances that are supposed to possess no value by adding them to the manure heap amounts to a large item in the course of a year. There is nothing grown on the farm, either by seeding for the crop or voluntary growth of weeds, that will not contribute something to the fertility of the soil if the materials are appropriated to the purposes for which they are adapted. Even weeds can be made useful in enriching the soil.

THE stables and stalls should be cleaned early in the morning, which exposes the floors to the air, thus aiding in the purification. A properly-cleaned stable is one that permits persons to walk within without liability of coming in contact with filth of any kind. Even the odors should not be detected. To do this may require more work than some are willing to bestow, but good dairying is at the expense of labor, and it should be daily performed if choice butter is to be produced and the highest prices obtained.

POINTS ON PROMINENT PEOPLE.

LEW WALLACE's favorite novel is said to be Ivanhoe, and in this P. T. Barnum and Margaret J. Preston agree with him.

MRS. RICHARD A. PROCTOR, widow of the astronomer, who was carried off by yellow fever, is gaining a livelihood by delivering her husband's lectures.

PRINCE BISMARCK was on one occasion challenged to fight a duel by an Austrian statesman, Count Rechberg. Both were at the time Ambassadors to the German Diet at Frankfort.

DR. NANSEN, the explorer of Greenland, lives at Asgaardstrand, in a one-story cottage, close by the sea, surrounded by a pretty garden, and with a vast forest of fir and pine in the background.

MRS. LEVI P. MORTON teaches her daughters letter writing by giving them her own notes to answer. If the effort pleases her it is stamped and posted. If not, corrections are made and the "copy" returned.

M. GOUNOD, the famous musical composer, is a man of intense religious feeling. As he has grown older he has become more ascetic and exclusive in his habits, until to-day he lives almost the life of a hermit.

HENRY M. STANLEY, the African explorer, lectured in Jefferson City, Mo., some years ago to seven people, three of whom were deadheads. Since that time Stanley has grown to be a great deal bigger than the town.

MRS. CUSTER, widow of the gallant General, is said to be a woman absolutely without fear. She used to accompany her husband wherever he would allow her to go during his campaigns, and her fondness for out-of-door life has never left her.

RYTHMIC RAYS.

The Youth of the Year.

To the youth of the year,
And the spring tide clear
Has washed the whimsical frost away;
And the leaves awake
And the blossoms break
Into rosy ripples or fragrant spray.

From the tropical flow
Of a tide so low
The delicate bloom of the peach sails
At my cottage eaves,
'Mid the tendrilled leaves,
Gleam the jasmine's radiant urns of gold.

How the melodies float
From each throbbing throat
That the winter had sealed so long
On currents bright
Of the air and light
What a rythmical rush of song!
—William H. Hayne, in Harper's Bazar.

The Country Store.

I see it as it was in by gone days—
The old men stand around the open door
The noon-day shadows glance upon the floor,
And all the village dreamers in a haze.

The urchin comes in with his shining cent
And spies the red candy from afar;
The striped stick they take down from the jar
And, whistling soft, he goes away content.

The lounger slips behind the counter free,
And takes whate'er he will, and does not ask—
The crackers, and the raisins from the cask,
And bits of dry fish, saltier than the sea.

The country wag sits on the barrel top,
And mocks the stumping orator's debate,
He kills the rising party candidate,
Until a mug of cider makes him stop.

The housewife comes to sell her eggs, and take
The sugar and the coffee and the spice
And rich molasses from the Indies, nice
To eat upon her yellow Johnny cake.

The blushing maid steps in, and sidles through
The bales and boxes to the letter-place:
She steals a look behind the old glass case,
And starts with joy to see her billet-doux.

I love these visions of the olden time,
For they were never in a hurry there:
How distance makes the picture seem more fair
And blends it softly with my homely rhyme!
—Martha Perry Howe, in Woman's Journal.

To Rent.

A vacant heart to let; inquire for key
Of Master Cupid just across the way;
Terms easy to the tenant who'll agree
To lease the place forever and a day.

A cozy dwelling in a pleasant street;
And just adjacent to Old Courtship Road;
A bit old-fashioned, but with furnace heat—
Where love may find a very snug abode

The agent, Cupid, will be glad to show
The tenement to any maid or miss;
He'll make the price ridiculously low
And asks as his commission but a kiss.

Coy maiden, come! and in this bargain share;
The offer's tempting by your own confession;
You'll find the place in excellent repair—
Just sign the lease and enter in possession.
—Sam T. Clover, in Chicago Herald

A May Song.

Oh! the Maytime—welcome Maytime!
Of all months the sweetest comer,
Bridal of the spring and summer,
When the earth is gay with flowers and the air is sweet with song.
Pastures deep in grass and clover,
Honey for each wandering rover,
Skies that laugh at tempests over
To the emerald month belong.

Oh, the bluebells—nodding bluebells!
Tinted like the skies above them,
Set where all may see and love them,
By the roadside, in the coppice, and the meadow lands between;
Every breeze that stirs the dingle
Sets their mimic bells ajingle,
All the sweets of Maytime mingle
In their world of blue and green.

Oh, the fragrance of the morning,
When the chestnut spires are lifted,
And the clustering leaves are rifted
With the sunbeams glinting through them, opening out each fluted fold,
And the wind is truant playing,
In the lilac hedges delaying,
And the tall laburnum swaying
With its twinkling showers of gold.

Oh, the gladness of life's Maytime,
When the common ways of duty
Are new-robed and decked with beauty,
And love hears the bluebird's music every day and all day long!
God is good, this witness bringing;
Every joy from Him is springing,
And we bless His name in singing
In the month of flower and song.
—Mary Rowles, in Golden Days.

The Harper.

The harper woke, and sung his songs
As God and nature taught him;
The busy world passed by in throngs,
And with rough words besought him
To leave his craft, an idle choice,
To those of rarer hand and voice.

The harper slept. The scales fell off
Blind eyes, and ears grew sharper;
Praise rang from lips all-used to scoff:
"A great man was our harper!"
And round the sleeper's name and tomb
Is wreathed the laurel with its bloom.
—Emma C. Dowd, in Youth's Companion.

Bitter with the Sweet.

Each rose the gentle zephyrs fan
May hide a cruel thorn;
Each dainty little shoe of tan
May cover up a corn.

The pretty cheek whose hue divine
Is like the blush of dawn
May not be really genuine—
It may be all put on.

The golden locks which, like a ray
Of sunshine, cheer the eye
May simply just be made that way
By patent bleaching dye.

And so there's mixed—as nature planned—
The bitter with the sweet.
The fairy with the warmest hand
May have the coldest feet.

How many things there are below
To mar love's blissful dream.
For women are like men, you know—
They are not what they seem.
—Chicago Post.

Bobolink Chimes.

A whir of wings o'er clovered meadows,
The gleam of a burnoose and crown.
And low on the swaying maple
A bobolink settles down.

A chime as if from bells of silver
Over the clover soft doth float.
E'er yet the rapturous song burst
Outpours from the feathered throat,

A whir of wings, a gleam of yellow,
Faint-heard notes, and into the throng
Of clover heads gently nodding
Drops softly the bird and song.

As Wordsworth saw in dreamy wakings
Daffodils nodding in seas of gold,
For me the hills and meadows will ever
The chime of bobolinks hold.
—Lucy E. Tilley, in Farmer's Review.

God Help the Boy.

God help the boy that never sees
The butterflies, the birds, the bees,
Nor hears the music of the breeze
Where zephyrs soft are blowing;
Who can not in sweet comfort lie
Where clover blooms are thick and high
And hear the gentle murmur nigh
Of brooklets softly flowing.

God help the boy who does not know
Where the woodland berries grow,
Who never sees the forests glow
When leaves are red and yellow;
Whose childish feet can never stray
Where nature does her charms display—
For such a helpless boy I say
God help the little fellow.
—Chicago Herald.

A LITTLE girl, who evidently had lived long enough to gain some knowledge of human nature, was asked by her teacher what a minute-man was. "A minute-man," said the little girl, "is a man who wants every thing done right away."

A LITTLE girl of tender years, who had been attending one of the public kindergartens, fell from a ladder. Her mother caught her up from the ground in terror, exclaiming: "O darling, how did you fall?" "Vertical," replied the child, without a second's hesitation.

A PAPER recently asked Edward Bellamy to write an article on the question: "What can be done with the servant girl?" And he answered the question by asking another one, namely: "What can be done without her?" "To this, I think," he said, "the response may safely be, every thing."

DR. STARR, of London, adduces convincing arguments to show that it is impossible to draw from the size or shape of the head any conclusions as to the mental capacity. He shows the absurdity of judging of the brain surface by either the size of the head or the extent of the superficial irregular surface which is covered by the skull, without taking into consideration the number of folds or the depth of the creases, and states that a little brain with many deep folds may really, when spread out, have a larger surface than a large brain with few shallow folds. The phrenologists are not happy over Dr. Starr's strictures.

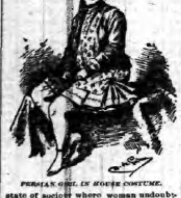
GIRLS IN THE FAR EAST.

How They Are Brought Up and Married Off in the Levant.

A Country Where Young Ladies Are Never Permitted to Fall in Love—A Parade of Mothers-in-Law—An Elopement in Turkey.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

If one were asked to mention the greatest points of difference between America and the East, including the lands of the Eastern Mediterranean called the Levant, he would not be far wrong in considering it to be the condition of woman. We hear so many complaints here of the bondage and inferior advantages of women as compared with the glorious liberty enjoyed by the men of America, chiefly because, forsooth, the former happen not to enjoy the questionable duty of the ballot, that we are sometimes liable to forget that it is only in the United States and to a lesser degree Great Britain that practical equality of liberty, rights and privileges exists between the sexes. As we pass through Europe eastward, we find this equality decreasing, until we reach a state of society where woman undoubtedly occupies a position far inferior to that of man.



PERSIAN GIRL IN HOUSE COSTUME.

But from Greece to China it may be confidently stated that love is the last thing considered by those who propose to marry. Unquestionably such marriages of love do occur among the Christian Greeks and Armenians, but they are rare. Love may follow marriage, but money, position and the like are as a rule and a custom the moving causes. The woman has little option in the matter the business being transacted by the near relations with the aid of intermediaries. Compulsion is often used and in Mohammedan countries the parties most interested have most probably never seen each other. How much love can there be in such a union? It is evident that while the woman may be saved some embarrassment of disappointment by this system, on the other hand she places herself and her happiness far more beyond her power of retrieval than her American sister.

The women of Persia appear to be quite as happy as our women. One can imagine that a Persian lady may be happier in the simplicity of her home costume, so free from the changing round of fashions than the American women, whose chief end of life appears to be to oscillate from one milliner's shop to the other. The Persian woman and most Oriental women are far more concerned in concealing their faces when abroad, than their persons. This is one of the marked contrasts between Asiatic and European women. The face must be hidden at all events; the limbs, if possible, but they must not be protected from observation at the expense of the face. The Wends of Prussia, who are an Asiatic tribe, retain the Asiatic indifference in regard to exhibiting the nether limbs. The peasant women of Turkey or Persia work in the fields with their husbands. For convenience they tuck up their skirts and drop the mantle that conceals the face. But if a stranger comes along they take alarm at once, and hastily draw up the mantle over the face, but the limbs are left to take care of themselves. This trait is characteristic of all classes and indicates a subtle difference between the women of the East and the West, regarding the delicate question of modesty. To all of which we may say, Honi soit qui mal y pense.

PERSIAN GIRL IN DANCING COSTUME.

We hear a great deal about the severity practised by the lords of Asiatic creation towards their weaker halves. It is doubtless too true that men of high degree possessed of power and of many wives as well, have too often in the past exhibited terrible tyranny and exercised sudden and horrible vengeance. The lash, the bowstring and the yataghan have too often played a deadly part in the mysterious tragedies of Oriental households, and such deeds may yet be wrought sometimes in the East. But among the middle and lower classes husbands have not had the domestic agents at hand to execute their bloody mandates, or have preferred to avail themselves of the facilities for divorce, which the law places in the hands of any husband who, with a certain prescribed formula, says to a woman thrice before witnesses: "Thou art divorced." She suffers little or no obloquy by such a sudden release, but easily finds another husband, unless, indeed, the former husband repents of his haste and asks her to remarry him. This often occurs.

But a horrible custom still exists among the Druses which, in the course of ages, must have wrought terrible injustice to many poor, innocent women. It is the possibility that organized injustice like that can exist and be permitted to continue in a community which makes cynics, pessimists and agnostics. When a Druse woman marries her absolute chastity is guaranteed by her family. Marry she must, whether she wills it or no. But the supposed evidences of chastity are carefully scrutinized by the husband. If he thinks he has reason to doubt that she came to him a virgin, then he brings the matter to the attention of her family. A family council is summoned at once and husband and wife appear before them. It matters not that the trembling bride swears that the lack of evidence of virginity was a physical infirmity beyond her control, a circumstance which often happens. On both sides the judges are stern and uncompromising although they be of her own kin, who should protect her. If the woman succeeds in proving her husband's charges to be false she returns to her family and he returns the dowry and is indignantly thrust out from their number. But if the dreadful charges are found or thought to be true, which is too often the case, then the oldest brother, or the next of kin if he be dead, has an imperative duty to perform. With the approval of all present he draws his glittering knife and cuts the throat of the bride in the presence of her own parents and husband. Screams and prayers are of no avail; the custom of the Druses is unchangeable.

The Armenian women belong to a bright race, however, and they show their spirit whenever the opportunity comes. They have a piquant and more refined style of beauty than many Oriental types, and adapt themselves very readily to improved conditions, which can hardly be said of the Turkish women.

The quick adaptability of the Armenian woman to new conditions was admirably exhibited when Mr. Finlay, the Philhellenist, fell in love with a fair Armenian at Constantinople and arranged an elopement with her. She was to descend from her window by a rope ladder; he would be in waiting with horses; they would fly to the seashore, go on board his yacht and seek foreign shores.

AN ARMENIAN IN STREET COSTUME.

But when the hour came the lady hesitated, as well she might. To leave her home forever with a strange Englishman and have to go down a rope ladder besides was too much for her nerves. In vain pleaded her sister, who was in the plot, and the precious moments were flying fast.

"Well!" exclaimed the sister. "If you will not go I will; he shall not be disappointed." Thereupon she scrambled down the ladder, sprang on the horse, the lover mounting his steed, and they fled to the boat. It was not until the following morning that the poor man found that he had brought away the wrong lady. Unlike some men in such circumstances, he married her on reaching Athens, and they lived together a number of years until her death. She left a daughter who died when blooming into maidenhood.

The Greek women have all the quickness of their race, the features mobile and the eyes superb. But they lose the gracefulness of form early. There are many types of the Greek beauty, from the mixed race of Albania to the semi-Latin women of Terios or Scio, or the semi-Asiatic Greek of Asia Minor. They have all the heroism of their ancestors, and more courage, as I am sometimes inclined to think, than the men. At the siege of Missolonghi the wife of Tzavelas, whom I saw in boyhood, accompanied her husband at the head of the sortie that cut its way through the Turkish lines. She was of short stature, but on one arm she carried her child and with her right hand brandished a naked scimetar.

The marriage ceremony of the Greeks and Armenians is intolerably long. It always occurs in church; no pews nor seats of any sort are permitted; the densely crowded aisles are filled with incense, and by the time the long-haired priests have chanted and prayed two or three hours every one is ready to fall with exhaustion. Was this elaborate marriage mummery devised to act as an obstacle to entering the holy state of matrimony? Before closing it may be added that our missionaries have repeatedly married natives of those Eastern countries, and those unions have, to all accounts, resulted happily.

S. G. W. BENJAMIN.

BITS FROM ABROAD.

KANGAROOS are successfully raised in a park near London.

THE population in Tokio, Japan, including the suburbs, is 1,629,820, of whom all but 231,159 live in the city.

AN Austrian Countess, a widow, is said to be earning a living in London trimming finger-nails, her charge being half a guinea.

THE State railways in Italy, according to official estimation, increased $34,400,000 in their value during the last two years.

THE chief superintendent of the Buda-Pesth street cars was raised to the grade of nobility by the Emperor for his public services.

WATERLOO HOUSE, in London, that has long stood vacant, is to be changed into a grand hotel and to be called "The President," presumably to catch American travelers.

SEARCH for diamonds is being made by the French Government at the penal colony of New Caledonia. Machinery to bore down 1,500 feet has been provided.

A RICH landed proprietor in Austria was lately sentenced to seven months' penal servitude, with occasional days of short rations and sleeping on a plank bed, for inhumanly torturing a farm servant.

A PLAGUE of locusts lately appeared in the province of Gizeh, in Egypt. In five days the authorities killed six tons of them. In plowing enormous quantities of their eggs are turned up, and, fortunately, exposure to the sun destroys the eggs.

ITALIAN editors have tried hard to translate the words Buffalo Bill. One of them makes it "Campagnia Americana di Guglielmo Bufalo Occidentale Selvaggio" (the troupe of William Buffalo Savage West!") Another paper says: "Suo capo e Guglielmo il bufalo" ("its chief is William the Buffalo").

DURING a storm which recently raged in the canton of Neufchatel, Switzerland, a shower of living caterpillars fell on the hill of Cestes. They were in myriads, and of three species—some yellow, the others black, and varying in length. Among the caterpillars were many other insects. The source from which the gale conveyed them is unknown.

THE opening of the first submarine telephone cable occurred lately. The cable runs between Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, and is thirty-two miles long, the total length with the overhead line being one hundred and eighty miles On this line there are five intermediate stations, all of which can telephone and telegraph simultaneously with all other stations.

GERMANY is bent on naval improvements. The new great harbor at Cuxhaven will be begun shortly, as the works will occupy three years. This port will be large enough to accommodate one hundred of the largest vessels at one time, and will be thirty feet deep at low water. Another important harbor at Emmerlaf, on the North sea, is also planned.

A SOLDIER was court-martialed lately at Venice for breach of discipline and condemned to six months' imprisonment. When informed by the court he could appeal he contemptuously tore off his number and other insignia, threw them on the floor and shouted: "Cursed be your army! You are a lot of assassins!" For this he was condemned to seven years' close confinement in prison.

BRITISH enterprise having been delighted with Egyptian cats, is now turning its attention to the crocodile pets in Maabeteh, where there is a rich mine of nitrates of immense extent. The crocodiles are laid like sardines in a box, with palm leaves between them, the interstices being filled up with myriads of eggs. The crocodiles are done up in bundles, covered with cloth. It is believed that beyond these are vaults containing mummied crocodiles, and in which vast treasures are stored.

THERE are companies in Paris which deal in compressed air for motive power, and to one of these companies has been awarded a contract for street lighting on a novel plan. The company distributes power through its condensed air system to a vast number of small dynamos, each of which furnishes current for a small number of lamps. The electricity thus generated is free from danger, and the lighting perfect. The system has, moreover, the admirable recommendation of extreme cheapness.

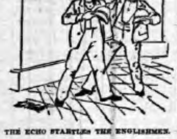
SPORTING WITH ECHOES.

Some Jokes Guides Play on Visitors to the Capitol.

The Mysterious Voices That Awed a Group of Distinguished Britishers—An Elocutionary Echo—Scaring a Swell Darkey.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

In September, 1887, an international convention of physicians and surgeons was held in Washington. Eminent practitioners from every section of the civilized world were present. Among them were several noted Englishmen. They visited all the public buildings, went down to Mount Vernon, had dinner at Marshall Hall, were driven out to Arlington and the Soldiers' Home and were feted at the Pension building. The English surgeons, like all Englishmen, were great pedestrians. Some of them wandered miles from the city. They appeared at Bladensburg, Silver Spring, Cabin John's Bridge and other resorts. One hot day, two of them walked from the Arlington Hotel to the capitol. They were arrayed in white duck suits and wore cork helmet hats. It was their first visit to the immense marble edifice. After shuddering at Greenough's statue of Washington and admiring the magnificent marble group of Persico illustrating the dangers of the early settlers they climbed the broad brownstone steps leading to the main entrance to the Capitol.



THE ECHO STARTLES THE ENGLISHMEN.

Finding the rotunda somewhat crowded they drifted into statuary hall. The hall is semi-circular—shaped like a clean-cut half-moon. The massive columns supporting the ceiling are of Potomac marble, better known as "calico rock." The statues stand between these columns. The tesselated pavement is of marble, black blocks alternating with white ones. A small dome surmounts the hall. Its ceiling has the properties of a sounding-board. An elliptic arch spans the base of the half-moon, facing the House wing of the building.

The English surgeons surveyed the statues with much interest. The gigantic form of old Ethan Allen in marble glowered at them. The statue of General Nathaniel Greene confronted them, stern-faced and patriotic. Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, one in bronze and the other in marble, surveyed them. It was warm without and quite close within the hall.

While the Englishmen were gazing at these patriots one of them was startled by a voice from above. In measured tones came the words:

"Take off your hats while in the presence of these noble American heroes."

They seemed to come from the gallery where the great marble clock is located. The cork helmets were quickly removed. The Englishmen stood with them in their hands and glanced at the gallery with a half-expressed "beg-your-pardon" upon their lips. To their astonishment the gallery was empty. They saw no one there. Before their wonderment had ceased the same stern voice, coming from the same quarter intoned the words:

"Now that you have honored these great American patriots, you are at liberty to replace your hats."

Their heads were again covered. They looked at each other as though dumfounded, and then cautiously surveyed their surroundings. There was no one else in the hall of statues. They walked over towards the statue of Robert Fulton, so as to survey every part of the hall and of the semi-circular gallery. Still no one was to be seen. While they were viewing the gallery the face of one of them turned white. He heard these words coming from under his very feet:

"You blooming Britisher, get off my head. You're standing on my head. What do you mean? Get off of it, quick!"

The young doctor started as though pricked by a bayonet. His companion looked at him in dumb amazement. He himself had heard nothing and could not understand his friend's apparent alarm. The first one told him what he had heard. Meantime their positions had become reversed. Number two became equally dumfounded. The same harsh voice grated upon his ears:

"What," it said, "are you trying to flatten me out to? Get off of my head and stay off of it."

The order was promptly obeyed. The Briton stepped from the block and walked with his friend into the center of the hall. Still no one was in sight. They looked across the great rotunda and through the long corridor leading to the Senate chamber. They then turned and looked through the corridor leading to the House of Representatives. They could see persons entering the chambers of both houses, but nobody else.

"It is very strange, don't you know," one of them remarked.

He was dumfounded when the words were repeated above his head, beneath his feet and apparently in his very throat. A smile overspread his face.

"I have it, my boy," he said to his friend. "It is a hall of echoes."

At this they heard some one laugh near by. Upon turning they saw a young man leaning upon the base of the statue of General Muhlenburg. He had just come out of the corridor leading to the hall of the House of Representatives. There was a significant smile upon his face and good humor beamed from his eye. The Englishmen approached and sought an explanation. It was given with rare tact and grace.

"This, gentlemen," said he, "was formerly the hall of the House of Representatives. It was here that John Quincy Adams was stricken with death. This room has resounded with the eloquence of Webster, Clay and Calhoun. After the new wing of the Capitol was built and the House had occupied its new quarters, the pavement of this hall was raised three and a half feet. In the old days its acoustic properties were very bad. A member addressing the chair from the center of the hall was confused by the echoes of his own voice.

"Every statesman complained, and all were overjoyed when the new chamber was completed. Since the elevation of the pavement the queerest acoustic properties have been developed. As you entered the hall just now you halted between the statues of John Winthrop and Samuel Adams. I stood sixty-five feet away from you at the entrance of the corridor leading to the hall of the House of Representatives. The elevation is about a foot higher than the pavement of the hall. You as well as myself were facing north. When I addressed you in a low and distinct tone of voice, the words seemed to come to you from the gallery above the clock. A few minutes afterward you stepped upon that block near the statue of Fulton. I moved to a point about forty feet away from you near the statue of Cass. My words then seemed to come from beneath the stone upon which you stood. You then moved into the center of the hall where you got the same echoes that annoyed many a statesman in the olden time."

Kennedy is a character well known in the Capitol. He is an ardent admirer of Senator Ingalls. When Ingalls is in the chair, or is speaking, the guide will frequently drag visitors from the whispering stones to see and hear the Kansas Senator. "Senator Ingalls is occupying the chair," he says, as the visitors enter the Senate gallery. "He is the personification of Senatorial grace and dignity, superior to any man upon that floor, either in the past or in the present."

Aside from Ingalls, this guide seems to be a favorite with the old Representatives and Senators. The other day Ashbel P. Fitch and a squad of other Congressmen stood in the hall watching a strange performance. A young colored gentleman had halted upon a whispering-stone in front of the statue of Muhlenburg. He looked like a dandy. He carried a cane with a big buckhorn handle and wore a piccadilly collar with points turned down and as sharp as needles. His hat was as glossy as that usually worn by General Harry Bingham, and the rose in the lappel of his overcoat would have put William M. Springer to blush. The colored exquisite had posed near the statue with the evident object of attracting the attention of a bevy of dusky beauties. Suddenly his eye-balls began to roll. He started as though touched by a red-hot coal. These words sounded in his ears:

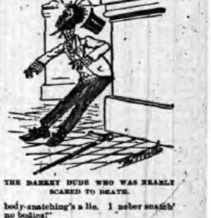
"You burker you, get away from here. You're the coon who has been snatching those bodies out at the poor-house cemetery. How dare you come here?"

In amazement dire the victim looked behind the statue. No one was there. Similar words were pouring into his ears, apparently from one close by. A stranger stood at his left looking at the dome, but his lips were motionless.

"I know you," the voice continued; "you're an oyster-shucker down at Seventh-street wharf."

Turning to the stranger, who, of course, could not have heard a word that had been uttered, the Ethiopian said:

"Well, dat ere man seems to know me. Dat's my business—oyster-shucking. I didn't know dere was anybody here dat knowed me, but all dat 'bout body-snatching's a lie. I neber snatch' no bodies!"



THE DARKEY DUDE WHO WAS NEARLY SCARED TO DEATH.

The stranger was as much surprised as the darky. He thought that the negro was insane and began to move away from him. The darkey was apparently apprehensive. Again he heard the voice, stern and ringing:

"You look out there now. I'm the night doctor and if you don't be careful I'll chloroform you and get your cadaver and cut it open."

The bone-handled cane dropped to the floor. It was recovered, and the negro moved across the hall where he met Eli Hughes.

"Dis am de strangest place I eber was in in all my bo'n days—'deed it am," he said. "I'se gwine to get out ob it. What am a cadaver, anyhow?"

It was Eli who had put up the job. He had led the victim into the trap by calling his attention to the beauties of the statue, and then left him. Kennedy was at the other end of the line, furnishing amusement for both Hughes' and Fitch's knot of Congressmen.

CRY ALOUD AND SPARE NOT.

Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, is evidently one of those partisan statesmen whose ideas of political morality, as we may rightly judge from certain recent expressions of his, are not of an exalted character. It was he who unblushingly declared:

"The Decalogue and the Golden Rule have no place in a political campaign."

"This modern cant about the corruption of politics is fatiguing in the extreme. It proceeds from [illegible] and desultory sentimentalism."

"Patronage will allure the ambitious, force will coerce the timid, demagogues will gull the credulous, fraud will rob the weak, money will buy the mercenary."

All the elements of existing rank public corruption are thereby expressed, and yet the distinguished Senator went on to say:

"The purification of politics is an iridescent (rainbow) dream."

Shades of patriotism and morality!

What strange language for a man of professed intelligence and respectability, a Senator of the United States and President pro tem of the highest legislative body in the land, to deliberately [illegible] in this enlightened age. Language virtually upholding a system of political depravity that has become a public reproach and which threatens to draw the life-blood of free representative institutions?

It is time to cry aloud and spare not.

We are pleased to notice that a Baptist clergyman of the City of New York, Rev. Mr. Dixon, has had the manly courage to fire hot shots into the camp of the political corruptionists. In a sermon delivered last week he very properly denounced the sentiments of the Kansas Senator, already partly quoted, and among many other loyal and truthful utterances, gave forth the following:

"The man who does not believe in purity is impure.

The man who does not believe in honesty is dishonest.

The man who does not believe in truth is a liar.

This nation was founded on [illegible] and the Ten Commandments.

The men who landed at Plymouth Rock landed on their knees.

The foundations of this republic were cut from the quarry of God's eternal granite.

The man who has outgrown the Decalogue and the Golden Rule has outgrown his usefulness in this nation.

The party that repudiates them had better prepare for the funeral ceremony.

In the name of the living God of heaven and earth, I say that His truth and His righteousness must and will prevail.

The righteous indignation of a long suffering people is now being aroused from sea to sea.

In some States the cloud is no bigger than a man's hand.

The flood is surely coming, and when it does burst, it will sweep Mr. Ingalls and all the men who believe as he believes with the host of small-fry politicians who have strutted before this nation, into merited oblivion."

Great credit is due the Rev. Mr. Dixon for his reasonable and effective opposition to glaring political evils.

Would that all others of his cloth were as vigilant and fearless in the discharge of manifest duty.

We repeat—It is time to cry aloud and spare not.

ENLIGHTENED SENTIMENT.

The report of a Committee of the Commercial Exchange of Philadelphia is deserving of mature consideration. It says:

"As other countries having free ships have succeeded in driving our commerce from the ocean, we having declined from 75 per cent. to 12 per cent., and are compelled to pay foreigners two hundred millions a year in the form of freight and passage; and as no other citizen of any other country on the face of the earth, except a citizen of this country, is denied the protection of his country's laws and flag, in buying a ship where he can purchase it at the lowest price; believing that were American merchants permitted to buy their ships where they can buy them as cheap as other nations buy theirs, we could compete successfully with them.

"We want the repeal of the navigation laws of the United States, and the removal of all duties on shipbuilding materials, and a law enacted which shall provide for the free admission of foreign built ships to American registry, with all the privileges thereto afforded.

"Subsidies, bounties and the gratuitous giving of moneys is in opposition to the known characteristics of the American people, and, therefore, a stigma put upon American push, energy and ingenuity, which we earnestly deplore. Superiority and skill, if untrammeled, will assert themselves."

That gives currency to stubborn facts, and had they been uttered by a body of New York merchants, would, no doubt, have raised the partisan cry of horrid free trade, but emanating in Philadelphia, the hot-bed of extreme protection, they certainly evidence the growth of enlightened sentiment.

Had the Committee in question journeyed a little further along the pathway of knowledge, and declared that this is the only civilized country on the face of the globe that prohibits the free importation of wool, and other raw material, for the building up and encouragement of manufacturing enterprise and labor, additional service would have been done in the cause of truth.

Popular education is advancing with rapid strides, and the time is coming when the bright beams of practical intelligence will drive away the dark clouds of ignorance, even in the most benighted section of the United States of America.

Union County's Assemblymen Against Race Betting.

In spite of the acknowledged opposition of the people to legalizing the race tracks in this State, the bill for such purpose was passed by the Assembly at Trenton, on Monday, by a vote of 32 to 23. This community, however, has cause to be proud of the stand taken by its representatives. Of the 23 who voted against the bill, were Messrs. Marsh and Voorhees of Union, and Mr. Kline of Somerset.

Assemblyman Ulrich, of this city, was detained at home because of grave illness in his family; and he expressed his sincere regret, on Tuesday, to a Press reporter, that he could not be present and recorded, as he would have been, against the bill.

—The total expenditures by the Somerset County Freeholders for last year amounted to $87,323 84.

THE UNION COUNTY COUNTRY CLUB.

A List of the Charter Members of the Corporation That Will Build the Plainfield Casino.

As the certificate of incorporation of the club of Plainfield men who are to build the Casino at the corner of West Seventh street and Arlington avenue, was not filed in the County Clerk's office until Friday, THE PRESS has not been at liberty before to publish the names of the charter members and officers. All other information regarding the scheme has been given in these columns exclusively.

The organization will be known as "The Union County Country Club." The officers are:

PRESIDENT—Henry G. Runkle.
TREASURER—Henry Fisk.
SECRETARY—William T. Kauffman.

The charter members are:

Wm. Blodgett,	Geo. C. Evans,

Small Fire at Dunellen.

Carpet weaver Lowry's house at Dunellen had a narrow escape from total destruction by fire a few afternoons since. A fire started in his carpet weaving department in some unexplained manner, and was making rapid progress when some of the neighbors rushed in and extinguished the flames before any serious damage was done.

Valuable Real Estate Changes Hands.

The desirable property on West Front street, owned by the Berry estate and occupied by Mr. S. C. Peck, which was put up at public auction last week and bought in by the heirs on a bid of $14,500, has been disposed of at private sale for $13,500, Messrs W. L. Hetfield of this city and R. V. Lindabury of Elizabeth, becoming equal owners of the property.

Another Centenarian Gone.

Henry Martin, of Piscatawaytown, near New Market, died Sunday afternoon, in his one hundred and first year, having passed his centennial birthday on May 13. He was one of the pioneer oyster gatherers of the Raritan, and followed the business until age overtook him. He then turned his attention for some time to terrapin hunting, in which he was very skilful.

Tramps in the Fourth Ward.

Tramps are becoming so numerous in the Fourth Ward in the vicinity of Grant avenue, that it is not safe to leave females alone in the house during the day time. The men are of the most desperate class and in some instances where they are refused eatables, clothing etc., they reluctantly leave the place after heaping a torrent of abuse upon the unprotected female occupants.

He Was Simply Doing His Duty.

Dog catcher James Babbitt was the cause of great excitement on North avenue, afternoon April 14. He captured a pug dog belonging to Councilman Hetfield, and the dog's loud and continued barking brought the clerks and others out of the stores and caused people to crane their necks out of windows, in order to ascertain the cause of the great commotion. The animal was taken to the pound.

In the City Court.

Before the City Judge on Tuesday, Mrs. Miner, of Singer alley, charged Mrs. Kennedy, another resident there with using foul and indecent language. The defendant was given a hearing, and Judge Codington reserved his decision.

Two Sunday gamblers arrested by the police, were given a hearing before the City Judge, Monday afternoon. The Judge also reserved his decision in this case.

Another Coal Train Jumper Arrested.

The good work of breaking up the dangerous practice of catching on coal and freight trains, is going forward with success, and before long the practice will be entirely abandoned for a time. One more unfortunate was arrested by Special Officer S. K. Hope, afternoon April 14, for riding on a coal train. The man gave his name as "Mike" Haddock, and said that he had been granted the privilege of riding on the train by one of the trainmen.

Somerset County Teachers' Meeting.

A regular meeting of the above named association, which includes the teachers in the North Plainfield public school, was held in the public school building at Bound Brook, on Saturday at ten o'clock A. M. Following was the programme as arranged:

Griffen's Plumbers Strike.

The plumbers in the employ of A. M. Griffen, who have been getting $2.00 a day, demanded last Friday $2.50 for themselves and $4 for Foreman Addis. Their employer had a long talk with them, and fairly laid before them the state of the case as it stood. He now charges his customers 50 cents an hour, of which he gives 45 cents to his men. If he acceded to their demands he would have to charge his customers 65 cents an hour. Mr. Griffen explained how that would not do when other shops were still charging only 50 cents.

The men have thereupon left and started a shop for themselves. Mr. Griffen will only be discommoded for a day or two, until new men arrive.

Stocking Echo Lake.

On Friday Mr. E. P. Thorn and Fish Warden W. L. Force received a consignment of 10,000 land-locked salmon trout fry and deposited them in Echo Lake, between Westfield and Springfield, Union county. The fry was obtained from Mr. Fred Mather, in charge of the United States fish hatchery, established at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, at the solicitation of Mr. Thorn, who has great faith that the fish will thrive in the waters in which they were deposited yesterday. It will take at least four years before any returns may be expected from the fry, which were about an inch in length. The cans containing them were accompanied by an employee of the Government, Mr. Walter VanArsdale, a genial gentleman and a thorough disciple of Isak Walton, who expressed his opinion that the fish would do well in the waters of Echo Lake. It is a source of pleasure and gratification to lovers of fishing to meet such men as Mr. VanArsdale on errands like the one in question, or at any time. The fish were received at Westfield, and through the courtesy of Mr. Wm. Brogan, of hotel fame in that village, conveyed to the lake, and were then dumped in the water, [illegible] by Mr. Thorn and one by Mr. Force. May the little fish prosper in the [illegible] of many.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY.

A Horse Dashes Through North and Park Avenues at Great Speed, and is Captured on West Front Street by Harrison Randolph—Two Ladies Injured.

At about half-past 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, a sorrel horse attached to a village cart, the same being owned by Mrs. Dumont of Dunellen, ran away from Mr. R. L. Burnett's residence on Hillside avenue, which resulted in the complete demolition of the cart, besides throwing out and injuring Miss Dumont of Dunellen, and Miss Mollie Lawrence, a sister of Mrs. Burnett.

The two ladies had just started to drive into town, when the horse became unmanageable and ran away. Turning into Broadway from Hillside avenue, at a point known as "Fox's Corner" the ladies were thrown out in the roadway, Miss Dumont receiving injuries of so serious a nature that it was found necessary to immediately summon Dr. Murray. Miss Lawrence suffered only from shock.

The horse ran on and turned into North avenue, upsetting the cart in front of Mr. A. D. Thompson's produce market. The animal then made a bee-line for Smalley Bros. butcher shop nearly opposite, where the cart struck a butcher wagon, reducing the cart into kindling wood. The horse again started out on his mad career, and when turning into Park avenue, the runaway collided with a phaeton belonging to Mr. Charles Potter, Jr. Several other wagons were struck on Park avenue and West Front street, but none of them were badly damaged. The animal was eventually captured by Harrison Randolph on West Front street, near Music Hall.

The runaway horse also dished a wheel on a carriage owned by Mr. David W. Pond, of the Pond Machine Tool company, which was standing in front of a store on West Front street.

The runaway created great excitement, and it is considered almost wonderful that more persons were not injured. Dr. Murray, the attending physician, reports that Miss Dumont's injuries are of a serious nature, but the full extent of them cannot be determined for several days to come.

THE PLAINFIELD CASINO.

Something That Those Who Read THE PRESS, Knew All About.

Plainfield is to have a Casino on the plan of that at Newport. Several of the city's wealthiest men have already subscribed and a building site has been purchased. The subscribers will incorporate themselves into a select club in a few days. The Casino will contain all sorts of club accommodations and a private theatre.

The above from these columns of last Saturday, was republished in the Newark Journal. Thereupon a Plainfield paper displays its ignorance to the public, by copying it and asking, "Do you know anything about it?" Of course the Plainfield people know about it, because those who know anything at all, read THE PRESS.

The location purchased is at the corner of West Seventh street and Arlington avenue, formerly the Arnold estate. Two or three of the wealthiest and most progressive of the younger men of the city, hold the title. $6,200 was paid for the corner property, and $1,800 for a lot adjoining on Arlington avenue, which makes the property 25 feet deeper from Seventh street.

The club house to be erected will cost about $20,000. It will be provided with every convenience, accommodation, and luxury that might be desired. The assembly balls, which are now an established social event in this city, will be given in the Plainfield Casino's ball room. The papers on art, literature, etiquette and other ethics of cultured society, will be read before the Monday afternoon Club in the Casino's auditorium. The swell suppers of the future will be served from the Casino's cuisine; and in fact every public event among the high-levels of the city will achieve its success in the proposed building.

The members of the club, bachelors and benedicts, will find there all they may desire for the pleasure and recreation of themselves or the entertainment of their guests. Billiards and pool parlors, bowling alleys, card rooms, etc., will be provided. For the lady guests there will be tennis in Summer and badminton in Winter besides regular reception evenings, and periodical teas and dances.

To Visit Plainfield.

The following item among others appeared under the heading: "Life Among Brooklyn Wheelmen," in last Sunday's issue of the N. Y. Sporting Times:

Over 100 wheelmen will go to the Decoration Day road race from this club, and after the race will take dinner at Plainfield.

Somerset County Freeholders.

The newly-elected Board of Freeholders of Somerset county, met and organized April 14, by electing J. C. Staats, of Franklin, as Director; A. P. Stephens, of Somerville, Clerk, and John R. Frech, Counsel. The fight for the Collectorship has not been decided.

No Such Thing.

Three of the moulders were discharged from The Pond Machine Tool Company's works, April 14, and this gave rise to a report that a dozen or fifteen of the men had left the foundry because a colored foreman had been put over them. At the works today the report was denied.

Election of Officers.

At the election of the Plainfield Relief Association held in Fireman's Hall, on April 14, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—T. O. Doane.
Vice President—R. R. Sherwin.
Treasurer—J. A. Hubbard.
Secretary—E. M. Mosher.

A Well-Known Plainfielder Killed.

Mr. John W. Foster, proprietor of the Summit Hub and Carriage factory, and a man known to almost all of the old residents here, was struck by the Dover freight train about 2 o'clock morning April 14 near his home. His left arm was terribly lacerated, and he received serious internal injuries.

Playing the Races is Expensive.

The Union County Grand Jury yesterday brought in nineteen indictments against the owners and book-makers at the Linden race track, and late in the afternoon Sheriff Glasby and a posse of six constables started for Linden armed with the necessary capiases to bring the accused persons into Court.

Changes in Borough Realty.

Real estate has recently changed hands in North Plainfield Township, as follows:

John J. Butterfield to Craig A. Marsh, property in North Plainfield, $2,300.

Theo. J. F. Zeller to Mary A. Sage, property in North Plainfield, $700.

Ida M. and Frank S. Grant to Ida M. Fountain, property in North Plainfield, $2,700.

Henry Taylor to David L. Allen, property in North Plainfield, $800.

A Commendable Showing.

During January and February of the present year the Firemen's Relief Association of this city has paid out more money for sick benefits than it has ever before paid out in any whole year since its organization. The association, however, has been able to meet all of its obligations, and this was partly due to the generous contribution made by Mr. Chas. D. Wadsworth of Central avenue and Sixth street, in recognition of the firemen's faithful services at the time his dwelling was damaged by fire several months ago.

A PURSE FOR MR. FITZHUGH.

The Plainfield Choral Society Close the Season With Money in the Bank, and Organize for Another Year—The Old Officers Re-elected—A Grand Music Treat Follows.

A large representation of the Plainfield Choral Society, with their friends, attended the combined annual meeting and social at Crescent Avenue chapel Monday evening. After the meeting was called to order by the President, W. W. Howland, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Nelson W. Runyon, who also gave a resume of the season's work. The treasurer's report was read by Mr. H. O. Newman, the principal feature of which was that, for the first time in the history of Plainfield, its vocal society ended a season with a bank account of about twenty dollars.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows—there being no change except in the position of librarian:

President—W. Wallace Howland.
Vice President—C. W. McCutchen.
Treasurer—H. O. Newman.
Secretary—Nelson W. Runyon.
Librarian—Nelson T. Ball.
Directors—D. E. Davis, M. A. McGee and S. J. Shaw.

Mr. Newman made a motion for an amendment to the constitution to the effect that the dues of the active members should be for the ladies $2 50 and for the gentlemen $5, payable in advance. An amendment was made by Mr. W. B. Richards to the effect that the dues be payable in installments at the beginning of the season, and after the first and second concerts, which amendment was accepted by Mr. Newman, and the motion was carried. Mr. Howland moved and it was carried, that a new article be placed in the constitution to the effect that the society be limited to one hundred and fifteen members.

On motion of Mr. Newman, a vote of thanks was extended to the Trustees of the M. E. church for the use of Vincent chapel for rehearsals, also to the Trustees of the Crescent Avenue church for the use of its chapel upon the present occasion, and to the press of the city for favors received.

The musical programme that followed consisted of the following selections:

Part song—Love and Summer .... Wass.
Choral society.
Solo—The Wanderer .... Schubert.
Mr. B. T. Barnes.
Piano solo—"Second Mazurka" .... Benj Godard
Miss Kate E. Bigelow.
Male Quartette—"Sleep Well" .... L. O. Emerson.
E. E. Runyon, A. L. Titsworth,
Maurice Vanaradale, Robert Gorton.
Solo—Aria, "Samson and Dalilah."
Miss Julia Ketcham.
Piano solo—Torchlight procession...Rubinstein
Miss Lavinia L. French.
Solo—Spring song .... Gounod.
Mrs. Saunders.
Duett—"O that we two were maying."
Miss Alice Holmes, Mr. Elmer E. Runyon.
Part song—"Dreams" .... Strelezki—Fitzhugh.
Choral Society.
Solo—"Il Giuramento" .... Mercadante.
Miss Alice Holmes

The entire programme and its rendition was a great treat. The choruses were conducted by Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh. The accompanists were Mrs. B. T. Barnes, Miss Josephine Petrie and Miss J. M. Utter. Refreshments were served in the parlor. A purse was subsequently presented to Mr. Fitzhugh by members of the society, as a token of warmest appreciation and regard.

CONTRACTOR HARDY'S DIFFICULTY.

A Series of Unpleasant Situations Which Has at Last Caused Him Trouble.

Contractor James Hardy, of North Plainfield, voluntarily appeared before Justice Crossley in the borough on Friday afternoon, waived an examination on an alleged charge, preferred by one Adam Young, and furnished bonds in the sum of $150 to await the action of the Grand Jury. The trouble originated in this way: On or about April 12 last Mr. Hardy gave a check for ten dollars to a man named William Pope, and the complainant in the case cashed the check for Pope. The check was made payable at the First National bank, and two days later when it was presented at the bank for payment it was found that there was no money there to meet it.

Mr. Hardy has of late been unfortunate in his business transactions, but those who know him claim that his motives have been the best. Some time since he made an assignment to Messrs. A. D. Cook & Bro., making them preferred creditors, and this is likely to make the employes come in among the list of heaviest losers. Mr. W. C. Smith, the mason, is also said to be a creditor to the extent of about $1,800.

Mr. Hardy's misfortune is said to be almost wholly due to his taking contracts at such extremely low figures. Messrs Cook & Bro., it is understood, will finish Mr. Hardy's uncompleted contracts.

Mr. Hardy is prepared to show by a bank statement, that at the close of business on the 12th, the day the check was drawn, Mr. Hardy had $100 to his credit in the bank.

Dunavan—Hutchison.

At the home of the bride's uncle, Mr Hutchison, 133 East Front street, Trenton, Thursday afternoon at four o'clock, took place the marriage of Mr Charles H. Dunavan, formerly of this city, to Miss Etta Hutchison, of Trenton, the Rev. Mr. White of that city, officiating. Only the most intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present from this city, New Brunswick and Trenton.

A reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Dunavan left on an extended wedding tour. Upon their return they will reside at New Brunswick.

Who Wrote Them?

The letters at present held at the Plainfield Post Office, because of improper directions, are three to the following:

Dear aunt Issy

Mrs. Jacob Long

The last was sent to St. Louis by Post Master Pope, but returned as not there.

The Systematic Beneficence of Plainfield's Presbyterians.

The statistical schedule prepared by the standing committee of systematic beneficence for the year ending March 31, 1890, submitted to the Presbytery of Elizabeth, at this city, April 16, gives the following figures of interest concerning the contributions made by Dr. Ketcham's and the Rev. Mr. Richards' congregations. When a comparison of membership is made, Dr. Ketcham's people are shown to have been very generous.

The Crescent Avenue church's contributions were as follows: Home missions, $3,107; Foreign missions, $2,642; Church erection, $300; Sabbath school work, $100; Freedmen, $245; Education, $655; Ministerial relief, $600; Aid for colleges, $140; Synodical home missions, $210; Other benevolent objects, $1,867; Total, $9,736. This is an average of $13.29 for each of the 732 members.

The First Presbyterian church gave: Home missions, $249 02; Foreign missions, $263 60; Church erection, $35 19; Sabbath-school work, $72 70; Freedmen, $25 84; Education, $19.25; Ministerial relief, $29 19; Aid for colleges, $15.30; S. nodical home missions, $16 81; Other benevolent objects, $176.39; Total, $1,025.47. This is an average of $3.89 on a membership of 296.

CRESCENT LEAGUE WINS AGAIN.

Its Ball Team Defeats the Celebrated "Lees" of Brooklyn.

The Crescent League team of ball players continue to give the public as fine an exhibition as can be seen in any city in the State. They won again Saturday and played a game without an error. The visitors were the celebrated "Lees" of Brooklyn, strengthened by such players as catcher Sutlich and first baseman Bishop of last year's Somervilles, pitcher Platz of the Monroes, and other well known semi-professionals. They were very weak at second base, however, and it cost them the game. The three runs the visitors made were in this way:

Bergen, the first to the bat, was given his base on balls, as was also Collins. This forced Bergen to second, and he took third on Sutlich's sacrifice, and came home on Bishop's sacrifice. In the second inning Hadley got his first on balls, and Platz followed with a two-bagger in centre field. Gillis got the ball and threw it straight for the home plate to cut off Hadley. The ball struck the latter in the back of the head just as he slid home, and bounded out of everybody's reach so that Platz got his run in too.

As said before, the Crescents played an errorless game. Jones and Martin are simply irreproachable. Wiegand and Lafferty, also, are great players, and Lee is traveling just as fast a pace as any of them. They can't lose Billy. Livingston has not yet pitched the game it is claimed he can. He was very wild, Saturday, but said it was the wind. Mr. Frank Bowman umpired again, and again there was not a word of complaint or criticism from either the players or the spectators. The score:

A Hay Stack Burned.

A hay stock owned by Mr. Halsey Compton of West Front street, was set on fire and burned, between seven and 8 o'clock Thursday evening. The stack contained about one and one-half tons of hay.

Another Raid on Coal Train Jumpers.

Coal train jumpers between this city and Raritan were again surprised by the Central Railroad authorities on Saturday morning, when eleven of them were arrested. Three of the number were committed for five days each, four were sent up for ten days each, two for fifteen days, one for thirty days and one for one day. Several others were arrested along the line and fined.

Chased by the Girls.

Two sisters, young colored girls of this city, chased a young colored barber down the railroad track, after prayer meeting in the Mount Olive church, one evening last week. The story is, the barber intended to walk home with another girl, but one of the sisters who accused him of singing to her the song that touched her heart, said he should not only walk with her but he should marry her or die. Then he ran for home and the sisters chased the breath out of him.

J. Marshall & Ball,

The Newark Clothiers, 807 Broad street, were actually unable to wait upon the crowd that thronged their elegant stores on Saturday last. They apologize to their friends and customers in this issue of our paper and will again attempt to serve all who call today and to-morrow. The quality of the goods they offer and the extremely low prices at which they offer them are sure to bring them customers. Before you buy a suit for yourself or your boys give them a trial.

More Improvements on West Front Street.

Mr. H. Liefke has become the owner of the property wherein he conducts his bakery and confectionery business, at 27 West Front street, and is making quite extensive alterations which will be, when completed, a credit to that part of the city. The long one-story addition in the rear is to be made two stories high, the second floor of which will be divided into kitchen, dining room, bath room and bed rooms. Messrs Pierson & Gayle are the contractors, which is evidence enough that the work will be well done.

They Will Banquet at The Netherwood.

The enthusiasm which is being displayed by the wheelmen throughout the State about the Division meet to be held in this city on the 30th and 31st insts., is in itself a sure guarantee of the success to be attained by the efforts of the various committees who have been, and are still hard at work.

The Banquet Committee have found it necessary to make a change in the time printed in the programme for the banquet, from 4 30 to 3.30 P. M., on Friday, May 30. It will be given at Hotel Netherwood. This change may cause some trivial difference in the schedule runs which are to be held just prior to the banquet.

Entertainment by the Red Men.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Independent Order of Red Men, held its first entertainment in Reform Hall, Friday night, and it was largely attended, the building being crowded to its utmost capacity. Mr. Edward E. Wolverton presided and announced the numbers from the printed programme. The entertainment opened with an overture by the orchestra, followed by an address on "The good of the order," by Walter S. Campbell, P. S., of Watchung Tribe, No. 210 of Newark. Prof. Goode then rendered a violin solo, "Fifth air Varie." A song and chorus, "Down on the Farm," by Mr. J. C. Martin and the Eclipse quartette, was well rendered. Mr. J. C. Rand of New York also favored the audience with some banjo and burnt cork selections, and Mr. John H. Carney gave some humorous recitations in a highly commendable manner. A song and chorus, "Papa's Coming Bye and Bye," by Mr. C. H. Farlee and the quartette, was well received.

The Improved Order of Red Men is founded upon the customs, traditions and history of the aborigines of this continent. Its origin is, as the name clearly indicates, purely American, dating its history to the early days of the Revolution. It is the oldest protective and benevolent society of American birth and growth. It is secret, but only in the sense that secrecy is proper in those matters which concern the private interests of a common family.

Miantonomo Tribe pays $100 on death of a member, and $50 upon death of wife of member, and $5 per week during sickness of member.

The entertainment last evening was a grand success, and the committee having the matter in charge are deserving of credit for the able and efficient manner in which the affair was conducted.

TWO METHODIST CHAPELS.

Some Information as to What is Going on in the Rev. Mr. Mitchell's Church, as Told by Him.

(From "The Visitor of Saturday.")

The pastor wishes to announce to all our members that he gives no letters of introduction or lists of names to book agents, or agents of any sort. When an agent mentions your pastor's name set the person down as a fraud.

The members of the two Grand Army Posts in this city will attend service in a body at our church Sunday evening, May 25. A special service will be prepared and the church appropriately decorated.

Two beautiful lots on the corner of Monroe and West 4th street, have been bought and paid for, and the Committee, Bros. McGee and Jackson, are now raising money for the erection of a neat frame chapel, to cost not less than $3,000. These two brethren have already given largely to this enterprise, and are desirous that our people should assist them in making this chapel a great success. We are a happy church in having such open doors of usefulness. We have the money. Have we the willingness? We believe we have. Let every heart beat in sympathy and every hand open for the success of the Evona Mission.

The committee having in charge the North Plainfield chapel enterprise have decided to build a neat chapel, costing $5,000 on the lots now owned by our church on the corner of Somerset street and Park place. The Trustees have authorized the commencement of the building as soon as $3,000 have been subscribed. We now present this enterprise to our people, and most earnestly call on them to assist in this good work. Nearly $2,000 have already been subscribed, to raise which about all of our largest givers have contributed. The remaining amount needed must now be raised. It is hoped that every member of the church will take some stock in this enterprise. Do not wait for any solicitor to call upon you but state to the pastor or any member of the committee, consisting of Bros. Carrol, Jackson, Jas. McGee, P. M. Smith, Pangborn and Coke-fair, or to any member of the Official Board, what amount you will subscribe. The books are now open. Who will be the first to volunteer a subscription?

A Birthday Party.

Mr. William Peebles gave a birthday sociable Friday night, at his residence No. 5 Spooner avenue, where a large party of his friends met to celebrate the event, about fifty in all being present. During the evening an excellent programme of music, recitations, etc., was rendered, followed by dancing. Refreshments were also served in abundance. The presents were many.

Can't Name Three.

The following very important item appeared in the Somerville Democrat on Friday:

"We will bet a year's subscription to THE DEMOCRAT that Somerville has more pretty girls than any place of its size in the State."

Plainfield had more pretty girls fifteen years ago, than Somerville will ever have.

Bowling at Dunellen.

The members of the Dunellen and Middlesex Bowling Green Club on Wednesday opened the season by enjoying a well contested friendly individual contest at the former's grounds. Three rinks were used. At the conclusion of the games speeches were made by Mr. Stephenson, of Newark, Mr. Schepflin, Messrs Richters and H. B. Willis. A meeting will shortly be held when dates will be decided upon and a series of matches will be arranged.

Mr. Vail's Narrow Escape.

As Mahlon Vail was driving along North avenue, Saturday afternoon, in his hickory buck-board with his handsome team of bob-tailed cobs, the neck yoke broke and the pole hung loose from one horse. To stop them he drove the horses towards the curb, but they sprang on the sidewalk and dashed into Swalm's show window.

Here they pulled Mr. Vail over the dashboard, onto the flag stones, under their heels and dragged the wagon over him. Strange to say he was not killed. One of the iron posts in front of Rockfellow's, was broken off but it held the wagon until the horses were seized just as they headed for Reynolds' soda water fountain.

Changes in Realty.

The recorded transfers of real estate in Plainfield, last week, are as follows:

Agnes Rankin to Warren F. Bartlett, North avenue.

John Cameron et ux to Percy F. Phillips, Madison avenue.

Geo. H. Babcock et ux to The Trustees of the Seventh Day Baptist church, Madison avenue.

Harriet E. Fisk and husband to Edward C. Mulford, Richmond street.

Vincent W. Nash et ux to Jacob Hanson, Putnam street.

Lemuel W. Serrell to Thomas Burke, Third street.

Lemuel W. Serrell to Lemuel Wright Serrell, Third street.

Lemuel W. Serrell to Wallace Lincoln Serrell, Third street.

George Thatcher Serenaded by His Old Companions.

After the performance of Primrose & West's minstrels, Monday night, the band which accompanies the troupe, proceeded to the home of George Thatcher, and took Plainfield's genial citizen completely by surprise. They tendered him a serenade, performing "He's a jolly good fellow," Schubert's serenade, and a medley of George's latest songs prepared expressly for the occasion. Three times three cheers were given for their old companion, "The Minstrel's Friend," George Thatcher; and three more hearty cheers followed the voices that added "Three cheers for George Thatcher's Minstrels."

The proprietors of the organization had nothing to do with this little impromptu recognition of "Our George's" many manly qualities, by his old friends, nor with the expressions of regret at his absence as a co-laborer in their minstrel company during the season just closing. The evening, and far into the morning, was passed in recalling old times over a hearty spread of the good things of life, with an occasional extemporaneous speech or a song, closing with the ever welcome: "Auld Lang Syne."

A Great Cry for More Women

Has been going up from the far West for a good many years. But the cry is not for pale, haggard, debilitated women. The pushing Western men are not anxious for beauty, but they need healthy wives. A great cry for health is continually going up from thousands of women, young and old, all over the earth. Countless remedies have appeared in answer. A few have succeeded, and none hold a higher place than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a sure cure for all those ailments peculiar to the sex.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST. City Editor.

—Plainfield avenue [illegible] cut down to the established grade, preparatory to macadamizing.

—A special meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle club will be held Saturday evening at eight o'clock.

—The Sunday evening mail will hereafter close at the post office at 8.30 instead of 7.00 o'clock.

—Mr. Frank Hempstead, formerly employed by Messrs C. Schepflin & Co., is now with Messrs Woodhull & Buckle.

—Manager Runyon of the telephone office reports that at present there are 150 telephones in working order in this city.

—The Westfield Building and Loan Association, Tuesday evening, disposed of twenty shares at a premium of $11 on a share.

—New Brunswick now comes to the front, and claims to have more pretty girls than any other town in the State—outside of Plainfield.

—The Post building on West Front street, was offered for sale Thursday to divide the Berry estate. It was bought in by one of the heirs for $[illegible].

—Mr F. H. Martin has disposed of his three dwelling houses, situated on West Third street, to Mr. William J. Pierson of the firm of Pierson & Gayle for $5,000.

—Pattern maker [illegible] of The Pond Machine Tool Company's works at Grant avenue, is the owner of a four-legged chicken, hatched out a few days ago.

—The "Actives" only got one hit off of Hopkins, in a game at Somerville, Saturday. And the only run they made was because of a ball that went over the backstop.

—Mr. Barrett of Scott avenue, is prepared and waiting for the return of the thieves who stole 20 of the best chickens the other night. They will get bullets instead of pullets, next time.

—Attention is called to the advertisement this week of the old reliable fur house of W. H. & S. Burdett, 17 Academy street, Newark. They store furs for the Summer, or dodge them in the best manner.

—The congregation of the First Church of Christ, Mr. J. B. Cleaver, pastor, has grown so rapidly that Mr. Cleaver is considering the advisability of holding the Sunday evening meetings in Amphion Hall.

—The Australian Polly Company, which recently closed a week's engagement in Amphion Hall, cost Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., under whose auspices the entertainment was given, just $200 for the week.

—The next regular county examination for teachers' certificates, has been postponed by order of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, from May 20 and 21, to June 6 and 7. It will be held at Westfield.

—There will be an annual meeting of the stockholders of the Pond Machine Tool company, for the election of seven directors, at the office of the company in this city, Monday afternoon, June 2, at three o'clock.

—On Monday evening Union Lodge, F. & A. M., of New Brunswick, had a supper at its rooms. At the meeting District Deputy F. O. Herring of this city, exemplified the work and made an interesting address.

—Vanzant Tuttle & Arnold is the name of the new gas fitting, steam and hot water heating firm, which is about to open a shop at No. 32 North avenue. Mr. William Addis will be the manager for the new firm.

—The loss occasioned by the fire in Mr. James E. Martine's residence on Tuesday, as told exclusively in THE PRESS April 14, will amount to about $[illegible], which claim the insurance companies have already adjusted.

—Street Commissioner [illegible] A. Mosher has his men at work cutting down Third and Fourth streets, at their intersection with Plainfield ave. The surplus dirt is being dumped on the street lot at Plainfield avenue and Fourth street.

—An entertainment in aid of the Children's Home, will be held in Vincent chapel on Saturday afternoon, May 24, at four o'clock. Tickets can be procured from the lady officers of the Home, or at Reynolds' or Randolph's pharmacies.

—There was the usual brawl in the [illegible] yard, Sunday night. Three colored men and a white woman were in it. She claimed they struck her, but that probably was false. However, when Officer [illegible] arrived it was all over. She was drunk.

—The May term of the Court of Chancery opened at the State House in Trenton, Tuesday morning. Included in the list of causes is the case of Charles Hyde vs. Henry Heywood et al in demurrer; J. B. Coward; J. A. Fa[illegible], J. B. Jackson, W. E. McClure.

—The Penn Publishing company of Philadelphia, is about to issue a book called "Talks by George Thatcher, the Minstrel." The work is compiled by "Our George," and will be eagerly looked for. Its sale should prove a bonanza through out the country.

—It is understood that a petition will be presented to the City Council in the near future, with a view of having Cotter's alley graded down to the established grade and having sidewalks laid on both sides of the alley from Front street through to Second street.

—As THE PRESS stated Monday, Mr. J. B. Cleaver has been negotiating for Amphion Hall, wherein to hold his Sunday evening meetings. Arrangements have been made to that end, and hereafter services will be held there every Sunday evening. This change was made necessary on account of the rapid growth in the congregation of the First Church of Christ.

—Mr. D. S. Roberts, who will again have charge of the Netherwood station this season, has just purchased a handsome, broad and easy [illegible] which will be used in fair weather to take guests from the station to the Hotel. The stables promise to be crowded this Summer—one family alone that has engaged rooms at The Netherwood, brings eight horses.

Fell From a Trapeze.

Richard Waring, a son of Mr. O. T. Waring of Park avenue and Eighth street, while practicing on the trapeze at the Bicycle Club gymnasium, on Monday, accidentally fell to the floor, fracturing an arm.

To the Friends of the G. A. R.

The Committee of Arrangements having in charge the matter of properly observing Memorial Day, are in need of money, and all friends of the soldiers and sailors who wish to respond may send their contributions to the Secretary, Mr. E. T. Dunn, 24 West Fourth street, who will promptly acknowledge the same.

Struck by Electricity.

Mr. "Whistle" Phillips, one of the engineers of the electric light station, was painfully injured while at work Thursday evening. He was in the act of transferring the "load" from one dynamo to another, when the blue flame shot out of the switch, burning his left arm and hand. The accident is said to have resulted from carelessness.

PERSONALS.

Mr. John Taylor Johnston and daughters, and Mr Herbert Johnston, are at their Summer home on West Front street.

A young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hill of Carlton avenue, died Friday morning from membraneous croup. The little one was three-and-a-half years of age.

Mr. Chas Hawley left this city last Wednesday for Philadelphia, from which place he intends to proceed to Egg Harbor, and sail from there to his home in Hartford, Conn.

Mr. James H. Muir and family, drove over from Morristown, and were the guests of Mrs. M. F. VanArsdale at her home on Crescent avenue. Mrs. Van Arsdale is Mrs Muir's mother.

The opening exercises in the new school building, at Scotch Plains, will be held on Saturday, May 24, at three o'clock P. M. The trustees of the district are: David P. Hall, D. C., T. J. Nichols, F. W. Wyckoff.

Miss Lillian Frink, daughter of Dr. J. T. Frink, is recovering as rapidly as possible from her recent accident while riding a "safety" bicycle. The machine slipped from under her, and her leg was broken by the sudden fall on it.

Word reached Plainfield Saturday of the death of Mrs. I. S. Sleight, formerly living at 65 East Front street, this city, which occurred in the home of her sister Mrs. Wm. C. Bailey. Mrs Sleight was also a sister of John T. Lee. She was a widow.

Messrs Vincent Rockwell, Chas. Angleman, Linn Edsall, Wm. Boyd and Wm. Crawford, constituted the committee of arrangements who had in charge the recent entertainment given under the auspices of the Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Charles Wilkinson, and family, who were former residents of Union avenue but more recently of New York, will return to Plainfield. Mr. Wilkinson has leased the "House of Seven Gables," at West Seventh street and Madison avenue, adjoining the Congregational church.

Mr. H. A. Lee, a member of the firm of Bangs & Lee, manufacturers of the cases, pails and boxes and decorators of the same, of Nos. 376 and 378 Greenwich street, New York city, together with his family, has taken up his residence at No. 4 West Seventh street, this city, for the Summer.

Mr. Richard Merritt, ex-City Clerk, who has been suffering with melancholia for some time past, left Plainfield Friday evening for Corning, N. Y., where at its sanitarium he will be under the treatment of specialists. A large circle of friends will join in the hope of his thorough recovery of good health.

Following is a list of the members of Coeur de Leon Commandery, Knights Templar of New Brunswick, who attended the Ascension Day service in Grace church, this city, on Thursday evening: Sir Knights Jerome B. Borden, Josiah Tice, O. O. Stillman, C. H. Cramer, John S. Stewart and Paul Diver.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday morning Mr. Peter Rickert, one of the oldest residents, was stricken with apoplexy at the corner of Front and Somerset streets. He was taken to his home in a carriage, and Drs Lowrie and Long were summoned, but the patient died a few hours afterwards without recovering consciousness.

One of the best appointed turnouts that are seen on the roads in this vicinity, is the English trap with its high stepper and liveried groom, driven by Mr. Constantine Pantaleone Ralli of Ramsnaith, Netherwood. Mr. Ralli is manager for Brown Bros., whose banking houses are known throughout the civilized World.

At a meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, held on Monday evening of last week, four new members were elected, carrying the membership to 103. This is the first time the membership has ever crossed the century mark. The newly-elected members included Messrs Craig A. Marsh, E. C. Wettmore and J. A. Demarest.

Mrs. George Taylor of South avenue Netherwood, is expected to arrive in Europe with her three children in a day or two. They will be met by Mr Taylor's brother at Liverpool. During his family's absence, Mr. Taylor—who can't be spared from the New York sugar market where he is one of its most active and shrewdest brokers—will live at Netherwood Hotel.

On the German steamer "Werra," Saturday, Mr. Jacob Kirkner sailed for Bremen. He goes to bring home his wife and daughters who have been detained so long abroad by the serious illness of Miss Carrie Kirkner. An effort will be made to bring the latter home at once. Mr. Kirkner has taken with him all the latest inventions in the way of rolling chairs and cots for the transportation of invalids.

Upon the retirement of Mr Andrew E. Kenney as representative of the United States Express company in this city, to accept a position as assistant station agent, he received a letter from the General Manager of the Express company at New York, of which the following is an extract: "Dear Sir:—Your resignation to take effect on May 15, is received and accepted with regret. We trust that in your new field you will be not only prosperous but very happy."

Mr. Henry G. Squires of this city, published a few months ago an illustrated catalogue of great typographical beauty and intense interest to those who love shooting, fishing, boating or camping. Besides the flattering notices it has received from all the leading papers of this country and England, personal letters in the same vein have been written Mr. Squires by President Harrison, Vice President Morton, ex-Presidents Cleveland and Hayes, all the Cabinet Ministers, the U. S. Senators, army officers, foreign ministers, college presidents, the clergy, prominent lawyers, artists and representative business men. These letters have been published in pamphlet form.

Mr. Gershom Frazee who has all his life been a hard worker for the Republican party, but whom they always pass by when the rewards are distributed, is in a fair way to be paid in some degree at last. A petition to the Collector of the Port, at New York, has been signed by all the Republican Senators of the State and all the Republican Assemblymen, asking that Mr. Frazee be appointed to some office in the gift of the Collector. Mr. Frazee's petition is endorsed by Gen Sewell, Wm. Walter Phelps, John Kean, Jr., George A. Halsey, Amos Clark, John W. Murray, E. H. Pope, W. H. Milliken, Mayor Maie, Corporation Counsel Marsh, and a hundred others. Surely, if he had been so good a Democrat as he is a Republican, he would have had an office five years ago.

After years of much suffering Mrs. Eleanor Mathews, relict of Oliver B. Mathews, died Saturday at her home on First place. She was a daughter of the late James F. and Jane A. Kenny; and leaves behind sadly stricken with their great loss, a daughter, Eleanor; a son, Frank, and a devoted sister, Sarah. Mr. Mathews at the time of his death was a trustee of the Crescent Avenue church and universally esteemed throughout the community. His funeral was attended by a large delegation of New York merchants who had known him in his business life. Mrs. Mathews was one of God's noblewomen. She was a model of submission to God's will, in patient acceptance of her trials and affliction, and the entire absence of even a murmur of complaint when suffering most intense pain. The funeral services were held in the Crescent Avenue church, Monday afternoon at three o'clock.

Mr. Joseph S. Pike has been engaged as night clerk at Hotel Netherwood.

Mrs. Rachel Allen of Park avenue, is visiting her sister in Philadelphia.

Mr. J. T. Vail has been confined to his home on Franklin place for a few days past by illness.

Mrs. M. A. Gardner and Miss A. L. Gardner are visiting their friend Mrs George at Asbury Park.

Mr. William Farmer, a stock broker by occupation, has left this city and gone to Syracuse, New York State.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kirkner have returned from New York city, and taken up their residence on Eighth street.

Messrs Christopher Rickert of Brooklyn, and Peter Eboll of New York, are spending a few days with relatives in North Plainfield.

Mr. David Sandiker of Grove street, has returned from a successful business trip in the West, having been absent for about a month.

Mrs. A. A. Campbell of Trenton, has returned home after a few days visit with her son, Mr. W. A. Campbell of East Second street, this city.

Mr. John Shay, an aged man, died at the residence of his daughter-in-law, on Linden avenue, North Plainfield, Tuesday evening, from old age. He was 88 years old.

Miss Jessie Munger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Raymond Munger of Washington avenue, sailed for Europe Wednesday. She will be absent, probably, until October.

Mrs. Wm. B. Clarkson and her daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Godfroy, who are now living at "The Sherwood," Fifth avenue, New York, were visiting friends in Plainfield Monday.

At the recent annual meeting of the Association of General Newspaper Advertising Agents, held at the Astor House, New York, Mr. E. N. Erickson of this city, was elected President.

Mr. Geo. F. Quilbert, formerly of North Plainfield, but now of Maryland, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Chambers, of New York, and a niece of the latter, Miss Nettie Allison of North Plainfield, will sail for Europe on Saturday next.

The announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Mr. Robert H. Lowry, son of the Rev. Dr. Lowry, and Miss Lizzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Darling of Prospect avenue. The ceremony will take place early in June.

Miss Strong died of consumption on morning, at the home of Mrs. Annie Ebers, on Rock View Terrace, North Plainfield. She had been ill for some time. She is very nearly related to the Messrs G. W. and E St. J. McCutchen and to Mrs. Edward St. John.

At a regular meeting of the Plainfield Camera club, on Tuesday, the Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, D. D., and Mr. J. A. Demarest, of this city, and Mr. W. A. Kiggins, of Elizabeth, were elected members. The club's handsome rooms in the Clarkson building are being most æsthetically decorated by Messrs D. C. Adams, J. Hervey Doane and W. H. Lyon, Jr.

The condition of Miss Dumont, the young lady who was injured in the runaway accident on Broadway Tuesday morning, is today very much improved, and her speedy recovery is looked for. Next morning the patient was removed from Mr. R. L. Barnett's residence on Hillside avenue, where she was taken after the accident, to the home of her uncle, the Rev. Mr. Simpson, on Broadway.

Messrs Robert Clark, Jr., and Harry Coddington, of the North Plainfield public school, have blossomed in the Spring as editors and publishers of The Boys' Own, a four page "monthly paper devoted to juvenile articles by the boys." They will insert an advertisement for three months for 45 cents, and send the paper free. The paper itself advertises: "Wanted! 100 new subscribers. Eggs taken in payment and trust given until the speckled pullet lays."

Mrs Mary A Thorn, mother of Mr. Guillermo Thorn, the photographer, died at the home of her son, 161 East Second street, Monday. She was in the 77th year of her age, and since a paralytic stroke of just six months ago, has been a terrible sufferer. She was so broken down by pain, and so emaciated, that her death had been expected many times; but the great vitality she inherited from her father kept her alive for days after it was impossible to feed her anything but wine or beef tea by half-teaspoonfuls.

Miss Adelaide Frances McGee and the Rev. Herbert Welch, will be married, as already announced in these columns, in the Methodist Episcopal church, on Tuesday evening, June 3, at seven o'clock. Miss McGee is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McGee of Washington Park. She is prominently identified with all the charitable work in the community. Mr. Welch is a New York gentleman, the son of wealthy parents, but he has adopted from choice the labor of saving souls and ministering to the righteous wants of the poor. Miss McGee and Mr. Welch met while both were engaged in a trip to Colorado.

One of Plainfield's People.

The Coast Democrat of Manasquan, N. J., has the following pleasant notice of Conductor A. F. Hetfield, of the Central Railroad:

> There was quite a time of rejoicing not only in Point Pleasant, but all along the line of the New York and Long Branch railroad on Monday last. The cause of the jubilification was the arrival of Conductor Hetfield in charge of his old train. Everybody was pleased, and you ought to have seen the pleasant smile of our citizens and the patrons of that train.

"Gus" is one of the old timers, and his many friends in this city naturally feel proud of him, especially as he has been a resident of Plainfield for the past year.

Director Hubbard's Handsome Gift.

The members of the Union County Board of Freeholders on April 13, presented a handsome ivory gold mounted gavel to Director J. Frank Hubbard of this city. The following inscription appears thereon:

"Director J. F. Hubbard. From the members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union county, N. J., May, 1889-1890. As a testimonial of their esteem and regard."

The handsome testimonial presented to the popular Freeholder is on exhibition at Reynolds' pharmacy.

Their May Walk.

The members of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein went on their annual May walk to the mountain Sunday, starting from Blatz's Hotel in North Plainfield at five o'clock in the morning. The destination was at "Penny Orchard," in the vicinity of Johnston's lookout, where the day was spent by indulging in various outdoor amusements, such as base ball, running, jumping, a tug of war and rifle practice. During the afternoon many of the wives and daughters of the members strolled up to the mountain and witnessed the games. Refreshments were served in abundance. The homeward trip was made about dusk.

Eat well and sleep well. But how shall we do it?
Listen, my friend, and the secret I'll tell,
Though, for that matter, there's no secret to it,
As every a man understands very well.
If you're low spirited, gloomy, despondent,
If nothing tastes good and your nights bring no rest,
If your stomach is [illegible] and your mouth seems [illegible],
And all [illegible] you become that they call you a "crank,"
Be sure that the trouble is due to your liver,
And the blood is as sluggish as [illegible]
[illegible]
Because when it's filled with all manner of [illegible], [illegible] out and the system runs [illegible].

Go to the drug store and get a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the great blood-purifier and liver invigorator. It is a sure cure for the low spirits and general depression a man feels when his liver is inactive and his blood impure. This remedy makes a man well.

THE MESSIAH OF HANDEL, AND THE TRIUMPH OF FITZHUGH.

Plainfield's Choral Society Render a Grand Work With Unprecedented Success—Those Who Subscribed the Fund for the Season's Concerts.

At no time, under whatever name it may have existed, has the Plainfield Choral Society achieved so great a success as Thursday night when the larger part of Handel's oratorio of the Messiah was given with the assistance of Mrs Gerrit Smith, soprano, Miss Farlon Weed, contralto, Mr. Charles H. Clark, tenor, Mr J. C. Dempsey, bass, and an orchestra from the New York Philharmonic Society selected by Mr. Weiner.

A great deal of doubt had been expressed as to the ability of the society to produce so great a work, but that they had produced it to the satisfaction of the audience was shown by the round of applause that followed the first chorus. It may be that the success was partly due to this same expression of doubt, for each member seemed to feel that, so far as he or she was concerned, it should go. Never were rehearsals better attended, and never was there more thorough drill, owing to their indefatigable leader, Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh.

The attacks were excellent all the way through, with the exception, perhaps, of the chorus, "Glory to God," in which there was a slight hesitancy. "For unto us a child is born" received the most applause, and the sopranos deserve special mention for the sweetness and smoothness of their run. "His yoke is easy" is about the most difficult of all the choruses, and is seldom sung well. It was given without a break. "Lift up your heads," "Hallelujah," and "Worthy is the Lamb," with the "Amen" chorus, were grand.

The soloists all gave great satisfaction, Mrs. Smith was especially pleasing in "Rejoice greatly," and "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Miss Weed possesses a voice well suited to oratorio music, and her rendition of "He shall feed his flock" was exquisite, as was also "He was despised and neglected." As Mr. Rieger failed to make an appearance at the rehearsal, Wednesday morning, his place was supplied by Mr. Clark who is a favorite here, and who sang delightfully "Comfort ye," "Thy rebuke hath broken His heart," and "He that dwelleth." Mr. Dempsey possesses a very flexible voice which was well displayed in "Why do the nations rage" and "The trumpet shall sound," both of which solos were grand. The orchestra was exceedingly good. They accompanied well and the Pastoral Symphony was exquisite.

The society will have one more meeting before they separate for the Summer. A social gathering will be held next Monday evening in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, at which Mr. Fitzhugh will be present. The officers will be elected for the coming year. There will be music and refreshments.

To Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh is due most of the credit of the society's success. He has been untiring in his labors—giving his time and effort without stint to the accomplishment of the night's most ambitious undertaking. He has contributed his services gratuitously to extra rehearsals, and has missed his evening train for New York very often because he has been so lost to all else by his personal interest and intense desire to achieve success. The result was an accomplishment that could not have been excelled, so far as the society was concerned, under any other living leader.

The board of managers and music committee of the season, deserve special mention again in view of the night's great success. They are:

President—Wm. Wallace Rowland.
Vice President—Charles W. [illegible].
Secretary—Nelson Runyon.
Treasurer—S. Otis Newman.
Librarian—L. H. Bigelow, Jr.
Assistant Librarian—Nelson Y. Hull.
Music Committee, Henry A. McGee, Daniel E. Davis, Charles W. McCutchen.

The names of the members of the chorus have already been published in these columns. The following are the subscribing members whose money made feasible a series of such concerts as have been given: Messrs E. R. Ackerman, C. F. Abbott, J. W. Anthony, J. M. Bettman, Mrs. A. C. Baldwin, W. T. Broadway, Chas. W. Beebe, A. B. Beers, A. M. Baynon, G. H. Babcock, T. B. Brooks, T. S. Burr, F. Bushnell, J. Bushnell, Mrs. E. S. Brown, C. G. Crawford, C. W. Cass, G. A. Special Inspection of Winfield Scott Post.

On Tuesday evening next there will be a special inspection of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., which is to be held in the Post room. Among those who will be present at the inspection are Department Commander, Capt. A. M. Matthews of Orange; Senior Vice Department Commander Wildrick of Belvidere; Junior Vice Department Commander, James M. Atwood of Brooklyn, and Comrades from Gen. Wadsworth Post of Somerville, Craven Post of Bound Brook, Barry Post of Rahway, and from Posts in New York and Brooklyn.

After the inspection the visitors will be tendered a grand collation.

THE YACHT "SANDANONA."

Mr. Clark W. Evans' Handsome Boat on Which He is Entertaining the Small People of Virginia, in the Port of Hampton.

The interest of the guests at Hygeia Hotel, Old Point Comfort—but more especially the interest of the charming young teloresses at the Hampton Institute, and the susceptible young daughters of the F. F. V's of that vicinity—has been centered for the past few weeks in the handsome schooner yacht "Sandanona," which has been riding proudly in the bay of Hampton and within gun shot of Fortress Monroe. Aboard as the guest of her owner, Clark Wright Evans, Esq., formerly of Plainfield, was Mr Sydney Fry of London. Consequently the thoughts of the fair ones about, were naturally aboard the "Sandanona," also.

Large parties of Northern people guests at the Hotel, and parties composed of the officers of the Fort and their families, and permanent residents of Hampton and Newport News, have visited the yacht and been entertained by its courteous owner during its stay in that vicinity. All have been charmed with the beauty of the boat, and the younger girls have "gone wild over it," and pronounced it "just too lovely!" No cost has been spared in its construction, nor expense in its finishing and furnishing. It contains a comfortable cabin, library and dining room; four private staterooms, toilet and bath rooms; kitchen and butler's pantry.

The "Sandanona" is built for any service, and her crew would gladly start for Europe in her today. Captain Stiles, who is in command, is the same Capt. "Jim Stiles" that the Rev. Dr. Ketchum, Councilman McCutchen, and other Plainfield lovers of a life on the bounding wave, have always looked for when they've gone down Tuckerton way for a cruise. He says the "Sandanona" will sail any seas. The second officer is Mate Herbert Stiles, who isn't even afraid of Satan, off shore. This Summer the "Sandanona"—which title is Indian for "Sunlight"—will cruise off Long Branch and Newport.

Reckless Shooting.

While some of Mr. Abram L. Cadmus' men were at work unloading grain from a car in the yard at the Commercial Mills on South Second street, Wednesday afternoon, a bullet came whizzing through the car, narrowly escaping striking one of the men. The bullet is thought to have come from a revolver in the hand of some reckless shooter on the opposite side of the track.

Fined for Riding on the Sidewalk.

Mr Eli Long, Jr., of Grove street, North Plainfield, appeared before Justice Hardy in Warren Engine house at seven o'clock, last evening, to answer to a charge of riding a bicycle on the sidewalk, preferred by Thos. Lees. He was fined two dollars and costs. The case was more of a test than anything else, and was simply brought to test the borough ordinance bearing on the subject.

Who is He?

The following item telephoned from this city to the Home News of New Brunswick, appeared in that paper on Monday, under the heading "A Physician to be Sued:"

> PLAINFIELD, May 19 (Special)—It is said that a prominent physician of this city is soon to be sued for malpractice, for having treated a man for a slight injury to his leg, when as a matter of fact his hip was broken. This treatment had been pursued till a consultation of physicians was held, and it was found that the man's hip was broken and he had erysipelas.

The Hyde Lawn Party.

Mrs. Chas. Hyde gave a lawn party in honor of her son, Mr. Charles Hyde, Jr., on the spacious lawn adjoining her handsome home on East Front street, on Saturday afternoon from four until seven o'clock, that was attended by the very best of society people in this and adjacent cities. The interior of the house was richly adorned and decorated, the whole presenting a very striking appearance. Lander's full orchestra of New York, furnished the music for dancing, which was indulged in both in and out of doors, and Marsel of New York furnished a supper that was both sumptuous and grand, on the lawn near the brook. It is estimated that fully 400 persons were present during the afternoon.

The costumes worn by many of the ladies were elaborate. Mrs. Hyde was assisted by Mrs. Charles Hyde, Jr.

Friday Morning's Fire.

About 10 o'clock Friday morning, fire was discovered in the barn owned by Mr Dennis McBride, located on West Fourth street, near Hope chapel. The building was of frame and cost $290. The fire originated in some unaccountable manner, and when first discovered the interior of the building was all in a blaze. The firemen responded promptly to the alarm, but on account of the distance from the engine houses, and the rapid progress made by the flames, the building was doomed before any water was thrown on it.

The barn was totally destroyed, together with a closed carriage, a lot of harness, robes, hay, grain, etc., involving a loss of about $650. The building was insured in the German American company for $250, but there was no insurance on the contents.

Wandered Away From Her Home.

Mrs. Sylvester Cuff, wife of the colored coachman employed by Freeholder J. F. Hubbard, left her home, corner of Plainfield avenue and Fourth street, on Saturday evening, ostensibly to go out for a walk. As she did not return late in the evening, the family became alarmed, and a thorough search was at once instituted, but with no success. All day Sunday and on Monday the search was continued, but no tidings were obtained of the missing woman.

Tuesday, however, Captain Grant was informed by telephone that Mrs. Cuff was at Woodbridge stopping with friends, for which place Captain Grant started in a carriage this morning to bring the woman back to this city.

Mrs. Cuff, it is said, was but recently liberated from the asylum, and she will now probably be returned to that institution.

Death of Frederick G. Mead.

The sad announcement is made today of the sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Frederick G. Mead, which occurred at his home on East Front street, at 20 minutes before 1 o'clock on Wednesday morning, after a brief illness from brain fever. Mr. Mead's illness only dated back since Monday, when he was suddenly taken ill, his complaint finally developing into brain fever, and resulting in his death.

At the time of his demise, Mr. Mead held a responsible position with the American Bank Note Company of New York, and he was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was a brother of Mrs. A. D. Shepard of East Front street, and another sister of his is the wife of Wm. Dean Howells, the celebrated novelist. Mrs. Mead is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Myers, who are on their way from Colorado Springs, having started on Monday evening. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Sudden Death.

Heart disease is developed by modern civilization, and is increasing to an alarming extent. Let him who suspects the existence of this cause of sudden death take DR. FLINT'S REMEDY, and let all persons read his treatise on "Heart Disease," which will be sent on application by Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

OPENING OF THE NETHERWOOD.

The New Decorations Greatly Admired—An Unequalled Staff in Charge.

The guests who sat down to the opening dinner at Hotel Netherwood, Thursday evening, talked about nothing except the beautiful results that had been accomplished by the lots of money Mr. F. E. Miller, the owner, had expended during the Spring in wall decorations, new carpets, electric lights and other costly wares for the luxury and comfort of the season's two thousand guests.

The parlors' sidewalls and ceilings have been finished in a tone and style that blends perfectly with the carpets, hangings and upholstery; the halls are all handsomely decorated and carpeted anew; the dining room walls are likewise finished in remarkable taste, and its dome is lighted by electricity. The reading and other smaller rooms are also freshly colored. All the work of interior decoration has been done by Mr. W. S. Chase of this city.

In all departments of the Hotel, too, changes for the better have been made without regard to the additional cost. Of last year's staff but two remain—Isaiah, the bright little colored boy in buttons, who is the first to meet the coming guest, and Miss Eaton who for three years past has presided over the linen room, a most important department, in so thorough a way that never a complaint has been made.

The chef is the renowned Charley Erkens. He is not excelled in this country, and the Netherwood was most fortunate in securing him from the grasp of the scores of hotels that have been after him. The head waiter is Edward Born, who will be recognized by many who have dined at high toned public occasions in New York. Mrs. Elting, the housekeeper, is another new comer who the guests will be thoroughly pleased with. Clerk Burpee presides at the desk and fills as near as is possible for any man to do, the place of the affable proprietor who is everywhere advancing his guests' gratification.

A Plainfield Lady as an Inventor.

"Mary Ann Manning, of Plainfield, N. J.," says the Evening World, "has invented a clover cleaner, a reaper and mower, from which agricultural implements a snug fortune has been realized."

Bands of Mercy.

Five bands of mercy have already been organized in Plainfield, namely: The Unitarian, Friends' First day school, the Hurned Academy, Catholic Parochial, and in one of the Public Schools. Teaching practical kindness, the primary object of a Band of Mercy, is certainly a noble aim and worthy of general encouragement.

Saturday's Game.

The "Vernons," of Brooklyn, who are to play the Crescent League ball team, in this city, Saturday afternoon, are good ones. They have so far played eight games with the strongest semi-professional teams, and have only lost two. Their pitcher, Worth, held the Brooklyn "L's" down to three hits, and struck out 14 of the players. The batting order of the two teams will be:

Vernons—Winters, 3d b; Haley, c; Spellman, cf; Harrison, 2d b; Brett, ss; Smith, 1st b; Worth, p; Heslin, rf; Gallagher, lf.

Crescent League—Martin, ss; Lufbery, 2d b; Wiegand, 1st b; Jones, c; Lee, 3d b; Gillis, cf; Livingston, p; Walker, lf; McMurray, rf

A Remarkable Showing.

The Home Building and Loan Association, of this city, in its second annual statement makes the following remarkable showing:

> The expense for the year has been $435.62, which is at the rate of 28 cents per share. If we deduct the amount received from entrance fees and fines, $290.18, the net cost is only $145.44, which is at the rate of about 9 cents per share. Contrast this with the amount demanded by National Associations for handling the same amount of money, which would be $2 to $3 per share for the same time, and you will see the vastly greater economy of our local association.

The officers of the Association are: Isaac W. Rushmore, President; J. W. Jackson, Vice President; S. H. Struthers, Secretary; Wm F. Arnold, Treasurer; Wm. F. Stillman, Attorney.

New York to Liverpool—Liverpool to London.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Tuesday night, at request of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, of Trinity Reformed church, gave a most interesting, and at times, humorous account of his last Summer vacation trip abroad, including the story of his ocean voyage. The attendance was large, and everybody was thoroughly entertained.

The public should certainly be given an opportunity to hear Mr. Schenck's intensely pleasing description of his journey. It is better worth an admission fee than many lectures on the same subject that a high price is asked for. Mr. Schenck has proved he travels with his eyes wide open, and with his powers of intelligence, appreciation and absorbtion, well lubricated and never idle. By all means the talk should be repeated, and the public notified.

Dyspepsia causes depraved blood, which, in time, affects every organ and function of the body. As a remedy for these troubles, nothing can approach Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It vitalizes the blood, strengthens the stomach, and corrects all disorders of the liver and kidneys.

Indigestion

Is not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

RADAM'S MICROBE KILLER
Cures All Diseases.

After myself and wife had used your Microbe Killer with great benefit, although I have not a farthing's pecuniary interest in your remedy, unsolicited and on my own responsibility, I wrote to nearly forty of those whose certificates you publish, embracing nearly all diseases, "please give your present impressions of Wm. Radam's Microbe Killer." I am happy to state the replies were not only favorable but enthusiastic. Many of the cures of complicated diseases almost surpass belief.

Sincerely yours,

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

The line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. Write to F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn., for maps, books and guides. If you want a free farm in a lovely land, write for the "Great Reservation" read it and resolve to accept the golden

GOSSIP OF THE GREAT.

Last summer the Queen of Italy attained the loftiest point ever reached by a European sovereign by the ascent of the Breithorn, 12,750 feet.

King Carlos, of Portugal, possesses sixteen Christian names, while his younger brother answers to no less than thirty. He is a handsome, blonde young man, who carries himself with a military air.

Emperor William, of Germany, is having two new crowns made for himself and the Empress. His will weigh three pounds, have a large sapphire at the top and glisten with 150 diamonds. His wife's crown is to contain 1,500 diamonds and eleven large pearls.

An American who recently saw the King and Queen of Portugal says: "The King is a fine-looking young man, about thirty years of age, decidedly blonde, of medium height, well built and with a graceful carriage. The Queen, who is a daughter of the Comte de Paris, is considered beautiful, but if she were not a Queen would probably be called simply a very pretty woman."

Of all royal personages the Prince of Wales is the most noted for the enormous quantity of luggage which he causes to be sent with him on his journeys. He takes whole boxes of hats and huge trunks of dress suits, morning coats and other changes. He makes a point, when visiting anywhere, of not being seen twice in the same coat, and the variety of his garments is as astonishing as the tailor's bill for them must be long.

When Lord Beaconsfield succeeded in making Victoria Empress a pledge was given that the Imperial title should never be obtruded into British affairs. It should be reserved for business connected with India. The Queen has broken this pledge frequently of late upon private documents, but this year, for the first time, her message to the Lords was signed "Victoria, R. I." Her message to the House of Commons, though, was signed only "Victoria, R." As yet nothing more has come of the performance than a little discussion.

The little King of Spain is described by those who have seen him as a nervous, irritable child and very ugly. He has no hair on his head, nor any eye-brows or eye-lashes. His mother is a plain woman, very ungraceful, and he inherits the plain looks of the Hapsburgs from her. The eldest daughter, called Mercedes, after the father's first wife, is a bright, pretty and intelligent girl of nine, with a great deal of her grandmother Queen Isabella's vivacity. It is said that Queen Christina has always had a presentiment that some evil fortune would follow the little King and since his birth he has hardly ever been out of her sight.

King Humbert has a great predilection for going out in wet weather. As soon as the rain appears he orders his horse and off he sets with one of his aides-de-camp. The other day there was a perfect deluge, so the Queen, thinking to do a kind action, sent a close carriage to meet her husband, but the King as soon he perceived the carriage gave a disdainful look and spurred his horse on to the Quirinal, to the astonishment of the poor groom, who had opened the carriage ready for the King. The public who witnessed the scene cheered King Humbert heartily.

HISTORIC ERAS.

The era of Abraham began October 1, B. C. 2015.

The era of Augustus began in the year of Rome 727, twenty-seven years before the Christian era.

The era of Tyre began B. C. 125, in the year of Rome 629 and in the 188th of the Seleucidæ or Grecian era.

The era of Antioch fixed the creation B. C. 5492. After 285, however, it coincided with the Alexandrian era.

The era of the Hegira dates from the flight of Mohammed from Mecca to Medina on the 15th or 16th of July, A. D. 622.

The Chinese era begins B. C. 2277, but since the year 163 B. C. Chinese writers have dated the year from the accession of the reigning Emperor.

The Cesarean era of Antioch was instituted in consequence of the victory of Pharsalia, gained by Julius Cæsar in the year of Rome 706 and B. C. 48.

The era of Nabonassar began February 26, B. C. 747. It continued until the death of Alexander the Great and was thence brought down to the reign of Antoninus Pius.

The Hindoo era is quite complicated and its elucidation has given rise to much controversy. The current era—the fourth of the world's existence, the Kali Yug—began B. C. 3102.

The Persian era began on the accession of King Yezdegird to the throne of Persia, June 16, A. D. 632. The Persian year was readjusted in A. D. 1075, and the system continues to the present time.

The French republican era began September 22, 1792. The republican calendar was first used on the 26th of November, 1793, and was discontinued December 31, 1805, when the Gregorian was restored.

The Jewish era was adopted in the fifteenth century. The Jews date from the creation of the world, which they consider to have taken place 3,760 years and 3 months before the commencement of the Christian era.

The era of Constantinople, which was adopted in that city before the middle of the seventh century, likewise commences with the creation of the world, which is assigned to B. C. 5508. The Russians followed this calculation until the reign of Peter the Great, having received it from the Greek church, by which it is still used.

NEWSPAPER NOTES.

The young Emperor of China has set vigorously to work reforming abuses in the Empire.

An establishment at Hubbard, O., advertised itself as "the only second-class hotel in the world."

A Cleveland (O.) person advertises in the local papers that his residence, the address of which is printed on the card, furnishes "a nice place for weddings."

The curious discovery has been made that every Governor of Iowa since 1846 is alive and hale and hearty, and the only Democrat among them is the present Executive.

On a tomb in a Blairsville (Pa.) cemetery may be read this curious epitaph: "A. B. —— was a good son, a loving husband, a kind father, an able lawyer, but an honest man."

All of the bank-note currency of the Italian Government is engraved and printed in the United States. The notes are neat, but small, resembling somewhat the fractional notes issued during war times.

A California judge is the possessor of a night-blooming cereus that is the largest of its kind in the United States. It is thirty feet high, with branches that cover his house and porch nearly two hundred and fifty square feet.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From city Council of Elizabeth:

To the Honorable Board of Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—At a meeting of the city council of the city of Elizabeth, held on the 23d ult., the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of the city council of Elizabeth be extended to the Board of Chosen Freeholders for their courteous reception of council's committee presenting request for extension of county road from [illegible] Morris to Broad st., [illegible] Westfield avenue, and for their granting of that request; and further, that the Board be earnestly asked to make [illegible] street end of Westfield avenue one of the points of beginning when the [illegible] of that county road is begun; and further, that the city clerk convey these resolutions to the Board of Chosen Freeholders." Yours, &c.

M. L. P. COLEMAN,
City Clerk

On motion of Freeholder Vanderbeek, received and placed on file.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The committee on Elizabeth drawbridges presented the agreement of John W. Van Pelt, David Blum, William Ogden and David Shewl, also agreements between committee on Rahway drawbridges with Frank C. Martin, which on motion of Freeholder Doty were received and ordered filed with Clerk of the Board.

From committee on county roads:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union:

The committee appointed at the last stated meeting to ascertain whether there could be any means provided for the improvement of Westfield ave., through the city of Elizabeth as a county road, would respectfully report that they have carefully examined into all the ways and means provided for the improvement of "county roads," and have also taken into consideration the desirability of having said avenue improved as requested, and fully recognize the fact that it would be of a great benefit and advantage to the citizens and property owners of the city of Elizabeth, as well as those of the county, to have that avenue macadamized, yet in view of the fact, that no monies can be raised by taxation during the coming year for that purpose, as stated by the county attorney in his opinion hereto attached, as also that the cost and expense of macadamizing and improving the county roads already located will nearly equal the amount to be raised on the bonds authorized to be issued, which amount so authorized to be issued, has reached the sum limited by the act, your committee cannot, therefore report in favor of having said avenue improved under said act.

It is also to be remembered that there is a diversity of opinion among the officials and taxpayers of the city of Elizabeth, as to whether the county should assume control of any of the streets of the city of Elizabeth. About a year ago certain officials, including the mayor appeared before us and represented the city of Elizabeth and did not desire the county to assume control of their avenues for various reasons then stated, and we are informed that some of said officials are still of this opinion, and acting upon their representations the Board laid out a [illegible] of roads to be improved, which in the opinion of the committee should be macadamized before any money is expended elsewhere. The citizens and property owners of Elizabeth, can therefore feel aggrieved if Westfield avenue is not given the preference, which would have been done if the change [illegible] had been brought to the attention of the Board sooner.

We would therefore report that there appears to be no way now open, in the opinion of this committee, whereby Westfield avenue can be macadamized during the following year, and would unanimously recommend that no action be taken towards the improvement of said avenue under the county road act, for the present.

OPINION OF COUNTY ATTORNEY.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—I have been requested to state whether in my opinion the Board have power under what is known as the "County Road Act" to insert in their appropriations for county expenditures during the ensuing year, any amount for improving roads [illegible] as provided in the third section of said act, in addition to the issuing of bonds by said Board, for the improvement of the roads provided therein.

While examining the provisions of the act and the [illegible] bearing thereon, I have kept in [illegible] of the desirability of having certain roads in the county improved [illegible] already provided for, and that by improving [illegible], however, as has been requested, it would be very greatly appreciated by a large number of our citizens and property owners, but I am nevertheless, after having fully considered the provisions of said act and the authorities bearing on said question, constrained to answer the question propounded in the negative.

The wording of the act is such as to leave considerable doubt as to the power of the Board in this matter, and where there is doubt of this nature existing, no Board of Freeholders or other municipal body should assume any risk in placing in their appropriations any amount, that might thereafter be cut out by the courts. If this money should be placed in the appropriations and expended on the roads, and the courts should decide the same to have been illegally raised, it might embarrass the Board to such an extent as to render them unable to meet their obligations.

When the wording of a statute is clear and distinct, then it is reasonably safe for any Board to make the necessary appropriations required thereunder, but if a law is so worded as to leave any doubt as to their power, it is not desirable that such power be assumed and the risk taken that everything will come out all right in the end. It is far safer in my judgment that corporations of this nature keep on the safe side nearly as possible, even if it should work hardship or disappoint the anticipations of some individuals.

That there is doubt in the section above referred to must be observable to any ordinary mind.

The argument that can be very properly used would be that it was the intent of the Legislature to restrict the power of the county authorities from expending too much money or obligating the county beyond a limited sum for this purpose, so if money was raised by taxation in any one year, no bonds should be given, or if bonds are issued, no money should be raised by taxation. That, in my opinion, was the plain intent of the Legislature from the language used. The word "and" is sometimes substituted for the word "or," vice versa, where it is necessary to carry out the provisions of an instrument, particularly in the cases of wills and also in statutes, where it is necessary in order that the other provisions of the act can be carried out, and it was the plain intent of the Legislature that such word should be used, but it has been a rule adopted by all the courts, in the construction of statutes, that words should not be supplied or changed in any case where the provisions can be carried out without.

No guessing at legislative intent is allowed in opposition to words used, and effect must be given to each and every word in its usual and ordinary signification.

Where a statute is drafted in such language that the literal meaning thereof leads to no absurd result it is not repugnant to other parts of the statute, or to other acts "in pari materia," such literal meaning should be accorded to the act in its exposition.

Such have been the rules laid down by our courts and I think the statute under consideration comes within these rules. I am, therefore, of the decided opinion that the third section of the county road act, must be literally construed, and if so, it is very evident that this Board cannot make an appropriation, the coming year, for the improvement of county roads, when they have already authorized the issue of bonds, for this purpose, to the limit provided for in said act.

Very respectfully,
C. D. WARD,
County Attorney.

Dated May 1, 1890.

On motion of Freeholder Briant received and ordered placed on file unanimously.

The county collector reported that the special deficiency bridge bonds had been sold at one-half of one per cent. premium with accrued interest at four per cent.

On motion received and placed on file unanimously.

From committee of the whole:

To the board of chosen freeholders of Union county:

Gentlemen—Your committee of the whole to whom was submitted the bids for county roads, opened this day, would report and recommend as follows:

That the contract for building county roads through Cranford be awarded to Thomas A. Nevins, for excavation, 30 cents per cubic yard, and macadam or telford pavement, 85 cents per square yard, upon his signing contract and filing satisfactory bonds.

That the contract for building county road through Union township be awarded to Edward N. Lynch, for excavation, 30 cents per cubic yard, and macadam or telford pavement 90 cents per square yard, upon his signing contract and filing satisfactory bonds.

That the contract for building county road in city of Elizabeth, through Rayway and Jersey-ave, be awarded to Edward N. Lynch for excavation, 45 cents per cubic yard, and macadam telford pavement, 90 cents per square yard, upon his signing contract and filing satisfactory bonds.

Whereas, Thomas A. Nevins is the lowest bidder for the county road through Springfield, and as there is some misunderstanding as to the intent of his bid, therefore the matter is referred to committee on Morris-ave with the engineer to report at next meeting of this board.

GEORGE KYTE, Secretary. WM. T. WEST, Chairman.

Freeholder Doty moved it be received and adopted in sections.

Which was unanimously adopted.

After reading and adopting each section Freeholder West moved the adoption as a whole, which was carried.

PASTOR BOYLE.

He Was a Mild Man, But He Could Not Be Bluffed Too Often.

He Preached Ike Baley's Funeral Sermon Three Times and He Firmly Drew the Line at That.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

In some parts of the South it is the custom to preach the funeral of the deceased long after the deceased has been buried. In fact, nearly all of the preacher's work consists of funeral orations. Sometimes a new circuit rider, to endear himself to the people will first announce himself by declaring that he will entertain his beloved hearers with a few remarks on the life, character and death of old Anderson Lipscomb, who surrendered to the demands of the great high sheriff of death, just forty-three years ago yesterday. Then, assuming a serious expression of countenance, he hauls off, strikes the pulpit a jolting blow and for two hours and a half he rants and roars over the virtues and abilities of a man of whom he never heard until a few hours previously.

Recently, Simeon J. Boyle, a circuit rider of the old school, was appointed by conference to take charge of the Black Sulphur Springs circuit. He was known as a powerful agonizer, a man who could raise the soft hair of luxurious sin into the stiff bristles of fear. The day after Boyle had arrived in the neighborhood of his new charge, he was called upon by Wiggs Baily. Wiggs is a well-known character of the community—a man of untrembling nerve, of strong arms and an appetite that had never been known to fail.

"What can I do for you?" the preacher asked, when the visitor had introduced himself.

"Jes' called to pay my respecks an' to tell you that of you ever need my sarvices jes' call on me."

"Are you a preacher?" the circuit rider asked.

"Oh, no."

"Then how can you ever be of any service to me? My work, as you know, is with the Lord, and a man whose work is not directly in the Lord's work can't do me any good."

"Wall, all your work in this here community must not be with the Lord. You'll find some putty tough fellers 'round here, and I 'lowed that they must want to yell an' haul you about one of these times; an' ef they do, w'y you jest call on me an' we'll make 'em so hot that they could stand under a peach tree and make it bloom in January. Understand?"

"Oh, yes, I understand, but don't give yourself any uneasiness on my account."

"All right, but that is not all the business I've got with you. I 'preciate the position you hold as a worker fur the Lord, and I wanter ask a favor of you."

"All right, brother."

"I want you to preach the funeral of my brother Ike. Best feller you ever seen in your life—died about ten or fifteen years ago. Great, big feller, whipped old Oscar Miles once, an' Oscar was a power in the land, I tell you. Now you preach his funeral an' I'll make it all right with you."

"I will do it, brother. What was the cause of his death?"

"Lack of licker."

"What, was he so addicted to the use of liquor that when it gave out and he couldn't get any more he died?"

"Oh, no, he never was much of a hand to drink."

"Then how did he die on account of the lack of liquor?"

"W'y, he was bit by a rattlesnake an' as he didn't have no licker, he jest nachully died."

"And you want me to preach his funeral?"

"Yes, an' you kin git in some powerful work when you git down inter the facks of his lyin' thar sufferin' fur licker. You kin fetch the tears outen mighty nigh ever' eye in the house."

"All right, brother. I'll be on hand next Sunday."

The house was crowded on the following Sunday. Wiggs took a seat near the pulpit, and, taking out an immense handkerchief—it must have been the half of a table-cloth—made himself appear as a man of deep-seated sorrow. The new circuit-rider preached a powerful sermon—he painted a pathetic picture of a man, wallowing on the ground, wringing his hands and crying, in an agonized voice: "Licker, oh! bring me licker or I will parish!"

After services were over, Wiggs shook hands with the preacher, and then, breaking down with the weight of his emotion, wheeled about and disappeared in the woods.

On the following Saturday Wiggs called on the preacher again. "I have come," said the visitor, when the minister had shaken hands with him, "to tell you that not only me, but everybody, is delighted with the brother Ike sermon."

"I am highly pleased to hear it."

"Not at all. Say, I've got another favor to ask."

"What is it, brother?"

"I want you to preach the sermon of my brother Ike again next Sunday."

"Why, that wouldn't do at all."

"Why not?"

"Because I preached it last Sunday."

"Brother, let me tell you that I come mighty nigh runnin' this here community. I put five of the main logs in that church you preached in last Sunday, and unless you preach Ike's funeral again next Sunday, w'y, I'll take the logs that b'long to me an' split 'em up for fire-wood. Oh, don't you think the folks will take your part. They know me—know that it won't do to fool with me. What do you say?"

"Oh, rather than have any trouble, brother, I will do as you suggest."

"Will you make it as powerful as the other one was?"

"I will try," the preacher answered.

"All right, but mind that you do try."

The next Sunday the people were somewhat surprised to hear another sermon on the virtues and graces of brother Ike, but no objections were raised. Wiggs was again deeply affected, and again with overpowering emotion he disappeared in the woods.

Early the following Friday morning, the preacher was surprised to receive another call from Wiggs.

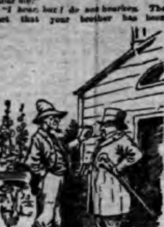
"What can I do for you this time, brother?" the minister asked.

"Nothin' only to preach the funeral of my brother Ike next Sunday."

"Absurd," exclaimed the preacher. "I have set up the sermons twice and think that I have done my duty."

"Look here, Cap'n—call you Cap'n because you air about to go inter a war—my brother Ike has been lyin' thar for ten or fifteen year with nary a funeral sermon till the other day, while lots of old fellers that never done nothin' for the country have had more funerals than they knowed what to do with, so I think it's time for Ike to have a chance. Hear me?"

"I hear, but I do not hearken. The fact that your brother has been neglected is no fault of mine. There are hundreds of men that have never had a funeral, but am I to be held responsible?"



"I'LL HAVE TER WALLER YER."

"In regard to other folks, no; in regard to Ike, yes."

"But I refuse to preach his funeral again."

"All right. I'll waller you awhile and then I'll go over and take them logs out of the church. Wanter be wallered?"

"I don't want any trouble with you."

"Then agree to preach about Ike or I'll give you the wust wallerin' a white man ever seed."

"Brother—"

"Goin' to preach that funeral?" The visitor began to take off his coat. A distressed expression settled upon the preacher's face.

"Brother, I do not wish to have any trouble with you. I am a man of peace and gentleness."

"But I ain't," Wiggs replied. "I am a snorter from B'ar Holler! I ain't the man that butted the bull offen the bridge, but I am the man that rid the bay steer through the saft ooze of the swamp of dispair. Ef you don't wanter git that coat dirty, w'y, off with it."

"Brother, at the risk of displeasing the people whom it is my duty to please, I will make another venture. I will preach for you again next Sunday."

On the following Sunday the people were still further surprised at the great virtues of brother Ike, but being indulgent made no complaint. Three days later Wiggs rode up to the preacher's house and, seeing the minister in the yard, dismounted.

"Come out here a minit," Wiggs called.

"What can you possibly want with me now?" the preacher asked, as he climbed over the fence.

"I have come on mighty distressin' business. You know that you preached my brother's funeral three times?"

"Yes, and you can not possibly want me to preach it again?"

"No; fur frum it. I have jest found out that Ike wa'n't nothin' but my half brother, and I don't propose to do so much fur a feller that ain't no more kin to me than that. So, brother, we'll have to fix it."

"But how can we? The funerals have been preached."

"I know that, an' that's why I have come. I want you to go to the church next Sunday an' take them sermons back. I ain't havin' no half brother puffed. Thar ain't none of the half way business about me. Will you take them sermon's back next Sunday?"

"I have accommodated you three times and I now beg you to go away."

"I lowed that I'd have to waller you."

"I tell you that I am a man of peace and gentleness."

"Lowd that I'd have to waller you."

"Well, come on then, you trifling scoundrel."

The preacher took off his coat and hung it on the fence. Wiggs looked up and down the road. The preacher rolled up his sleeves, and turning toward his house, lifted his hands and said: "Lord, Thou knowest that when I killed old Lige Moore, and Sam Tillotson, and Calvin Green, and Dock Vance that I prayed that all such cups might forever pass from me, but Thou seest that I am compelled to defend myself."

A CLOUD OF DUST DOWN THE ROAD.

The preacher turned about. Dust was rising down the lane. Wiggs had taken to his heels.

An official stenographer of the German Imperial Parliament has calculated the exact rapidity of speech of some of the most celebrated German statesmen. Rickert, a leader of the free trade Independents, he says, talks in a minute 153 words; Count Herbert Bismarck, 144; Singer, the Socialist, 121; Bamberger, the best-known bimetallist among the Independents, 120; Stumm, the coal baron, 145.

Isaac Pitman the inventor of phonography, is a hoary-haired man with a scholarly stoop, and still presides over the Phonetic Institute at Bath, Eng., where he has resided uninterruptedly for more than half a century. He is rising seventy-eight, yet he supervises a correspondence of 20,000 letters a year, besides editing the Phonetic Journal and compiling the numerous books which he annually publishes.

The desire of London society to honor Henry M. Stanley has taken shape just now in a "Stanley Exhibition." It is devoted entirely to Africa and African products, among the exhibits being relics of Livingstone and other prominent African explorers, with books, maps, etc., illustrative of their accomplishments. In other departments are shown the result of missionary work and the efforts to suppress the slave-trade.

MISCELLANEOUS BREVITIES.

A milk-white deer was shot recently near Mount Katahdin, in Maine.

Gambling is licensed in Montana, but gambling debts can not be collected by law.

It is proposed to establish a museum of war relics in the Confederate White House at Richmond.

The highest railroad bridge in the United States is the Kinzua viaduct on the Erie road—305 feet high.

The Cheyenne Indians on the Rosebury reservation, Montana, will raise 60,000 bushels of wheat this season.

A storm-tower is to be erected at the top of Mount Penn, overlooking Reading, Pa. It will be 1,200 feet above the sea level.

Patti refused to sing into a phonograph at San Francisco, but one of Edison's agents concealed a cylinder on the stage and caught the impression of her thousand-dollar notes.

A law providing that railway employes who have worked twenty-four consecutive hours shall not resume until they have had eight hours' rest, has been passed by the Ohio Legislature.

The largest sawmill in the world is located at Clinton, Iowa. It cost $200,000 and is capable of sawing 450,000 feet of lumber in eight hours. It has seven band and three gang saws and two batteries of 10 boilers each.

Two relics of the great Statue of Liberty adorn the exterior of the entrance to M. Bartholdi's abode. One is a cast of the ear of the gigantic lady, an organ full five feet in length. The other is a solitary finger over six feet long.

Petition sheets are being circulated through the country, designed for ultimate presentation to the Czar of Russia, with the hope of calling his attention to the reformation of the Siberian exile system. The central bureau is in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia is in a state of mind through fear of having second-hand coffins passed off upon it, the discovery having been made that coffins brought to the crematory are not burned with the body, but are preserved by the attendants and sold again.

The celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the admission of California into the Union will be held in San Francisco, in September, and as expected to be the finest display ever held there. A large number of visitors from the East will be invited. It is expected that 12,000 men will be in the parade.

During one of the snow-storms of the past winter in the Rock Mountains nineteen engines were required for one train, which was made up as follows: First a snow plow, with nine engines behind it, then a train of nine cars with another five engines, and behind this five engines with a gang of men to dig the train out should it get stuck.

SOME CHOICE RECIPES.

Macaroni with Cheese.—Prepare macaroni with cream sauce and pour into a buttered scalloped dish. Have half a cup of grated cheese and half a cup of bread or cracker crumbs mixed, sprinkle over the macaroni, and place in the oven to brown; it will take about twenty minutes.

Dressed Lettuce.—Take two large heads of lettuce, remove the outside leaves and wash in cold water; pull apart, put in a dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and pour over half a cup of melted butter, with two tablespoonfuls vinegar. Stir lightly until mixed. Garnish with cloves.

Soak over night six heart sweetbreads; wash in the morning; place on fire; boil half done; drain; put in cold water; remove all lard; may also be braized or roasted plain. Slice up a small carrot, onion, turnip; thin spread over the bottom of small roasting pan; lay on sweetbreads; season; add a little broth; cover all with oiled paper; roast in oven slowly until tender and brown; dish; make a gravy from the pan; strain over; serve with peas.

Fish Toast.—This is made with three gills of milk, one pint of cold cooked fish, free from bones and flaked with a fork, two tablespoonfuls butter, yolks of two eggs, one teaspoonful of flour; one-fourth teaspoonful lemon juice; put one-half pint of milk on to boil, mix remainder of milk with flour and stir into boiling milk, cooking five minutes; add fish, beat yolks and add to the mixture; after taking from the fire, add the lemon juice. Spread over small slices of buttered toast.

Asparagus Pudding.—Boil the green tops of two bunces of asparagus until tender; cut in small pieces. Put an ounce of butter in a small saucepan, and set on top of the stove; when melted, add four eggs, well beaten, with a cupful of milk and a little salt and pepper. Stir and beat the mixture, adding gradually four tablespoonfuls of flour. Cook smooth; add the asparagus; turn into a well-buttered mold, plunge into a kettle of boiling water, or set in a steamer, and let cook two hours. Serve in a pudding-dish, with cream sauce poured over.

Orange Tart.—Take four sweet oranges, three ounces of loaf-sugar, two eggs, one ounce of butter, two slices of thin bread or plain cake, and a little milk. Butter a pie-dish and lay in the bread, previously soaked with milk. Wipe the oranges and rub the lumps of sugar over the outside of the rind, to obtain the aromatic flavor which it yields, then remove all the white peel, and pound the pulp with the sugar, keeping back the pips; add the yolks of the eggs, also the butter, slightly melted; mix thoroughly, and pour over the bread. Whip the whites of the eggs to a firm froth, add a little sugar, pile roughly on the top of the orange mixture, and bake in a moderately hot oven to a pale brown color. Sift a little white sugar over, and serve hot.

ADMIRABLE ADVICE.

Cultivate a gentle, even temper. The man who flies into a passion upon every provocation, is like a wasp, senseless and exceedingly annoying.

In contemplating your misfortunes always look beneath you; in thinking of your virtues and wisdom always look above you; thus shall you be kept from despair and from pride.

If you want success, do not expect to get it by chance, but seek it through the open doors of the things that lie next you, and seek it as if your soul depended upon your finding it.

Whether young or old, think it neither too soon nor too late to turn over the leaves of your past life and consider what you would do if what you have done were to be done again.

The knowledge which we have acquired ought not to resemble a great shop without order and without an inventory; we ought to know what we possess and be able to make it serve us in need.

A Belgian has lately invented a musical shirt, on the cuffs of which fragments of a score are printed, so that if the instrumentalist be flutist, harpist or cornetist, he has the entire part under his eyes, and need not carry any further music about him.

An inventor of Belfast, Ireland, has made a pneumatic tire for bicycles that is claimed to destroy all vibration. It is about 2¼ inches in diameter, and consists of an outer covering of rubber enclosing an inner air-tube. Air is pumped in by a foot-blower, and a valve prevents its return.

English thieves are using a contrivance looking like an ordinary walking stick, but which is so arranged that, by pressing a spring at the handle the ferule will spread apart and form a sort of spring clip that will take hold of anything that is within reach. The thing is called the "Continental lifting stick," and is used to take goods from behind counters when the shopman's back is turned.

FRAGMENTS FOR FARMERS.

The farm may not yield big profits, but is there any other calling so sure to give a man a living?

A wash of fresh buttermilk is said to kill lice on hogs. The milk needs to be well rubbed into the bristles.

Prepare your ground well before planting, cultivate well, and barring accident, the harvest will not disappoint you.

The scrub animal has a pedigree which by adverse circumstances has a downward instead of an upward tendency.

Alternate freezing and thawing throws the plants up. The roller should be used over the field when the ground is dry enough to permit of so doing.

Give your farm credit for furnishing you a home rent-free and for a thousand and one necessaries and luxuries which you would have to pay cash for in a city.

If the plow can not get sufficiently close to the trunks of trees to turn over the sod, chop around the trees with the hoe. The orchard land should be clean if insects are to be avoided.

A row of raspberries along the line of a field, or as a dividing line, instead of a fence, will give a plentiful supply, and can be easily cultivated, but such a fence will not turn stock.

When planting corn bear in mind that the variety known to be well adapted to your soil and climate is better than any new variety until you give the new variety a trial on a small plat.

A spirited horse may soon be made slow and spiritless by constant nagging, twitching the lines, peevish urging and many other wearing processes that fretful drivers invent and practice.

The value of the corn crop does not depend upon its grain only. The leaves and stalks are valuable, and no portion of the crop need be lost. As a fodder-producing plant corn has no equal.

One element only may be required to form a complete fertilizer in the soil. The soil may contain all that it requires with the exception of some substance that may be supplied at a small cost, and which may enable it to produce large crops.

Much is gained by planting beet-seed very early. It is a crop that requires plenty of time to become well established before warm weather and drouth come. Though requiring attention at first, the beet crop is easily cultivated after it gets well under way.

Early varieties will not produce early crops unless the ground is rich. Every thing that can be done to force the growth should be considered, and, as soon as the early crops are harvested, the ground should be spaded and something else planted for a later supply.

Never grow trees of different kinds together until satisfied that one does not injure the other, as is frequently the case when plums are grown near peaches, thus inducing the curculio to sometimes attack the latter. A single wild cherry tree near an apple tree will provide a harboring place for caterpillars, which finally injure the apple orchard.

When trees are pruned in winter a considerable time must elapse before the wounds made begin to heal over. During this time the combined action of the frost and sun are injurious to the newly-cut and exposed wood and bark, and it will take a longer time to heal over than if the wound was made at the time when the tree was beginning to make new growth.

An excellent mode of growing early tomatoes, egg-plants, etc., is to scoop out a potato or turnip and fill the hollow with rich earth. Have only one plant to each potato. When the plant is of the desired size, plant the potato (earth and young plant), and no check will be given the growth, as the decay of the potato will assist in providing food for the plant. Where turnips can be had, they should be preferred to potatoes. Egg-shells have also been used for the same purpose with success.

PUNGENT PASSAGES.

Edison's Agent—"Wouldn't you like to buy a phonograph? It will store up everything you say and repeat it to you. Want one?" "No; I've got a wife."

Mollie—"My dear Fanny, how do you think I ought to get my spring bonnet trimmed?" Fanny—"If you want it to match your face, have it trimmed plain."

The Doctor—"Why have I never married? Why should I? Cat and dog life at best." The Admiral—"Not in my case." The Doctor—"O, pshaw, now, everybody knows—come then, how do you manage it?" The Admiral—"All cat."

Mamma—"Now, Lilly, tell me what Mrs. Roundabout was saying to you." Obedient Lilly—"Must I, mamma?" Mamma—"Certainly." Obedient Lilly—"Well, she said it was strange such a pretty little girl should have such a homely mother."

Myrtle—"Florence, is that Fred Dumley's handwriting?" Florence—"Yes, dear; I'm engaged to him, you know." Myrtle—"Yes, I know it. I was engaged to him last summer." Florence—"The dear boy! I wonder who will marry him eventually."

Husband—"Well, my dear, what did the magnetic physician say to you?" Wife—"He says I am a sick woman, and that my nervous system is not in equilibrium. He says I am too positive." Husband—"Humph! I could have told you that and saved a half-guinea."

Mr. Tick—"How long will it take you to make me a suit of clothes?" Tailor—"Three days." Mr. Tick—"All right; and I'll settle the bill in just sixty days from to-day. You'll have them ready on time; now, won't you?" Tailor—"Yes, sir; they'll be ready in just sixty-three days."

Dr. Busby, whose figure was beneath the common size, was one day accosted in a public coffee-room by an Irish baronet of colossal stature with—"May I pass to my seat, O giant?" When the doctor, politely making way, replied, "Pass, O pigmy!" "Oh, sir," said the baronet, "my expression alluded to the size of your intellect." "And mine to yours," said the doctor.

Always make the other fellow feel, if possible, that he is having his own way. The secret of the success of great leaders of men is that while they lead they cause their henchmen to think that they are leading.

Be polite to your children. Do you expect them to be mindful of your welfare? To grow glad at your approach? To bound away to do your pleasure before your request is half spoken? Then with all your dignity and authority mingle politeness. Give it a niche in your household temples. Only then will you have the true secret of sending out into the world really finished gentlemen and ladies.

SEED POTATOES!

We have personally been to Fredericton, N. B., and made arrangements with careful and responsible parties to ship us a full supply of Early Rose Potatoes, put up in barrels expressly for seed. We have sold this seed for the past 10 years, and it has given universal satisfaction. It will produce from 5 to 20 barrels more of salable potatoes to the acre than seed from other localities. Also choice Main Rose on hand. Send for prices. State quantity wanted.

RHYMES WITH A RELISH.

Little Wrecks.

I saw a dainty violet
  In bloom upon the hill,
Close by the babbling streamlet
  That turned the village mill.
One day a naughty urchin
  Came wandering 'long that way,
And plucked the dainty violet
  And dropped it on the clay.
The plant that bore the blossom
  Bled for its stolen child,
The leaves in sadness bent their heads,
  The restless streams grew mild;
But what is that to you or me?
Such little griefs must always be.

I knew a little maiden
  Who was so kind and true,
But sorrow met and claimed her,
  And how, I'll tell to you.
I know you'll call her foolish,
  And say she might have known:
But let me tell you, reader,
  The blossom bud was gone,
And now I think my story
  I scarcely need to tell,
For if a maiden's heart can heal,
  Flowers can re-bloom as well.
But what is that to you or me?
Such trifling griefs must always be.

And what is it to this great world
  If we are grave or gay?
It will not vanish when we're gone,
  Or tarry when we stay;
Our easy sail will doubtless cease
  And ill winds drive ashore
And leave us there a stranded wreck—
  It can not harm us more.
The violets by the babbling stream
  The maiden in her prime,
They both return unto their dust—
  Likewise my idle rhyme.
But what is that to you or me?
Such trifling wrecks must always be.
—Lillie Binkley, in the American.

A Short Statement.

There often greets me in my dreams,
A pictured face that life-like seems;
The face of her whose dulcet voice
Used once to make my heart rejoice—
  My gal
  In Cal.

She was a little blue eyed fairy,
But sad to tell, was mercenary;
She married rich, to my regret,
And so I courted a brunette
  N'gosh!
  In Wash.

But fate an adverse doom had written,
And once again I got the mitten;
So, thus the second time refused,
My earnest pleadings next amused
  A miss
  In Wis.

Same result. She loved another,
But said that I "might be her brother;"
But I shall not unmarried die,
Undaunted yet, I think I'll try Again
  In Penn.

The Mission Bells.

I hear the bells ring sweet and low
  Across the glad, blue bay;
No tone of passion, care or woe
  Swells through the notes they play.
O, mission bells! O, heart-free bells!
  Ring maidenhood away!

I hear the bells' soft music flow
  Across the restless bay;
Lost love and passion, care and woe
  Sob through their tones to-day.
O, mission bells! O, mellow bells!
  Ring womanhood away!

I hear the bells ring sad and low
  Across the moaning bay;
Ring out the passion, care and woe,
  Ring in life's twilight gray.
O, mission bells! O, tender bells!
  Ring life and thought away!
—Ella Higginson, in West Shore.

When Days Wuz Long.

Ez spring comes back it somehow brings
To me a sense of better things;
It takes me back full forty year,
When days wuz long an' skies wuz clear.

But work is work an' life is real,
'T won't never do to half way feel
Ez if you'd sorter like to drift
Away in dreams, ez floats a rift
Uv wand'rin' sunshine crost the floor.
No; childhood days an' dreams is o'er;
Them long bright hours is long sence past,
The spring of life can't allers last;
For autumn comes an' brings the rain,
An' life ne'er looks the same again.

But ez I said, the spring-time brings
To me a sense of better things;
It takes me back full forty year,
When days wuz long and skies wuz clear.
—Arthur Bradford Grover, in Light.

Kissing the Rod.

Oh! heart of mine, we shouldn't
  Worry so!
What we missed of calm we couldn't
  Have, you know!
What we've met of stormy pain
And of sorrow's driving rain
We can better meet again
  If it blow.

We have erred in that dark hour
  We have known,
When our tears fell with a shower,
  All alone.
Were not shine and shadow blent
As the gracious Master meant?
Let us temper our content
  With His own,

For, we know, not every morrow
  Can be sad:
So, forgetting all the sorrow
  We have had,
Let us fold away our fears
And put by our foolish tears,
And through all the coming years
  Just be glad.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

CONGRESSIONAL DOUBLES

Members Who Look Alike Confounded by Strangers.

Frank Lawler Mistaken for Amos J. Cummings—Horror of a Republican on Finding Wanamaker Before a Democratic Fireside—Other Doubles.

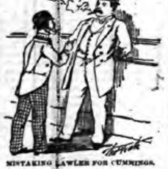
[COPYRIGHT, 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

The other night a member of Congress from New York was standing in Willard's Hotel. The rotunda was crowded with visitors. A National convention was being held, and Willard's was the headquarters for the delegates. Electric lights made the rotunda as light as day. Scores of persons were circulating through the corridors. The soft click of the ivory spheres in the billiard room gave a staccato effect to the murmur of conversation and the music of the electric bells. The Congressman stood watching a game of billiards through an open door. A well-dressed gentleman put a twenty-dollar note into his hand as he was passing, and said, "I'm much obliged."

The Representative was dumfounded. He shouted after the stranger, who came back and inquired what was the matter.

"This twenty-dollar bill," the Congressman answered; "what does it mean?"

"That's all right," the stranger replied. "It's kind in you to try to make me think that you had forgotten that I borrowed it. I do that thing myself sometimes."



MISTAKING LAWLER FOR CUMMINGS.

"But you never borrowed it of me," the Representative replied.

"Oh, yes, I did," said the stranger. "I met you at the entrance of the House of Representatives yesterday afternoon and asked you for it. Don't you remember it?"

"You are certainly mistaken," was the reply. "I never saw you before, and I positively never loaned you any money."

"Are you not Frank Lawler, of Chicago?" the stranger asked.

"Oh! no. I am not Mr. Lawler, but I understand it now. I'm a friend of Mr. Lawler. We sit very near each other in the House. I have been mistaken for him several times while upon the floor."

The statement was true. The clerks and even the pages had frequently taken the gentleman for Mr. Lawler.

On the following evening Hon. Frank Lawler stood in the corridor at Willard's. A hundred busy feet were moving over the marble floor. A string band in the ante-chamber leading to the dining-room was reciting the sorrows of McGinty. Lawler was blowing wreaths of smoke into the air from a fragrant Havana. A dapple little fellow with a shining beard, a cutaway coat and check trousers rushed up to him and said: "I'm a little short to-night. I wish you'd loan me ten dollars. I got the wrong horse at the races to-day."

Lawler clinched the cigar between his teeth, placed his hands behind his back, and regarded the little fellow with stoical indifference.

"You might make it twenty while you're about it," the stranger continued. "I've got a dead sure tip for to-morrow."

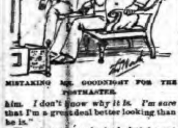
Frank puffed a cloud of smoke over his head and then said: "What's your little game? What do you take me for? Chicago's got the fair. What racket are you working, anyhow?"

"Why, I used to work at the case with you years ago when you set type on the Rome Sentinel," the stranger replied.

"Oh, you're way off," Frank responded. "I'm no printer."

"Why, are you not ———, member of Congress from New York City?"

"No," Frank replied with a laugh, "but a great many people take me for him. I don't know why it is. I'm sure that I'm a great deal better looking than he is."



MISTAKING MR. GOODNIGHT FOR THE POSTMASTER.

The stranger apologized, but he got neither the twenty dollar nor the ten-dollar note.

These two Congressmen are not the only ones in the House who resemble each other. So many have doubles that the new Representative finds it difficult to fix the faces of his fellow-members in his mind. Some months ago one of them had occasion to visit the Postmaster General. He introduced himself to Mr. Wanamaker and was treated very cordially. The cabinet officer listened with much courtesy to his request and promised to grant it. It concerned the fate of a country Democratic postmaster out in Iowa.

A month or six weeks passed and the postmaster still held his place regardless of Mr. Wanamaker's promise. One day, while upon the floor of the House, the new member crossed over to the Democratic side of the chamber. To his astonishment he saw Mr. Wanamaker sitting in an easy-chair in front of a glowing grate. The Postmaster General was in earnest conversation with Asher R. Caruth, of Louisville. A yea-and-nay vote was being taken. Caruth got up to answer to his name, and the new member made a dead-set for Wanamaker.

"Good morning," he said, as he dropped into the chair vacated by Mr. Caruth. "You don't remember me, I see."

"No, sir," was the reply; "but I know that you are on the Republican side of the House."

"I am Mr. ——, from the —— Iowa district," he said.

"Well, I'm very glad to make your acquaintance," said his companion, reaching out his hand.

The Republican showed a trace of indignation in his manner. "I just want to tell you," he said, "that fellow is in the post-office yet, and my man is getting a little impatient. If you are going to do any thing for me, the time to do it is now, right away. I want to get that Democrat out and put a good Republican in. They will be holding a Congressional convention out there in a few weeks, and the matter is a little important to me."

Here the Postmaster-General looked more than surprised. "What do you mean?" he asked.

"Do you mean to tell me," said the new member, "that you have forgotten your promise?"

"Why, I know your face," was the reply, "but I'm not conscious of having ever spoken to you at all before."

"Well, Mr. Wanamaker, you may be a good man, but—"

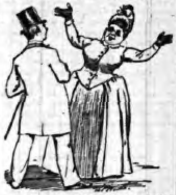
He was broken off short.

"Great Heavens! you don't take me for the Postmaster-General, do you?" exclaimed the Representative. "I am not Mr. Wanamaker. I'm Mr. Goodnight, of Kentucky."

The Republican half arose and looked Mr. Goodnight in the eye. He was apparently disposed to dispute his word, but, after some seconds, replied: "Excuse me, Mr. Goodnight, but did any body ever tell you that you looked like John Wanamaker?"

"Yes," was the reply, "I'm stopped on the avenue two or three times a day. Clarkson mistook me for Wanamaker once, and Harry Bingham always asks my opinion before he reports a bill from the post-office committee."

There is a remarkable resemblance between Roger Q. Mills and Henry J. Spooner of Rhode Island, chairman of the committee on accounts. They are both so handsome that it is difficult to tell which is the best looking. Both have bright, laughing eyes and both are very courteous. It is said that since the hearing upon the tariff bill began, Spooner's life has not been as pleasant as it used to be. Importers and others interested frequently take him for Mr. Mills. They compliment him upon the tariff bill that he drew up in the last Congress, and urge him to do what he can to keep hides on the free list. On the other hand, Democrats cordially nudge him in the ribs and congratulate him on the mistakes that the Republicans are making.



A MATRONLY LADY MISTAKING McCOMAS FOR OWEN.

Mr. Mills is not so badly off. There are lots of new employes in the House, however, and once in a while one of them urges him to do something for him under the impression that he is chairman of the committee on accounts. Mills laughingly promises to do what he can when the matter comes up, and Colonel Spooner gets the benefit of it.

Messrs. Walker and Stone, of Missouri, puzzle the new members. They look alike when apart, but are readily distinguishable when together. Both are remarkably reserved and inclined to be taciturn. John Tarsney, of Kansas City, tells a good story concerning Walker. Tarsney says that one of the new Democratic members of Congress took Walker to task for Mr. Stone's speech against a pension bill. Mr. Walker did not understand exactly what he was driving at, and assured him that he was in favor of paying all pensions honestly due.

"Well, then, don't make any more speeches like the last one, if you are," the Democrat replied. "Northern Democrats have hard enough work to get back to Congress as it is now without overloading them with anti-pension talk."

Mr. Tarsney says that the Northern Democrat afterwards discovered his mistake and made a handsome apology to Mr. Walker. He blushed like a school girl when he received it.

* * * * * * *

There are two men on the Republican side of the House who look enough alike to be twin brothers. They are Louis E. McComas, of Hagerstown, Md., and William D. Owen, of Logansport, Ind. McComas is a sharp, shrewd lawyer, and Owen has been a minister of the Christian church. The former is a member of the committee on appropriations and the latter is chairman of the committee on immigration and naturalization. The District of Columbia appropriation bill was the first appropriation bill passed. McComas drove it through the House with lightning-like speed. It is said that several Washingtonians congratulated Rev. Mr. Owen on the ability he had displayed in securing the appropriations for the District and asked him into the restaurant to have something.

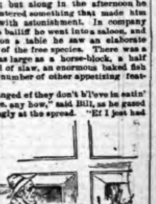
A Native Tackles a Free Lunch Counter.

The Woeful Story of Old Bill Talbot's First and Only Visit to the City of Nashville, Tennessee.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

Old Bill Talbot, of East Tennessee, was summoned to Nashville to appear as a witness before the United States Court. The old fellow had never before seen a town, but he was by no means dazed. He looked with indifference at the State capitol—he blinked with unconcern at the electric lights, and regarded a railroad engine, the first he had ever seen, with a sort of mild contempt; but along in the afternoon he encountered something that made him gasp with astonishment. In company with a bailiff he went into a saloon, and there on a table he saw an elaborate lunch of the free species. There was a roast as large as a horse-block, a half bushel of slaw, an enormous baked fish and a number of other appetizing features.

"Hanged ef they don't b'l'eve in eatin' in here, any how," said Bill, as he gazed longingly at the spread. "Ef I jest had a little money I'd step up thar an' show 'em how a white man kin eat when he's got his pegs set right."



"HANGED IF THEY DON'T B'LEEVE IN EATIN' HERE."

"Money," said the bailiff, "why, it won't cost you anything. It's free."

It was then that old Bill lost his breath. "What!" he exclaimed, "you don't mean to say that I mout pitch in thar an' he'p myself."

"That's what you can do."

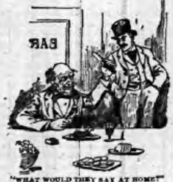
"Look here, don't tamper with me this way. You may joke my clothes and you may call me an old fool, but don't 'low no man to projic with my appetite."

"I'm not joking. What I tell you is true. Just go up there now, and help yourself."

The old fellow threw aside his brown jeans coat and squared himself at the table. Old rounders had never seen a man eat with such determination. Every once in a while he would look up and say: "Beats anything I ever seed. Ef a man had told me that thar was sich a thing in the world, I wouldn't 'a' believed him. Jest come in an' eat all you want to without payin' a cent. Sholy the world must be gittin' putty close to the end. How I do wush mur an' the gals war here. I jes know that when I go home an' tell 'em about it, they won't b'l'eve me. They'll say that thar couldn't be sich a thing. May I have another hunk of that beef?"

"Help yourself," said the bartender.

"Wall, wall," he remarked, as he cut off another piece of meat, "I never seed the like. No wonder Jim Pettygrue allus wants to be 'lected to the legislatur. Ef the fellers at home know'd what I'm doin' now wouldn't thar mouths be waterin'? Oh, it's all mighty well fur you men that live here to stan' thar an' not eat, but you live as I've been doin' fur the last forty year and eat co'n bread an' acorn-fed hog an' then not git enough of that except when the preacher come, and you better b'l'eve you'd dive at this feast too. Wall, wall, jest to think that ef I had a died yistidy my life would 'a' been a failure—yes, gentlemen, a plum flat-footed failure. It was a mighty norrer escape, for I mout never have seed this place. I have been a fightin' agin towns all my life, but I am thar friend frum this time on. I tell you. Oh, ef mur an' the gals could jest see me a slatherin' round here now, what would they say? I ain't got no boys; jest got ten gals, and I have been mightly disapp'nted, an' thought that my life was a failure, but it's all right now."



"WHAT WOULD THEY SAY AT HOME?"

"How long before you'll be ready to go?" the bailiff asked.

"Oh! for goodness sake, Cap'n, don't come talkin' to me about goin' now. My life come so close a shave to bein' a failure that I must stay here awhile longer to make shore that this here ain't a dream—feered that I mout wake up an' find myse'f out in the mountains, a eatin' the vest of a lean hog an' a lookin' at mur and the ten gals. You jest go on an drap in here sometime this evenin' an' mebby by that time I mout be ready to go with you."

The bailiff returned about two hours later. The old fellow had suddenly disappeared, the bartender said. Didn't know which way he had gone. The bailiff went out and while going through an alley, heard some one groaning.

"Why, hello," said the bailiff, coming upon a man who lay near an ash barrel, "what is the matter with you?"

"I'm dyin'," answered the East Tennessean.

"Oh! I think not."

"But I know, you see. Hafer hour from now an' I'll be as dead as a rat."

"Let me help you to a room and get a doctor."

"No, sir, jes' go on an' let me alone. A man that ain't got no mo' sense than I have ought to die, an' the quicker the better fur the community. Went in thar an' eat like a blame fool jest becaze it didn't cost nothin' an' now I am dyin' an' I'm glad of it."

"My friend, it won't do to let you lie here this way."

"Yes, it will—it's got to do. I allus thought I was a blasted fool, an' now I know it. But findin' it out cost me my life. Wush you would write a letter to mur an' the gals. Say suthin' like this: 'Pap died about six o'clock this evenin'. He would 'a' lived a few years longer, but he didn't have sense enough. He found a place whar he could eat without havin' to pay fur it an' died right thar, with a hunk of beef in one hand an' a fish bone stickin' through his teeth. He done his duty as he understood it fur he made a whole beef look no bigger than a cat, but the trouble was he didn't have sense enough to understand what his real duty was, an' laid down his life in consequence. Put the low ground in wheat next year, wife, an' marry off as many of the gals as you conveniently can. Give Sal to Zeb Spencer fur I allus did have a spite agin him. Let Sue hussle around fur herse'f an' I would be mightly pleased ef you would marry the preacher. He never did treat me right no how.'"

"Shall I write it just as you have given it?" the bailiff asked.

"Yes; jest exactly."

"But some of it seems to come from another man and the other part comes directly from you."

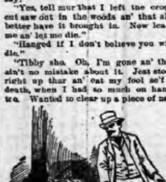
"That don't make no diffunce; send it along."

"Is there any thing else you wish to say?"

"Yes, tell mur that I left the cross-cut saw out in the woods an' that she better have it brought in. Now leave me an' let me die."

"Hanged if I don't believe you will die."

"Tibby sho. Oh, I'm gone an' that ain't no mistake about it. Jest stood right up thar an' eat my fool se'f to death, when I had so much on hand, too. Wanted to clear up a piece of new ground, an' had a hafer notion of tradin' the gray mar off, but it is all too late now."



"I'M DYIN'!"

"Say, I'm not going to let you lie here any longer. Come, see if you can't get up," added the bailiff, attempting to raise him.

"Oh, I tell you it ain't no use, for I'm a goner, an' it sarves me plum right."

"I've got some excellent whisky in my room," said the bailiff; "and if I had it here I know that it would help you."

"You'd better send fur it, I reckon. Don't you think so, Cap'n?"

"I've got nobody to send."

"Wall, kain't you run over thar and git it?"

"I'm afraid to leave you."

"Wall," said the old fellow, scuffling to his feet, "I reckon I better go with you. It allus distresses me to hear of licker a-spilin' somewhar. Come ahead."

"Hold on! But what about dying?"

"Wall, we kin fix that some other time. Got suthin' mo' important on hand jest now." OPIE P. READ.

HE DIDN'T WORRY.

A Newspaper Man Who Can Write a Leader and Make Up a Form as Well.

Billy Towers, of the National Republican, was a very nervous foreman. William D. Eaton was the most indifferent man on the paper when Frank Hatton managed it. One night, about one o'clock a. m., writes a Washington correspondent, Billy came in and urged Mr. Eaton to write his musical and dramatic column so that he could finish making up the form for the editorial page. Mr. Eaton smiled carelessly, and said: "Billy, I've been a foreman on a morning paper myself. All foremen think about one o'clock that there won't be a paper the next morning unless copy is hurried up all around the office. But, Billy," and he puffed his Havana with the utmost nonchalance, "there always is a paper. Did you ever notice it, Billy? There always is a paper. Now, there's a dear good man, please go away and don't bother me. I'll make up the editorial form myself and save you the trouble. Ta, ta."

Billy went out swearing mad; but, in a short time, Mr. Eaton commenced to write, and when he got down to business, he shoved his pencil over the paper like lightning was behind it. He could turn off more elegant, graceful, entertaining matter with more ease, than any man I ever worked with. Moreover, he could go out and make up the form for the boys, with just the same degree of ease and speed. He is an all round newspaper man, and he demonstrated that "There always is a paper, Billy. There always is." S. D. F.

THE editor wrote it: "While this cold weather lasts be mindful of others poorer than yourself. Turn not away in silence from the appeal for charity. A GENTLEMAN went into the country on business, and finding the shooting good, telegraphed to his wife to send his gun and dogs by the next train. Imagine his feelings on receiving his rifle instead of his shot-gun and an affectionate note saying that both setters got away the night before, but she sends, instead, Mrs. Brown's watch-dog and the skye-terrier, which she hopes will do as well.

HOLD ON, GENTLEMEN.

The great question of the day is a tariff reformation, the reduction of war taxation to the requirements of peace and for the general public benefit.

That is a foregone issue, and despite the efforts of tricky politicians and mercenary monopolies, it is assuming mighty proportions.

On that important question the Democratic party occupies vantage ground, because it boldly champions the cause of right, and the best interests of country and all classes of people.

Briefly stated, the Democratic position in regard to the tariff is as follows:—

"The raising of revenue simply sufficient to meet all the legal obligations and legitimate expenses of an economically and honestly administered government.

"Reduce import duties according to equitable and practical business principles, and in such a way that [illegible] upon the [illegible] of the people and the [illegible] of their [illegible] be lighter [illegible] upon mere luxuries.

"[illegible], so far as possible, [illegible] of duty in order that [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] may [illegible] be fully [illegible] and [illegible] other lands.

Giving equal aid to all promoters of prosperity, the three great sources of national and individual wealth—commerce, agriculture and manufactures."

That is the Democratic plan.

Enlightened experience and [illegible] justice affirm its worth.

It differs from the special [illegible] measures the Republicans are rushing through Congress, with such [illegible] haste, as right does from wrong.

The Democratic is for the people, the Republican for heartless combines.

Hold on, gentlemen!

There is a rocky road for you ahead!

HOW YOU'LL VOTE THIS FALL.

The Requirements of The New Ballot Reform Law That the Democrats of New Jersey Have Passed.

The readers of THE PRESS who are voters will have a strange feeling when they approach the polls at the next election in November. Under the new ballot reform law every voter will go to the polls with a feeling akin to that of the [illegible] who goes up to meet his first [illegible]. His first real surprise will be the absence of the usual mob around the place where he is to deposit his ballot. Instead of a half dozen men of each party standing right up in front of the window and staring him in the face to see if they can tell how he intends to vote, there is a large vacant place. A few men stand some distance away and timidly offer a ticket to the voter, but not with the old bulldozing spirit. This reminds the voter that under the new law no electioneering is permitted within one hundred feet of the polling place. There is no [illegible] use for ticket peddlers for there are plenty of tickets inside, and the workers are permitted to buy some of the official ballots before election day if they so desire and then have them to peddle.

The voter enters the door of the room which must be provided for the purpose. He looks in front of him and there is a railing and behind it are the four election officers and the poll clerk. He has two places to get behind the railing, however; on one side are five small apartments which look like closets. He sees several parties coming out of these and handing small envelopes to the election officers. He notices that the men waiting are going behind the railed enclosure through one of the openings and coming out through the other. He follows suit, and as he enters one of the election officers hands him three tickets and an envelope containing the official stamp. These are the official ballots and envelope printed at the expense of the state, and they represent the Democratic, Republican and Prohibition nominations. He is directed to one of the booths and finds himself entirely screened from the gaze of every one. All about the little shelf ready to write upon are piles of ballots of the different parties. He can take his choice and he feels as he never did before that it is time for him to vote just as he thinks and not according to the dictation of others. He selects his favorite ballot, folds it carefully, and inserts it in the envelope and goes out. The envelope is left unsealed and is handed to the election officers, one of whom promptly deposits it in the ballot box which is on a table at the opposite end of the enclosed apartment from that occupied by the booths. The voter has done his duty as a citizen and he passes out. He [illegible] a few men in the room, but they are only waiting their turn to vote or are the authorized agents of the candidates of the political parties. The candidates themselves can be present in the room, but their agents must be duly authorized in writing. The Chairman of the County Committee of the political parties can authorize two representatives to be present in the polling room as challengers.

But here comes a man being led by another and apparently blind. How can he go into the booth and prepare his ballot? He so [illegible] of the election officers and they require him to make affidavit that he is blind. When he does this they allow his friend to go into the booth with him and aid him in preparing his ballot.

The poll clerk is obliged to make a memorandum of this fact and to state in the memorandum the name of the person who entered the booth with the voter. The friend is not to divulge the candidates for whom the voter cast his ballot.

A GUEST'S ENDORSEMENT.

What a Press Correspondent Has to Say of the Hotel Netherwood.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Your correspondent had the honor of registering his name among the first arrivals, on the opening day of this charming resort, the 15th inst. The day was bright and breezy and everything seemed auspicious. A goodly number of guests registered and the Hotel was declared formally opened for the season. The guests were cordially received by the owner and proprietor, Frank E. Miller, whose reputation as a leading hotel man is too well known to need further comment from me; but I will say that his courteous manner and untiring efforts to make his patrons thoroughly comfortable, must receive its reward.

The grand Hotel located upon the Heights, overlooking the Orange Mountains, and a country unsurpassed for its loveliness, cannot fail to render the guests supremely happy in the selection of their Summer home.

The drives over macadamized roads to Plainfield and other localities, is a joy forever. Horseback parties were one of last season's features and will be continued this Summer. An excellent livery stable supplies the wants of those in that direction.

The Hotel Netherwood has been thoroughly renovated, repainted outside and inside, new wall papers throughout, elegant new carpets on the parlor floors and hall-ways, and other rooms, new furniture and necessary adornments, etc., so that the Hotel is thoroughly equipped, a [illegible] in all its appointments. The exquisite taste displayed in the selection of the carpets, wall papers and other adornments, is largely due to the charming wife of our worthy host, whose skill in that direction is proverbial. I need not fail to mention electric lights in the dining rooms. The effect is very fine.

The chef de cuisine has a record in New York that places him in the front rank of chefs, and judging from his efforts in that direction since the opening he has fully sustained his reputation. Mr. Byrne, the chief of the dining room, with his excellent corps of assistants, gives entire satisfaction. He was for many years in the service of Delmonico.

The steward, a position of great importance, is worthily filled by the present incumbent. Other departments of the Hotel are well officered, all under the guidance of our excellent host, so that the guests may feel assured that nothing will be left undone to make them comfortable.

A goodly number of visitors are now sojourning here. The booking for the season is far in excess of any former season, and it is surely safe to predict for the Hotel one of the most brilliant seasons in the annals of this fair resort. Fifty minutes from New York to Netherwood, with about 35 trains daily each way, over the Central Railroad of New Jersey, foot of Liberty street, h visitors of the finest rock roadbeds in the country; courteous officials in the general office on Liberty street, and conductors and trainmen on the trains who are polite and attentive to their patrons.

For the lovers of music and terpsichore a fine orchestra has been engaged for the season. Tennis courts, billiards, bowling alleys, etc., afford the lovers of these games ample opportunity to enjoy them. The wine room is supplied with the finest wines, liquors and cigars obtainable in New York.

Mr. Geo. T. [illegible], a well known resident here, is registered for the season at the Hotel, his family having sailed for Europe on the 7th inst., per steamer "City of Chester." A cablegram announcing their safe arrival at Owen O'Cork House, near Belfast, home of Mr. Alexander Taylor, brother of Mr. Taylor, was duly received, which of course rendered the recipient thoroughly happy.

PLENTY OF ICE FOR PLAINFIELD.

Thousands of Tons Offered at a Price That Will Cover Freight and Railage, Yet Give a Profit.

OFFICE OF JOHN BROWN & CO., }
ICE DEALERS, PLATTSBURGH, N. Y. }

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I would respectfully state that your ice dealers are laboring under a false impression. Messrs. John Brown & Co., have got about 75,000 tons of ice for sale, about one-half of it can be shipped either by boat or rail, the balance must go by boat unless it is hauled in wagons some distance to rail. Our present rate to Philadelphia is $2.50 per ton. We have shipped a large quantity already to different points in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Mr. J. Y. Wilson of Dunellen, has been here and looked the stock over, and we have shipped him something over 300 tons, but refer you to him.

Now we can furnish all the ice your dealers want up to 30,000 tons, unless they can get it there by canal boat when we could increase that quantity 25,000. Our price for May is $3 per net ton. F. O. B. at loading stations, and we can load 50 cars per day if necessary, for we have different points to ship from. Our price for June is $4 per net ton, F. O. B. R. R. to be weight of ice, or we will sell the ice in the houses, one or more houses, from 1,000 to 3,000 tons in house and you can load and ship yourself. Our price in the house is $3 for May and $4 for June, 45 cubic feet to the ton. A house containing 1,000 tons measured up 45 cubic feet to the ton, will weigh out about 1,300 after all shrinkage.

If some of your dealers will come up here we will soon convince them that they are misinformed if they think they can't get ice.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN BROWN & CO.

A Disreputable Fellow.

Captain Grant and officer Lynch arrested a man near the brick yard on Leland ave., Monday, for indecent behavior. He is to have a hearing this afternoon. The case is such an aggravated one, the man should be held to await the action of a grand jury.

Since the above was written Miller was arraigned before the City Judge. He pleaded guilty to being drunk and was committed for twenty days on that charge. He was also committed to the County Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury, in default of $500 bail.

NABBED BY HIS JANITOR.

J. L. Anderson, of this City, the New York Tea Merchant, Has the Thief Trapped in His Office.

Captain McLaughlin of the First Precinct, New York, has been in receipt of complaints for some weeks that thieves have been breaking into and robbing the stores in the lower part of the city.

J. L. Anderson, of this city, who is a tea merchant at No. 131 Pearl street, has been one of the principal complainants. For two months or has been reporting occasional thefts from his store.

"The thief must be a professional one, for he enters by means of false keys," said Mr. Anderson to Capt. McLaughlin.

The tea merchant occupies the third floor of the Pearl street building. The outer door is locked by means of a key and padlock. The door to the inner office is fastened with a Yale lock. Some of the choicest teas Mr. Anderson keeps in the inner office. No one has a key to either door but Mr. Anderson and the office boy.

Detective Nugent was instructed by Captain McLaughlin to conceal himself in the inner office on Friday night after having first locked both doors so as to divert suspicion that any watcher was around. During the evening Officer Nugent heard the click of the padlock on the outer door and looking over the transom caught sight of a tall, muscular young fellow stealthily entering the room.

The officer stepped down and waited. He soon heard the click of the Yale lock and the next moment confronted the burglar. He was Martin Buckley, the sub-janitor employed by Janitor Murphy.

On Buckley the officer found a bunch of keys, one of which opened the padlock, and another the Yale lock. Buckley admitted his guilt.

No Shooting on Decoration Day.

The pigeon shooting on the Middlesex Gun Club grounds, announced in these columns a few days ago, has been postponed until a later date. There will be no live bird shooting on those grounds that day.

Held for the Grand Jury.

Two more Sunday gamblers were arraigned before Justice Nash on Friday afternoon, making five in all that have been captured since Captain Grant first made the raid. The young men were obliged to each furnish $100 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

He'd Better Stop Where He Is.

The bicycle thief is still at large, but the police are on his track. Saturday evening while the members of the Bicycle Club were having entertainment and refreshments in their house, the thief stole Mr. Kirchoff's wheel. He will probably be shot in a few days unless he steals no more.

Census Enumerators.

The following named have been appointed Census Enumerators for Plainfield:

1st Ward—B. T. Barnes.
2d Ward—Lewis C. Dunn.
3d Ward—William C. Hubbard.
4th Ward—Enos W. Titsworth.

The work of the enumerators must be completed by the end of June next.

Before the City Judge.

Thomas Shelly and his wife were arrested by the police on Saturday evening for quarrelling and fighting at their home on South Second street. While the fight was in progress, a lighted lamp was upset, and the building narrowly escaped destruction by fire.

Before the City Judge on Monday the two prisoners pleaded guilty to the charge. Shelley was committed for 20 days, and his wife was fined five dollars.

Sporting Matters.

The season for black bass fishing opens in New Jersey on May 30. The fishing promises to be good.

Shad fishing closes June 10.

Woodcock promises to be plentiful this year. The season opens July 1.

Hereafter, under a new law, it will cost a non-resident $20 to hunt or fish in the state of New Jersey. He must also pay the County Clerk a license fee of $1 to secure the privilege.

Changes of City Realty.

The following are the transfers of real estate in Plainfield, recorded during last week:

Julia Scribner et al to John H. Campbell, Second street.

David Boehm et ux to Ignatz Boehm, Front street.

John Sterbower, et ux to John Kelly Third street.

Clarence J. Rice, and others, to Mary J. Williams, Sanford avenue.

Lemuel W. Serrell to John Kenny, Stebbins Place.

Manning Stelle, dec., ex'rs to Jeannie G. F. Runkle, Field avenue.

A Very Narrow Escape.

A disastrous and perhaps fatal runaway was only averted on Park avenue, a little after 6 o'clock, evening May 21, by the presence of mind of Mr. Roger Erickson, a son of ex-Councilman Erickson of Eighth street. The young man was on his way home at the time, when a team of horses, said to belong to a gentleman named Gregrier, whose wife was driving, became frightened at a passing train, and commenced backing. Besides the lady who was driving there were two other ladies in the carriage, and the young man ran heroically to their rescue, catching the frightened animals by the head just in time to save the vehicle from overturning.

Persons who witnessed the occurrence spoke in praise of the young man's heroic deed.

Dedicating the New School.

The handsome new public school building was formally dedicated at Scotch Plains on Saturday afternoon. Out-of-door exercises, during which Dr J. A. Coles, on behalf of Miss Emily Coles, presented a handsome flag to the school, preceded the regular dedication exercises. T. R. Nichol presided at the indoor exercises. Principal Goodenough responded to Mr. Nichols' speech of congratulation, and presented, on behalf of Miss Coles, a Bible, strongly advocating the use of the same in the public schools. Addresses followed from Dr Westcott, County Superintendent Holmes, ex-County Superintendent Pease, Assemblyman John Ulrich, Judge Cheever, former teachers and others. A poem written for the occasion of Dr. Abraham Coles, was read by the Rev. Dr. Parks.

An Unprecedented Record.

Since the complete organization of the Crescent League team for 1890, their record has been a most remarkable one. They have played five games, and won every one of them in eight innings. They have made 89 runs to their opponents 8, and 59 safe hits to their opponents 19. In the five games the Crescents made but 9 errors. Just look at it:

		Score		Score
Apr. 26,	Crescents	20	Columbia College	1
May 3,	"	26	[illegible]	4
" 10,	"	7	Rutgers College	2
" 17,	"	22	[illegible]	1
" 24,	"	10	Vernons	1
		89		8

There seems to be no doubt now that Plainfield has the finest ball team in the State, barring none. As to Somerville, the Crescents with one hand behind their backs could beat them easily. There is a great deal of talk in this city about another series of games with the West Ends, but the idea is ridiculous in view of the fact that the Somervilles are so far out-classed by the Crescents this year.

AGAIN THE VISITORS NOWHERE.

The Crescents Drop the Vernons in the Wagon, Where All Other Antagonists Have Gone Before.

Brooklyn's pride, the mighty "Vernons," with their mighty pitcher, Worth, came to Plainfield Saturday flushed with victories. They had played all the strongest semi-professionals of the metropolis, and lost but two games. Worth held the proud record of having struck out 14 of the Brooklyn L's, and held that team of big batters down to three hits.

But the Crescents fell upon the visitors hip and thigh. In the first two innings they knocked Worth out of the box with six singles and two two-baggers. Then Winters was put in to pitch and he did better, but the Vernons were heartbroken. Haley made a safe hit in the first inning, and came in on a wild pitch, but that was the only run the visitors took home to Brooklyn.

Laffbery made a beautiful left-handed catch in short right field. McMurray's drop of an easy fly was the only error for the Crescents. The infield played a faultless game, as usual, and Walker got another of those long distance flys that he so often has to run for. The score was:

Price of Coal Reduced.

The coal dealers of Elizabeth have agreed upon a reduction in the prices, and the prices of all sizes will be $5 per ton, with twenty-five cents off, or $4.75 net. This is the lowest price quoted for the past four years.

News via New Brunswick.

The following bit of interesting news is from the Daily Times of New Brunswick of Wednesday: "The superintendent and matron of the Plainfield, N. J., almshouse were arrested charged with ill treating the inmates."

The above item is certainly news to the residents of this city. In the first place Plainfield has no alms house, and besides no such arrests have been made.

Will Join the Plainfield Union.

A union meeting of the Christian Endeavor societies of New Market was held in the Baptist church at that place a few evenings since, at which addresses were delivered by the Rev. Messrs Leveridge and Cubberly and W. C. Stinson. It was also decided to apply for admission into the Plainfield Union, and to offer The Christian Endeavor Union, a monthly periodical published at New Market, as the official organ of the union.

46 Feet for $7,000—55 Feet for $6,500.

THE PRESS has been asked if the property lying between Dr. Probasco's and the Y. M. C. A. lot, on East Front street opposite Peace, has been sold. It has not.

The owner, the Mutual Life Insurance company, doesn't want anything for it. $6,500 is the price set. The Y. M. C. A., gave $7,000 for their lot, but then it has twice as much frontage and is on a corner.

Deserted by his Young Wife.

Wm. Keiser, a resident of New Brunswick, is mourning over the disappearance of his wife. Keiser married the girl only a year ago. She was eighteen and he forty-seven. Lately they have not lived together in perfect harmony, and the husband attributes this largely to a visit from his wife's mother, who lives at New Market. He has been unable to find any trace of his missing wife and has now called on the police to aid him in his search.

An Unequal Division.

Judge McCormick has awarded the counsel fees in the William Moore will case, as follows: James B. English of Elizabeth, $600; B. V. Lindabury of Elizabeth, $300; Jackson & Codington of this city, $50, and Nelson Runyon, also of Plainfield, $50. Mr W. L. Hetfield who was also employed as counsel in the case was allowed absolutely nothing. The first-named award is considered exhorbitant, inasmuch as there were but about seven testimonies in all taken.

Real Estate Transfers.

Within the past few days real estate has changed hands in North Plainfield township as follows:

Archibald C Ackerman to Ruth W. Ackerman, property in North Plainfield, $1 00.

Ruth W. Ackerman to Eliza Dederick, property in North Plainfield, $5,000.

Township of North Plainfield to Henry Taylor, property in North Plainfield, $47 00.

Ada M. Grant to Joseph H. Boisterli, property in North Plainfield, $450.

Tit for Tat.

Gov. Abbett, Tuesday, called a meeting of the Inspectors of the State Prison and recommended the dismissal of all the Republican deputy keepers employed at that institution. This was in retaliation for the unseating of Senator McDonald. A number of Republican deputies had been retained by the Democratic Board of Inspectors. They were efficient officers and Keeper Patterson had been averse to having them removed. After the conference with the Governor the inspectors unanimously agreed to carry out his recommendations, and eight Republican deputies were then dismissed.

—At Somerville ice is sold to private families at 60 cents per hundred. Why not here, too?

—The police have been instructed to stop the North Plainfield bottlers from delivering beer in this city.

—The young people of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold one of their usual enjoyable gatherings in the form of a "basket sociable," at the residence of Mr. John Coard, on Putnam avenue, this evening.

—Chief Doane of the Plainfield Fire Department, has succeeded in locating 320 hydrants for fire purposes. He considers that when the water works are in operation and with the twenty one fire wells which the city now owns, Plainfield will have the best supply of water for fire purposes of any city of its size in the country.

—Street Commissioner Mosher informs THE PRESS that the total cost of cutting down and grading Plainfield avenue, will be about $400. In some places the road-bed was cut down as much as 2½ feet, and the surplus dirt was dumped on the circuit at Plainfield avenue and French street. The Street Commissioner has made a good job of the work.

THE SYMPHONIE AGAIN.

Both the Entertainment and the Success Are Repeated at Vincent Chapel.

The Weinhard Kinder Symphonie which was such a great success a month ago in Holy Cross chapel, was given again on Saturday afternoon, in Vincent chapel for the benefit of the Children's Home. The programme was almost the same as before and the few changes that had been made were most agreeable. Miss Julia Jermain Ketcham's solos were very pleasing, and Miss Dewey's piano solo was also much appreciated. Miss Adelaide McGee, accompanied on the violin by Mr. Clifford Mettler, sang the "Angel's Serenade," delightfully. The four tableaux were quite as tasteful and artistic as before, and although there were new faces in more than one scene, the effects were just as pretty. Mr. George P. Taggart put in a few remarks and succeeded in making the people smile.

The Symphonie itself was well done in every respect and Mr A. S. Newman, the director, is to be heartily congratulated upon the success of his pupils. No one would imagine so much music and such sweet melody to be hiding itself in the most primitive of instruments, only waiting to be brought out by a little practice and rehearsal. A new feature, introduced in this part, was a cornet solo by Master Ralph Whiting of Bound Brook, who played "Now I lay me down to sleep," and played it well, too. He received a good round of applause and he deserved it all.

The entertainment was but another triumph all through, and those who witnessed it both the first time and the second, agreed that they would be glad of an opportunity to enjoy it again.

All on Account of a Family Quarrel.

It is reported that a married woman living at Evona, attempted to throw herself in front of a moving train at that place a few days ago, but was prevented from doing so by her husband. Domestic trouble is said to have led the woman to attempt such a rash act.

Fanwood Flakes.

Mr. Charles Richardson took possession of his new residence near the railroad station, Tuesday.

Mrs Anna S. Miller, who is just recovering from a spell of sickness, and who has been ordered by her physician to take a vacation, has gone to Albany, New York, to visit her sister, Mrs. Brozby.

An Exciting Runaway.

A horse belonging to an out-of-town butcher ran away in front of a house on Duer street, North Plainfield, late Monday afternoon. The animal turned into Somerset street and ran along that thoroughfare until Front street was reached, when the runaway collided with a farm wagon, wrecking one of the wheels on the latter vehicle. The horse was captured near the post office before doing further damage.

Meeting of the Board of Health.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Health, held on Tuesday, with President Geo. W Rockfellow in the chair, among other business transacted was the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That between May 1 and October 1 following, no ashes, rubbish or any offensive materials shall be dumped upon any lot in the city, except in such places as shall be designated by the Board of Health.

No Cause for Action.

The jury in the case of Carney Bros., against Charles Hand, tried before Justice Nash, Tuesday, brought in a verdict of "no cause for action," and the case was therefore dismissed.

The suit was brought to recover $135 alleged to be due for work on the new Hand building on West Second street. The defendant produced his receipts, showing that the claim had been paid, and the justice instructed the jury to bring in the above verdict.

Base Ball at Westfield.

The Westfield Athletic Association, a new organization recently formed at Westfield, already has its base ball grounds enclosed. Admission to the grounds will be 25 cents, and ten cents extra for a reserved seat in the grand stand. The rates for admission, however, are entirely too high for a town of that size, and it is thought to be only a matter of a very short time before the rates will have to be reduced.

The Westfield ball club will consist of four local players, and five imported ones. The first two games on the new grounds will take place on Decoration Day, in the morning with the Rutgers College nine, and in the afternoon with a club from Roselle.

Memorial Day Parade.

The line will form on Front street, at 9 o'clock A. M., will move at 9.15 sharp, with right resting on Peace street, thence from Peace street to Crescent avenue, to Park avenue, to Seventh street, to Central avenue, to Front street, to Grove street, to Emily street, to Somerset street, to Front street, to Music Hall, where the services will be conducted by the Posts and children.

The formation of the line will be as follows: First, Marshal, then detail, band, Post No. 109, Saengerbund and other societies, old soldiers, sailors and patriotic citizens, Post No. 73, stages for disabled comrades, Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10, and children.

All desiring to take part in the parade will please report to Wm. C. Smith, Marshal, at Post headquarters. Services at Music Hall, at 10 o'clock. Admission free.

By Order of Detail.

The Comic Opera Success of the Season.

"Castles in the Air," the great comic opera success now playing to crowded houses at the Broadway Theatre, New York, is destined to enjoy a long and prosperous run at that handsome play house. The DeWolf Hopper Opera Bouffe Company, presenting "Castles in the Air," is one of most thoroughly competent comic opera organizations ever heard, and includes such comic artists as DeWolf Hopper, a long-time metropolitan favorite, Marion Manola, Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Della Fox, Alfred Klein, and others, who have heretofore distinguished themselves on the comic opera stage, and are pleasantly remembered. The chorus is remarkable for effective voices and pretty faces, and has manifestly received the special care of Max Freeman, under whose direction rehearsals were conducted. "Castles in the Air" is particularly rich in point of music, and contains a number of gems which have already become popular. The humor is of the unctious and mirth-provoking kind, and permeates the entire opera. Visitors to the metropolis in search of pure, wholesome entertainment, combining delightful music with infectious fun, will find much enjoyment in "Castles in the Air," as presented at the Broadway, the handsomest and coolest theatre in New York.

—It was just 29 years ago Sunday that the farewell sermon was preached to Company I, composed mostly of Plainfield men, who were leaving for the war.

—Aultman Miller & Co., the original manufacturers of the Buckeye Mower, have appointed the Pierson Hardware Co. agents for their mower for Plainfield and vicinity.

—It must have rained pretty hard at Bound Brook on Monday night. Two Plainfield fishermen who spent the night rowing around on the Raritan river in search of fish, resembled drowned rats when they alighted from the boat. The total catch was five eels and a severe cold.

MEMORIAL DAY ARRANGEMENTS.

Official Orders Issued by Winfield Scott Post.

The following circular issued by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will explain itself:

HEADQUARTERS }
WINFIELD SCOTT POST No 73, }
G. A. R., DEPT. OF N. J. }
PLAINFIELD, May 20, 1890

A special inspection of our Post will be made at our next regular encampment, Tuesday evening, May 27. On this occasion our Department Commander, Senior and Junior Vice Department Commanders and as many of the staff as may find it possible, will pay us a fraternal visit. Comrades from Posts 57, 75 and 27 have also signified their intentions of being with us and your presence will insure them a hearty welcome.

In accordance with orders from headquarters, we are once more called upon to observe the day of all days to our order, Memorial Day. It is hoped and expected that each and every comrade of our Post will prove his fealty to the Order by promptly complying with General Order No. 2.

The Post will assemble at Post rooms, Sunday evening, May 25, at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of attending memorial service at the Methodist Episcopal church. Comrades will appear in dark clothing, uniform hats, badges and white gloves.

In accordance with the action of the joint memorial detail comrade Wm. C. Smith is hereby appointed Marshal for Memorial Day; he will be respected and obeyed accordingly.

The graves of comrades deceased will be decorated by details on the morning of Memorial Day, and said details will assemble at Post rooms at 7 o'clock A. M. sharp.

The Senior and Junior Vice Commanders and Officer of the Guard will procure their details before Memorial Day and will decorate such cemeteries as the joint memorial detail may direct.

Comrades will assemble at Post headquarters at 8.45 o'clock A. M., prompt for parade and memorial services at Music Hall. Comrades are expected to appear in full uniform. Those not having uniforms will appear in dark clothing, uniform hats, memorial badge, white gloves and canes.

Flowers and markers will be furnished the details at the office of Terrill & Cole.

By order,
CHAS. B. STEPHENS,
Commander.
Official: GEO. W. MOORE,
Adjutant.

Taken to the Asylum.

The condition of ex-City Clerk Richard Merritt has of late been bordering on insanity and it was deemed advisable to take him to the Morris Plains asylum for treatment, where he was on Friday admitted as a paid patient, his father, Constable Moffett and Special Officer Mattox accompanying him to that institution in a carriage.

Mr. Raymond Will Remain at Albany.

A report that the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Albany, and formerly pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of this city, was to be called to succeed the Rev. Dr. T. L. Cuyler as pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian church in Newark, is pronounced groundless. It is said that no successor will be chosen to Dr. Cuyler before next Fall.

Paying Claims of Fifteen Years Standing.

Street Commissioner Mosher has at last succeeded in making a settlement with John Stewart, Henry Goelet, James Flynn and Mrs. Frye for portions of their land on the Northeast side of Plainfield avenue, between Second and Third streets, thereby opening up the avenue to its full width. The land was appraised fifteen years ago, but the purchase price was never paid over to the owners, and consequently the avenue was never opened to its full width at that point.

An Enjoyable Reception.

Vincent chapel was a brilliant place, Friday night, with its electric lights and beautiful decorations. It was the occasion of the annual reception given to the Junior Department of the Sunday school. The children were highly delighted with the entertainment. The programme consisted of songs and recitations by the children and legerdemain by the prestidigiteur, Mr. Waring of New York. The Methodist people are wisely looking after their young people, and the church and Sunday school are made very attractive for them.

Following in the Footsteps of Their Parents.

"The Westfield Athletic Company," is the name of the new corporation recently formed at Westfield, to encourage and advance out-door sports. As THE PRESS stated the grounds leased by the company are being enclosed and graded, and a grand stand with numbered seats is being erected. The base ball season will open there with two games on Decoration Day.

The stock holders are also advocating the formation of a "Country Club," like the one recently organized in this city, and it is their intention to erect a club house, with bowling alleys, gymnasium, etc.

Ice for Sale!

The following adv., THE PRESS prints willingly for nothing. It has never before published a free advertisement in its columns, but the subject and the occasion demands it, and the people may be benefited thereby:

JOHN BROWN & CO., }
Ice Dealers. }
PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., May 19 1890.

To the Advertising Manager of The Press, Plainfield, N. J.

GENTLEMEN:—What is your price for the following adv., two days in each week; say Monday and Thursday, ½ in. space:

ICE FOR SALE,

Mr. Hooley of Plainfield Takes Off His Hat.

Mr. A G. Hooley, of Central avenue, who is now travelling in the Far West as the representative of a New York syndicate of wealthy capitalists interested in many schemes there, is at Bozeman, Montana.

He may be pictured just now as there he ded, because a copy of the Chronicle of that place reaches THE PRESS office with this proclamation marked;

Take off your hat and get down on your knees and thank your God that you have lived to see, know and hear of the finest, the grandest and most beautiful city and the most prolific valley in the known world. Yes:

GREET THE FUTURE CAPITAL.

[illegible] thanksgiving and joy. For I tell you right now if Bozeman don't get the capital she will keep the dies off the coat tail of the city that does. WE ARE AFTER IT. She is coming to the front with rapid strides and don't you forget it, and I don't intend to let you forget it, and if you will watch the papers you will see a reminder both loud and long.

—Craig place in North Plainfield, is to be macadamized, and a subscription paper is being circulated among the property owners along the line towards paying part of the cost.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became a Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

For the cure of the inflammation and congestion called a "cold in the head" there is no remedy [illegible] Ely's Cream Balm [illegible] [illegible] is possible to prescribe. This [illegible] has for years past been making a [illegible] success as a remedy for cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever. Used in the initial stages of colds Ely's Cream Balm prevents any serious development of the symptoms, while almost numberless cases are on record of its cures of chronic catarrh, after all other modes of treatment have failed.

An ugly complexion made Nellie a fright,
Her face was all pimply and red,
Though her features were good, and her eyes were bright,
"What a plain girl is Nellie!" they said.
But now, as by magic, plain Nellie has grown,
As fair as an artist's bright dream;
Her face is as sweet as a flower new-blown,
Her cheeks are like peaches and cream.
As Nellie walks out in the fair morning light,
Her beauty attracts every eye,
And as for the people who called her a fright,
"Why, Nellie is handsome," they cry.

And the reason of the change is that Nellie took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which regulated her liver, cleared her complexion, made her blood pure, her breath sweet, her face fair and rosy, and removed the defects that had obscured her beauty. Sold by druggists.

Those who will go are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter, Jr., and family, Captain and Mrs. J. Frank Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Babcock, and others.

The seven collegians of Yale who have just been selected as members of the Alpha Delta Phi, include Corydon C. Tyler, recently of this city. William N. Runyon, son of ex-Judge Nelson Runyon, has been elected into the Delta Kappa Epsilon of the same college, and Irving C. West, also of this city, into the Zeta Psi.

Mr. Wm C. Ayers, agent for the lands of the Central railroad, moved in the house he now occupies on West Second street, March 31, 1854—over thirty-six years ago. There were only four roads in the place then—the Rahway road, now Broadway; the Tostown road, now Plainfield avenue; the Main road, now Front street; and the Mountain road, now Somerset street.

The funeral of the late Frederick G. Mead, who died on Wednesday last, took place from his late home, 153 East Front street, on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. W. R. Richards, officiating. A quartette composed of Mrs. W. A. Freeman, Miss Holmes, Mr. Arthur Freeman and Mr. E. E. Runyon, sang appropriate music. The floral display was grand. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Jacob Sieder, a veteran of the late war, who deserves a pension more than many who have been enjoying such for years, seems at last in a fair way to get one. It was said that the delay was because he was a Democrat, yet now his claim reaches recognition through the effort and influence of a New Jersey Democrat. Senator John R. McPherson, by request, called his case up, and that resulted in a special examination a few days since. There is now no doubt but that Sieder's pension will be forthcoming ere long.

The remains of the late Mrs. Pauline Landy Boughton of Elizabeth who died very suddenly while visiting friends in this city on Sunday evening, were taken to her late home on West Grand street, Elizabeth, on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Boughton was a young woman having many friends in that city, and her sudden death occasions a deep gloom over a very wide circle. She was a daughter of the late Pliny F. Smith. Her husband was until recently a partner with Mr. Peter G. Dyke in the real estate business in Elizabeth.

Did Not Come out quite Even.

Perseverance Lodge No. 74, K. of P., came out a little behind with their recent variety performance in Amphion Hall. After paying $230 for the troupe and other incidental expenses, there was nothing left for the lodge. The show was given a little out of season, and besides the weather was bad during the week the performance was given. The Knights, however, are to be congratulated upon the able and efficient manner in which the affair was conducted.

Mellin's Food not only contains in itself all the elements of nutrition, but presents them in such form that the infant can digest and assimilate them with perfect ease. "I have had more and better success with Mellin's Food than with any and all others I have tried," says a physician.

THURSDAY NIGHT'S FIRE.

Col. Mason W. Tyler's and Mr. J. H. Rowe's Barns Totally Destroyed—The Origin of the Fire a Mystery.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock on Thursday evening fire was discovered on the ground floor of the two-story frame barn belonging to Col. Mason W. Tyler on West Seventh street, near Plainfield avenue. The fire spread rapidly, and when the firemen arrived, in response to a general alarm sent out, the building was enveloped in flames.

Those who were first on the spot, directed their efforts to saving the live stock, and in this respect they were successful, although the building was totally destroyed together with several carriages, harness, lap robes, hay, grain, etc.

In close proximity to Col. Tyler's barn, stood the unoccupied barn of Mr. J. H. Rowe. This also took fire, and was totally destroyed, involving an additional loss of about $2,500.

Fortunately there was but little or no wind blowing at the time or some of the handsome residences in the immediate vicinity would have doubtless been burned. As it was Col. Tyler's house caught fire, but the firemen soon extinguished the flames. The fire was a hard one to fight, the nearest fire well being at the corner of Liberty and Sixth streets where one engine took suction. Gazelle engine took suction at the well corner of Seventh street and Central avenue.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, although it is thought by some to have originated from a lamp. A coachman employed by Mr. J. F. Page of No. 59 West Seventh street, claims to have first discovered the fire. He also declares that he saw a strange man leaving the place but a few minutes before the fire broke out.

Mr. Tyler's loss on the building will probably not exceed $4,000, and the loss on the contents will be about $1,000 more. The barns and contents were insured for about two-thirds of their value.

When the fire was gotten under control the firemen were provided with hot coffee and other refreshments, the generous gift of Col. Tyler, all of which was highly appreciated by the firemen.

Services at the First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham conducted a special praise service in the First Presbyterian church, Sunday night, that was attended by an unusually large congregation. The regular church choir also rendered special music, which included a solo by Miss Fellows and a duett by Miss Fellows and Miss Kent.

Bishop Scarborough at Netherwood.

Bishop Scarborough administered the rite of confirmation to nine candidates at the Church of Our Savior, Netherwood, Sunday night. The little church was prettily decorated with spring flowers and a large congregation was in attendance. There were present in the chancel beside the Bishop, the priest in charge, the Rev. S. P. Simpson and the Rev. William E. Earle of Westfield.

A Very Narrow Escape.

While the funeral procession, conveying the body of the late Frederick G. Mead, was ascending the hill leading to Hillside Cemetery, on Saturday afternoon, one of the whiffletrees on Mr. A. D. Shepard's new $600 coupe, just purchased the day before, broke in two, and the vehicle came near running down an incline into the gutter. Several ladies were in the coupe at the time, and the presence of mind on the part of the driver, probably saved them from serious if not fatal injury.

A Thief in the City Hotel.

Some time during night May 21, a thief broke open the cash drawer in the office of the City Hotel, and emptied it of its contents. He left the bank and check books open on the desk.

Mounting a safe near the door leading from the office into the barroom, he succeeded in climbing through the transom. The barroom till was then tapped and about two dollars taken. Proprietor Beerbower left the Hotel, yesterday morning, to be absent a week. Until he returns the amount left in the office drawer cannot be ascertained. Barkeeper George VanDorn was also away from the Hotel, last night, having gone to Newark.

Changes in the Programme.

The hours of exercises and entertainments of the State Division of Wheelmen's Meet, for Friday, have been somewhat changed. Following is the new order:

At 10:00 A. M., there will be a business meeting, followed by luncheon, at the Club House.

At 1:30 P. M., the parade, according to the line of march published in THE PRESS of last Thursday.

At 3:30 P. M., the banquet at Hotel Netherwood.

At 8 o'clock, grand minstrel and vaudeville entertainment at Music Hall.

On Saturday morning there will be the following runs: 9:00, scorcher's run to New Brunswick, under command of Capt. F. L. C. Martin; 9:30, to Bound Brook, under J. E. Erickson; 9:30, to Westfield, under Stanton Smith.

Luncheon will be served at noon of Saturday in the Club House, and wheelmen will take the 1:00 o'clock train for the races at Bergen Point.

She Isn't Satisfied.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pawson of Grove street, was arraigned before Justice Hardy in North Plainfield, Monday afternoon, charged by Mrs. I. Phillips, a neighbor, with using foul and abusive language. She was fined $5 and costs.

Mrs. Pawson called at THE PRESS office on Tuesday, and told her version of the affair. She said she was summoned into court without the least knowledge of the complaint, and that furthermore she was not even given time to call any witnesses. She also says that the complainant in the case accused her of poisoning her four children, which she lost with diphtheria a few years ago. Mrs. Pawson says she wanted to make a counter charge against Mrs. Phillips, but the Justice would not entertain the charge.

Wm. Robinson, a son of Mrs. Pawson's sister, was also fined one dollar and costs on a charge of throwing stones at Mrs. Phillips.

The Bishop Tells the Grace Church People to Build.

Bishop Scarborough made his annual visitation to the Grace church parish, Sunday. Whit Sunday. Morning prayer had been offered by the rector at 9.30, and the service at 10:30 commenced with the litany, followed by the communion-office sermon by the Bishop, followed by confirmation and celebration of the Holy Communion.

The altar, pulpit and lecturn were beautifully decorated with white flowers, appropriate to the day. Thirteen were confirmed. Before beginning his sermon, the Bishop again urged the congregation to proceed and build a new church, as it was greatly needed, the present building being full and every pew rented. He preached a very earnest sermon from the text: "It is expedient for you that I go away, for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I go will send Him unto you." A large congregation, that filled the church, were present at the very interesting service.

Occasional Faintness.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY, taken when vertigo, occasional faintness, nausea, loss of appetite, and inability to sleep appear, will prevent the development of inflammation of the brain, of which these are the first symptoms. THE BIG TIME COMING.

How the Wheelmen of the Whole State Will Enjoy Themselves in Plainfield This Week!

The arrangements for the Seventh Annual meet of the Wheelmen of New Jersey, to be held in Plainfield Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, are in the hands of the following general committee: R. V. Whitehead, of Trenton, Chairman; Messrs A. L. C. Marsh and Townsend Rushmore of this city, A. T. Dodd of South Orange, and G. C. Pennell of Elizabeth.

Dr. J. H. Cooley is chairman of the hotel and reception committee; Townsend Rushmore, of banquet and lunches; F. L. C. Martin, of parade and runs, and also of the races at Bergen Point, Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

Visitors to the Meet will be met at the depot by the Reception Committee and will be escorted to the hotel. Wheels will be in charge of the above committee and will be stored in the Gymnasium of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, where each owner will receive a check for the same. Wheels will be delivered on presentation of check only. Division Headquarters will be at Laing's Hotel and visitors are requested to report at once on arriving in order that a register may be kept, and the location of each member be readily determined. At Headquarters each member will be presented with a badge which will be an introduction to all wheelmen present. During the Meet it will be the duty of this Committee to furnish proper escorts and information to guests.

The annual banquet of the Division will take place on Friday afternoon (Decoration Day), at 4.30 o'clock, at Hotel Netherwood. Speeches will be made by prominent officials and a good time is anticipated generally. Only L. A. W. members will be allowed to attend. Club Secretaries are requested to notify the chairman of the committee of the number of seats required in order that they may be secured in advance. The attendance will be very large.

After the business meeting on Friday morning, lunch will be served to all the members attending. Saturday lunch will be served in the Plainfield Bicycle Club House after the parade and photograph.

The Wheelmen's Theatre party for the evening of May 30, at Music Hall, will be very popular, and probably every seat will be sold in advance. The prices will be as follows: $1, 75 and 50 cents. The attraction will be the Hudson County Minstrel and Vaudeville Combination, which scored such a success in Jersey City. The actors are all wheelmen and the show fairly bristles with local hits. Every wheelman expects to attend. The fair sex will be well represented. Curtain rises at 8 P. M.

Shooting on Decoration Day.

There will be interesting live bird and inanimate target shooting on the grounds of the Middlesex Gun club, on May 30, Decoration Day, under the management of Charles Smith—"Dutchey." A full programme will be published later. Five hundred good lively pigeons will be on the grounds on above occasion.

Interesting Exercises at Reform Hall.

The exercises at Reform Hall, Thursday, were very fine, especially the piano solo by Miss Flo Randolph, which brought forth an encore. Singing by Miss Glen and the discussion of the subject, "Is it consistent for a church member in the name of the church, to be building up the Kingdom of God, and in the name of the State to vote to license the saloons which every year bring many thousand homes to desolation and want?" brought the exercises to a close.

Death of James Marshall.

James Marshall, senior member of the firm of Marshall & Ball, clothiers, of Newark, Jersey City and Paterson, died at his home on Clinton avenue, Newark, Monday evening. He was stricken down with inflammation of the kidneys about four weeks ago and never rallied. Mr. Marshall was one of the best known and most successful business men in New Jersey. He was born in Paterson in 1816. He was a brother to the late Daniel J. Marshall, and had many friends and acquaintances in this city.

A Youthful Forger in the Toils.

William J. Stires, of Pittstown, Hunterdon county, has been lodged in the county jail at Flemington, for forgery. He was arrested at the instance of Isaac Latourette of White House Station, to whom he gave a check signed John P. Rittenhouse. It is found that he had also used Mr. Rittenhouse's name on another check for $22, which he endeavored to have cashed at the First National Bank in this city, about six weeks ago, but without success.

The young man also tried to work off the forged check on Mr. Jesse Hatfield and at the Western Union office in this city, but he was unsuccessful in both instances.

A Rare Fish for this Section.

Fish Warden Force was Friday morning the recipient of a rare specimen of fish for the waters of this State. It was a young sturgeon, some eighteen inches in length, caught in the Raritan river below Bound Brook. The following letter accompanied the fish:

BOUND BROOK, May 22, 1890.

Wm. Force, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—Herewith attached enclosed please find a young Sturgeon, caught in the Raritan river below the dam, near Fisher's Lock, at Bound Brook, sent to you by request of some of your friends as this is the first one that I know of being caught in the Raritan river.

Yours truly,

P. KOEHLER,

Bound Brook, N. J.

Freight Clerk, C. R. R. of N. J.

Missing Children Found.

Two school children named Prasee, a boy and a girl, aged eleven and seven years respectively, whose parents reside on East Front street, started out for school morning May 21, but they did not reach their destination. The children wandered about all day, going as far as Dog Tavern, and as they did not return home after school a search was at once instituted to discover their whereabouts.

Special Officer Hope, who is also janitor at the Bryant building, where the children attend school, was notified, and after a two hours' search he found them wandering about in the vicinity of the Netherwood station. The children were subsequently restored to their parents.

Great Excitement, But Little Damage.

A horse belonging to Mr W. J. Stephenson, the North avenue caterer, fell down at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, about half-past ten o'clock Friday morning, and all efforts to get the animal on his feet were unavailing. It was at first thought that the horse was injured by the fall, but after a half-hour's hard work, and a generous application of the whip, the animal was induced to rise, and started off on a trot.

To add to the excitement a horse owned by Mr. D. I. Smalley, the North avenue butcher, left standing in front of Fine's cigar store, attempted to run away, and in doing so collided with and upset a butcher wagon belonging to Messrs Lottise & Hummer, wrecking the shafts. The excitement grew intense, and for a time a most disastrous wreck was threatened. Brave men, however, captured the runaway horse, thus averting more serious consequences.

Hires' Root Beer is essentially a temperance drink, and, as such, ought to find a place in every larder in the land. It is so cheap, too. A 25 cent package makes five gallons.

FRANCIS E. HARTE MULCTED.

A Former Plainfielder Comes to Grief and is Ordered to Pay $10,000 for Robbing Another Man of His Wife's Affections.

A Sheriff's Jury over which Gen. Sickles presided, Monday found a verdict of $10,000 against Francis E. Harte, formerly of this city, and a son of Bret Harte the well-known novelist, in a suit by James J. Smith for the alienation of the affections of his wife, Eliza B. Smith. The suit had been tried previously in the Supreme Court of New York where, as Harte failed to appear and defend, judgment was given in favor of the husband, the Judge ordering the damages to be assessed by the Sheriff's Jury. The verdict was for the full amount claimed.

The Smiths were married in 1879. They have two children, of whom the wife has possession. A referee has just recommended that the children be given to the husband.

The trouble seems to have dated from the time the family went to board with Mrs. Detley in Pittsfield, Mass., where young Harte was a guest. Mrs. Detley testified that Harte's attentions to Mrs. Smith became so marked that they caused comment and compelled her to speak to him.

At the trial Harte's counsel asked Mrs. Detley if Mrs. Smith did not pay the bills and she replied that she received checks from Mr. Smith.

"Did Harte pay them?" asked a juror.

"I guess not," she exclaimed, "he left owing me $110."

Laura S. Kennison testified that Harte and Mrs. Smith lived together at Rockland Lake. She was a nurse in the Smith family and when Harte and Mrs. Smith went abroad together, in November, 1888, Mrs. Smith left the children in her charge and told her not to tell any one where they were.

Mr. Smith is a cripple. He testified that it cost him $[illegible] to find where his children were. His home, he said, had been ruined, his family broken up, and his children taken from him.

Harte did not appear.

The jury was out but a few minutes.

Caught His Hand in the Machinery.

Mr. Clement Jolley, a machinist at the Potter Press works, met with a painful accident May 21, which will deprive him of the use of his left hand for some time to come. He was at work polishing a gear, when his hand became wedged in the machinery, crushing the little finger. Dr. Gaston dressed the wound.

They Fear None.

The "Stars," Plainfield's colored aggregation of base ball players, have organized for another season, stronger than ever. They have engaged VanDyke of Rahway, the celebrated colored pitcher, and "Gamey" Nelson will catch him. Old reliable Tom Martin will play short stop. In three weeks, the "Stars" announce, they will be ready to accept a challenge from any club in the country.

Cricket.

The St. George's Cricket Club is trying to secure the grounds on Washington avenue, formerly occupied by the Plainfield Athletic Club. The club is arranging a series of games with out-of-town clubs, the first of which will be played at Paterson on August 7, and a return game will be played in this city on August 9. The local club will also play with a team from the New Jersey Athletic Club at Bergen Point on September 20, and with the same club in this city on September 27.

A Sad Spectacle.

When the 1:17 A. M., train from New York drew up at the station in this city, Sunday morning, there alighted a flashily dressed woman, about forty years of age, who was considerably under the influence of liquor. The woman tried to induce Officer Laine to get her some whiskey, and to him she related a sorrowful tale. She said that she was of wealthy parentage, but was addicted to drink, and frequently went off on a spree, losing all respect for herself and her parents. She gave the name of a well-known hotel in New York, where she said her parents were boarding.

The woman loitered about the station for a long time, and finally boarded the first train back to New York.

A New Pastor for Somerville.

The German church in Somerville is showing much progress since its present pastor, the Rev. F. Koechli of North Plainfield, took charge of it about three years and a half ago. It was then in a very precarious condition and the hope of the members on a low scale. But soon a greater interest was manifested, the attendance grew larger and has continued to increase. Confidence and hope returned. The church can never become a strong one, as the German population in that vicinity is limited to a comparatively small number, but the members firmly believe that it will still increase in numbers and in spirit.

A few weeks ago a new agreement between the German church in North Plainfield and that of Somerville was effected, under which the pastor of the former church will always be the pastor of the latter.

How To Select a Wife.

Good health, good morals, good sense and good temper, are the four essentials for a good wife. These are the indispensables. After them come the minor advantages of good looks, accomplishments, family position, etc. With the first four, married life will be comfortable and happy. Lacking either, it will be in more or less degree a failure. Upon good health depends largely good temper and good looks, and to some extent good sense also, as the best mind must be affected more or less by the weaknesses and whims attendant on frail health. Young man, if your wife is falling into a state of invalidism, first of all things try to restore her health. Try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will cure her.

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

Line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reason it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific Coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. Sick Headache
IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled, for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

BIRD SONGS TRANSLATED.

Solos by the Best Singers in the Feathered Choir.

Their Place Upon the Staff—The Theme Trails of Well-Known Birds with Variations—What a Student of Ornithology Says of Them.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890, BY [illegible]]

The translation of a bird song is a dainty difficulty. To go out and hear a bird sing and then attempt a sound like it and call that a bird song all [illegible] means really nothing. There is but one way to translate a bird song. Go to the bird. Take the book with you if you will, and you may get to it in some instances quicker. Study it thoroughly in all its moods, habits, occupations, emotions, morning, at evening, at noon, at midnight. Find out patiently from each of its songs what each one means and take from a study of them the theme-trail of the bird. Each bird has a theme-trail and this theme-trail has several variations. Each bird song has a theme, and this theme, as worked in the song sparrow, has several variations. This will give you the key to the translation of each theme-trail, to bird songs and each bird singer [illegible] words. If such a principle of ornithological interpretation can be shown to hold true invariably, a great deal will have been gained in this most interesting phase of musical research.

The following attempt is for the purpose of showing the possibility of accounting such a principle of interpretation as well as the place of the different bird songs on the staff in the register in which they occur.

Take the red-eyed vireo. This bird is the one that sings most of all. It is the first bird to sing continuously in the spring, the last to stop singing in the autumn. Day after day, and hour after hour, in the pulpit of a tree when all the other birds are still in the sultry drought of summer, this little sermon in song rings out: "Vireo, vireo, vireo, vireah." "Verily, verily, I say, I say unto you, don't you know, don't you know, don't you see, don't you hear, don't you believe it?"

The notes set to music on the staff read:

The white-eyed vireo is frequently heard in tall tree tops or overgrown bushes in parks or on the borders of woods [illegible] intelligently to be discriminated. In the red-eyed vireo the theme-trail is hortatory sermonizing, the function exhortation or preaching. It is the homeliest of the birds. In the white-eyed vireo the theme-trail is still hortatory [illegible], has a different [illegible]. It commends a calm acceptance of things as they come along, as opposed to anxiety. All day long it sits and sings with a peculiarly liquid and [illegible] [illegible]: "Don't worry; don't worry; don't you."

The song on the staff is sung as follows:

The Wood dove is a signal bird. Its song is the softest and the saddest song in nature and it selects the softest spot, the saddest tree, in which to sing it, the [illegible] pine. The music on the scale like the translation may be very exactly reproduced.

The tolling bell bird is one of the most impressive wonders of nature. A single specimen of this bird is to be found in this country in Florida. The theme-trail of this bird is [illegible] [illegible].

The notes read:

Here is a bird which no one has ever attempted to translate. It is exceedingly difficult to catch his theme-trail for many reasons. And yet after months of study over this bird I am persuaded that they are all summed up in that one word, [illegible], and that the true translation is, "[illegible]," uttered several times in succession very rapidly and yet with distinguishable breaks.

The notes on the staff are here exactly reproduced.

The king bird is to be studied on a stake by a mill pond. He is the Baptist of the birds and washes most of the time. When his young are hatching he frequently attacks the eagle, hawk or blue jay and drives them off. He gobbles up gadflies and bees and [illegible] [illegible]. The purple martin, on account of his powers of flight, is his rival.

The saw whet of Acadian owl is a nocturnal bird that hangs along lonely places such as old bridges, old ruins, old mills. It loves old saw mills that stand out over the water by the edge of woods. There it [illegible] the miller in the night with its harsh, rasping double note that sounds exactly like the filing of the great log saw. Its theme-trail is asperity. Its double note on the staff is:

The Baltimore oriole or golden robin or fire bird as the Indians called it, is one of our most beautiful birds. Its theme-trail is tranquil contentment and it comes out melodiously in its curling song whose notes are:

The oven bird, so called from the shape of its nest, has the sharpest song in the forest. It may be described by the syllables: "Kitcee, kitcee, kitcee." They have been variously translated. Burroughs says the note says "Teacher, teacher, teacher." The bird does not mean teacher. We simply give our translation without any dogmatism. If it is incorrect it must be shown to be. The bird is startled and walks in a circle round the mossy knoll where lies his nest. The mother bird is on it. He is patrolling his beat and he clearly says: "Sentry, sentry, sentry." The oven bird has another song which is heard in his morning orison. The notes are:

The great horned owl is the philosophic inquirer of the birds. His theme-trail is that and his onomatopoeia, "Who, o, o, o, o," wonderfully fits it. "Who are you. Who made me. Who knows he knows, just how he knows why what he knows he knew?" The staff score is a chromatic descent.

The stake driver is a difficult bird to translate. And yet, after awhile, like all the rest, it yields to study. It is a slow, flapping, sodden bird, that sounds like the driving down of a stake in the bog. Its theme-trail is sluggish indolence. Its onomatopoeia is: "Punk, a, gunk, a gunk, a, wunk." The translation clearly is: [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. This bird may rise and take a drink out of the clear stream but it can never get the muddy sound out of its throat.

The belted kingfisher sits by the stream near the [illegible] of the pond and watches for fish—dace, roach or [illegible], as the case may be. He is a satirical bird. He will catch a fish, cut it up if too big to swallow, eat it, wipe his bloody beak and then chuckle. He will [illegible] a [illegible] down a stream over the rapids and laugh at their ruin. He is the demon of the stream. His theme-trail is "satire." His note the double chuckle like a watchman's rattle. On the staff they read:

Here is a bird that has been greatly misunderstood as to its song. Thoreau says it is simply "Chip churr." Audubon falls in; so do all the rest in turn. The theme-trail of the scarlet tanager is affectionateness. It fosters starving broods whose mothers have been shot off. It has a beautiful little love song which it sings over the edge of the nest when feeding the young birds: "Here, little dearie! See, little dearie!" The notes are:

The ruby-crowned wren affords one of the most delicious bits of bird translation in the forest. Several birds sing in the night when touched by the moon-beam, notably the rose-breasted grosbeak, the hair bird and several others. I'm sleep in a feathered dream. In the darkness of the night it is still dreaming of the light in its theme-trail of transparency as it sings: "Peep, peep, peep a day, peep."

The notes read:

The robin shows pertly against the meadow. It tends the ground for the cut worm with long, smart [illegible] and runs in long, gliding hops now fast, now slow. It is the symbol everywhere of unstrained cheerfulness. That is its trait. Its hop-calls are: "Cheer-up-up-up. Cheer-up-up-up. Cheerily, cheerily, merrily, merrily."

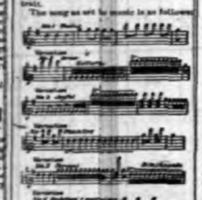
The notes are:

The evening song of the robin is difficult. Whitman listened for it a long time but gave it up at last. It is a minor. We give it alone.

The song of the green warbler is justly praised as being one of the sweetest of the feathered lyrics. It is heard at morning in a high tree and is joyous but at evening in a low bush it is sad. It seems to be addressing some tutelary deity in an imploring supplication. A good translation would be "Hear me St. Theresa." The notes are:

We conclude this list of birds with the song sparrow, which affords as striking an instance as there is on record of the theme of a bird song and its variations, and both based on a theme-trait.

The song as set to music is as follows:



A QUEER SUIT.

How Ben Haney Got a Verdict for Damages.

A Decision That Railroad Companies Have No Right to Move Their Buildings Suddenly and Without Warning When Citizens Are Leaning Against Them.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

In the northeastern part of Alabama there is a class of men known as "leaners." They live in the hills and eat clay as a business. The delicacies of their tables, such as corn bread and [illegible] rind, are acquired by skillful trading of roots and "yarbs." They are called "leaners" because they do not care to sit down—they want to lean against something. There is not a chair in any of their houses, but posts to lean against are driven here and there in the dirt floor, serving for the accommodation of the family and of guests that happen to drop in. Every Saturday a number of these people go to a railway station and stand leaning against the station house all day.

A LEANER AT THE DEPOT.

One of the leading citizens of the "leaning community" is Ben Haney. He is an extremely tall man, with a curved spine, and generally wears a clay stain on the end of his nose. He has been known to go into the woods, tree a coon and lean against the tree until the disgusted coon came down. He was a frequent visitor to Mulberry station, on the T. A. B. railway, and always leaned against the northeast corner. One day recently while he was leaning there the railway authorities moved the house and Ben fell down. He brought suit against the company, and, as some of the ablest lawyers in that part of the country were employed, I do not think that an account of the litigation will be out of date or even uninstructive.

The bill of complaint drawn up by Colonel J. W. Weatherby, Ben's lawyer, read as follows:

"Here comes the plaintiff, Ben Haney, and says that on the 11th of March he went to Mulberry station, a place that he is in the habit of visiting, and that while he was leaning against the northeast corner of said station house the railroad company did then and there maliciously and feloniously hitch horses to the building and did suddenly move it in so much that the plaintiff did fall to the ground and did then and there hurt himself to the amount of one hundred dollars' worth. The railroad company [illegible] well know the habits of the plaintiff and in moving the house, without having given him due and timely warning, was an infraction against the peace and quiet of this community, and the plaintiff does hereby beg and pray that his suit be granted and that the railroad company be made to pay the amount of the said one hundred dollars."

Numerous witnesses were summoned, and the great railway lawyer, D. Anderson [illegible], came on from headquarters. All the challenges were exhausted and it was some time before a jury could be empaneled. A tremor of excitement was felt throughout the entire neighborhood, and a calf show in progress at a village some distance away adjourned to give the people an opportunity to attend the trial. After the hearing of a great deal of testimony, and after many able speeches, the judge, an old and careful jurist, arose and said: "Gentlemen of the jury, I had thought that I could deliver my charge in a few and simple words, but I find that a written charge is necessary; therefore, you will please assemble in this room to-morrow morning to receive instructions."

People that had come long distances, and who expected an early decision, were greatly disappointed, and although some of them were compelled to go home, still the majority of them, recognizing the importance of the case, decided to remain.

JUST NATURALLY FELL OVER.

"Gentlemen of the jury, it is with pleasure that I tell you that justice has asserted itself. Let us take a brief view of this case. The plaintiff, as most of you know, is a man of regular habits. Gentlemen, is it the province of the law to encourage regular or irregular habits in man? On that point there can be no doubt. It was well known to the railroad company that the plaintiff was in the habit of leaning against their house, and they certainly knew that he was leaning there when they got ready to move the station. Would it not have been considerate on their part to have notified the plaintiff that they were hitching horses to the house for the purpose of moving it? This railroad company is a public carrier, a servant of the people, so to speak. The station house belonged to the public, and as the plaintiff is a part of the public, a part of the house, say the northeast corner, belonged to him. The defense sets up the plea that the plaintiff, seeing the preparations to move the house, should have stepped aside. But has the defense proved that the plaintiff saw the preparations? The plaintiff says that he did not, and I don't know but that his word is a little better than the assertion of the company. Gentlemen of the jury, it is high time that a stop be put to the encroachments of these grinding monopolies. Year after year we are compelled to surrender a long-cherished right, and unless a stop is put to it you will have no place to lean after awhile. Stand by the sacred rights of the leaning post; dispute every inch of ground. The station house I understand has been moved half a mile farther up the road. Its former plan and arrangement has not been changed or disturbed, but what assurance have we that we shall be protected if we go there and lean against it? None whatever. Gentlemen, I hereby charge you to bring in a verdict awarding one hundred dollars to the plaintiff."

Great satisfaction was expressed at the result of the trial, for even people that were not directly "leaners" themselves had a strong sympathy for them. But what a roar of indignation went up when it became known that the railroad company was determined to take an appeal to a higher court. The appeal was taken, and as it was of so much interest, it was not suffered to gather dust on the docket, but was taken up at once. Old Judge Illgit drew up the opinion. After flirting with a few well-chosen legal phrases, the judge delivered the following:

"No corporation must presume to interfere with the time-honored customs of the people. A man has much right to lean as he has to sit, but what would be thought of a man that should snatch a bench out from under you while you were sitting? Suppose you were sitting in a public hall, owned by a corporation, and the hirelings of the company should come in by stealth and snatch the seats from under you? Would you not think that you had an action at law? But suppose the corporation had warned you that they were going to take the seats out of the hall at a certain time and you heeded not the warning? Would you still have an action at law? Assuredly not.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

"Now as to the plaintiff in this case. He was, as all the evidence shows, accustomed to lean against the northeast corner of the station house. One day the house was suddenly moved, and he, having nothing to lean against, very naturally fell to the ground. He had not been warned; his attention had not been called to the fact that the house was about to be removed. How was he to know? Are the people expected to anticipate all the movements of railway companies? This court cheerfully sustains the decision of the court below, and would add the following advice to the railroad companies: Hereafter, when you intend to move one of your station houses, tack up a notification on the neighboring trees and fences, or, if you do not see fit to do this, place a soft bedding of straw about your station houses so that in case of sudden removal the people shall not hurt themselves when they fall." OPIE P. READ.

The Pastor's Gentle Hint.

The Rev. Mr. X. is pastor of a congregation in a town in upper New York. His hearers are among the richest people in town, but not celebrated for generosity in supporting the church. The good preacher has been trying to get the poor people to come to his church, and recently, through the columns of the local papers, extended to them a cordial invitation to attend. Last Sunday, at the close of the service, he said: "Brethren, I have tried to reach the poor of our town and induce them to come to our church, and break with us the bread of life. I infer from the amount of the collection just taken—$1.35—that they have come."

At the Ball.

"Who is that lady with such a horridly low-cut dress?"

"That's Miss Cityness, of Chicago. She came here this evening to enjoy the grand ball."

"How did she come from Chicago this evening, when the train hasn't arrived yet?"

"I don't know, but judge from her dress that she rode bare-backed."—Arcola Record.

A Serious Impediment.

Judson—Come and have a game of billiards, Robbins.

Robbins—Can't to-night, Gus.

Judson—What's to prevent?

Robbins—Well, my wife padlocked the pedometer on me when I left the house, and she knows just how much it registers from the house to the office and back again.—Munsey's Weekly.

ATTENTION is being called to the fact that the peak of Teneriffe, in the Canary Islands, at dawn casts upon the ocean a shadow that at first appears to be flat upon the surface, but that gradually seems to rise up until it is perpendicular, and stands apparently a reproduction in black of the real mountain which beside it is white and glowing in the sunlight. The scientific explanation of the phenomenon is that the shadow at first is really flat upon the water, but that, as the heat of the rising sun causes a vapor to rise from the ocean, the shadow gradually becomes cast against the bank of fog instead of upon the water, and is really straight up in the air.

THE attempt to start a Robert Elsmere religion in London has been a partial failure. It is much easier to make such a negative creed a success in a novel, where disagreeable facts can be ignored, than in real life. It seems that the enterprise lags because of the lack of a "prophet." In the meanwhile the money sunk in it is a dead loss.

It was founded in the reign of Charles II. by merchants, with the professed design of "upholding the doctrines of the reformation against the errors of popery, socialism and infidelity." Lecturers of to-day are weekly carrying on the purpose of the founders.

THE widow of a merchant and her daughter arrived at the Russian town of Orel and put up at a hotel, registering as follows: "Merchant widow from Dmitrowsk, accompanied by her unmarried daughter, Jasha, 19 years of age, 10,000 rubles dowry, of fair complexion, with light hair and blue eyes, turned nose, dimpled cheeks. No other bodily defects or special marks."

THE Queen, having been appointed some time ago honorary colonel of the Prussian Guards, has had a uniform made for her at Berlin, which she will wear on meeting the German Emperor at Darmstadt. The distinctive feature of the uniform is a lady's jacket made after the style of that worn by the Prussian dragoons. It is of blue cloth, with red collar, gold stripes and monogram.

PARISIANS were lately treated to a rare effect of mirage. The Eiffel tower was seen surmounted by an inverted image of itself, vertical in the heavens and looking like a duplicate continuation of the real structure. The base of the image lost itself in the upper mist, while behind the tower was a low cloud which gleamed like silver. The sun was shining across the base to the left of the tower and contributed an additional effect of light and shadow.

ELECTRICAL MATTERS.

IT is said that some genius has invented an electric recorder which may be attached to a gas-meter, and which will infallibly and correctly record the exact amount of gas consumed, no matter what may be the vagaries of the meter itself.

IN the new hotel at Tampa, Fla., the electric lights in the sleeping apartments will be so arranged says the Tampa Journal, that they may be made to burn with any degree of brilliancy by turning on or off in the same way as a gas jet or kerosene lamp is regulated to give more or less light. This is the very last invention in electric lighting and will overcome the greatest objection to electric lights in bedrooms, which by all former appliances give their full capacity when used.

AT a certain Berlin cafe, the lighting and ventilation are effected by means of electricity. In the center of the room there are several large glass jars through which passes a platinum wire in spiral form. The electricity, on heating the wire, speedily raises the temperature of the water in the jars to boiling point and prepares the coffee in the sight of everybody. Lastly, a small electric railway transmits the coffee to the various tables, so that the guests may help themselves to their liking.

FOR a number of years exhaustive information on electricity in storms, with special regard to the influence of atmospheric electricity on the telegraph service and on telegraph apparatus, has been collected by the Imperial Telegraph Department, Berlin. At present nine hundred telegraph offices have instructions to keep a record of the cost, duration and direction of storms. From the observations made it appears that, while not absolutely free from the influence of atmospheric electricity, such influence is materially smaller in the case of underground wires as compared with wires above ground.

AT a recent meeting of the British Association at Newcastle, Lord Armstrong related a wonderful incident, which illustrates the laws of diffusion of electric currents through conductors. A bar of steel about a foot long, which he was holding in his hand, was allowed accidentally to come in contact with the two poles of a dynamo in action. He instantly felt a painful sensation of burning, and he let the bar drop. He found his fingers, where they had been in contact with the bar, severely blistered. The bar was found immediately afterward to be quite cold. This proved the outer surface of the steel to have been intensely heated, and that not enough of heat was generated sensibly to warm the whole bar; in other words, that an exceedingly high temperature existed for an exceedingly short time in an exceedingly thin skin of metal.

NOTES ON NOTABLES.

GENERAL EARLY has been the chief contributor to the Lee monument fund at Richmond, Va.

THE new Marquis of Normandy is one of the most popular clergymen in the North of England and is a hard worker.

DR. JOACHIM, the great violinist, has given an annual series of concerts in London for the past thirty years.

SARDOU, the French dramatist, started out as a surgeon's assistant and became a professor of mathematics before he took up play writing.

MRS. CLEVELAND, after a course of violin lessons during the last winter, has already attained an enviable degree of proficiency on that instrument.

HENRIK IBSEN is said to be intensely surprised at his sudden notoriety. He has been writing for forty years and has never received general applause.

WILLIAM ENDICOTT, of Boston, has just entered his ninety-second year. He is the sole survivor of the seventh generation of John Endicott's descendants.

GENERAL CAPRIVI, Bismarck's successor, is an inveterate smoker. He smokes a pipe now and then, but he usually takes his tobacco in the form of cigarettes.

IT is not generally known that Dr. S. Filmore Bennett, the author of the well-known hymn, "The Sweet By and By," is living in his old age in an obscure town in Illinois.

EX-GOVERNOR J. STERLING MORTON, of Nebraska, father of the Arbor day for economic tree planting out that way, says that "more than 600,000,000 trees planted by human hands" are growing in that State.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

PARLOR suits are covered with plush, brocatelle or damask, showing none of the frame. When the frame is visible it may be of mahogany.

SETTEES, with or without glasses attached, have replaced the old-fashioned hatstand. Fancy chairs are still in vogue to put in odd corners.

DINING-ROOM suits are unchanged in form, the woods mostly used being oak, cherry and imitation mahogany. Black walnut for any article is little used.

IN chamber furniture the bureaus have round or oval glasses, low, broad and flat tops, without marble. Mahogany and oak make handsome suits. Brass bedsteads are again in fashion; also beds in white and gold. Oxidized silver and brass trimmings are much used.

TO MAKE furniture look fresh and new many use some good furniture polish, and there are recipes given often that are just as good as that sold by the bottle, but if one has had any experience in varnishing wood, I prefer a thin coat of varnish, which is easily applied, and will look much better and last very much longer than the very best polish to be found.

TO GROW ferns successfully in a drawing-room, says the Table, the pot in which they are planted should be scrupulously clean, an oyster shell at the bottom with convex side downwards; over that a few broken crocks, a small piece of charcoal, a very thin layer of moss, some fresh soil, silver sand and well decayed manure. Watering is the critical point—the difficulty is that no strict rule can be given. Plants should never be allowed to become dry, and they should be watered with a fine rose watering pot over their heads and always sufficiently to quite thoroughly moisten the soil and leaves which should be left dripping. They should never be watered in a frost, and in cold weather only with tepid water. Large-leaved plants should be carefully sponged.

GREAT CATHEDRALS.

THE cathedral at Cologne is one of the most imposing gothic structures in Europe. The original architect is unknown. The length is 511 feet and the breadth 231 feet.

THE cathedral in Mexico, begun in 1573, completed in 1657, is built in an irregular mixture of the gothic and Italian styles. It is 500 feet in length and 420 in breadth.

ST. PAUL'S cathedral in London is the fifth in size of Europe's great churches. Its length is 500 feet, the transept is 285 feet long, and the west front is 180 wide. The dome is 365 feet from the ground, and it is 145 feet in diameter.

THE cathedral of Notre Dame in Montreal is 255 feet long and 135 feet broad, and is capable of seating 10,000 persons. It has two towers, each 220 feet high, one of which contains a chime of bells and the other a single bell, the Gros Bourbon, weighing 29,400 pounds.

THE cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris stands upon the spot once occupied by a Roman temple. The length is 390 feet, width of transept, 144 feet; height of western towers, 224 feet; width of front, 128 feet, and length of nave to transept is 185 feet. The cathedral covers 64,108 square feet.

THE building of St. Peter's occupied 175 years. The length of the interior is 613½ feet; of transept from wall to wall, 446½ feet; height of nave, 152½ feet; of side aisles, 47 feet; width of nave, 77.40 feet; of side aisles, 33½ feet. The height of the dome from the pavement to the top of the cross is 448 feet.

THE Florentine cathedral is in length 500 feet, the transept is 336 feet; the vane is 152 feet high, and the side aisles are ninety-six feet six inches high. The cupola is octagonal in form, 138 feet six inches in diameter, and the height from the cornice of the drum to the eye of the dome is 133 feet six inches.

SANITARY SUGGESTIONS.

THE throwing out of slops around the house should be strictly prohibited; as the practice is very apt to lead to disease among members of the family.

CLEAN out the cellar. At the season of the year, when all nature is busily engaged in renovating everything out of doors, it is time that we were following her example in the house.

SPRING sanitary measures should include everything in and around the house and out-buildings, and are so important that the time spent in carrying them out is used to good advantage.

WHITEWASH may be abundantly and cheaply supplied, and there is no reason why it should not be liberally applied. There is an odor of cleanliness about whitewash, but better still it is cleanliness itself, and likewise a deodorizer and disinfectant.

THE household sink should be carefully looked after, and it is perhaps better to do away with a sink drain altogether. A swill-barrel upon wheels may be made to do the work of the sink drain. It can be kept just below the kitchen window, and have a pipe from the sink discharging into it. The barrel should be emptied daily upon some part of the garden where it will do good by means of the fertilizing matter it contains.

GOOD sanitation is necessary in and around the barns and sheds, for unless such places are kept clean the atmosphere of the home surroundings must of necessity be tainted all summer. Again, when manure is left to rankle and leach during summer in the neighborhood of the barn yard well, the water in the latter becomes polluted, and the milk of the cows drinking it can not be expected to be absolutely healthful.

CARE should be taken that the cellar drains are in proper working order, for during the winter they frequently become clogged and until cleared are unable to carry off the spring rains. Such drains are often sources of danger, if, as is sometimes the case, they lead to or discharge into cesspools where disease-dealing sewer gas is generated. See to it that such gas can not "back up" into the cellar or gain access to the house by means of the drain from the kitchen sink.

QUEER TRANSACTIONS.

THE people of Independence township, Warren County, N. J., voted to pay a bounty of fifteen cents each for ground-hog tails, and now the township treasury is bankrupt.

A STEP-SON of a Mequon (Wis.) farmer lately forced the latter by law to keep a promise made to him in boyhood that if he would remain at work on the farm he would at some future period deed to him forty acres of land.

A FARMER near Chanute, Kan., sold a beef for two cents a pound to a butcher, agreeing to take a quarter of it for his own use. The butcher charged him regular rates for the beef, and when they settled the farmer owed him two dollars.

A WOMAN of Denver sued her husband, who is living in Omaha, for $100,000 cash and a divorce. She says that her husband deserted her in 1884, and that previous to that time they bought some land together in Wyandotte County, Kan., for $2,000, and that this property is now worth $800,000.

DURING the recent Presidential campaign Mr. Brockett rolled a monster ball through thirteen States, a distance of 5,000 miles. His long journey ended in General Harrison's front yard at Indianapolis. Mr. Brockett is now a trench-digger in Washington. He spent all his money on that unlucky ball.

AT FLUVANNA, N. Y., recently there was an entertainment for the benefit of the village church, and dancing, billiards and card-playing were among the amusements indulged in. One hundred dollars was the sum realized. The church for the benefit of which the entertainment was held is known as the Free Church, an edifice in which adherents of all faiths may worship. It is non-sectarian.

THE most phenomenal lawsuit on record is that of a New York man who sued a woman who was to have been his mother-in-law for $50. He had given her that to prepare for his wedding with her daughter, but he had pawned a diamond ring of the latter to raise the money. "No ring, no marriage," said the prospective mother-in-law. So he sued for the $50 and threatened a breach-of-promise suit in addition.

FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

A RESTAURANT at Hamburg is said to be built and furnished entirely of paper.

FEMALE lobbyists are recognized factors of legislation in England, and command high pay.

THE Czar of Russia says that he considers dueling in the army not only allowable but necessary.

IN Victoria, B. C., no mason or stone-cutter will work on a building where Chinese help is employed.

FRANCE now has nearly 2,200 miles of water-way navigable for vessels drawing six and a half feet of water, 1,550 miles being in canals.

ENGLISH farmers are beginning to offer bounties for the destruction of the sparrows, whose damage to the crops has become unbearable.

THE Swedish Oyster Culture Society is trying to acclimatize American oysters from Connecticut on the coast of the province of Bohus. The young oysters seem to thrive well.

THE doctors in the French fleet have been forbidden to practice "hypnotism" on their patients. A similar prohibition was issued some months ago to the French army doctors.

THERE is a craze in London for queer leather. Some shops are stocked with fancy articles made from the skins of all sorts of beasts, reptiles and fishes, including pelican skins, lion and panther skins, fish skins, monkey skins and snake skins, etc.

THE sacrifice of widows on the funeral pier still goes on in Bali, an island near Java. They are burned along with the remains of their husbands. The latter's slaves also share the same fate if he be of high rank. A short time ago three wives of a chief were cremated.

THE important work of draining the Roman marshes, on which the Italian Government has been engaged since 1884, is now well advanced toward completion. The work can only be carried on at certain seasons of the year, owing to the unhealthiness of the district.

THE most fashionable street of Berlin, the famous Unter den Linden, is said to be now the best lighted thoroughfare in the world. It has three lines of electric arc lamps, which are separated by two rows of lime trees. The wires which convey the electricity are underground.

ONE cause assigned for the healthfulness of Chinese cities is that the people boil all water intended for drinking. They never drink cold water. The national beverage, tea, is always "on tap," even in the houses of the poor. Every little hamlet, too, has a shop where hot water can be bought for a trifling sum at any hour of the day or night.

THE Portuguese Government has ordered by a decree that saccharin, whether alone or mixed with any other product, shall be sold by chemists only on the prescription of a legally qualified medical man. Every contravention of this enactment, as well as the employment of saccharin in the manufacture of sweetmeats and drinks, is made punishable by definite penalties.

THE Mexican Post-Office Department is about to adopt a novel device. A phonograph is to be placed in each principal office in the country for the accommodation of the numerous citizens who can not read or write. The illiterate Mexican will go to the post-office, talk his message into the receiver of the phonograph, and when the cylinder reaches its destination the person addressed will be sent for and the message will be repeated to him by another machine.

WHAT IS GOING ON.

IT is reported that in the past fifteen months 71,000 negroes have left North Carolina.

TWELVE THOUSAND letters are received daily at the pension-office. There are now pending 450,000 pension claims.

THE Holland Society of New York is keeping the memory of the early Dutch settlers green by marking historic sites in New York City with appropriate tablets.

A WASTEFUL slaughter of moose is said to be carried on upon the upper Ottawa river, in Canada. The animals are killed merely for their hides and their carcasses are left in the woods.

THE Supreme Court of Mississippi has decided that wine made in that State from grapes grown there may be sold in the State even in prohibitory counties. The laws of the State encourage the manufacture of native wines.

TAKING the census of a nation of 65,000,000 people is a very big job. The Government printing office has just completed the printing of the 20,000,000 enumeration blanks, which weigh in the aggregate 229 tons, and, if spread out, would cover an area of 25,288,333 square feet.

A NUMBER of public-spirited women in Brooklyn have incorporated themselves under the laws of the State under the name of the Women's Health Protective Association, for the purpose of seeing that the streets of the city are kept clean, a thing which the male citizens have not been able to accomplish.

THE grave-diggers of Paris have formed themselves into a protective union. They complain that they earn only five francs a day, and that when they have grown old and infirm they are turned off. In France the cemeteries are under municipal control, and the object of the union is to obtain from the authorities a raise of one franc per day in their wages and a pension on retreat at the end of a stated term of service.

A MOVEMENT is on foot in various Connecticut towns which have defaulted in the payment of bounties promised in 1864 to all soldiers who would re-enlist, and so fill the town quota, to compel the town authorities to make good the promises made. The boys have waited patiently these many years and have at last taken action. Not long ago the courts issued a mandate compelling the town of Norwalk to pay the $100 bounty promised, and the town has paid the score. Comrades in Stamford and other towns are moving in the same direction, and it really looks as if some of the promises made in the years long ago were about to be redeemed.

LITERARY ODDS AND ENDS.

MRS. BURNETT is said to have made a half million of dollars by her literary work.

CANON FARRAR will dedicate his new book, "Truth to Live By," to George W. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger.

HENRY M. STANLEY'S book, when it appears, will be published in French, German, Italian, Czech, Norse, Spanish and English.

EX-EMPEROR DOM PEDRO is writing for a German scientific journal a valuable paper upon the language of the Tupi race, the principal Indian tribe of Brazil.

THE thirteenth anniversary of the publication of Darwin's "Origin of Species" was celebrated in Japan; in England and the United States it was forgotten.

THE first poet laureate was John Kay, in the reign of Edward IV.; the only perquisites of the office are $500 a year and a quantity of wine taken from the royal store annually.

IT is reported that the Emperor of Germany has ordered 500,000 copies of Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward," to be placed in the public libraries of that country.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON is still popular in England. The sixteenth edition of his last story, "The Master of Ballantrae," is announced there. Two editions of the novel have been sold in this country.

T. W. HIGGINSON and Mrs. S. A. Bigelow have for some time been compiling and editing a collection of American sonnets, which they purpose to make the most complete and satisfactory anthology of its kind.

OUIDA uses scent in her hair and on her eyebrows that costs $30 an ounce; she can't bear a piece of muslin that has been starched, and the touch of velvet, she says, makes her flesh creep; she hates the world, likes to offend it in her books and shock it with her manners.

A HISTORY of all the wars in which Russia has been engaged since the time of Peter the Great, is soon to be issued. It will be edited by General Leer, who will be assisted by some of the best known Russian authorities in military matters. Three volumes are nearly ready.

NEW ZEALAND agents in London have offered Mrs. Pender Cudlip, the novelist (daughter of Captain Marryat) $5,000 to go out to New Zealand, and write a novel setting forth its immense advantage to emigrants, her own expenses for traveling and residence and those of a companion to be paid.

R. H. STODDARD says: "We never take up a volume of verse by a new hand without trying to remember that it was a standing rule in the editorial rooms of the Evening Post when it was under the management of Mr. Bryant that young poets were not to be harshly dealt with, for the reason that when he was young himself he was hurt by some ruthless critic."

WHIMS OF THE WITS.

INSINUATING agent—"Can I see the lady of the house, please?" Bridget—"Yer lookin' at her, young man."

DOLAN—"Sure an' Oi can't foind the matches." O'Kelly—"Thin sthrike a loight and luk for them, like a sinsible person."

A WEALTHY and popular Austrian, recently lost 930,000 florins at baccarat, and now he has not money enough to even back a rat-errier in a pit.

"YES," said the poet to the boy, as he stepped into the elevator, "I am going up. I want to feel once more in my life that I'm a rising poet."

"MY wife is practicing with dumb-bells," proudly exclaimed a would-be athlete. "Do you find them any softer than flat-irons?" *queried a wag who over*heard the remark.

A LADY in court being asked her age, replied that she didn't know; she couldn't remember the exact hour she was born, and could only depend on hearsay. Hearsay is not evidence, and the matter was ruled out.

SOCIAL AGITATOR—"Isn't it a shame the way they work the help in this store? Fifteen hours a day and wages almost nothing." Companion—"Why do you trade here?" Social Agitator—"Oh! they sell things so much cheaper!"

"WELL, Mr. Hicks-Dolly," said the lawyer, "what can I do for you to-day?" "I want you to sue the Bazoo for libel." "Libel, eh? How did the Bazoo libel you?" "Oh, it was awful! They published my name without my hyphen."

A WOMAN in a theater recently became so excited by the machinations of the villain that she threw her bonnet at him. Everybody in the audience applauded, the gentleman who sat behind her being particularly enthusiastic in the expression of his approval.

A BOSTONIAN greatly annoyed by a woman in a room over him playing a piano persistently and wretchedly met her in the hall one day, with her three-year-old daughter, and remarked: "Your little daughter plays well for a child of her age; I hear her practicing every day."

AN amateur was showing some of her paintings to a professional, who advised her to send one to a coming exhibition. She objected, saying the work was not good enough. He replied, in a most reassuring manner: "Oh, yes, indeed; it will be accepted. There is lots of trash there."

YOUNG MAN—"I understand you want a young man to help edit your paper." Editor—"Yes, sir; have you had any experience?" Young Man—"I have taken one term in journalism at the Cornell University, and —" Editor—"That will do. You may take my desk and go to work and I'll go and run the elevator. Please be as kind to the rest of the staff as you can."

JONES and Brown were talking lately of a young clergyman whose preaching they had heard that day. The sermon was like a man mentioned in a certain biography—"very poor and very pious." "What do you think of him?" asked Brown. "I think," said Jones, "he did much better two years ago." "Why, he didn't preach then," said Brown. "True," replied Jones, "that is what I mean."

COMMERCIAL CLIPPINGS.

THE bee industry is quite important in Ireland. About 20,000 swarms were kept last year, producing some 500,000 pounds of honey. Ulster county is the center of this business.

THE English market is largely supplied with Danish butter furnished by the co-operative creameries of that highly-cultivated country. English farmers are greatly alarmed at this competition, although twenty per cent. of the receipts for Danish butter are required to pay the transportation and selling charges.

ITALY refuses to admit grape plants from countries which, like the United States, have not adhered to the rules of the anti-phylloxera convention at Berne. Shipments to that country must be accompanied by an officially-certified statement to the effect that the plants are from earth that is at least twenty meters distant from any old vine; that such earth does not contain any vine, and that no vines have been deposited in it; thus making it impossible for young plants to be contaminated by the phylloxera.

THE Metropolitan Trading Associa*tion is the name of a new company* recently formed in London for the purpose of developing the dead-meat trade between America and England. This trade is already very large, the export of fresh beef from this country to Great Britain alone exceeding eleven and one-half million dollars annually. The new company will ship direct from Galveston, Texas, to London, by specially chartered and fitted steamers, thus avoiding all the risk and half the expense of transit by mail steamers.

FROM a report recently published in Connecticut concerning the oyster business in that State, it appears that it is much more remunerative than any of the other large and established industries. There is a capital of $3,322,311 invested in the oyster trade; the receipts are $1,232,146, and when the wages of 1,034 employes and other expenses are deducted there appears to be an actual profit of about 25 per cent. for the year 1888. The largest receipts, $422,070, were from opened oysters. Shell oysters for the domestic market brought in $241,237, but shell oysters for export brought Connecticut oystermen $264,474.

OWING to the existing law in France which allows farmers and fruit-growers to distill alcohol from the fruit grown on their property without any license or supervision by revenue officers, the production of pure brandy has greatly diminished, while the adulterated product is very plentiful. The production of alcohol from wine has fallen in still larger proportion, one gallon being made where seventeen gallons were produced in 1876, and brandy is being made from treacle, beet-root, potatoes, etc. Dried grapes, soaked in boiling water to the point *of fermenta*tion, then mixed with Spanish alcohol and some coloring matter, is extensively sold as wine.

RHYMES RECENTLY WRITTEN.

The Secret of Arcady.

I hied me off to Arcady—
The month it was the month of May,
And all along the pleasant way
The morning birds were mad with glee,
And all the flowers springing up to see,
As I went on to Arcady.

But slow I fared to Arcady—
The way was long, the winding way—
Sometimes I watched the children play,
And then I laid me down to see
The great white clouds sail over me—
I thought they sailed to Arcady.

Then by me sped to Arcady
Two lovers, each on palfrey gray,
And blithe with love, and blithe with May,
And they were rich, and held in fee
The whole round world; and Love is he Who shows the way to Arcady.

I followed on to Arcady—
But I was all alone that day,
And shadows stole along the way,
And somehow I had lost the key
That makes an errant mortal free
Of the dear fields of Arcady.

But still I fared toward Arcady,
Until I slept at set of day,
And in my dreams I found the way;
And all the Fates were kind to me;
So that I woke beneath a tree
In the dear land of Arcady.

What did I find in Arcady?
Ah! that I never must betray;
I learned the secrets of the May;
And why the winds are fresh and free,
And all the birds are mad with glee
That soar and sing in Arcady.

I dwell no more in Arcady—
But when the sky is blue with May,
And flowers spring up along the way,
And birds are blithe, and winds are free,
I know what message is for me—
For I have been in Arcady.
—Louise Chandler Moulton, in Youth's Companion.

The Time to Rhyme.

When kindly night has put to flight
The sun's last lingering ray,
And soothed to rest in slumber blest
The toilers of the day,
I hie me then unto my den
And set my thoughts to rhyme,
For such a task I would not ask
A more propitious time.

I love the sight of sunshine bright,
The trees, the birds, the flowers;
I fondly love the shady grove,
Its quiet nooks and bowers;
But more than all I love the thrall
That night brings on my pen,
For then's the time for me to rhyme—
My muse is gracious then.

Apart from noise which much annoys
A person who has nerves,
The perfect calm, like soothing balm,
A grateful purpose serves;
And then is when, from eyes of men
So restfully secure,
I ease the strain upon my brain,
So killing to endure.

I rhyme of men, and then again
I jingle thoughts of things,
No matter what, so to my pot
My rhyming fullness brings;
But oh! the day, I'm sad to say,
My labor for my pains
Is all the pay—'tis oft the way—
My ablest effort gains.
—Frank D. Welch, in Western Journalist.

A Feminine Superiority.

Men are lords of all creation,
Highest type that God has planned;
In their strength they rule the nation
With a harsh and iron hand.
Man is the superior may be
In the sterner things of life,
But he can't talk to a baby
Half so glibly as his wife.
"Ittle tootsy wootsy treasure,
Uvvy, dovey, precious pet,
Papa's pride and mamma's pleasure;"
She can beat him there, you bet!

Let one of those august creatures
Take a baby in his arms,
And at once his words and features
Fill its heart with wild alarms,
All its tender being trembles,
As his words its ear assail,
For in sound they quite resemble
When a buzz saw strikes a nail:
"Ah there! Take your base, you darling
All your beauty must be hid.
Whoa! you hoodoo, stop your snarling.
Here, wife, take this bawling kid!"
—Chicago Herald.

Sunbeams.

So joyous is my heart to-day
My feet refuse to tread the earth;
My voice breaks forth in ringing lay,
To which my sunny mood gives birth.

I do not even stay to think
If happiness like this will last,
But of the cup I deeply drink,
For blissful moments fly too fast.

Earth smiles her brightest smile on me;
Nature her sweetest music makes;
Bird's song, the breeze, each flower, each tree
In me a new delight awakes.

Ah! would there were no storm nor gloom,
No fading leaves, no wintry cold;
That summer bow'rs would ever bloom;
That lovely things would ne'er grow old.

Yet all this beauty lives again
In pure and cloudless skies above.
Beauty in richer form will reign—
No sorrow there, but only love.
—Annie Bentley, in Golden Days.

The Right Kind of a Fellow.

The right kind of a fellow is modest and mellow,
And generous and brave and benign;
His nature's apparent, and clear and transparent,
Like yours, gentle reader, and mine.

He has no verbosity, no tongue tortuosity,
And never is boastful and loud;
He is gentle and quiet and plain in his diet,
And never gets mad in a crowd.

He is grand and majestic, yet meek and domestic,
And spends his spare evenings at home;
He's a tireless searcher for all kinds of virtue,
Like the perpetrator of this "pome."

He don't play the fiddle, part his hair in the middle,
Nor dress like an angelic dude;
When he goes to a party with Meigs or McCarty,
He never is noisy and rude,

He lives with frugality and sweet hospitality,
And wants pie but two times a day;
He never eats onions, nor treads on your bunions,
Nor growls when you get in his way.

He is wise and he's witty, preserving and gritty,
And has a magnificent head;
He's all light and sweetness, he's thorough completeness;
He's perfection, in short—but he's dead!
—Orchard Lake Howitzer.

The Use of Books.

I read old Kant's Critique of Reason
Quite often in the winter season,
And wonder more each passing minute
If there is aught of reason in it.

I read some poet every spring,
And catch myself a-wondering
If he, the writer, 'tis that's dense,
Or is it I that's lacking sense?

I read in summer some sweet story
Of maidens loved by men of glory.
'Tis very light—like summer wear—
I never find ideas there.

But when the autumn gilds the sheaves,
I gather up the bright-hued leaves;
I press them in mine authors' books,
And learn at last the use of books.
—Carlyle Smith, in Harper's Bazar.

HANDLING RIBBONS.

Driving Is an Art, Although Many Do It Clumsily.

Glen Cairn Tells of Amateurs Who Rule Their Horses, and of Others Who Are Simply Reinsmen—"Running a Horse's Legs Off."

[COPYRIGHT, 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

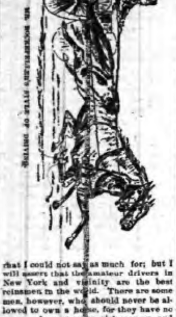
We were sitting by the window of a cosy little room that looks out on the track at Fleetwood Park, when the conversation turned on gentlemen or amateur drivers. My companion was Millard Saunders, the young man who had taken the sensational Guy (when artists like Splan and others had pronounced his temper so bad that he would never make a trotter) and made him the most talked-of horse of the year. Mr. Saunders holds the best record for four-in-hand and tandem driving, and is ranked among the most accomplished reinsmen in the land.

We had been chatting of the great performances of Guy and other kings of the turf.

"What do you think of our amateur drivers?" I asked.

The trainer looked thoughtfully away over the green field that separated us from the track and paused before he made answer.

"There are some of them," he replied, "that I think a great deal of, and others that I could not say as much for; but I will assert that the amateur drivers in New York and vicinity are the best reinsmen in the world. There are some men, however, who should never be allowed to own a horse, for they have no sense. A great many rich men go and buy horses and don't know the first thing about them, and the natural consequence is that although they may have the best intentions, they ill-use their horse so grossly that he becomes prematurely broken down. They may drive him to excess and, not knowing how to take care of him afterwards, leave it to ignorant or lazy grooms who don't care what becomes of the animal.

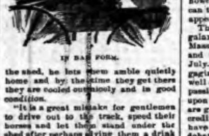


MR. ROCKEFELLER'S STYLE OF DRIVING.

"But I want to tell you about a peculiar thing I have often noticed. I have seen amateur drivers who would buy a horse and day after day bang him along till one would think he must be made of iron to stand it; yet that horse would keep on improving. Why this is, I don't know, but nearly every driver in the profession will tell you he has met cases of this kind in his own experience.

"On the other hand, we have many amateurs whom I consider as fine drivers as there are in the land. Take Mr. Rockefeller, for instance. Now, I myself have learned a great deal from him, and I think he can develop and improve a horse as thoroughly as any man I ever saw.

"How does he do it? you say. Well, he does it because he thinks intelligently. Now, if he wants to speed his horses at the track he jogs them out slowly, speeds them as much as he wishes, and then, instead of tying them up under the shed, he lets them amble quietly home and by the time they get there they are cooled out nicely and in good condition.



IN BAD FORM.

"It is a great mistake for gentlemen to drive out to the track, speed their horses and let them stand under the shed after perhaps giving them a drink of cold water.

"Never put cold water into a hot stomach. If you must give your horse a drink while he is warm, let him have some water that has been standing in the sun and that is tepid; but if you give it to him cold out of the pumps, you stiffen him and make him sore all over. Above all, don't work your horse to excess. If you find he is doing well, leave well alone, and don't go trotting him off his legs.

"By handling a horse in this way I saw the gentleman I have mentioned develope and drive the mare Jessie in 2:19¼, without track work of any account.

"There are many other good gentlemen-drivers, amongst whom I might mention Mr. Ally Bonner and Mr. Work.

"When you drive a horse you mustn't think that you can sit bolt upright in your road wagon and do him justice. Some men's backs are bent the wrong way to drive a horse. You must adapt your hand to your horse's mouth, and you can't do this with your back as stiff as a ramrod.

"Don't hurt the horse's mouth. Try and imagine that your arms are elastic, and let them give-and-take, as it were, with the reins, so that you do not irritate the horse by the constant strain of hard pulling against him.

"If he should happen to break with you, don't saw at his mouth; just take him back gently, and if he does not catch himself, which he generally will in a few jumps, just nip him to one side or the other, depending on which side he catches, for, as you know, all horses do not catch on the same side.

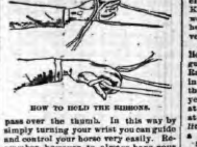
"I think that the majority of gentlemen drivers mean well by their horses. At the same time they unwittingly neglect them. Take their feet, for example (the most important point in the driving horse). Gentlemen drivers generally leave their horses' feet to their groom or blacksmith, and never give it the slightest personal attention.

"If you get a nice set of shoes, that just suit your horse, have them duplicated so that next time you want him shod you know he will have just what suits him. Above all, don't let any blacksmith pare your horse's feet down too much. A horse's foot should be handled with reference to the growth of it and according to his size and weight. I think the convex shoes are the best to use for gentlemen's road driving, for they will not pick up stones or throw much dirt. If you only handle your horses carefully, you can drive them a good deal on the road and not injure them; but you must give them some of your personal attention. Now as to handling your reins" said Mr. Saunders, "of course that depends altogether on the kind of horse you are driving and it is unnecessary for me to say anything about the matter when you use both hands, as most road drivers nowadays have hand-holds on their reins and it is only a simple question of slipping your hands into them.

"But when one speaks of driving with one hand it alters the question materially and requires some thought.

"A great many people drive with the reins passed through their fingers. It seems to be the most natural way for one to take hold of his reins. I can not say, however, that I think it is the best for the simple reason that it gives one little or no leverage by which to control or guide your horse.

"I have found the best method is to cross your reins through the palm of your hand, letting the rein which comes between your first finger and thumb pass over the thumb. In this way by simply turning your wrist you can guide and control your horse very easily. Remember, however, to always have your right hand free in case of accident.



HOW TO HOLD THE RIBBONS.

"Be sure to get your horse bitted properly. You must get a bit that your horse likes. Some horses will almost pull your arms out with a severe bit, but will give no trouble at all if you put a leather or rubber bit in their mouths. Again, you may have your horse checked too high. I consider this hard and cruel on the horse that may have been on the road all the afternoon, and it is sure to irritate him so that in many cases he will commence to act badly. Lengthen your check to a reasonable extent and you will find, in nine cases out of ten, it will benefit both the horse and yourself.

"As to the use of the whip, I have noticed many amateur drivers who whip their horses for every little mistake, such as shying, etc. A whip is like a very poisonous drug that must be used seldom and in small quantities. If I said that under no circumstances should you whip a horse, I think I would not be far wrong, for it only adds fuel to the fire. If a horse should shy when driving, try and make him acquainted, in the most peaceable way you can, with the object he is afraid of. You must teach your horse to have confidence in you, and when he once has this he will learn to rely on you. If you have been kind to a little colt, and something frightens it, it will run at once towards you. The horse can be taught reliance in man just as implicitly and more intelligently.

"Some horses know more than the men who drive them," added Mr. Saunders, jocosely, in conclusion.

AN ORATOR FACTORY.

The House a Field for Developing Forensic Gifts.

New Orators Whom the Fifty-First Congress Has Brought to the Front—Greenhalge's Rapier and Spinola's Butcher Knife.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

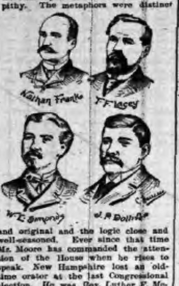
The Fiftieth Congress developed some fine orators and otherwise. Among them were Henry Cabot Lodge, William Bourke Cockran, General Spinola, Isador Rayner, Benjamin F. Shively, Asher G. Caruth, Stephen V. White, M. M. Boothman, Ashbel P. Fitch, Melbourn H. Ford, Robert P. Kennedy and Marion Biggs. Messrs. Cockran and White refused a renomination. Ford and Rayner were defeated. The others were re-elected.

The Fifty-first Congress is doing full as well in the development of orators as its predecessor. In the Fiftieth Congress Cockran and Rayner won the palm on the Democratic side. Lodge was the most prominent orator brought to light among the Republicans. In this Congress the situation is reversed. The Republicans have produced more new orators and otherwise than the Democrats. There are many modest men, however, among the latter, and no one can tell when a new oratorical star will appear in the legislative firmament.

The first to blaze in the Republican galaxy was Frederick T. Greenhalge, of Massachusetts. He is of English birth, and will be forty-eight years old next July. He has a clear voice and an engaging air. His gestures are few and well chosen. He speaks calmly and dispassionately. His arguments are strung upon threads of sarcasm. Deadly thrusts are given with a grace that would do credit to a French fencing-master. Few have the temerity to interrupt him in debate. He is picturesque and thrilling in his illustrations. When driven into a corner he can change front in a twinkling. In parry and thrust he has no rival. Greenhalge is a member of the committee on elections. There were seventeen election cases in the House. Thus a splendid field was presented for the display of his talents. When he rises to speak every body listens. There will be a great time if he ever encounters General Spinola. Such a combat would probably provoke more interest than any that has been witnessed in the House of Representatives for years. Greenhalge uses the rapier and Spinola the butcher-knife. Mr. Greenhalge is a man of middle stature, with light complexion, small blue eyes and a forehead that ends at his bump of philoprogenitiveness. He is frequently mistaken by his comrades for that shrewd lawyer and bright speaker, Hon. Jacob Geissenhainer, of New Jersey.

An oratorical meteor has recently appeared in the Iowa delegation. He is Hon. Jonathan P. Dolliver, of Fort Dodge. Dolliver was born in Virginia thirty-two years ago. He is a graduate of West Virginia University. He took front rank among the orators in the Fifty-first Congress in the debate upon the pension appropriation bill. More eloquent words have not been heard in the House for years. He has a ringing voice and utters rythmic sentences with marvelous fluency. He speaks with the utmost ease, and at times uses graceful gestures. Dolliver is well knit. His eyes are large and his cheeks ruddy. He has his double in appearance on the Democratic side in the person of Hon. John D. Alderson, of West Virginia. He advertises himself in the Congressional Directory as unmarried. He is a lawyer and his associates aver that his parents are wealthy.

The Granite State has also sent a new orator to the National councils. He is Hon. Orrin C. Moore, of Nashua. Moore is tall and thin, but carries his fifty years as though they were but forty. He wears spectacles and a beard and has early iron-gray hair. He is a printer and an editor. He flashed upon the House about ten o'clock at night in the debate over the new rules. The galleries were filled with delighted listeners. The discussion had been dull and uninteresting. Yawns gave place to exclamations of delight and it was with difficulty that the spectators refrained from applauding the orator. His ideas were conveyed in sentences short and pithy. The metaphors were distinct and original and the logic close and well-seasoned. Ever since that time Mr. Moore has commanded the attention of the House when he rises to speak. New Hampshire lost an old-time orator at the last Congressional election. He was Rev. Luther F. McKinney, a tariff-reform Democrat. It would be well worth a day's wages to hear McKinney and Moore in controversy.



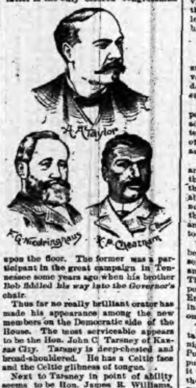
Another orator among the Republicans is Hon. John Raines, of Canandaigua, N. Y. He is a brother of George Raines, a well-known Democratic orator in New York State. George presided at the State Democratic convention two years ago. John has not yet appeared at his best in Congress. He took a dash at the world's fair business and had a little skirmish with General Spinola in a pension debate.

St. Louis has turned out a fair orator in Hon. Nathan Frank. He has thin features and a modest bearing. His voice is good and his words well chosen.

Other new Congressmen who have distinguished themselves in debate on the Republican side of the House are Hon. Fred Lansing, of Watertown, N. Y.; Hon. John F. Lacey, of Oskaloosa, Ia.; another Virginian, and Hon. Charles Augustus Hill, of Joliet, Ill. Hill is a man of independent thought and action. He voted against the unseating of Cate, an Arkansas Democrat who was sent to the House by over thirteen hundred majority. Fearing his eloquence, the Republicans called the previous question and shut him put from debate. Lacey is a member of the committee on elections and has made the opening speeches in two election cases. Lansing has aired his eloquence in the State Senate in New York. He was a gallant soldier in the army, and is as handsome as he was brave. A good talker among the Republicans is Hon. William E. Simonds, of Connecticut, the successor of Hon. Robert J. Vance. Simonds very appropriately landed on the committee on patents. He is a patent lawyer. When he made his first speech everybody in the House was startled. He has a deep baritone voice so heavy that it jarred the heart of every listener.

The quaintest of the Republican orators is the Hon. Frederick G. Neidringhaus of St. Louis. He scatters like an old musket, and his gun kicks unmercifully. The shot fly all over the House, but tickle the members more than they hurt them. His world's fair speech produced unbounded merriment. Members laughed till the tears ran down their cheeks. The only really stolid man on the floor was Neidringhaus himself.

Two new members, said to be Republican orators, have thus far maintained a dignified silence. They are the Hon. Alfred A. Taylor, of Tennessee, and H. P. Cheatham, of North Carolina. The latter is the only colored Congressman upon the floor. The former was a participant in the great campaign in Tennessee some years ago when his brother Bob fiddled his way into the Governor's chair.



Thus far no really brilliant orator has made his appearance among the new members on the Democratic side of the House. The most serviceable appears to be the Hon. John C. Tarsney of Kansas City. Tarsney is deep-chested and broad-shouldered. He has a Celtic face and the Celtic glibness of tongue.

Next to Tarsney in point of ability seems to be Hon. James R. Williams, of Illinois. Mr. Williams was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Richard W. Townshend. He has made three or four able speeches. They were delivered without any attempt at effect, and they came hot from his heart, but tempered with judgment. He is a thin, narrow-chested gentleman with sunken eyes and high cheek-bones. His long, black hair droops over his forehead as he talks. His voice is clear and his oratory fervid and attractive. Despite his modesty, he is sure to become a prominent member of the House.

One of the brightest of the new Democratic orators keeps his light hid under a bushel. He is the Hon. Charles J. Boatner, of Louisiana. Boatner made a speech in caucus one night that stirred the heart of every man who heard it. A similar speech made in open House would have attracted universal attention and have awakened much newspaper comment.

The Democrats lost a promising orator when the Republicans thrust William Henderson Cate, of Arkansas, from the hall. He pleaded his own cause so successfully that several Republicans voted against unseating him. If his party associates had all been present he would have retained his seat. Several of them were absent without pairs, and others had dead pairs.

Hon. Charles H. Turner, of New York City, is another rising orator in the Democratic ranks. He is the ice-man elected to fill the vacancy from New York City last fall. He has a good voice and a ready flow of language. He talks easily and gracefully and upon almost any subject.

The germs of oratory are seen in the speeches of General Thomas J. Clunie, of San Francisco; Augustus M. Martin, of Indiana; Joseph H. O'Neil, of Boston; Rice A. Pierce, of Tennessee; John Quinn and John Henry McCarthy, of New York City. Edward J. Dunphy, of New York City, has spoken only once and created a very favorable impression.

There are young men in the Democratic ranks who have maintained a strict silence, but who have a reputation for eloquence. One of these is Hon. Thomas F. Magner, of Brooklyn, the next to the youngest member of the House. Another is Hon. H. St. George Tucker, of Virginia, son of John Randolph Tucker. A third is Hon. John F. Andrew, of Boston, son of the great war Governor of Massachusetts. Each of these orators is liable to come to the front at any moment. It should not be forgotten, however, that the conditions attending discussions in the House are not favorable to oratorical development. Roscoe Conkling remained in Congress two years before he took the floor. He afterward became a leader of his party in both houses, a leader in his State and a leader in the Nation.

DOMESTIC DRIFT.

DRINK at close of meals, not too strong nor too hot; never a full glass of very hot or very cold liquid to wash down food, as the saliva is wasted and stomach flooded.

POTATO BUNS.—Boil four good-sized potatoes, mash and sift through a sieve; add one and one-half pints of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one pint of cream or milk; form in small cakes and bake in a greased tin.

IT does not follow that sick persons are asleep because their eyes are shut; they may be acutely conscious of all that is passing in the room, though unable or unwilling to make any sign; and nothing can be more nerve-provoking than hushing and whispering around and creaking about on the tips of their toes.

TO BAKE beans without pork, they can be dipped into a pan when nearly done, seasoned with cream, salt and pepper, and baked in a slow oven for an hour. The pea bean is the best for this purpose. A favorite method with New-Englanders is to use a little molasses instead of pork, about two spoonfuls to one quart of beans.

TAPIOCA CREAM PUDDING.—Four large tablespoonfuls of tapioca soaked over night in a little over one pint of milk. Put the tapioca and milk into a tin, and put the tin in a pot of boiling water; let it cook until tapioca is clear. Stir in the beaten yolks of three eggs, one-half cup of dessicated cocoanut, and vanilla and sugar to taste. Cook two or three minutes longer. Pour into a pudding-dish and spread with the beaten whites of the eggs and a little cocoanut. Brown slightly in the oven.

CAROLINA QUEEN CAKES.—Work a quarter of a pound of butter to a cream, dredge to it half a pound of flour, add a quarter of a pound of sifted sugar and a quarter of a pound of currants; whisk two eggs, and mix with half a teacupful of thin cream and a few drops of lemon essence; stir this to the flour, and then add a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat the paste well for ten minutes, then bake in small buttered tins for from a quarter to half an hour. The mixture should be stiff and doughy. This amount is enough to make a dozen cakes.

IF stoves and stovepipes are set away in the spring they will gather rust. Every housewife knows that in the fall there is hard work to clean stoves eaten with rust. Now, to prevent this take a gill of boiled linseed oil, a gill of kerosene oil and a tablespoonful of spirits of turpentine, well mixed together, and put over the stoves and pipes, and they will be kept smooth and bright. Much hard labor will thus be avoided. Wipe off the zinc that the stove stands on, too, before putting it away, and it will remain bright and nice.

ACTING [illegible] AND VOTING [illegible].

The legislator who boldly avows his settled convictions of right, and with his vote manfully sustains them, is deserving of honorable mention and the respect even of opponents.

But what of him who speaks one way and then votes directly the opposite.

Is he not beneath contempt?

An incident occurred the other day at Washington. A prominent Republican Congressman from Ohio argued forcibly against the make-up of McKinley's tariff.

He thereby no doubt uttered his honestly formed sentiments.

Yet, when the question on the final passage of the bill was taken, the same distinguished gentleman from Ohio voted aye!

By his vote repudiating his declared opinion.

The party lash was snapped over his head, and like a cowed spaniel he crawled back into the caucus kennel.

Neither heroes nor patriots are made of such Congressional material as that.

McKINLEYISM.

The Chicago Tribune (Republican) takes no stock in the McKinley tariff bill. It vigorously antagonizes the Congressional project, and in a recent article thus declared:

"Political common sense suggests that it is wretchedly bad politics to push the present high duties still higher when the [illegible] in effect will be to drive still more trades-union voters into the Democratic low-tariff ranks, as well as to damage and disgust the consuming masses and please only a handful of paper-proof stockholders in Trusts and combines."

There you have it truthfully stated. Not by a Democrat, but from the pen of a prominent Republican editor of the West.

And furthermore such expressed tariff reform sentiments are openly avowed by thousands of his political friends.

The fact cannot be disguised, that the McKinley tariff measure, passed through the House of Representatives by gag-law tactics, was framed for a special object; not to protect general industry, not to encourage legitimate trade and commerce, not to benefit the laboring masses, not to relieve agricultural interests from onerous burdens, but to recompense and make richer a mercenary horde who liberally contributed funds for crooked political purposes.

And, adding insult to injury, politicians of the McKinley-Quay school entitle such a scheme "protection to American industry."

Aye, it is protection of a certain kind. Protection to the favored few at the expense of the toiling many.

Protection to heartless avarice, but deadening taxation to honest labor and enterprise.

Protection!

What arrant deceptions have been committed in its name?

The workingmen of this country are intelligently alive to the situation. They cannot be longer led away by demagogues offering them a deception falsely labeled protection. They know the genuine from the spurious article. At a meeting recently held in New York they voiced judgment as follows:

"Whereas, We believe that a reduction of the tariff would be followed by increased opportunities for the application of labor, and a reduction of the price of the necessaries of life, thereby improving the condition of all wage workers; therefore

Resolved, That it is absolutely necessary before any improvement in the wage-earners condition can be made, that the tariff wall which obstructs commerce shall be removed."

Words of soberness and truth.

A Vindication.

The readers of THE PRESS will remember that a few months ago it copied an article from another paper regarding a difficulty arising between contractors Cameron & Clark, and the Kinderhook and Hudson Railway Co., resulting in the illegal arrest and detention for a time of Mr. Cameron, who is a respected citizen of this place. Mr. Cameron claimed that injustice and injury was done him by the arrest, and subsequently prosecuted the railroad company, who awarded him damages and sent the firm an apologetic letter, which the following, taken from the New York World of May 3[illegible], will explain:

THE KINDERHOOK COMPANY APOLOGIZES.

An echo of the scandal of the Kinderhook Railroad strike was heard yesterday, when John Cameron and George S. Clark, composing the firm of Cameron & Clark, contractors, [illegible] the following letter which had been received by them from J. V. Clark, the President of the Kinderhook and Hudson Railway:

[illegible]

A strike had occurred on the work of Cameron & Clark on pay-day and the firm refused to pay the men until they went to work and the company gave them payment in full for work done on the road. The company had orders of arrest issued for Cameron & Clark, but upon trial the case was a failure.

The McAll Mission.

(From the Baltimore American.)

The McAll Mission, begun eighteen years ago by an English minister and his wife, in the midst of the lowest and worst [illegible] quarter of the Paris Commune, is exciting great interest among the churches of America. A few days ago the parent society, whose quarters are in Philadelphia, held its annual meeting in Boston, on which occasion the Rev. Dr. Storrs of Brooklyn, and the Rev. Phillips Brooks of Boston, contributed their [illegible] eloquence. Dr. Brooks said: "I [illegible] that France is to be [illegible] by England or America, but we believe that there is in the spiritual life of France a great body of material, a great mass of fuel, which only needs to be touched with the divine fire, that only waits for any weakest hand—it may be the hand of a child—to touch that fuel off and kindle a flame that shall warm and illumine that great, great land. I am sure we have been interested to-night in knowing that there is such an association between our own city and that city of Paris, and of the work that is going on there. It is always interesting—some of us have done it—to turn aside from the splendid confusion of the Parisian streets and go into the little hall, so quiet, so simple, so plain, sometimes so shabby, and to find there something that [illegible] [illegible] a few people gathered together, all the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] meeting place."

PERSONAL.

WELCH—McGEE.

The wedding took place, Tuesday night, of Miss Adelaide Frances McGee, daughter of School Trustee James McGee, of North Plainfield, ex-President of the New York Produce Exchange. The groom was the Rev. Herbert Welch, who, although a young son of wealthy parents, has devoted his life to the ministry, and has already given promise of a noticeable future. In his present pastorate, at Bedford Station, N. Y., he doubled the membership and congregation in a few months.

The ceremony was performed in the M. E. church at seven o'clock, by the Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell—E. R. Foley, a college classmate of the groom's, delivering the prayer of benediction. The bridal gown was of white faille richly combined with brocade, and she wore a veil of tulle. The maid of honor was her sister, Miss Emma McGee, in heliotrope. The bride carried a bouquet of [illegible] roses and lily of the valley, and entered the church on the arm of her father preceded by the ushers: James R. Joy and Clifford McGee of this city, Dr. George McDowell, Edward Slaybeck and James Welch, of New York, and W. S. Ashbrook of Philadelphia. The groom's attendant was his brother, O. L. Welch.

There has never been so large an attendance of ladies in full dress, and prominent people of New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and other cities, at a church wedding in Plainfield before. The rule of admission only to those favored with cards of invitation, was also for the first time strictly enforced, and the consequence was a ceremony exclusively amid environments of refinement and entire good taste. Dr. E. W. Hodges' charming selections on the organ, added also to the delightful effect of the occasion. A reception was subsequently tendered about 200 guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McGee. Supper was served by Mazetti, and the orchestra was led by Ernest Neyer, of New York. Private cars left this city for New York, shortly after ten o'clock, with Mr. and Mrs. Welch and a large number of their friends.

RUNYON—BULKLEY.

In the Lee Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, took place the marriage of Miss Mary W. Bulkley of that city, and Mr. Howard J. Runyon, of West Front street, one of the Directors of the Y. M. C. A., and a prominent member of the Plainfield Bicycle club. The pastor of the church officiated, assisted by the uncle of the bride. The ceremony was simple and impressive.

Miss Bulkley was attired in a plain but rich traveling costume, and carried a beautiful bouquet of red clover. The ushers were Mr. Townsend Rushmore, of this city, and Messrs Baker, Swift and Bulkley, of Brooklyn, the last a cousin of the bride. The groom's gifts to them, were scarfs and handsome pins. Among those present were guests from Plainfield, including Mr. Runyon's parents.

The newly wedded couple have started on a well-planned trip that will occupy a fortnight. Subsequent to its completion, they will live in this city for a time.

DECORATION DAY AT THE NETHERWOOD.

A Guest Tells How the Wheelmen Were Respected There.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS—The first great event of the season was the assembling of the New Jersey Wheelmen at the Hotel Netherwood, Decoration Day. The State was well represented from Plainfield, Roselle, Elizabeth, Newark, Morristown, Trenton and other noted localities. One hundred and forty members of the L. A. W. registered their names in the hotel register. They were a fine body of men, and elicited general admiration from the guests of the hotel for their graceful evolutions on their wheels. The members at bugle call assembled on the lawn in front of the hotel, where two expert photographers [illegible] snap pictures of the wheelmen and their friends. The day was propitious for the event, and the members thoroughly enjoyed their visit in so far as your correspondent was able to judge.

Another event, the dinner, was announced at 4 o'clock. The bugle call brought the members together, when they fell into line and marched into the grand dining room, where a sumptuous repast awaited them, specially prepared for the occasion by the excellent Chef of the hotel, under the guidance of our good host, Mr. Frank E. Miller, whose reputation in that line is evidenced in the following menu.

The Menu was intended to be a souvenir of the Meet and was really a work of art, and eagerly sought for by the members. We passed Decoration Day with many other pleasant incidents by the way, at this charming hotel and home on the Heights. The Wheelmen were delighted with their reception and entertainment, and the whole affair may safely be pronounced a success in the fullest acceptation of the term.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

ANOTHER LONG AND TEDIOUS SESSION.

Additional Liquor License Applications Presented—The Sanitary Condition of Green Brook Considered—A Committee Appointed to Purchase Horses for the Fire Department, and Many Other Details "Too Numerous to Mention."

The regular June meeting of the City Council was held Monday night, all the members being present, Messrs Johnston and Jenkins coming in later. The minutes of the two previous meetings, regular and special, were approved with slight alterations.

Under the routine of business George B. Rockafellow was nominated by Mayor Mills as a special policeman. The nomination was confirmed.

Petitions for wholesale liquor licenses were presented by the following, all of which were referred to the License Committee where they remained: Matthew Kirkpatrick, at No. 79 West Sixth street; M. F. Watson, at No. 15 Grant avenue, corner of South Second street; Augustus H. Khrone, on Madison place, between Second and Third streets.

Mary R. Lewis and others petitioned the Council to accept a driveway known as "Westervelt avenue extension," extending from East Front street to Green Brook, to a point opposite Robert Carey's house. Referred to Street Committee.

Chas. H. Hand communicated with the Council to the effect that he would sell to the city his building on West Second street at a reasonable price. Referred.

The Secretary of the Board of Health again called attention to the urgent necessity of considering the unsanitary condition of the outlet to the New street sewer. The matter was referred to the Street Committee, which Committee, through its Chairman, Mr. Smith, reported that already steps had been taken to alleviate the complaint.

John Hickey of Plainfield avenue, communicated to Council the alleged fact that when in 1874 Plainfield avenue was widened, he was awarded $25 for the removal of his fence and for other damages, which he claimed accrued to him at that time. The money, he said, had never been paid, but the matter was referred to the Law and Ordinance Committee for adjudication.

President Geo. W. Rockfellow, of the City Board of Health, asked for an appropriation of $200, which is to be used in conjunction with an appropriation from the Borough Board of Health, for the purpose of putting Green Brook in a sanitary condition from Tier's dam to Codington's saw mill. Referred with power.

Petitioners asked for street lights as follows, all of which were referred with power: Three lights on Netherwood avenue; two on Denmark avenue, and an additional lamp on LaGrande avenue.

Chief Doane, from the Board of Engineers, submitted a list of the recently elected fire department officers. They were all confirmed, without a dissenting voice.

The monthly reports of the Collector and Treasurer were presented and referred. The former showed the total receipts to be $3,122.20, and the latter, showed a balance of over $6,000 in the general fund and over $1,500 to the credit of the Fire Department fund.

City Judge Codington reported that since March 3, 94 prisoners had been arraigned before him; some have been committed; others fined and two have been held for the Grand Jury. The total fines amounted to $251.1. The report was referred to the Finance Committee.

The quarterly report of the Overseer of the Poor was referred to the Alms Committee.

Chief Doane reported the fire department apparatus in good working order. He recommended the purchase of 1,500 feet of new hose, and also that the Board of Engineers make the necessary arrangements for protection against fire on the Fourth of July. The Chief's recommendations were adopted. He also in behalf of the Board of Engineers, submitted for confirmation the names of S. H. Whitney as a duly elected member of Alert Hose Company, and M. Vanderweg as a duly elected member of Gazelle Engine Company. Later on they were confirmed.

The City Clerk's report showed a total collection from licenses, etc., $982.61, which amount, he said, had been paid to the treasurer.

Several petitions for hack and cartmen's licenses were presented, referred and subsequently granted.

Messrs Edward Love and Chas. P. Sebring petitioned Council to widen Peace street, and Mr. Chauncey Bell and others in their petition, presented for the same purpose, agree to give eight feet each of their property, provided first, that the street shall be opened up as far Northward as Green Brook; second, that no special assessment shall be made upon them for said improvement; third, that the city shall relay sidewalks, curb, and remove fences; fourth, that the work shall be completed by Nov. 1. Referred to the Street Committee.

CLAIMS.

Besides the usual batch of poor bills and the claims for work on the streets, the following were presented and referred:

F. W. Nash, $67.00; T. W. Morrison, $19.30; Times, $25.20; E. H. Holmes, $22; E. A. Meeker, $26.75; J. E. Stewart, $10.50; B. Fougère, $10; Marvin Safe company, $90; J. R. Naylor, $4; Electric Light Co., $675.17; L. H. Bigelow, $13.75; R. Hering, $360; John Johnson, $125; A. Titsworth, $37.50; W. R. Codington, $150; G. W. Grant, $104.75; J. Cooney, $60; C. Grasse, $60; P. Lynch, $60; P. J. Flanagan, $60; W. B. Mattox, $12.30; E. Laine, $60; T. McCue, $60; W. H. Sebring, $114.50.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

J. E. Waters, $6.25; George Conover, $41.00; F. B. Fiser, $13.33; W. Scott & Co., $4.50; F. A. Giersbner, $5; Plainfield Gas Co., $12.00; S. G. Doane, $51.50; I. O. Doane, $52.00.

Mr. Newhall, from the Select Committee, appointed to consider the matter of having the freight house removed, together with a committee of citizens, reported that the latter committee had failed to materialize. He asked that the committee's instructions be changed, or else to have the committee discharged from further duty. Whereupon it was unanimously agreed and the Select Committee was authorized to confer direct with the railroad officials with reference to the removal of the freight house.

[illegible] offered, on behalf of the Water Committee, a resolution which was unanimously adopted, requesting the Water Board to have an analysis made of the proposed supply of water, and to submit the same to the State Board of Health, the cost to be deducted from the fund paid to the city by the Water company.

The same Committee reported correct the bill of Engineer Hering. He also presented report No. 4 from the engineer, in which it was stated that progress thus far had been slow, but the contractors have promised rapid advancement; fourteen wells have been sunk, and more are well under way; the architectural designs for buildings, etc., are with Architect [illegible].

Mr. Hetfield, from the Fire and Building Committee, recommended granting the petition of Chas McGinley, presented at a former meeting. The petition was granted.

Mr. Roberts, from the Police Committee, reported back as correct all the previous claims, with the exception of Wm. H. Sebring's, which, he said, was not sworn to, but was signed by ex-Chief Carey. Of course the claim was not paid.

The Street Committee, through its Chairman, reported that a certain part of Kensington avenue, asked for by petitioners, could not be accepted by the city because the avenue has not yet been properly laid out, flagged or curbed. The report was filed.

Mr. Smith offered a resolution which finally prevailed, after much discussion, but with little antagonism, to the effect that a committee of three, including the chief, be appointed to purchase five horses for joint use on the streets and for fire department purposes, at a cost not to exceed $1,000. It was amended to the effect that one-half of the cost be deducted from the fire department fund and the balance from the general fund.

In referring to the above resolution Mr. Newhall thought it would be wise to wait for a time and see what facilities the water works would offer; expending $1,000 for horses, at the present time, he wisely considered, might over-run the appropriation.

Mr. Smith spoke in favor of the city owning its own horses, purely as a matter of economy. Mr. Hetfield also favored it, but thought that an equal division of the cost should be borne by both the fire department and the Street Committee.

Chief Doane was asked to make a statement of the facts: He said that the city was now paying on an average, $6.25½ a month each for horses which are practically in all parts of the United States; he considered it highly essential that the city own its own horses, and cited instances, particularly in Orange, where the horses are owned by the city and where part of them are out doing duty on the streets, while some are held in reserve in case of fire.

As above stated the resolution was adopted Messrs Dunham, Jenkins, Johnston and Newhall, voting "No." The latter gentleman explained his vote by stating that there were insufficient facts present to warrant his doing otherwise; Messrs Dunham and Johnston, asked permission to change their vote so as to be recorded as voting in the affirmative, and the chair granted their request, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Newhall objected, at the same time requesting the president to present at the next meeting his authority for such a decision. President Moffett informed Mr. Newhall that when a motion was made to re-consider a vote, he would entertain it, but when a member of the Council desired to change his vote on any particular question, that member had the privilege of so doing.

A resolution by Mr Smith, authorizing the Street Commissioner to purchase necessary carts, etc., at a cost not to exceed $200, was adopted, all voting aye.

NEW BUSINESS.

Upon resolution of Mr. Dunham, the treasurer was authorized and empowered to borrow $500 from the general fund and deposit the same to the credit of the poor fund.

Mr Spangenberg offered a resolution which prevailed, making it compulsory that ex-Chief Tunis J. Carey report at the next meeting what he has spent out of the $200 appropriation the city allowed him to detect illegal sellers, and that the balance be paid over to Captain Geo. W. Grant.

Upon motion of Mr. Hetfield, the monthly allowance of the janitors of No. 1 and No. 2 Engine houses, was increased from $5 to $10 a month.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Ordinances were called for third reading and adopted as follows: One relating to the city physician; another repealing certain ordinances; also the ordinance extending Orchard place from its present Northeastern terminus to New street, Mr. Newhall alone voting "No."

Mr. Newhall's sidewalk ordinance was called to its third reading for final passage, but upon motion of Mr. Hetfield it was referred back for further consideration, Messrs Johnston, Newhall and Rushmore voting "No."

At this juncture of the proceedings, President Moffett appointed Councilmen Smith, Roberts and Hetfield, as the Committee to act with Chief Doane, in purchasing the fire department horses.

Mr. Newhall reported back to Council two maps, one of which had previously been reported by the Fire and Building Committee, locating 250 hydrants, and the other laying 23 3-10 miles of piping. In connection with this, a resolution was adopted, requesting the Water Board, the Chief, and Engineer Hering to confer with the Water Works company, with reference to the location of hydrants.

An ordinance establishing the grade on Belvidere avenue, was read for the third time, and referred back for consideration.

The Auditing Committee reported and the Council adjourned at 10:45 P. M.

LAKE HOPATCONG AND ITS BEAUTIES.

Plainfield People Make the Banner Catch of the Season.

There was quite a number of Plainfield people at Lake Hopatcong on Decoration Day, a special car being provided for them, which ran the entire route without change. Among the excursionists were the families of Postmaster E. B. Pope, Rudolph Titsworth, Charles Potter, Jr., and Geo. Babcock, ex-Postmaster Force and wife, the Misses Fish of New York, Mr. J. Simpson and wife of Fanwood.

Several of the visitors remained over until Monday, enjoying the delightful scenery, air and sailing, and to try their skill at fishing. The banner "catch" on Decoration Day, was by Mr. Rudolph Titsworth of this city, who landed nine black bass and pickerel which tipped the scales at 18 pounds. One of the bass weighed 3½ pounds.

The banner catch of the trip, however, was by Messrs "Jack" Simpson of Fanwood, and ex-Postmaster W. L. Force of this city, who on Monday captured with their "little rods" sixty-seven black bass, pickerel and perch, which weighed eighty-two pounds. The fish were brought home and distributed among friends. Some unknown party, however, unlawfully appropriated Mr. Titsworth's fish to their own use during the night.

Among the many cottages accommodating guests at Hopatcong is the "Van Over House," which, with its attractive grounds and home-like accommodations, is a general favorite, especially with Plainfield people. The best guide on the Lake is Mahlon Decker, and the best place to get boats and bait is at Mahlon Smith's.

Plainfield's Good Showing in the Elizabeth Tournament.

On Friday last, the first of the two days' tennis tournament at Elizabeth, David Wotherspoon of this city defeated his antagonist, L. Glazebrook, of Elizabeth, 6—3, 6—1; and Wotherspoon and Green defeated both Glazebrook and Smith, and Cook and Smith, in the doubles. Saturday the finals were played, and Green and Wotherspoon won the double championship; but Mr. Smith of Philadelphia, defeated Wotherspoon in the final of the first-class singles.

Only a Little in Advance.

Always eager to give its readers the first news, THE PRESS on Saturday stated that Mr Frederick Sandford and Ella C. Dugging had been united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage in New Providence. The groom says the announcement is premature. The ceremony will take place on Thursday June 12, but the clergyman who will officiate has not yet been decided upon. The bride and groom will spend a two weeks' honeymoon at distant places, after which they will take up their home in this city.

OUR FIRM'S EXPERIENCE IMPORTING ICE.

The Common Council Asserted to Blame [illegible] the People Either.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your issue of May 27, you published a letter from Messrs Brown Bros., of Plattsburgh recommending to Plainfield dealers what would appear to be cheap ice. In justice to local dealers, and in view of our own personal experience, kindly allow us to make some explanation, as some of their statements may be misleading in the matter. The retail dealer is compelled to buy on representation—the cash invariably accompanying the order—bear all losses by shrinkage and short weights, suffer tedious delays and pay all freight charges, which on some lines have been nearly doubled on ice alone. On April —, we ordered a car of ice from Sandy Point, at lower rates than is offered by Brown Bros., and a much shorter route. After being five days on the road we received what was left of it, paying $56 for the ice and $120 freight on the same. In another instance we were charged on one car 12 tons in excess of what we received, also freight on the same, with an additional charge for its return to Plainfield, it having been taken by mistake several stations beyond.

Our experience teaches that ice after being handled several times and forwarded over long distance routes in ordinary freight cars, is generally soft and in bad condition upon arrival, and poor profit for either dealer or consumer. The Common Council having twice refused us permission to build a small house near the track, we are compelled to get storage elsewhere and with transportation thereto and extra labor in rehandling, the expense is nearly doubled.

You ask "By the way," why ice can be sold cheaper in Somerville? We are informed that the new firm having capital were fortunate in securing a large quantity at a forced sale, and having fine storage facilities along the track, were enabled to move and house their ice direct from the lake, thereby saving expense of housing and rehandling on cars and before the rates of transportation were advanced.

At present prices they would scarcely like to exchange profits with Plainfield dealers. In conclusion we would say we intend to buy and sell as cheaply as can be done, and leave the public to judge who is getting the largest profit, the retail or the wholesale dealer.

Anniversary Exercises.

The nineteenth anniversary of the Children's Home, will be held in the First Presbyterian church on Front street, this evening at 8 o'clock. Short addresses will be made by Drs. Rodman and Ketcham and the annual reports of the Treasurer and President will be read. Special music by quartette, trio and solo will add interest to the exercises. All friends of this charity are cordially invited to be present.

Captured a Bald Eagle.

Mr. David Falkner who resides on the road leading from this city to Mt. Bethel, on Wednesday of last week captured a real curiosity in the shape of a large rock eagle. During the evening Mr. Falkner heard a strange noise in the woods near his house, which he started out to investigate. He had not gone far into the woods, however, when to his surprise the eagle attacked him and showed fight. With presence of mind Mr. Falkner raised his gun and fired away in the dark, succeeding in wounding the bird on the wing. He then called for help, and with the assistance of his brother, the two men captured the prize after a desperate fight.

The bird will be on exhibition for a short time at Mr. John Wolf's residence, No. 15 Green Brook road, North Plainfield.

It Was No Runaway.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS—In your issue of the 29th, you say "Mahlon Vail's team of iron grey horses ran away on Somerset street again on Thursday afternoon, and reduced another wagon into kindling wood."

Where or how you could have gotten any information so far from the real facts I cannot imagine. In the first place it was not another, but the same wagon, with only new whiffletrees and neck yoke, being all that was necessary to make new from the accident in North avenue.

In Somerset street there was no runaway, as the horses only moved from the centre to the side of the street, and the only damage done the wagon was the breaking the end of a very light pole by coming in contact with a hitching post.

MAHLON VAIL.

A Chance for a Plainfield Young Man in the New York University.

A prize of $50 is offered the one who will pass the best entrance examination to the Freshman Class of the New York University, either classical or scientific. Examinations occur June 5, 6, 9 and 10, and September 22, 23, 24 and 25. Among the alumni of the University are Messrs Chas. W. Opdyke, Henry M. Opdyke, Israel C. Pierson, Leslie M. Daniel and Wm. J. Roome, of this city.

Tuition being free and incidental expenses $15, the hours of recitation 10 A. M. to 1:30 P. M., it is within the power of any young man to take a college course and reside in Plainfield. Scholarships and fellowships enable one to take special courses or pursue advanced studies.

Further particulars may be obtained by addressing Prof. D. H. Hering, Secretary, Washington Square, East, New York.

Everybody is Talking About That $12.50 Suit Sale at Watson's, and

People are more than surprised at the elegant suits offered at that price.

Handsome shaded plaid suits, stylish line Cheviot suits, dressy corkscrew and diagonal suits, black and blue serge suits and an endless variety of stylish casimere suits, in all the handsome patterns you see in Merchant Tailors are all marked $12.50 each, although there are many $15 and $18 suits among them, all hand cut and custom finished, in Watson's best style.

These elegant hand cut garments will certainly improve your dress appearance, as you will see when you try them on, and all are hung on convenient racks, as fast as their tailors finish them, to keep them free from creases, wrinkles, or any objectionable ready-made look.

Tell your friends to see sample suits in both Broad and Market street windows, and notice the difference in shape and style from any machine cut garments.

Remember it is the cut that makes the garment.—Newark Press.

WINNING YET.

The Crescents Shut Out New Brunswick's Big Team.

The Unions of New Brunswick, with their giant battery and heavy batters, started a game with the Crescents, Saturday afternoon, but the visitors were never in it from beginning to end.

The interest of the game, however, was kept up by the brilliant playing of the Crescent's infield, and the marvellous base running of Martin. He gave such an exhibition of this important part of a team's success, as has never been excelled even by League players. He even stole third base in magnificent style, and the 600 people present showed their appreciation by loud applause.

Gregg certainly pitched a fine game throughout, and held the big batters of New Brunswick down to two little hits—one in the sixth, and one in the eighth inning. Jones backed him in good shape, and not a man on the visiting team attempted to go to second. Laffery had seven chances, and took them all without a break. McMurray ruptured a muscle in his calf in running to third, and Chas. Runyon took his place. He proved a good one in the fifth inning. When he went to the bat two men were out and the bases were full. He hit towards right field, the ball was fumbled, thrown into the crowd behind first base, and then over the catcher's head at the home plate. The whole four runners meanwhile came in. The score was:

Now They've Got What They Want.

A youthful correspondent to THE PRESS says that "some of the boys of this city have long been wanting a bicycle club of their own," and the organization of such a club was effected at the meeting held at the residence of one of the members Tuesday afternoon. Any boy, between the ages of ten and fifteen years is eligible for membership. Application for membership should be made to Master V. Green, No. 36 East Fifth street, between the hours of noon and one o'clock in the day time, and from six to seven o'clock in the evening. At the meeting yesterday the club elected officers as follows:

President—V. Green.
Vice President—R. Bowers.
Secretary—W. Frobasco.
Treasurer—R. Tomlinson.
Captain—G. Hyman.
Color Bearer—E. Johnson.

A Way to Solve the Dog Question.

Councilman Spangenberg, it is understood, will soon offer for adoption an ordinance that will help the city out in the dog question, and at the same time entirely suit both the people who have dogs and those who have not. Some of its provisions as proposed are as follows:

Every person who shall harbor, possess or keep any dog in the City of Plainfield shall take out a license therefor from the City Clerk's office in each year, for which a fee of two dollars shall be paid for each and every said dog, to be dated May 1 and to continue in force for one year thereafter. And any person harboring, possessing or keeping any dog in said city, who shall neglect or refuse to obtain a license therefor, shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten (10) dollars. All dogs thus licensed shall wear a collar to which shall be attached a metal tag bearing the number of said license, the said tag to be furnished by the city with the license, and for which ten (10) cents shall be paid by the party or parties obtaining the license.

Any dog wearing the tag hereinbefore provided for, and muzzled, shall be permitted to run at large; but every unlicensed dog found in the streets, whether muzzled or not, shall be captured by the dog catchers and taken to the pound. Any dog found running at large in the streets without a collar and tag may be captured, although it is muzzled, and any unmuzzled dog found running at large on the street, may be captured although it wears a collar and tag.

In this way the city will soon be rid of all dogs except the few whose owners care enough for them to look after them. The worthless ones—who are the ones liable to go to d—will be destroyed, to the satisfaction of everybody, including dog owners.

A Good Investment

Is that which yields large returns from a small outlay. Reader, the way is clear! No speculation, no chance, big returns! If you are like most of mankind you have somewhere a weakness—don't feel at all times just as you'd like to—headache to-day, backache to-morrow, down sick next week—all because your blood is out of order. A small outlay and what large returns! You invest in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and soon pure, fresh blood courses through your veins, and you are another being!

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

All medical authorities agree that catarrh is no more nor less than an inflamation of the lining membrane of the nasal air passages. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Ely's Cream Balm.

Still Another Wreck.

Plainfield's horsemen are either becoming negligent in their duty or else there is a mania among horses to run away. The city has never before known so many runaways, in the same short period, as have taken place within the past fortnight. Scarcely a day passes, in fact, that one or more runaway accidents are not recorded.

One of the latest happened on Saturday morning, about eight o'clock. Mr A. C. Vail of Madison avenue and Eighth street, had just returned from a morning drive, and his hired man was leading the horse into the stable, when the animal became unmanageable, and ran at full speed into the barn, breaking up a buckboard and village cart.

The hostler remained pluckily at his post of duty, but he was only fortunate enough to escape with his own life.

Speeches, Music and Recitations, Free.

Next Tuesday evening a public meeting of the various Bands of Mercy in Plainfield, will be held in Reform Hall for the benefit of the Children's Home. No admission fee will be charged, but a collection will be taken up.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis and A. M. Powell will speak. There will also be fine music by New York artists, recitations by children of the bands and singing by the little ones of the "Home." Short reports from each Band of Mercy will be present*ed that the public may learn something* of their excellent object.

"Things are Seldom What They Seem."

While the above is, in the main, true, still there is an exception to the general rule, as is the case in many instances. We refer to Dr. Pierce's Pellets, which are not only all they seem, but more. In torpid liver, indigestion, sluggishness of the bowels, biliousness and headache, the relief afforded by their use is wonderful.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

[illegible] A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—The sweet girl graduate is already making her daily visitation to the dressmakers.

—A great many owners of dogs seem to ignore the ordinance in regard to the muzzling of canines.

—The city jail was Sunday filled with prisoners for the first time since the arrest of the firebugs, about three years ago.

—A garter snake about two-and-a-half feet in length was killed on Grant avenue, Sunday afternoon. The reptile made no resistance.

—On Thursday next and every Thursday during the month of June, services will be held in St. Mary's church at 8 o'clock P. M.

—A delegation from this city attended the seventh annual anniversary of the National Newark Turn Verein celebrated in that city on Friday.

—Police Captain Grant, it is claimed, does more actual walking in the course of a day, looking for evil doers, than ex-Captain Carey did in a week.

—A delegation of the Bayonne firemen were Friday the guests of Zephyr Hook and Ladder company of this city. The visitors had dinner at Stillman's Hotel.

—A number of colored people got into a wrangle at the Central station late on Saturday, but the appearance of Officers Giesse and Cooney suddenly put an end to the fracas.

—Some little difficulty occurred among the Italians at a stone quarry in the Notch, early on Monday, but the proprietor paid off the two ringleaders and discharged them.

—Mr. John H. [illegible], formerly proprietor of the City Hotel in this city, opened for the season, on Saturday, the Fair View House, at Chatham, N. J., where he was last season successfully located.

—The usual weekly row occurred on the Boulevard, Saturday night, which is said to have been caused by a man throwing his wife out of doors, and the interference of the woman's mother in her behalf.

—Coals from a passing locomotive set on fire the Central avenue railroad bridge at noon Monday, but Messrs Edward Mahar and George Zeim extinguished the fire before any serious damage was done.

—Councilman [illegible] gave notice at the meeting on Monday, that at the next meeting of the City Council, it was his intention to make a motion for the payment of the street laborers every two weeks.

—The case of J. H. Miller vs Tunis J. Carey, to recover the balance due on a note, was adjourned by Justice Nash, on Tuesday, until June [illegible], on account of the unavoidable absence of counsel for the defence.

—At the Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, previous to celebrating the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, eight persons were received into membership of the church, five by letter and three on confession.

—The attention of those interested is called to the notice of the Chairman of the Street Committee, published in another column. A meeting is called to consider the macadamizing of the very worst street in the city.

—The case of Tunis J. Carey vs. the Police Board which was taken to the Supreme Court on certiorari, was Tuesday adjourned until a future date, so as to allow Hon. Fred. C. Marsh of Elizabeth an opportunity to attend.

—Some of the coal train jumpers who were arrested by Special Officer Hope and fined five dollars each, recently, again passed through the city on a coal train Tuesday, and when they espied the officer they shook their fists at him.

—Judge McCormick of Elizabeth has made a change in the division of the counsel fees in the [illegible] will case, by allowing Jackson & Codington of this city $[illegible], and Mr. W. L. [illegible], $[illegible]. The other counsel fees remain the same as before.

—A horse belonging to Mr. C. T. Pond of West Seventh street, got frightened at the cars under the Park avenue railroad bridge at 8 o'clock Sunday evening, and threw himself, breaking the shafts. The animal also kicked a hole in the dashboard.

—The Messrs. Steinway have consigned one of their handsomest upright pianos to Mr. A. Vanderbeek of this city. That gentleman has now both a Steinway grand and an upright at his home, corner of Madison avenue and sixth street, which he would be pleased to show anyone contemplating the purchase of a piano.

—A delegation of Franklin Council, of this city was present Tuesday night, at the institution of a new lodge at Metuchen. The new council will be known as Metuchen Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. Among those who went from this city were: Vice Councilor G. S. Martin and Brothers C. F. [illegible], C. S. Greer, J. V. Beekman, E. B. Pope, Jr., and others.

Fell from a Hammock.

A four-year-old son of Mr. W. A. Campbell of East Second street, fell out of a hammock on the front porch of his father's residence, on Tuesday, and sustained severe injuries to the left shoulder. Dr. J. B. Probasco attended the injured child.

Improving the Presbyterian Cemetery.

The Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield, never looked more tidy, and was never better kept than at the present time, and the credit for the same is due to Voorhees VanPelt and "Uncle" Freeman Shotwell.

The trustees have also ordered a new walk of blue stone flagging laid in front of the cemetery, which work has already begun. Persons who visit the cemetery will notice a marked change there.

Still Another Runaway.

Mr. John N. Moore and a companion named Underhill, were seated in a buckboard driving along Prospect avenue, about 7 o'clock, Tuesday evening, and when in the vicinity of Ninth street the horse became frightened at a scavenger's wagon and ran away. The vehicle struck a tree, throwing the occupants out and slightly injuring one of them.

The horse was seen passing the Dug Corners, but up to yesterday, the runaway rig had not been recovered.

The King's Daughters.

During the Summer the "Whatsoever" Ten, King's Daughters, will meet at the residence of one of their members, to prepare and send flowers to the tenement house children of New York city. May 29, at the home of Miss Mabel Woodruff, on East Second street, there were present Daughters Miss Mabel Woodruff, Miss Lizzie Dunn, Miss Jennie VanWinkle, Miss Phoebe [illegible], Mrs. Jennie Quinn, Mrs Emma [illegible], Mrs. Wm. See and Mrs. Chas. [illegible], who bunched together 68 handsome bouquets of flowers and sent them to their destination in New York. This work of the King's Daughters is a laudable and pleasant one, and no doubt highly appreciated by those who receive their gifts.

[illegible] Influence.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY, by its sedative influence over the nervous system, is one of the best remedies that can be used. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or address Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

A Valuable Officer.

The Court records show that during the month that closed on Saturday, J. M. C. Marsh, of Westfield, engaged by the Central Railroad as a special detective to break up the practice of coal train riding, arrested 43, part of whom paid a total of $92 in fines, and the rest were sentenced to a total of 298 days imprisonment.

Memorial Day Exercises at the High School.

Special exercises appropriate to Memorial Day were held at the High school on Thursday. The singing was led by Mr. Hand. After the rhetorical exercises, Mr. E. L. Suffern addressed the pupils, telling of his personal experiences in the war. The declamations were as follows: Extract from Blaine's Oration on President Garfield—Master Loizeaux. The Blue and the Gray—Master John C. Sutphen.

Reform Club Meeting.

Like its predecessors, the Reform Club meeting last Thursday evening was an occasion of decided interest. After a choice piano duet at the hands of Miss Alice Smith and one of her musical pupils, a reading by Judge Harper, and a song by Mr. G. H. Fountaine, an appointed question for the evening, involving the relative detrimental effects of tobacco and liquor upon the human system, was taken up and discussed with animation by Messrs Lamphear, Angleman, Burnett, Fountaine, A. Ellsworth, Fassmacht and Marcley.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following transfers of real estate were reported at the County Clerk's office since those last recorded in THE PRESS:

John B. Mills and wife, of Plainfield, to John P. Emmons, of the Borough of North Plainfield, lot No. 3 in block C., 50x100 feet, on Third street, Plainfield $300.

Wallace L. Serrell, of Tacoma, Wash., to William J. Pearson, et al., of Plainfield, tract of land on Third street, Plainfield, $1,950.

James McGinley and wife, of Plainfield, to Andrew M. Anderson, of Plainfield, lot on South avenue, Plainfield, $550.

Jeremiah Manning and wife, to Joseph C. Manning and wife, of Plainfield, tract of land on Sandford avenue, Plainfield, $[illegible],000.

Mayor Place Warns Dog Owners.

To THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I desire to call the attention of residents of the Borough who own or have dogs under their control to the ordinance concerning them, which provides "That it shall be lawful for, and the duty of any Marshal of said Borough to catch or cause to be caught all unmuzzled dogs running at large in said Borough during the months of June, July, August and September." The ordinance also provides for killing all dogs caught. I may add that no matter where the dog belongs—whether in the Borough or elsewhere—if found unmuzzled without its owner, will be subject to the law. In view of the fact that several dogs have been running mad in our vicinity recently, and that the warm weather will soon be upon us, all owners, it is hoped, will see to it that their dogs are properly muzzled when allowed in the streets.

All Borough Marshals have instructions to strictly enforce the ordinance.

CHAS. PLACE, Mayor.

At The Bryant School Building.

The chapel at the Bryant school building was prettily trimmed with flowers, on Thursday, on the occasion of Memorial Day exercises which took place at that time, according to the following programme:

Singing—Be firm and be faithful..........School
Devotional exercises.
Singing—America.
Declamation—"Decoration Day."........
Ernest Suffern, Second Class.
Singing—"The Young Recruits"..........School
Recitation—"The Flag of the Free"........
Bertha Hurlbut, 5th class, 1st division
Singing—"Fair is our Country"..........School
Recitation—"Decoration Day"........
Bessie Loizeaux, 3d class
Singing—May song..........School
Recitation—"The Blue and the Gray"........
Clara Armstrong, 1st class
Singing—Our Country..........School

Bryant's picture was neatly draped with a flag and a floral wreath, and the children carried flags or flowers. Bertha Hurlbut recited clearly; in fact all the recitations were clearly given. Clara Armstrong's recitation was given with expression, good taste and smoothness.

"Baby McKee" Lost.

In the federation race of homing pigeons from Manassas, Va., Friday, there was entered "Baby McKee," from THE PRESS' loft. It was a beautiful red-checker with a frill down its chest, and was the pride of the loft. But it has not come home as yet.

The weather was bad for flying, and the time was slow. The birds were released at 9:30 A. M. James Ingram, of North Plainfield, had two in the race, and the first reached home at 3:57. Captain Benj. Doane, F. R. Stevens and J Hervey Doane, also had birds in the race, but their's came home later. Dr. Johnson and Mr Lambertson, of Keyport, and Messrs Kiggins and Tucker, of Elizabeth, also entered birds.

Some of the others besides "Baby McKee," have not reached home yet and are anxiously awaited. The trouble with THE PRESS entry was that as usual. THE PRESS aimed to do more than had been done before, and entered one of its birds in a 200 mile race, that had never flown but 30 miles.

IT BEATS ALL KNOWN FLYS.

Since the above was written, "Baby McKee" has returned. It flew in THE PRESS loft about noon Saturday, looking very tired. Its feat of coming home from a 170 mile jump is believed to be unequalled.

Changes of Tenantry.

Wm. Wm. Barlow of Brooklyn, has bought Mr. J. S. Sutphen's property on Prospect place, formerly occupied by Mr. Henry Stanton.

Mr. Percy Phillips, recently of Evona, has bought the John Cameron house on Madison avenue, where Mr. Phillips and family have been living for the past few months.

Mrs. Annie McKee, of Brooklyn, has bought Mrs. Seaman Williams' house on East Fifth street, and rented it to Mr. E. A. Eastman, of New York.

Mr. A. D. Saltfield of Boston, has leased Mrs. Wingate's house on Richmond street.

Mrs. Lory Hooley has rented her house on Central avenue, for the Summer.

Mr. A. Tuska, of New York, has leased ex-Councilman Squires' Broadway house, for the season.

Mrs. E. Dessendorf, and Miss Dessendorf, will occupy Mrs. Wm. M. Day's house on Broadway, this Summer.

Mr. H. E. Lovell, of Brooklyn, has taken one of Mr. Pollion's handsome Queen Ann cottages on Putnam avenue.

Mr. A. Kaufman, of New York, has rented Mrs. Gardner's house on Broadway, during the latter's absence in Asbury Park.

Mr. Theo. A. Ball of Newark, has leased the Dr. Chase farm at Fanwood. Mr. Ball has just been awarded $25,000 from the Erie railroad for injuries received.

"My daughter was greatly troubled with scrofula, and, at one time, it was feared she would lose her sight. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has completely restored her health and her eyes are as well as ever, with not a trace of scrofula in her system."—G. King, Killingly, Conn.

MEMORIAL DAY.

HOW IT WAS OBSERVED IN THIS CITY.

The Parade and the Exercises in Music Hall—An Address by the Rev Mr. Stewart of Easton—Other Details.

Friday was a red letter day among the Grand Army men, and the day was fittingly observed by them. During the early morning hours details from Winfield Scott and Major Anderson Posts were escorted to the various cemeteries and the graves of the dead heroes were strewn with flowers. At 9:30 o'clock the parade took place over the route published in THE PRESS of Wednesday. The procession was headed by the Plainfield Cornet Band, followed by first Marshall, Wm. C. Smith, members of the Joint Detail, the Grand Army Posts and other societies, carriages for disabled soldiers and sailors, Woman's Relief Corps No. 10, and the children who subsequently took part in the exercises at Music Hall.

When the procession arrived at Music Hall, the Grand Army men marched in and took seats in the orchestra circle. The hall was comfortably filled, many in the audience being women and children.

Propertyman W. R. Mattox had exerted himself in setting a handsome woodland scene, while in front on the stage muskets were stacked at convenient points, and flags, bunting and flowers formed the other platform decorations.

When the curtain arose it was upon a scene of beauty and splendor, tiers of children who constituted the chorus being seated lengthwise of the stage. Commander Charles B. Stevens of Winfield Scott Post, presided, and after the band played a selection, "America," the Rev. L. E. Livermore of New Market led in prayer. The chorus sang "Before All Lands," and the Rev. Mr. Livermore delivered the address of welcome, during which he complimented Winfield Scott and Major Anderson Posts upon their joining together in holding Memorial Day services. The usual post exercises were conducted by the Commander, after which the chorus sang "Deck Their Graves With Green," some of the children marching to the front of the platform and depositing flowers at the base of a cenotaph.

Miss Renoff of Brooklyn, gave a clear and distinct recitation, after which the Rev. E. H. Stewart of Easton, Pa., was introduced as the orator of the day. The speaker, during his address, took occasion to eulogize the New Jersey soldiers as being among the bravest and the best. He also spoke in eulogy of Scott, Anderson, Grant and other distinguished leaders, at the mention of whose names the Grand Army men applauded. Mr. Stewart gave a vivid history of the past, and alluded in fitting terms to the children, whom he said are learning the lessons of patriotism, which are as necessary as the lessons of the Gospel; the floral tribute signifies that the memory of the past shall be perpetuated for all time. He admonished the veterans who are not members of the Grand Army of the Republic, to identify themselves with the Order; patriotism, he considered, should be shown in the pulpit, for patriotism and religion go hand in hand. The South, today, the speaker concluded, is worth three times more than ever before, and today the American flag floats over the home of the free and the land of the brave.

The chorus sang "Mustered Out One By One," and Master Arthur Smith gave a recitation. Miss Renoff sang a patriotic song, after which the the audience joined in singing "America," and the exercises closed with a grand tableaux, "America surrounded by her Army and Navy," arranged by Comrade W. R. Mattox, the Rev. Mr. Livermore pronouncing the benediction.

Miss Alida Day also gave a patriotic recitation, that was loudly applauded.

The orator of the day, Miss Renoff and others who took part were presented with handsome bouquets by the Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10, and at the close of the service the children were provided with refreshments in the basement of Music Hall.

In the afternoon the Grand Army men went to Scotch Plains and Westfield, and decorated the graves in the cemeteries of those places.

Injured at Scott's

A machinist named Burrows, who is employed at the Scott Press Works, met with a painful accident while at work on Thursday afternoon. In some unexplained manner the man run a file through the palm of his right hand. A physician dressed the wound.

Officers of the Auxiliary Board.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital, held May 28, the following ladies were elected for the ensuing year:

PRESIDENT—Mrs. N. R. Edgerton.
VICE PRESIDENT—Mrs. Rowland Cox.
SECRETARY—Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson.
TREASURER—Mrs. S. Huntington.
AUDITORS—Mrs. W. F. Lowe, Miss Mary Tweedy.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

Charles, the six-year-old son of Mr. Wm. Beiter of East Front street, fell in the race way in the rear of his father's home on Thursday afternoon, and only escaped drowning by the timely arrival of Mr. Geo. Clark, one of Mr. A. M. Griffen's employees, who rescued the boy just as he was about to disappear for the third time.

"Don't Mention It!"

To THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—At the annual meeting of the Plainfield Choral Society held the 19th instant, a vote of thanks was unanimously tendered to the press of this city for the many cordial and gratuitous notices which have appeared therein regarding the society and its work during the past season.

NELSON RUNYON, Sec'y.

"A May Morning of Song."

The magnificent country seat of John Taylor Johnston, ex-President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey on East Front street, was the scene of a brilliant society event, "A May Morning of Song," Friday. The Mendelssohn Society, of which Miss Johnston is a member, gave a concert and banquet on the lawn. Among the artists were Mrs. Charlotte F. Kennan, Mrs. Gerrit Smith, H. E. Distelhurst, Francis Fisher Powers and Lena Tome. Many from New York and this city were present.

The minstrel entertainment at Music Hall, Friday night, under the supervision of Elliott W. Johnson, of Jersey City, and the Hudson County Wheelmen, must have been a treat even to George Thatcher. The music, vocally and instrumentally, was as good, and the wit, as a whole, somewhat better than that afforded by professional organizations.

Messrs Distelhurst's, Averill's and Shaw's solos, were most enjoyable, the topical songs were received with great enthusiasm, and in fact the entire first part from the opening overture to the finale by the "Dandy Waiters," was an entire success. Prof. R. H. Mohr, as a ventriloquist, cannot be equalled; Mr. Will Lyle, in a "Social Call," was encored until he could appear no more; while "Doc" Johnson's skirt dance was a marvel of make-up and a remarkable impersonation—it was Letty Lind, music, ankles, divided-skirts and all.

When your dealer sends you something "just as good" when Hires' Root Beer is asked for, the proper thing is to send it back. He delights in selling substitutes, because the profit is large.

A DISASTROUS RUNAWAY.

One of the Wheels on a Butcher's Wagon Comes off, Frightening Another Horse, and Results in a General Wreck—One Man Injured.

About three o'clock on Saturday afternoon Wm. Drake, an employee at Hedden's stables on East Fourth street, harnessed to a buckboard a horse belonging to Mr. Andrew McKinney of Crescent avenue. Less than an hour afterward the horse ran into the stable foaming, and with only the bridle on.

Mr. McKinney and a friend, Mr. Clifton Wharton, were seated in the buckboard driving along Grant avenue. When they were turning into West Seventh street the horse they were driving became frightened at a butcher's wagon which had dropped a wheel, on the way out from a customer's house, and ran away. The runaway horse had gone but a short distance when he struck a tree, throwing the occupants out, and almost completely wrecking the vehicle.

Mr. McKinney received a bad cut under the eye, but his companion escaped with only slight injuries. The injured man was taken to Dr. Fritts' office, where the wounds were dressed.

IN THE CITY COURT.

Prisoners Arraigned for Sentence.

Business was booming in the City Court, on Monday, when six prisoners were arraigned for sentences, all charged with being drunk and disorderly, and all but one of them, John Green, arrested by Officer Giesse, pleaded guilty to their respective charges. Green was given a hearing, adjudged guilty, and committed to the county jail for twenty days. His companion, Chas Ties, was discharged.

Another of those brought before the bar of justice was John Dorgan, arrested by Officer McCue on Saturday night. He was fined eight dollars.

"Trenton Jack," an old offender, was found lying on the sidewalk on Somerset street, Saturday night, and Officers Giesse and Cooney took him in. He was committed for twenty days.

Mrs. Newman created a disturbance on the Boulevard, Saturday evening, and Officer Flanagan locked her up. She was subsequently released, upon promising to return today for sentence. Judge Codington fined her five dollars.

About four o'clock Sunday morning Officer Flanagan found a young man from Scotch Plains delivering a political address on the New street railroad bridge, during which the man declared that David P. Hill would be the next President. This morning he paid eight dollars for the privilege of making his address—that being the fine imposed by the City Judge.

A Small Fire.

A quantity of excelsior heaped up with a lot of packing boxes in the rear of Mr. G. Q. Packer's store, was accidentally set on fire, Saturday afternoon, but through the efforts of Second Assistant Jas. Martin and ex-Chief J. E. Waters, the fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

A Warning to Nude Bathers.

The bathing season was formally inaugurated in Green Brook near the Grant avenue bridge, yesterday. This is in direct violation of the city and borough ordinance, and those who are in the habit of bathing in a nude state should take warning before the police pounce down upon them, and compel them to pay a fine or be committed to jail.

Annual Election of Directors.

The meeting of the stockholders of The Pond Machine Tool company, Monday, resulted in the election of the following Board of Directors: David W. Pond, Albert C. Stebbins, Henry Graves, J. Rogers Maxwell, Henry S. Manning, Eugene L. Maxwell, Charles A. Moore.

The new Board will meet for organization, some day this week.

Postponed Again.

Gen. Negeley was all ready, Saturday evening, with his plans for a granite shaft to be erected in Plainfield, to the memory of the dead soldiers. He also had a report to submit of his extended tour of inspection of like monuments in other cities, and the material used in their construction. But there was no quorum in the G. A. R., rooms where the committee were called to meet, and the meeting was again postponed for a week.

Another Very Narrow Escape.

A team of horses passing under the Park avenue railroad bridge at 11:15 Monday night, became frightened at a passing train, and attempted to run away. The vehicle, a phaeton, to which they were attached, swayed from one side of the street to the other, and just missed striking a telephone pole. The horses were gotten under control, after a short but exciting run.

Paris Has It, Too.

The London Illustrated News says: "Some American young ladies in Paris have discovered a way of studying Shakespeare which has not yet found favor with the English or German students of the bard. One of them was lately asked by an interviewer: 'What is your method of study?' 'Oh! we don't do much studying,' she said, 'we meet once a fortnight and read him for an hour. The rest of the evening we dance!'"

Assigned for the Benefit of Their Creditors.

The plumbing firm of Messrs J. H. & A. L. Carney, heretofore existing under the firm name of Carney Bros., of this city, Monday made an assignment to Mr Wm M. Stillman for the equal benefit of their creditors. The firm's liabilities are not known, but it is thought that the assets will about cover the liabilities.

Messrs Carney Bros., have been established here for several years past, and have always done a large business, the business of year before last amounting to $60,000. During the past year the firm has lost heavily by bad book accounts, which together with losses occasioned by sickness, the late flood, and a large outstanding indebtedness, has caused the members to make an assignment. Some of the New York creditors were also pressing their claims, and an extension of time has thus been obtained by the firm, in taking the action which they did.

Easter Lodge Election of Officers.

Easter Lodge K. of H., was honored Monday night, by the presence of several of the Grand Officers of the State, viz., Grand Dictator, S. W. Hartshorne; Vice Grand Dictator, R. C. Jones; Grand Reporter, John M. Mahew and Past Dictator Hoyt of Central Lodge, Newark.

During the evening, the following officers were re-elected to serve for the coming six months, and the same will be installed at the first meeting night in July:

The vocal organs are strengthened by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Clergymen, lawyers, singers, actors and public speakers find this preparation the most effective remedy for irritation and weakness of the throat and lungs, and for all affections of the vocal organs.

WONDERFUL "BABY McKEE."

A PRESS Homer and His Interesting Genealogical Tree.

News of the extraordinary feat of young "Baby McKee," one of THE PRESS homing pigeons, has rapidly spread and become the one subject of interest among owners and breeders of these wonderful birds. In these columns Saturday, it was told how "Baby McKee" who had never flown but 30 miles before, was sent 200 miles away and entered in the Inter State race. Marvellous to tell, the bird came home ahead of some of the others who had flown from that direction before. The news spread so quickly that inside of three hours, Mr. Charles Doane, of this city, in whose loft "Baby McKee" was born, received an order from Mr. Tucker, of Elizabeth, for a chick of the same parents.

"Baby McKee" is not yet a year old. His registered number is 18007. He was hatched July 14, 1889, from "Puritan" (H 156), and "Penelope" (D 252). "Puritan" has a 300 mile Federation record; was bred by Mr. H. Wagner, of Boston, and is a brother to Mr. Wagner's noted bird "Wade," an uncle of "Baby McKee," that flew from London, Ont., to Boston, a distance of 525 miles, air line, when only about five months old, being the greatest distance flown by a youngster. "Penelope" has never been flown, but is a sister to Mr. Charles Doane's bird, "Hermes" (D 77), with a 500 mile record, and record from Steamship "City of Rome," 230 miles out, and also a federation record from 305 miles in about seven hours—making the fast average speed of 1,286 58 yards per minute. The father of "Baby McKee's" mother is out of Mr. McGaughey's of Philadelphia, famous bird "Red Cloud," with a 500 mile record. The mother of "Penelope" is also a 500 mile bird and was bred by Dr. Johnson of Keyport, from 500 mile stock. "Baby McKee" has an uncle, "Leander," with a 400 mile record. "Leander" has also flown three times from ocean steamships. "Baby McKee's" uncle, "Ariel," holds the greatest of ocean records.

Miss Ketcham's Musical.

A musical was given by Miss Julia J. Ketcham, assisted by her pupils, at her home, on Saturday afternoon. The programme was an attractive and varied one. Miss Ketcham sang very, artistically, Rossi's "Ah! rendimi quel core," and also Saint Saens' "My heart at thy sweet voice;" also by request, "Rose," by P. Lacome.

The selections by her pupils were, Piccolomini's Eternal Rest, by Miss Blair; Schumann's Two Grenadiers, by Master Edsall; Aria from Handel's Athelja, by Miss Dewey; A flight of clouds, Carracciolo, by Miss Marsh and Miss Ketcham, and Neidlinger's Serenade, by Miss Marsh; Cowen's Snow Flakes, by Miss Kitty Mitchell, who sang so sweetly that she was recalled. All the pupils showed careful training.

Miss Marsh also played Adagio, Op. 14, Haydn, which was much enjoyed.

Thieves at Westfield.

On Thursday night the coal office of John S Irving on Central avenue, was entered by thieves. Mr. Irving has wires connecting the office with the home of Mr. Dougherty, a neighbor. The electric bell gave an alarm and Mr. Dougherty got up in time to see a man get out of the window of the office and run down the railroad track.

On the same night the drug store of Dr. Gale on Broad street was entered through a window in the rear of the hall. When the Doctor got up in the morning he found his clothing and that of his son strewn around the parlor floor. Several bureau drawers had also been opened and their contents disturbed, but nothing of importance was taken. The safe door stood open and the contents of the safe were scattered around the store. The safe was not locked nor was there any money in it. The contents of one of the show cases had been disturbed and a box of cigars and a package of knives taken. The thief or thieves were evidently looking for money.

The Rev. Mr. Stewart Says the Whiskey Men Bought Clergymen, Even.

There was quite a large audience at Reform Hall, Sunday night, to listen to the Rev. Mr. Stewart, lately of Kansas, but now of Pennsylvania. After devotional exercises conducted by the Rev. Mr. Honeyman, and singing by the choir, Mr. Stewart said he desired to tell how the prohibitory amendment was defeated in Pennsylvania, and one word would tell it—Money! He declared that the whiskey men bought up newspapers and politicians, and, in a few cases, clergymen, to talk for high license and thus defeat prohibition.

He read a number of letters written by men who had conducted the campaign, to prove his statements, and said that their confessions were enough to satisfy everyone. Some farmers were made to believe that prohibition would increase taxation, but the opposite was true. In Kansas, under high license, taxes were $1.70 per hundred, but only 80 cents per hundred under prohibition, or a reduction of over one-half. As to the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court concerning "original packages," which allowed people of another State to bring liquor into a neighboring State and sell in spite of all law, he felt it was a great mistake. He thought the people would not stand it. It took away their rights. If that was good law, then anything vile and dangerous could be imported and we must suffer and die, provided it was in an "original package." It killed local option, high license and everything else. He believed that the people would be aroused to action, and this decision in the end would destroy the liquor power.

How to Get Stanley's Only Book.

Everybody intends to secure a copy of "In Darkest Africa," Stanley's own story and the only one written by himself. To no one else than the firm of Chas. Scribners' Sons, has he contributed a line of his thrilling adventures, nor disclosed a fact concerning his important discoveries.

This book will be offered the people of this city and North Plainfield, only by the agent authorized by the publishers. No one else can deliver the book to subscribers here.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would ever cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

There are SOME PEOPLE, and NOT a few either, who believe WE possess the qualifications here mentioned.

And their numbers increase as the years pass. We hold most of our old trade, and constantly attract new.

What enables us to do this? Well, the five requisites of success mentioned above put us in a position to constantly offer a trade-attracting article in clothing. Talking of trade-attractors brings vividly before us our line of Men's All-Wool Business Suits at $10. We'll guarantee that $12 and even $15 is being paid out daily for Suits of no better material and not as well made. We think if you'll look at them you'll agree with us, and we know that if you're needing a Suit about this price you'll buy one.

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed. It is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home-seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. Write to F. I. WHITNEY, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn., for maps, books and guides. PLAYED CRIPPLE

And Worked Upon a Girl's Sympathies and Won Her.

[COPYRIGHT 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

Colonel Hodgyne's daughter, Zaddie, was exceedingly handsome, but was so haughty and imperious that the young men of the community stood in awe of her. The Colonel and his daughter lived in an old stone house, moss-grown and covered with vines. A stream that came tumbling out of the hills swept past the foot of the garden at the back of the house, and the fox, playing among the purple lark spurs, barked the whole night through. Every surrounding wore the influence of romance, and every sound about the old place seemed to be inspired by a lurking sentiment. The old man sat all day on the broad porch smoking his pipe, while Zaddie sang old songs or played with a dog on the soft and grassy slope. Every one had come to believe that the girl would surely be [illegible] her gentle and beautiful way, and there was not a swain in all the neighborhood that dared to breathe a hope of winning her.

Luke Brimston, who owned the finest horse in the county and had the [illegible] claim, had asked her to share his life of corn bread and wild squirrel greens, and had not only been rejected but was violently kicked down the steps by the old man. Sol Masterson had been equally as presumptuous, and although he owned a water-mill and a pretty field of hay stacks, the old Colonel [illegible] him until a dry grin of anguish that lasted several days settled on his face.

One day a slim young fellow named Griggle M. Robinson, while passing through the settlement, caught sight of the girl as she played with her dog. He saw her hair waving like new wheat when flashed about, and he heard the music of her voice and then he swore that he would win her. He stopped at a neighboring village, and in an adroit way drew the landlord into telling what he knew of her. Then he went to the [illegible] and [illegible] a plan of action, and he was greatly encouraged. Griggle was a lawyer and had practiced but a portion of the years. At evening, just as his [illegible], placed on the bench, had begun to nod, he got up, [illegible] softly and in his [illegible] greatly bumped his head against the wall. His plan had ripened.

"I have heard," he said to himself, "that pity is akin to love. Glorious poet who wrote that line. Ah! what a will he could have drawn up—what a writ of mortgage he would have made. I will go to that house a painful cripple, with a few dollars in my pocket and beg for board. They will not refuse me. I will converse with her as the days pass, and my own words and her own pity shall kindle her soul into a flame of love. Then when she is mine, I will stand erect before her a strong and sound man, and [illegible] Griggle M. Robinson, you were born to be great."

The afternoon was beautiful. Zaddie, tired of play and tired of singing, sat with her father on the porch, and the dog with a garland of [illegible] about his neck, snapped at the horse-flies that were buzzing through the warm air.

"Who is that at the gate?" the Colonel asked.

"Oh, it is a poor, crippled man," the girl answered.

"Come right on in!" the old man shouted. "Zaddie, help him up the steps."

"Oh, no," the cripple pleasantly answered, coming forward, "I can help myself."

He came up on the porch, not ungracefully, and after bowing with a grateful air, sat down on a chair which the girl had brought for him.

"You look so tired," said the girl. "Let me get a pillow for you to rest your head on."

"Thank you," Griggle responded, looking up and smiling. "You have already made me so comfortable that—that"—here he broke down.

"Yes, sir," said the Colonel, whacking [illegible] his chair, "we have only done for you what we should do for any one in distress. Where do you live, bub?"

"I live many miles from here," Griggle replied, "that is, the brown hills among which I once happily dwelt are many a weary day's journey from this romantic place."

"Well, my dear sir, you do not talk like an ignorant—excuse me—a crippled man."

"Oh, papa," the girl interposed, "crippled men, I should think, can talk as well as any one else."

"Well," said the old man, scratching his head, "not as a general thing. There is Hiram Smith, for instance. He is crippled and I don't know that I ever saw a worse talker. However that is neither here nor there. What can we do for you?"

"You can, if you will, do a great deal for me. I will explain my situation. It was [illegible] necessary for me to have a change of scene, and I started out with that object in view. I have traveled many miles, have crossed many rivers, but this is the only place that holds out a promise of rest. Now, to come at once to the point, I want to board with you for a while."

"Why, my dear sir," the old gentleman exclaimed, "I never took a boarder in my life."

"Oh, papa," the girl quickly spoke up, "let us take him just for awhile any way. It can do us no harm, and will be so much of a benefit to him."

"All right, have it your way."

What a glorious time it was for Griggle. He would sit on a rustic bench in the yard watching the girl as her joy

PLAYING WITH HER DOG.

[illegible], and occasionally she would come up unobtrusively and throw a handful of flowers at him.

"Don't you wish that you could romp with me?" she asked one day.

Griggle smiled and bowed his head on the back of the bench.

"Oh, please, don't cry," the girl implored. "I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. [illegible], look up now. See what a pretty flower this is."

"It is a lovely flower," he answered, looking up, "but I have seen lovelier ones—in fact, I see a lovelier one now."

"I wouldn't allow any one else to say that," she answered, smiling.

"Then I indeed enjoy a glorious privilege."

"If it is glorious to you, it is surely pleasant to me."

"Won't you sit beside me?" he asked. She sat down. He stroked her hair. "The angels must have spun this silk," he said.

"Well, I wish the angels would take care of it for it is very troublesome."

"Zaddie is a pretty name."

"Do you think so? I always thought it was horrid, but if you think it is pretty I will try to think so."

"Do you know what I wish I were, little girl? I wish I were a great strong man, with a face so handsome that you could not help loving me, but alas! I am only a cripple."

He leaned his head on the back of the bench again. "Oh! please don't do that," she implored. "If you only knew how I pity you. I can not tell you how much I have enjoyed your society—you came to me as something to care for and—"

"And what?"

He looked up and gazed into her eyes.

"And it would grieve me to give you up," she timidly replied.

"Then why give me up?" he passionately cried. "Let me live here; be my wife."

Both of them put their heads on the back of the bench.

That night as Griggle straightened out his leg and got into bed, he mused: "Sublime. Glorious being. Griggle M. Robinson has won you."

The old man, whose heart was held by the girl, gave his consent. The wedding day was fixed. It was evening and Griggle and Zaddie stood near the garden gate. "Loved one," he said, "you shall never be sorry."

"I know that, dear."

"And when you see other men so active and strong, you will not have a secret contempt for me?"

"Never."

"Zaddie," he exclaimed, "I am sure you shall not. I am no cripple. I am one of the soundest lawyers you ever saw. Look." He straightened out his leg and hopped about six feet. The girl shrieked and fled to the house. Griggle, knowing that her joy was overpowering, and that she had run to tell her father, followed. The old Colonel came out. "My daughter has told me all," he exclaimed. "Vile wretch, you have deceived me and broken my daughter's heart. You are not a cripple, but a lawyer! I will teach you a lesson."

THEY SAT ON THE BENCH.

He seized a hickory cane that stood leaning against the railing of the gallery, and with the wild strength of justice raised a great [illegible] between Griggle's eyes.

The [illegible], but unfortunate, young man has gone back to the turmoil of his [illegible] and is practicing law before a [illegible] of the peace.

THE LONDON GIRL.

All Her History, Mystery and Variety Explored.

[illegible]

[COPYRIGHT 1890, BY BACHELLER & CO.]

"Sweet seventeen" sounds very like sarcasm as applied nowadays to the romping hoyden, all merriment and innocence, whose praises were sung by all the verse-makers. A very sweet she is still, an amalgam of honey and roses, dimples and smiles, a lump of delight to the artistic eye and—but the writer sniffs poetry from afar, so this must stop right here. Sweet seventeen is to-day somewhere in the neighborhood of where the antiquated poets placed cute twenty. This is a progressed age; ask her, and prove it if it isn't.

She skipped out of her cradle away there in the ancestral home in Clodshire when her half-year anniversary came around, turned a somersault clean over her old nurse's prostrate form and bounded into her brother's gymnasium with a war-whoop that made their ribs rattle with terror.

The girl of the period is wrongly named. She isn't a girl any more, strictly speaking, in the old English meaning of the term, and she is not of the period. There's nothing of the full-stop about her, hardly pause enough for a comma. Suppose we restrict her to the belle on the dash—rhymes with [illegible], don't you see. This is the belle of Cockaigne, of course, and yet, as we draw our London so lovingly as the [illegible] knows the anatomy of his race-horse, I think we shall be able to get just a snap view of the pure, unadulterated English miss from the provinces if we move in a certain snug corner of Regent's Park where it touches St. John's wood. A goodly number of those fine old mansions are now boarding-schools, where country girls get their London finish.

Pretty, of course; captivating? well, a way. Lacking in finish a bit, just a wide raw, high-stepping action wanted. "Why, you are judging a park pony by the standard of a Life Guardsman's charger!" That is so, therefore let's [illegible] back to fair dealings with the fair darlings. What is more lovely than to watch two of these charming [illegible] over their favorites in the big [illegible] school at the opposite corner. But we must not betray State secrets. Why, certainly not, even if we had the chance, which the subtle diplomacies never permit.

Do you think, honestly now, that Gwendoline really believes Cissy is unlikely to her the veritable secret she should love to share? If you do, Gwen doesn't, any more than she expects Cissy to be taken in by her own protestation that she hates that [illegible] Bob. A finishing term in a London school gives a marvelous gloss of art to the sheen of genuine [illegible] sweetness.

Skip a year or so, and let the dear [illegible] be "out," out of girlhood into [illegible], out of her sweet seventeen into [illegible] [illegible] jolly than those three grave and reverend unsophisticated females as they took a hansom down to Olympia and paid their way in to the balcony "all by our very own selves. There!" Below them stalwart guardsmen whacking each other into dust-clouds with mighty quarter-staves and fencing-sticks. Above them a squad of handsome young officers risking their necks in their attempts to quiz the trio of artistes in petticoats in the box beneath. Around them thousands, tens of thousands of admiring eyes, shooting glowing beams of delight at the extra free show of beauty among fighting animals in the arena. Proud as she is, and properly so, of the tribute of popular admiration, the British girl quickly rescues herself from the peril of its continuance. To enjoy being petted is one thing; to hold one's hat to have it poured in by the bucketful is another. She modestly shuns, every where and always, the instant she is conscious of a triumph. Nothing would so outrage your British belle as to incur the suspicion of posing on purpose for flattery or being ogled, like her Parisian cousin.

To be a lady is to take pains to be born the daughter of a gent as owns a gig, or a one hoss shay. Ask Mrs. Gamp. Well, suppose we step up into the loftier world where a woman who works is or may be a lady by nature's decree. London is not one city but a hundred cities, its people live a hundred different lives in a hundred different modes. Some of these are observable, some are not, except by instruction. There is the country in London, as well as the metropolis in it. The ideal type of the John Bull of fifty or a hundred years ago, the most farmer-like, sturdy, dogged and burly British beef-eater whom you could find in all England has for years been the famous vendor of milk in Fleet street and the Temple. A huge fellow, probably three hundred pounds or more, with knee breeches, blue worsted stockings and white apron, a credit to the country that bore him. So if you ask me to take you where you shall see the prettiest country damsel, I shall take you to Piccadilly in London at five in the morning this merry Maytime and bid you feast your eyes on our Polly, the pretty milkmaid.

In the afternoon we will stroll down Oxford street to inspect the regiment of serving-maids, whom you in far Columbia distinguished as sales-ladies, store-duchesses, or what not. Marshall & Snellgrove's place is as a big square beehive, round which these thousand working bees swarm night and morning. Weary—some of them—with playing dummy for customers to see the hang of their purchases on their stately figures, others with everlasting shifting from one tired foot to the other the long day through, all of them jubilant at the chance of catching new beauty tints from the ruddy rays that kiss their cheeks as they wend their westward way home.

Home? Say lodgings; or perhaps rooms in the shop they work in, for those are the apologies for homes for the majority of London shop-assistants. Now, here are the home-birds, quite a bevy of them; you can hear them twittering and cackling if you hold your ear close enough to the paper. Mind the hot tea (five o'clock), Souchong, with a dash of green hyson in to give scandal spice, or your nose may get singed. The cockney girl? Bless you, no! Have I not said she is a progressive female? She is now a matron. This is a mother's meeting—a maternal parliament, the sacredest—not solemnest—institution in the British realm. What a nuisance! The confounded clatter (of the cups, of course,) prevents our clearly catching the philosophic debate: "Such a cherub!" "And did he institute proceedings?" "She always was a—" "Nineteen round the waist, I assure you!" "My dear, I knew he loved me all the time!" "Perfectly atrocious! She's quite a hag!" "Clocks;" "sympathy;" "dual garment;" "spite;" "bustle;" "jilt;" "plump;" "trip," "trap;" "slap." "Sss-her-hss-ss—Gracious! a mouse! !" Earthquake! Debate adjourned.

OSCAR LYNN.

DRYDEN AND POPE.

The Pay the Two Authors Received for Some of Their Best Works.

Dryden published his works by subscription. At first he had difficulty in obtaining money for his manuscripts. He offered his "Troilus and Cressida" to Tonson for £20, but the bookseller could not raise the money. Dryden then applied to Lavalle, another bookseller, for a portion of the copy money, and the two booksellers published the work conjointly. Dryden, like his fellows, prepared plays for the stage, which were more remunerative than his poems and translations published as books.

Dryden's "Translation of Virgil" was one of his most successful enterprises. It was published by subscription, and Dryden received about £1,200 for the translation. He was less successful with his "Fables," which contained about 12,000 lines. The work included "Alexander's Feast," one of the noblest odes in our language. Tonson gave him 250 guineas for it, and offered to make up the amount to £300 when a second edition was called for. Dryden dedicated the book to the beautiful Duchess of Ormonde, and received for his license a present of £500—a donation worthy of that noble house. The book, however, went off slowly; fifteen years elapsed before a second edition was called for, and the poet was by that time in his grave. Tonson paid the agreed surplus to Lady Sylvester, daughter of one of Lady Elizabeth Dryden's daughters, for the benefit of his widow, then in a state of lunacy.

Pope was much more successful than Dryden. As the success of Tonson had been founded on the reputation of Dryden, that of Lintott was established by his connection with Pope. Three thousand copies of the "Rape of the Lock" were sold in four days, while a new edition was in the press. Pope was even more fortunate with his translations from the Greek. Lintott published for him, by subscription, the translation of Homer's "Iliad," by which Pope realized the sum of £5,320. The translation of the "Odyssey" was not so successful, yet it realized £3,500, the largest sum earned at that time for this description of literary work, and perhaps never since exceeded.—Murray's Magazine.

ODD AND INTERESTING.

JAPANESE chickens with tails from eleven to thirteen feet long are being imported into this country.

A CLERGYMAN named Fiddle refused to accept the title of D. D. because, he said, he "didn't want to be called Rev. Fiddle, D. D."

The ocean ferryboat, Robert Garrett, plying between Brooklyn and New York City carries 3,000 passengers at a trip and is said to be the largest single ferryboat in existence.

In making soundings for the new railroad bridge at Aspen, Fla., the engineers struck an artesian flow of sulphur water in one stream. It comes from a depth of fifty feet and is quite a curiosity.

THE tornado which swept through Louisville recently was almost identical in its course, and in the direction from which it came, with one that played havoc in the same city in the year 1855.

THE pet names of the four baby States are as follows: North Dakota is the "Flickertail State," South Dakota is the "Swing Cat State," Washington is the "Chinook State," and Montana is the "Stubbed-Toe State."

AN Augusta (Ga.) man won a lamp in a raffle the other day, had no use for it, put it on raffle at Milledgeville, won it; raffled; won it; raffled again, and went home with $30 in currency and the lamp under his arm.

THE largest tree in the world, according to statistics lately published by the Italian government, is a monster chestnut standing at the foot of Mt. Ætna. The circumference of the main trunk at 60 feet from the ground is 212 feet.

ACCORDING to figures given by a San Francisco newspaper California is the bloodiest State in the Union. In 1889 it had one homicide to 3,472 of the population. In the other States it runs up from one in 5,912 in Kentucky to one in 80,000 in other States.

IT is now believed that the mammoth abounded to as great an extent upon the East as on the west coast of Behring sea. In fact, mammoths have already been discovered in Alaska, and news comes that a syndicate has been formed for the purpose of procuring their ivory tusks, which are now of great value and which will undoubtedly continue to become more valuable, as the elephant is being exterminated.

IN Sheffield, Ala., the new iron town, a curious phenomenon is puzzling the local scientists. From time immemorial a lake of considerable depth and covering several acres of ground has existed and has been a famous fishing resort for sportsmen. A few nights since the people in the vicinity were panic-stricken by a fearful noise and subterranean rumbling as of an earthquake. In the morning it was discovered that the lake had entirely disappeared, the bottom having literally dropped out, the water escaping through a hole fifteen feet in diameter.

IN 1835 the Chicago post-office was a log building at the corner of South Water and Lake streets. The post-office was on one side of the room and a grocery and bar on the other. A justice of the peace held court upstairs. One day a penny dropped from the ceiling of the post-office to the floor. Two or three fellows rushed for it. The postmaster, John S. C. Hogan, rushed out and said: "Let it alone; don't touch it. The jury upstairs has flipped for heads or tails to see what shall be done with the man on trial." Sure enough, the next minute the foreman came down a ladder looking for the penny.

SCRAPS FROM THE SEA.

A MACHINE for taking soundings has been invented which does not require that the vessel be stopped for the work.

THE latest addition to the British navy, the Victoria, is said to be the largest war vessel at present ready for active service. She cost over $4,000,000, and carries a crew of 500 officers and men.

EXPERIMENTS with the 25,000 candle power search lamps show that vessels three miles off can readily be detected, and that, by throwing the light on the clouds, signaling is possible at a distance of fifty miles.

ELECTRIC motors are now applied on war ships for hoisting ammunition, instead of using the "pony" steam engine. The new method insures more of convenience, cleanliness, economy of space and coolness of atmosphere.

IT is said that the first cost of building a fleet of Atlantic liners is but a trifle compared to the cost of running them. In less than three years it will exceed the cost of construction, so enormous is the expenditure in wages, port duties and repairs.

LA NATURE gives an account of an alarm girdle for men-of-war or harbors, to protect them from the sudden attack of torpedo boats by night. The girdle is made of wire with floats, and is supported by buoys at intervals all round the vessel. When the enemy breaks through the line a night light flares up and indicates the spot.

FROM the British Board of Trade returns it appears that every few days throughout the year a vessel carrying the British flag leaves port never more to be heard of. In the year ending June, 1888, the number of vessels under the British flag to which accidents happened of various kinds was 7,724, involving the loss of 2,534 lives. This is a melancholy record, but is less than the average for ten years of about fifty lives. There were 900 total losses, of which nearly one-third are reported as missing.

SUCCESSFUL experiments have recently been made in England with a new nautical distress signal. The device is in the form of a metal cylinder, in the base of which is the propelling charge, above this being a charge of tonite, and above this again a star composition. The propelling charge is fired by pulling a lanyard, and the signal is propelled upward at one impulse until the rocket has reached the height of 600 feet. The stars are thrown out, giving a brilliant illumination, and the tonite charge then explodes, the noise being equal to the firing of a six-pound gun, but being high in the air is heard at a great distance.

SINGULAR SIGHTS.

EIGHT colored women recently served as pall-bearers at the funeral of a colored woman in Paris, Ky.

GLASGOW papers lately reported a superstitious resort to a process for the cure of whooping-cough. A number of mothers were seen passing their children under the stomach of a donkey and round again over its back, this being done a certain number of times, according to the age of the child.

A RARE phenomenon is reported from St. Malo. Recently during the afternoon, between four and five o'clock, three suns were seen all in a row a little above the western horizon. The real sun, which was in the centre, shone with unwonted brilliancy, while from its supporters darted rays of prismatic colors.

A CURIOUS sight met the eyes of those who passed through the capitol grounds at Washington the other morning. Thousands of worms of all sizes covered the walks. Some people thought there had been a shower of worms, but none were visible except on the walks. By the afternoon they had all disappeared.

A PROMINENT farmer of Lee County, Ga., tells the following snake story: He was walking over his plantation when he came to a sow with a fine litter of pigs. He found one of them absent. Going a short distance further he overtook a huge rattlesnake, which he promptly dispatched. He noticed that it seemed very large and was apparently gorged. Cutting it open out jumped the missing pig, which, as soon as released from its close quarters, took to its heels and ran home.

A METEOR weighing several hundred pounds fell the other night ten miles northwest of Gainesville, Ga. It had the appearance of a gigantic flint rock, and its descent was accompanied by a roaring sound like distant thunder, which was noticed some seconds before it struck the earth. Just before reaching the ground the meteor exploded with a report like a cannon, and shattered fragments of rock for several rods around, many of which have since been picked up and retained by the people of that community as curiosities.

CONDUCTOR—"Who is that serious man who says you have his ticket?" Western Ranchman—"That man's been my partner for ten years. You'd think to look at him that he was solving a weighty problem. Ask him what he's thinking of and he answers 'Nothin'.' Funny, but that's right."

"I WISH," said Mrs. Shuttle to her faithful spouse, Job, "that you would get a pair of those very large trousers that are so fashionable just now." "Wouldn't wear a pair of 'em if I had 'em given to me." "Oh, I don't care whether you wear them or not. They would be so nice to cut over for little Job. I could get three or four pair out of one."

PERSONAL PARTICULARS.

MRS. JOHN A. LOGAN is an accomplished carpenter, and fills her home with skillful conveniences of her own contriving.

SIR JOHN MILLAIS, the eminent English painter, is so long-sighted that he is obliged to use brushes a yard long when painting.

MR. GLADSTONE encourages rising artists of all kinds, and promised to attend a concert which Miss Josephine Simon, the young American singer, is to give in London.

MR. W. H. KELLY, who was lately elected mayor of Edgerton, Kan., is only twenty-three years old and is believed to be the youngest mayor in the United States.

SIR FREDERICK LEIGHTON, the famous painter, is a man with curly hair and a ruddy face that is fringed with a thick beard. He is sixty years old and has painted about 130 pictures.

THE two wealthiest women in Philadelphia, both widows, are said to be Mrs. Thomas H. Powers and Mrs. Thomas A. Scott. They are worth between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000 each.

MRS. LANGTRY'S favorite relics of America are the hunting and Indian trophies that she picked up in Denver and other Western cities. Her most valued article of this nature is an Indian medicine sash.

DR. SCHLIEMANN is working with a will at his task of laying bare all that the ages have left of old Troy. He has two hundred and fifty men at work and he has laid down a small railway, so he is making rapid progress to the attainment of his object.

THOMAS TONDROW is undoubtedly the oldest reporter, both in years and length of service, regularly employed upon a daily paper in this country. He celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary recently. He began reporting for Horace Greeley in 1841, and is still furnishing the news of Westchester County to the New York papers.

IT is worth remarking that the Germans have never called Bismarck "The Iron Chancellor." The title is one of French or British invention. Bismarck was called der Eiserne Graf after the battle of Sedowa, and for years he was known only as "The Iron Count." But this title is said to have been given him in admiration for his nerve in himself arresting Blinde, who tried to assassinate him in the open street.

HAWARDEN, Mr. Gladstone's country seat, was invaded one day recently by a little olive-colored man, making many gestures and talking a strange jargon; so the servants arrested him as a maniac and possible assassin; Gladstone was summoned to see the wretch, who turned out to be a Greek professor speaking no English, who had come all the way from Athens to congratulate the British statesman on knowing Homer's Iliad by heart.

HENRY M. STANLEY is said to be thoroughly hardened, hopelessly indifferent and out of humor with every body and every thing in London. Absolutely nothing interests him except the heart of Africa. He does not complain of ill-health, but the elasticity of his nature has departed. He never laughs, and when he smiles it is apparently with a painful effort. His thorough mastery of every thing that relates to Africa makes him interesting when he cares to talk of his hobby, but it is like pulling teeth to try to interest him in any thing else.

ARTICLES OF ANTIQUITY.

ON exhibition at the Third National Bank in Scranton is a check bearing the signature of George Washington. It was drawn just three months and one day before his death.

A RESIDENT of New York lately bought for $1,125 the jewel casket of carved ivory presented to Columbus, according to the Latin inscription on the lid, by Ferdinand and Isabella in 1493.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S prayer-book is shown in the Tudor exhibition in London. It is bound in enamelled gold, and printed by A. Barker in 1574, and it is one of the chief wonders of the Tudors shown.

THE speech with which Oliver Cromwell turned Parliament out of doors in 1653 has come to light through the researches of Dr. Wolfgang Michael, and there is strong evidence that it is authentic.

THE most valuable book in the world, according to the Rivista Typografica, is the Hebraic Bible, at the Vatican. In 1512 the Jews of Venice tried to buy it of Pope Junius II. for its weight in gold. It is so large and heavy that two men can scarcely lift it, and would have brought $100,000 if the Pope had not refused to negotiate.

THE British Museum has one of the pillars presented by King Crœsus, of Lydia, to the famous Temple of Ephesus. It has been pieced together by Dr. Murray, of the museum, and bears its own certificate in the words on the base: "Crœsus the King dedicated me." Rude figures in relief encircle the drum of the column. The pillar belonged to the old temple destroyed at the birth of Alexander the Great.

AN autograph letter of Richard III. was sold in England recently for about $1.25 per inch of surface. It was written at Barnard Castle, in Durham, August 4, 1480, or about three years before the crook-back Duke of Gloucester, then Constable and Admiral of England, came to the throne, and is described as "slightly tinged and torn, but written in a small, clear hand, pasted on a clean sheet of white paper, and inclosed in a glazed oak frame."

A VERY old MS. has just come to light in Egypt. It is the will written upon parchment, of a noble Egyptian of the name of Sekiah, in which the testator states that he leaves all his property to his brother, a priest of Osiris. A second piece of writing was also found, in which Sekiah commends his little daughter to his brother's care, and in which he states that he wishes her, upon attaining her majority, to have full control of her own money matters. Both documents are drawn up in a most concise and lawyer-like manner. The manuscripts are about five thousand years old.

BEYOND THE BIG WATER.

YOU can get 100 acres of land in Samoa for $1.37 and the taxes will be only 39 cents a year.

BERLIN has seven different classes of prisons, which often hold more than 5,000 persons at a time.

LONDON has no Sunday mail. At ten o'clock Saturday night the post-office is closed and no letters are received or delivered.

THE Government telegraph service of Great Britain transmits, it is said, on the average, 1,526,770 words a day to newspapers alone.

An Eiffel tower may rise in Germany. The Bavarian Government proposes to build one near Starenberg lake as a monument to Bismarck, and secondarily as an observatory.

A LONDON philanthropist is engaged in improving the appearance of flower girls so that they may be as attractive as the pretty little Parisian soubrette in her trim costume and jaunty white cap.

SO PERFECT is the new anthropometrical system that criminals in France have almost ceased to give false names when re-arrested, and not one single case of wrong identification has occurred under it.

ODESSA has been preparing to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of its foundation. In 1794 the Duke de Richelieu, a Frenchman, laid out the plan of Odessa, now become one of the most flourishing cities in the world.

THERE is a craze in London for queer leather. Some shops are stocked with fancy articles made from the skins of all sorts of beasts, reptiles and fishes, including pelican skins, lion and panther skins, fish skins, monkey skins, snake skins, etc.

IN Paris the horse is a subject of fashion rather than a source of pleasure. Few French women ride well, and the Frenchman, as a rule, looks upon the animal as a difficult and dangerous article to navigate, a ship whose rudder is in the wrong place.

"SUN sickness" is the term applied to the condition of the people of Melbourne, who recently passed through a torrid season. So abnormal was the heat that natives of Madras and negroes from Sierra Leone suffered more than they had ever suffered in their native climes.

A NEW sport, London Truth says, has been inaugurated at Leeds, where, the other day, a pair of fox terriers were "articled for $125 a side to pick up and return a ball thrown fifty-one times over a mark fifty yards away, the one completing the task in the shortest time to be declared the winner." One of the dogs did it in 13 minutes 1 4-5 seconds, but the other beat him in [illegible] minutes 11 2-5 seconds.

ONE result of Prince Bismarck's retirement will, perhaps, be a notable improvement in the eyesight of his countrymen. German oculists almost unanimously attribute the extraordinary prevalence of presbyopia and other defects of vision in the fatherland to the use of the national black-letter type in school-books. Prince Bismarck has always resolutely stood upon the ancient ways in this matter, and has opposed the substitution of the Roman for the Gothic characters in German books. The party of typographical reform is now hopeful of succeeding in its object.

CONDENSED CLIPPINGS.

THERE died at Joliet prison recently a life convict, who first entered the place December 7, 1869, making twenty years four months and eight days actual time served. There are but three convicts in prison who have been there for a longer period.

DURING 1889 the Auditor of Montana signed warrants for bounties to the amount of $8,099. The following is the role of victims: 2,827 coyotes, 908 wolves, 101 wildcats, 5 mountain lions, 77 bears and 54 lynxes. Total, 4,0[illegible] animals.

VOLAPUK has received a very severe blow. An English society of scientists has decided that the German professor's universal language is wanting in many particulars, and that the language most suitable for general use is medieval Latin, "adapted to modern needs."

CHINESE inspector at San Diego reports to the Treasury Department that the smuggling of Chinamen into this country by way of Mexico is a profitable traffic of no small dimensions and backed by a very heavy capital, with the principal headquarters at San Francisco and China.

THIRTY-FOUR regular life insurance companies of the United States possess invested assets of $712,000,000, and a surplus of $92,000,000. In other words, they have $100.13 in hand for every $100 they owe. These companies paid to their policy holders last year the stupendous sum of $92,400,000.

THE Chinamen of Astoria, Ore., amuse themselves with a huge top made out of an empty twenty-five pound white lead keg. A square opening is cut in the side, and it takes three men to spin it—one to hold the top and two to pull the string with a stick, which sets it in motion. While spinning it sounds like the whistle of a steamer, and can be heard three blocks away.

A FARMER living near Bridgewater, N. D., had a narrow escape from death the other day. He was plowing in a field with three horses abreast when a shower came up and he crawled under the horses to keep from getting wet. When the rain stopped he left his shelter and started across the field, but had not gone more than a few steps when a bolt of lightning struck the animals and instantly killed all of them.

ONE of the wealthy men of Stark County, O., who died the other day at the age of seventy, was buried in accordance with his will, which was that no believer in "the contemptible and blasphemous doctrine of eternal punishment" should be permitted to talk" at his funeral, no stone was to mark his grave, his wife was not to wear black, and the mourners were to have a big feast as soon as the funeral was over.

TEXAS farmers have been greatly tormented by the depredations by rats, which have destroyed their crops in many cases. In order to exterminate the rodents all the entrances but one to a burrow are stopped up. At the open one an iron teakettle is placed with a pipe leading from the nozzle down into the burrow. Sulphur is placed in the teakettle, a fire made under it and the fumes of the sulphur being driven into the burrow every rat in it is quickly killed.

IN an electrical exhibition in San Francisco an illustration was given of the saving that was effected when gas is used as a fuel instead of an illuminant. During the evening's run the gas engine, which works the electric plant, consumes 300 cubic feet of gas, and furnishes 53 sixteen-candle power incandescent lamps, while 53 sixteen-candle gas lights, with five-foot burners, would require 618 feet for the same length of time. This is a saving of over fifty per cent.

FLORISTS in Brooklyn are watching with interest the progress of an ivy vine over the face of a block in Seventh avenue, a little beyond Flatbush avenue. The vine has its root in front of one tall brown-stone house, and in the course of three or four years it has nearly covered the fronts of four other houses. Those acquainted with the habits of the ivy say that if undisturbed the vine will shortly cover the whole block with its greenery. Oddly enough, ivy planted on the opposite side of the street does not flourish.

LEMONS are used for soap in many countries where they grow. When, for instance, the men and women of the West Indies want to wash their hands they squeeze the juice of a lemon over them and rub them briskly in water until they are clean. There is an acid in the lemon similar to that in soap. And in countries where oranges grow in great plenty country gentlemen use the cheapest kind for blacking their boots. The orange is cut in two and the juicy side of one half is rubbed on the soot of an iron pot and then on the boot. Then the boot is rubbed with a soft brush and a bright polish at once appears.

SOME SOLEMN THOUGHTS.

THE error of a moment may be the sorrow of a whole life.

ONLY a word; yet who can tell its power for weal or woe.

OUR acts make or mar us; we are the children of our own deeds.

THE saddest thing under the sky is a soul incapable of sadness.

NEVER think that you make yourself great by making others less.

MANY of our cares are but a morbid way of looking at our privileges.

A DEEP moral hurt leaves its traces as surely as a deep wound leaves a scar.

WITHOUT steadiness of character in social life there can be no true friendship.

DO NOT judge a man by his failure in life, for many men are too honest to succeed.

GOOD fortune seldom comes pure and single, unattended by some troublesome or unexpected circumstance.

FORTUNE turns faster than a mill-wheel, and those who were yesterday at top may find themselves at bottom to-day.

IT is unlucky that experience, being our best teacher, we have only learned its lessons perfectly when we no longer stand in need of them; and have provided ourselves armor we can never wear.

Journalism in Georgia.

"Some thoughtful friend," says a Georgia journalist, "has sent us a jug of juicy 'mountain dew,' but, as our printer is sick, we shall not be able to do it full justice before next week. A man can't set type and enjoy life at the same time."

He Must Go.

Mrs. Prim—John, we must discharge that new music teacher!

Mr. Prim—Why so, Maria?

Mrs. Prim—I heard our girls say he has a delightful touch.—Texas Siftings.

"A Dire Disease and Desperate to Cure."

Major Culpepper—Doctor, I'm knocked out, am feeling very poorly this morning.

Dr Wyse—Take a pill, and follow it up with quinine.

Major—Oh! I never could endure blue mass.

Dr.—Well, a dose of castor oil, then.

Major—Ugh! Impossible!

Dr.—Hum! I don't know—take a—take a good stiff julep—plenty of mint and whisky.

Major—Any thing you say, Doctor; any thing you say! (Rings the bell.)—Puck.

TICKLING TRIFLES.

THE fall of Babylon was in many respects Assyria's affair.

THE best cure for insomnia that we know of is to have some one keep telling you breakfast is ready.

IT is impossible to convince a woman who arrives five minutes late at a station that the engineer did not see her coming and started off just out of spite.

MISS TENDERHEART—"Oh, see that poor little monkey! Why is he chained to the hand-organ?" Bingley—"So he won't run away from the horrible music, I suppose."

MRS. NEWRICH (back from honeymooning in Switzerland)—"Do you remember that lovely gorge up in the mountains, Arthur?" Mr. Newrich—"I do; it was the squarest meal I ever ate."

A GEORGIA editor recently devoured three dozen eggs on a wager, and now some of his brethren are wondering where he got the eggs, and if any other chances like that are open to them.

"IT'S very puzzling," said a worried-looking woman to one of her neighbors. "What is that?" "I can't tell whether Willie is corrupting the parrot or whether the parrot is corrupting Willie."

OLD Mrs. Dursly is a pattern of household economy. She says she has made a pair of socks last fifteen years by only knitting new feet to them every winter and new legs to them every other autumn.

BEFORE TAKING. AFTER TAKING.

Why, Mary, how your baby cries!

Yes, he has colic again.

Why don't you give him Dr. Taylor's Best Soothing Syrup?

Is that good?

Yes, for Pains, Colds, Coughs, &c., it is excellent for either young or old. Of the many kinds of medicines I have used in my family I have found none to equal it.

Thank you, Jane, I will try it. Margaret Ann, go as soon as you can to either Reynolds' or Shaw's Drug Store, and get a bottle of Dr. Taylor's Soothing Syrup.

POEMS PENNED OF LATE.

June.

June, with rare beauty in her blushing face
Trips o'er the fields, garbed in her brightest green;
Showering her blossoms with bewitching grace,
Glowing with warmth and life—fair summer's queen.

Flashes the sunrise 'midst her glistening sheen;
[illegible]
Shineth her canopy with bright diadems,
[illegible] from vaulted skies, [illegible] so deeply blue.

Sweetly her feathered songsters trill their notes;
Lightly they dart from waving screen to screen.
[illegible] her lullaby that lightly floats,
Wooing each sense, while darkness veils the scene.

Athwart the dimpling streamlet brightly glows
The wavy image of her cloudless moon;
Her cooling zephyrs breathe of sweet repose.
Welcome, thou beauteous queen! transcendent June!

—Milton L. Murdock, in Drake's Magazine.

Half Cultivated.

She is dignified and stately,
In Parisian style attired,
We must needs admire her greatly;
She expects to be admired.
The attractions she possesses
Our poetic fancies [illegible],
Though she "calculates" and "guesses,"
Though she "reckons" and "allows."

Men of culture does she deem us?
With the air of one who knows,
Shakespeare, Kant and Uncle Remus
She discusses with her beaux.
Suitors woo her, duke and dandy,
And the cry is still they come!
Though she's mostly munching candy,
When she isn't chewing gum.

Unaffected by the blushes
That beset our English girls,
She can hold her own at crushes,
She is affable with earls.
Past description! Overtasking
Power of metaphor or trope!
Though a husband's all she's asking
From the land she calls Eu-rope.

—St. James Gazette.

Strain of Song.

From the minister's organ loft,
Floating down the shadowed nave,
Comes a strain of music soft,
Falling as a weary wave
Falls upon the beach of sand,
Murmurous and sweet and bland,
Bearing from the mighty sea
Messages of melody.

There, alone, the organist
Lets his listless fingers go—
Lost in a melodious mist—
O'er the key-board, to and fro;
There, half-dreaming, in the gloom,
Sits the weaver at his loom,
Weaving with the threads of sound
Music-woof the warp around.

All unconsciously he hides
Strains familiar in his theme
When a master-spirit glides
Through the doorway of his dream;
Mozart, Handel, Chopin, or
Harmony's great conjurer—
Rapt Beethoven!—each is part
Of the dreaming player's heart.

So the Poet dreams, nor knows
Who may listen, who may hear;
Following where Fancy leads,
[illegible] to him is dear:
Omar, Keats, Theocritus,
In his voice may speak to us
From the realm of ages dim—
These are in the heart of him!

Poets in the fields of Time,
Since the world began, have sown
Wide the precious seeds of rhyme,
And to us to-day are known
Odors from these poem-flowers—
Seedlings of the later hours—
Blossoming the fields along,
Breathing the sweet breath of song.

—Frank Dempster Sherman, in N. Y. Independent.

The Land of Gold.

Behind the sunset's bars in the wide West,
We catch the radiance of the Land of Gold:
The dazzling splendors of its wealth untold
Flash through our dreams, and wake to vague unrest.
The soul—with Life's dull warfare oppressed,
Or wrapped in weeds of sorrow, fold on fold—
Till, with sheer longing and despair grown bold,
We turn to seek that Land where all are blest.

But the Gold fades, and the strong stars arise
That look beyond the sunset and the sun;
They see our little world hung far below
While ever its imperial planets glow—
From Heaven they whisper: "Heaven can not be won Until great Death has come to make men wise."

—Louise Chandler Moulton, in Youth's Companion.

The Yellow-Hammer's Tap.

When gentle breezes softly play
O'er meadows sweet, in fair-haired May,
And whisper secrets to the pines
In woodlands dense with climb'ring vines;
When balmy spring-time fills the air,
And scatters sweetness everywhere,
Then there comes the ceaseless rap
Of the yellow-hammer's tap—
Tip-tap, tap-tap, tip-tap tip—
Tipity-tap,
Tapity-tip,
Tipity-tap-tap!
'Tis the merry pitter-patter
Of the yellow-hammer's tap.

When brown wrens peer through rough-hewn rail,
And oft is heard the drum of quail,
And thickets echo thrush's song,
And swollen brooklets bound along;
When from the hedge the cat-birds cry,
And meadow-larks are soaring high,
Then there comes the merry tap
Of the yellow-hammer's rap—
Tip-tap, tip-tap, tip-tap-tip—
Tipity-tap,
Tapity-tip,
Tipity-tap-tap.
'Tis the ceaseless pitter-patter
Of the yellow-hammer's tap.

When hazy shadows slowly creep,
And lambkins bleat themselves to sleep;
When from the pasture's dappled plain
Between the cow-bell's sweet refrain
That blends with negro teamster's song,
As down the road he rides along,
Again is heard the merry tap
Of the yellow-hammer's rap—
Tip-tap, tip-tap, tip-tap-tip—
Tipity-tap,
Tapity-tip,
Tipity-tap-tap.
'Tis the plaintive rat-a-tatter
Of the yellow-hammer's tap.

—Edward A. Oldham, in Century Magazine.

Dignified Courtship.

A pretty Boston school-ma'am
And a youth of mein sedate
Were parting in the evening
Beside the garden gate.

His hand and heart he'd offered
In a grave and sober way,
And she with quiet dignity
Had named the happy day.

He lingered at the gate with her
And said in accents low:
"There is a little favor
I would ask before I go.

"A favor never asked before;
Sweet maiden, it is this—
A lover's privilege, that is all—
A sweet betrothal kiss."

"If you wait," the maiden whispered,
With her color rising high,
"Till I remove my spectacles,
I'll willingly comply."

—Boston Courier.

In the investigation in New York as to electrical matters an expert declared, that the number of volts which could be used without danger to life varied greatly. A horny-handed man would be able to take perhaps two thousand volts, while another could not take five hundred.

STRAW is now about to be employed on a large scale for the making of gunpowder. The straw is pulverized, chemically treated and then finished in granular form for use. The new explosive is said to be one hundred and fifty per cent. stronger than an equal weight of ordinary gunpowder and much superior in every respect.

THE prize of forty thousand francs offered by the French Academy for some certain test of death, looking to the prevention of being buried alive, was given to a physician, who announces that on holding the hand of the supposed dead person to a strong light, if living, a scarlet tinge is seen where the fingers touch, showing that the blood continues to circulate, there being no scarlet when the subject is really dead.

COLOR-BLINDNESS is a congenital defect, and is incurable. The man who was born with it must submit to its limitations as long as he lives, and is simply playing ostrich when he tries to deceive himself or others into a belief contrary to this. Some color-blind individuals suffer under greater disabilities than others, but a true color-blind person is never sure to select either green or red correctly.

THE DOCTORS' CONGRESS.

A Great International Gathering in Berlin on August 4.

The Largest Convention in the History of Medical Science—Some Famous Physicians Who Will Be There—A Large Delegation to Be Present.

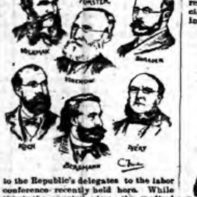
[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

The aged Prof. Virchow is an exceedingly busy man at present. In spite of his years he is still the most thoroughly active member of the medical profession in Berlin. Age has not diminished his energies; but this year he has had an additional burden of work imposed upon him, in connection with the approaching International Medical Congress. The professor is chairman of the committee on organization, and is assisted in his duties by Drs. von Bergmann, Leyden and Waldemeyer. He gives me the assurance that the congress, in point of attendance and importance, will go very far beyond any of its predecessors. The work of the committee is well advanced, and invitations are now being sent out to almost every country under the sun, together with an announcement of the preliminary programme of the congress.

Thus far only one thing has arisen to mar the harmony of the work of preparation. With the exception of France, every European nation will be fully represented, but the medical profession in Paris and elsewhere throughout the Republic have apparently decided to hold aloof.

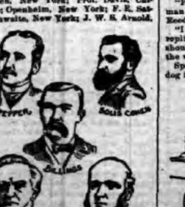
It is significant, too, that while the prospects of the congress have been widely discussed by medical journals in other countries, those of France have been silent. There will undoubtedly be a few French names upon the roll of delegates who come to read papers before the congress; but the present outlook would indicate that the physicians of that country designed to boycott the congress, for the simple reason that it is to meet in this city under German auspices and to be opened by the Emperor Wilhelm in person.

This attitude was totally unexpected, in view of the very cordial, and, indeed, almost enthusiastic reception tendered to the Republic's delegates to the labor conference recently held here. While this is the popular view, the medical leaders here, and more especially the members of the committee on organization, explain it by recalling the trouble in the congress of 1887, held in Washington, when, in the closing hours of the session, a bitter fight took place over the location of the next congress. The French delegates then charged the American physicians with being under the Prussian yoke in consenting to hold the congress of 1890 in Berlin, and openly gave warning that it would not be an international affair, but merely a German reunion. Drs. de Lefort, Recamier, Landolt and Apostoli made the fight for Paris, while Prof. Martin, of this city, and Albert Gihon, medical director of the United States navy, together with the entire German and American delegations and several others, were the champions of Berlin. They referred to the fact that the first congress had been held in Paris in 1867, then in Florence, 1869; Vienna, 1873; Brussels, 1875; Geneva, 1877; Holland, 1879; London, 1881; Copenhagen, 1884, and Washington, 1887, and claimed that now it was due to Germany that Berlin should have the honor.



However, there will be no lack of high medical talent and forensic ability in the congress. The session will last four days, from eleven o'clock in the forenoon till two o'clock in the afternoon. There will be in all over three thousand delegates in attendance, including nearly a thousand from the United States, being a large increase over the American representation in the last congress, when there were only two hundred and twenty delegates from that country. Egypt, China, Persia and the South American republics will be represented; together with nearly every nation possessing the slightest claim to civilization. Prof. Rudolph Virchow, of the University of Berlin, and known all over the world as the most eminent of living pathologists, will preside. The delegates of the various American medical societies and institutions will be admitted on equal terms with those of Europe. It is worth noting, too, that the committee on organization has appointed as an American committee for the purpose of securing the co-operation of the American profession, the following gentlemen: Drs. S. C. Bussey, Washington, D. C.; A. Jacobi, New York; J. Peyre Porcher, Charleston, S. C.; William Osler, Boston; William Pepper, Philadelphia; R. H. Fitz, Boston; H. Hun, Albany, and J. T. Stewart, Montreal, Can.

The plans for the approaching event have been laid on much broader lines than those of any preceding congress. It will go very far toward assuring the ties of international professional brotherhood, and it is desired that the American profession should have a distinct share, both in the labors and the fruits. Among the leading American physicians who will attend, besides those named on the committee, are many familiar to the profession in every State in the Union. A few I may mention as among those who will read papers before the congress, viz.: Drs. Battey, Georgia; Da Costa and Bell, Philadelphia; Benham, Pittsburgh; Bishop Delafs, Ohio; Briggs, Nashville; Solis Cohen, Philadelphia; Montrose A. Pallen, New York; Prof. Davis, Chicago; Openheim, New York; F. R. Satterthwaite, New York; J. W. S. Arnold, New York; Walter A. Camp, New York; H. P. Walcot, president Massachusetts Board of Health; Lefferts, New York; O'Dwyer, New York; Parvin, Philadelphia; John S. Billings, United States Army; Cutter, New York; Weir, New York. It will thus be seen that the Americans will bear no inconsiderable share of the work of the congress.

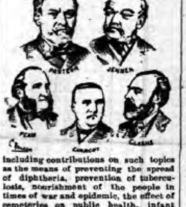


For the government of so large a deliberative body, there is of necessity an extensive code of rules; for to be of value the work of the congress must be thoroughly systematized. This is accomplished by dividing the delegates into sections, according to the branch of the science they represent, each section having a chairman or president of its own. All papers or subjects designed to be submitted to the congress must first be decided on by the section from which they come and approved by a special committee. No scientific question is to be put to a vote. Introductory addresses are to be limited to twenty minutes, and speeches in debate to ten minutes each. All papers are to be sent to the secretary, Dr. Lassar, in writing, before the end of the day's session.

These papers are then sent to an editorial committee, which decides whether or not they shall be printed and issued as part of the official record of the congress. The languages to be used are German, French and English, and the programme for each of the four days will be printed in all three. The usual parliamentary rules will prevail. Invitations to other than medical men will be extended by special permission, granted by the proper committee. A certain number of gentlemen not in the profession will be entitled to seats as extraordinary members. Each member will, on enrollment, pay a subscription of twenty marks to defray the necessary expenses of the congress.

On inquiring of Prof. Virchow's committee how they proposed to deal with the mass of papers to be submitted, so as to avoid confusion and secure the best results, I was informed that the main body would be spared delays by the simple method that had been adopted. The special sections already referred to will each have their committees on organization, and through these committees all papers will pass before presentation. Thus the committees will deal in turn with anatomy, physiology, general pathology, pharmacology, internal medicine, diseases of children, surgery, obstetrics, neurology, opthalmology, otology, laryngology, dermatology, diseases of the teeth, hygiene, medical geography and climatology, State medicine, military hygiene and other subjects covering the whole range of medical science.

"Among the notable papers to be read," said one of the professor's associates, "will be several of remarkable interest from the Pathological section, including contributions on such topics as the means of preventing the spread of diphtheria, prevention of tuberculosis, nourishment of the people in times of war and epidemic, the effect of cemeteries on public health, infant mortality, etc., the eminent contributors being Prof. Thiry, of Brussels; Hofmann, of Leipzig; Petri, of Berlin; Sormani, of Pavia; Koch, of Berlin; Forster, of Amsterdam, and Csatary, of Budapest. The famous Prof. Apostoli, of Paris, has signified his intention of contributing several papers. There will also be papers on inflammation of the larynx and pharynx by Dr. George M. Lefferts, professor of laryngology in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York; typhoid fever, by Dr. H. P. Walcot, of Philadelphia; intubation, by Dr. Joseph O'Dwyer, professor in the Post-Graduate Hospital and Schools, New York; diseases of children, by Prof. Jacobi, New York; a paper on surgery, by Dr. Robert F. Weir, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, and probably a dozen others by eminent Americans.



FOOLED THE WATCH-DOG.

How Congressman McAdoo Stirred Up Judge Holman.

Proctor Knott Makes Fun for the Congressmen with His Artistic Pencil—The "Man Who Looks Like Vest."

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

A good story concerning Hon. William S. Holman was told while the torpedo-boat Cushing was steaming down the Potomac the other day. The judge has well earned the title of watch-dog of the treasury. His nook in the House is known among the members as "Economy Corner." He watches every appropriation bill, lopping off a hundred dollars here and a thousand there, and at times knocking out appropriations that run into the hundred thousands and even millions. He is usually on the qui vive, but once in awhile he is caught napping.

The other day, while there was a lull in legislation, he went down to the post-office. Some constituent buttonholed him in the corridor and detained him for a quarter of an hour or more. While he was away the House went into committee of the whole on the zoological park bill. It had been reported back to the open House and the previous question had been ordered when the judge re-entered the chamber. Turning to Mr. McAdoo, who sits near him, he said:

"What's this, what's this, eh? Tell me, tell me."

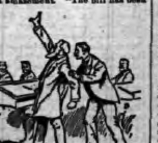
"It's the monkey park bill," Mr. McAdoo responded.

"Oh! my, my!" exclaimed the judge; "that won't do; that won't do. No, no, this won't do. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker!" he shouted.

"For what purpose does the gentleman from Indiana rise?" drawled Tom Reed, in his broad Yankee tone.

"I make the point of order," the judge replied, "that this bill, under the rules, should be considered in committee of the whole."

Speaker Reed looked at the Watch-dog in amazement. "The bill has been considered in committee of the whole," he finally said, "and is now about to be put upon its final passage."



THE WATCH-DOG AROUSED.

At this the judge turned his quid, squinted rye straws to the right and left, and sat down. Then he turned to Hon. Joseph H. O'Neil, of Boston, who is considerable of a wag, and said:

"My, my, but this shouldn't be. No, no, it shouldn't be. It's a great shame. How much was the appropriation? Were you paying attention?"

Joe O'Neil winked hard at McAdoo and then said:

"I remember one item. It was fifty thousand dollars for housing and feeding the monkeys."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the judge, twirling his eye-glasses with amazing rapidity. "My, my, what extravagance!"

"Yes," broke in Mr. McAdoo, "and that's not all. There was ten thousand dollars for a buffalo wallow."

"A buffalo wallow," replied the judge, "what's that?"

"Why, big hole filled with water for the buffaloes to roll in," replied the Jersey City Congressman.

"Oh! this won't do at all. No, it won't do," murmured the judge. "Move to recommit the bill. It must be recommitted. Yes, yes, it must be done."

"Hold on," interrupted O'Neil. "Come to think of it, there was an item of forty thousand dollars for a tank for seals and sea-lions."

"Sea-lions, sea-lions!" repeated the judge. "My goodness, this is downright robbery!" He again got his feet and shouted: "Mr. Speaker!" twice. But the confusion was so great that Tom Reed failed to hear him.

McAdoo seized Mr. Holman by the arm.

"It is robbery pure and simple. But you haven't heard the worst, judge," he said. "They got in an item of fifteen thousand dollars for an aviary for seagulls and one of twenty thousand dollars for a big bear-pit."

At this the judge shot into the air.

"Mr. Speaker," he cried, "a parliamentary inquiry."

The Speaker recognized him. "The gentleman from Indiana rises to a parliamentary inquiry," he said. "He will state it."

"Would it be in order now," the judge inquired, "to move to recommit the bill with instructions?"

"To what bill does the gentleman from Indiana refer?" the Speaker asked.

"The zoological park bill," the judge replied.

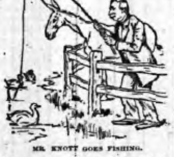
"The zoological park bill," the Speaker repeated, as though thunderstruck. "That bill is no longer before the House. It has just been passed. The bill now under consideration is the Senate bill providing for the erection of a public building at Whapwallopy, Pa."

This ended the matter. The judge resumed his seat. He opened his rubber pouch and took a fresh chew of tobacco. Then he defeated the Whapwallopy bill and knocked out every other appropriation, great and small, that was before the House that day.

Such was the story as told upon the torpedo-boat. Both McAdoo and O'Neil were present, and, as neither denied it, it is fair to assume that it has some foundation. At all events, it was well told and created much amusement. Secretaries Tracy and Proctor were among the listeners. They preserved becoming gravity as long as possible, and then gave way, like Mississippi levees before a flood.

* * * * * * *

Many stories are told about Proctor Knott's career in the House. He was undoubtedly one of the brightest men who ever came to Congress from Kentucky. His Duluth speech reads almost like an inspiration. He is as ready with his pencil as with his tongue. He is a born artist as well as a born orator. The light and shade in his drawings equal the light and shade in his speeches. In long and wearisome debates he amused himself by stretching his arms over his desk and sketching scenes in the House. He could take a pen and ink photograph in three minutes that would be recognized by every member on the floor.



MR. KNOTT GOES FISHING.

In the Forty-fourth Congress he had the well-known Jim McKenzie as a colleague. Jim is full as bright as Proctor Knott, but lacks Knott's artistic gift with the pencil. One day in a dull debate Knott sketched a little pond surrounded by a fence. The pond was filled with ducks. He drew a jackass whose head was stretched over the fence looking at the ducks.

He had hardly finished the sketch when a little page came down the aisle. The boy caught a glimpse of the picture. The pages were always eager to secure Mr. Knott's drawings.

"Oh, please, Mr. Knott," said this lad, "may I have that sketch?"

"Yes, my boy," the Kentucky Congressman replied, "you're welcome to it."

The boy thanked Mr. Knott and rushed down the aisle with the sketch in his hand. As he neared its mouth Jim McKenzie caught his arm and said:

"Here! what's that? Let's see what you've got."

The boy passed him the sketch. He gazed at it, and smiled. Then he wrote beneath the picture,

PROCTOR KNOTT FISHING FOR DUCKS.

The page seemed hurt. He ran back to the author of the sketch and, with tears in his eyes, said: "Oh, Mr. Knott, see what McKenzie's done to your sketch."

Knott took the drawing and read McKenzie's explanation of it. As quick as a flash the lead-pencil came from his pocket. He leaned forward upon his desk, and drew an accurate picture of himself standing on the inside of the fence. Under his pencil a fishing-rod quickly appeared in his hand with a line and a float or "dobber," near the ducks. Then he amended Jim McKenzie's description as follows:

AND HIS FRIEND, JIM MCKENZIE, LOOKING ON.

This made the whole legend read:

PROCTOR KNOTT FISHING FOR DUCKS AND HIS FRIEND, JIM MCKENZIE, LOOKING ON.

The page started down the aisle, and was again stopped by Jim McKenzie. He glanced at Knott's additional handiwork, and threw up both hands. A minute later they were both on the way to the restaurant, while the page was retailing the incident to his fellows.

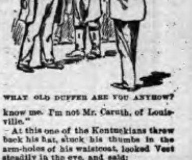
Senator Vest, of Missouri, is having much trouble nowadays. Covies of corncrackers appear in the halls of the Capitol every day looking for Asher G. Caruth, of Louisville. Nearly every covey runs against Vest, who looks like Caruth's twin brother. They annoy the life out of the Senator by asking him to drink and telling him stories of the tornado at Louisville. One of these covies struck Vest the other morning when he was not in the best of humor. The Senator refused to listen to the corncrackers, saying:

"Don't trouble me. You have mistaken me. I don't know you. You don't know me. I'm not Mr. Caruth, of Louisville."



WHAT OLD DUFFER ARE YOU ANYHOW?

At this one of the Kentuckians threw back his hat, stuck his thumbs in the arm-holes of his waistcoat, looked Vest steadily in the eye, and said:

"Well, jewhillikins, what old duffer are you, anyhow?"

Since then, Vest has been threatening to introduce a joint resolution into the Senate, providing for the labeling of Caruth, so as to escape further annoyance. Caruth insists that Vest himself ought to be labeled. He claims that he is overrun with Bald-Knobbers, relatives of Jesse James, and three-card monte experts from Kansas City, who mistake him for the Senator, and annoy the life out of him.

FACTS FOR FRUIT GROWERS.

IF the orchard is cropped continuously care must be taken to keep it well manured.

A SHORT-HANDLED hoe is a convenient implement to use in scraping the rough bark off the trees.

IF pruning is begun when the tree is set out, and properly followed, the necessity for reverse pruning is avoided.

GENERALLY it is not a good plan to set out a young tree where an old tree has grown and died. Put the new tree in an entirely new place.

WASHING the trees in strong soapsuds and giving them thick coats of whitewash not only add to the appearance of an orchard, but is also beneficial to the trees.

WITH peach trees it is often quite an item to commence the cultivation early. Grass is nearly always injurious to peach trees; consequently clean cultivation should be given.

IF newly-set trees are to be mulched, the better plan is to keep them well cultivated until first of June, at least, and then apply the mulch. This will aid materially in retaining moisture in the soil.

DO NOT allow the bushes or suckers to grow around the apple or pear trees. Keep them trimmed or pinched. They take much from the tree that should go to the limbs or branches.

RASPBERRIES are very partial to manure, and no crop responds better to a free application of manure and fertilizers. Size and quality largely depend on the manure and cultivation given the crop in the early part of the season.

FRUITS and vegetables are perishable, and some attention should be given the time of harvesting and shipping in order that no delay may occur in reaching the market. A few hours on a warm day will make quite a difference in the appearance of fruit in market.

IN spraying apple trees for the destruction of the codling moth, it is well to wait until the petals of the blossoms have fallen in order not to destroy the great number of honey bees that gather there to sip the nectar. There is nothing gained by spraying before that time.

IN the desire to secure size in the strawberry the more desirable qualities of hardiness of vine and flavor of the fruit are being overlooked. A well-flavored, solid berry, even if small, is better than some of the large, hollow, insipid berries that are more attractive in appearance than in quality.

AN emulsion of one quart of kerosene in five gallons of strong soapsuds is an excellent remedy for the caterpillars that will now infest apple trees, but kerosene is fatal to peach trees. The proper way, however, is to tear out all the nests that appear in the trees and burn them, which work should be done late in the afternoon.

IT has been suggested that fruit-growers have special marks or labels on their fruit boxes that customers may know who produced the fruit and from whom to buy. In this manner the fruit grower who sends choice fruit to market will not be dependent on the failures of his neighbors to properly assort their fruit. Merit and profit should go where they properly belong.

MANY orchards are seriously injured by allowing too heavy a growth of grass around the stem of the trees. In the majority of cases better health and thrift will be secured if the soil for two or three feet around each tree is kept loose and mellow, stirring frequently if necessary to do this. At least this will be better than to allow the weeds and grass to use the plant food needed by the tree.

HUMOROUS TRIFLES.

"THAT motion is out of order," said the chairman of a political meeting, as he saw a rowdy raising his arm to throw an egg.

DRUGGIST—"Try it again, sis. What was it your mamma told you to get?" Little girl (with another severe mental effort)—"I think it was 'I died of opossum.' I want a dime's worth."

"WHAT sort of a bird is that on your bonnet, dear?" "Why, it's an oriole. What did you ask me that question for?" "I thought it was a snipe." "A snipe?" "Yes; judging from the bill that came with it."

"MARY ANN," her mistress told her, "before ironing the finer linen always try the heat of the iron on something coarse so as not to scorch the material." "I don't need to, mum; thank hevins, I hev a nose, and I knows when the linen is scorching by the smell of it, mum."

"MA, I've an idea that some of the folks in this graveyard haven't gone to Heaven." "You don't say! What makes you think they haven't?" "Because I read it on the tombstones." "No." "Yes, I did, though. It was carved on ever so many: 'Peace to his ashes.' Now, there isn't any ashes 'cept where it's very hot, is there, ma?"

"WHAT'S the matter, Blankley? You're all bunged up, as though you had been in a fight, and yet you look beaming and smiling over it all." Blankley—"The fact is I have all along thought my boy Harold a sort of flat-chested chump, and the other day I undertook to give him some boxing lessons. This is the result of the first one. Oh, I'm proud of that boy."

HE was an artist courting the daughter of a retired sea captain. While they were seated together one evening in the dimly-lighted parlor he was surprised by the hoarse exclamation of the ancient mariner in the next room: "Let go that painter!" But she explained that her father was talking in his sleep, and that a "painter" was a rope attached to a ship's small boat, and the engagement proceeded.

TOMMY—"Father, if I take a half crown out of somebody's pocket, that's stealing, ain't it?" Mr. Figg—"Certainly." Tommy—"And if I bet a half crown and win his half crown, that's gambling?" Mr. Figg—"Of course." Tommy—"And if I've got something worth only a half crown, and sell it to him for five shillings, what is that?" Mr. Figg—"That? Oh, why that's business, Tommy—simply business!"

SMITE THE WRONG.

A wealthy Englishman, member of Parliament, has given a million dollars for the purpose of founding institutions for the education of miners in the coal districts of England, ascribing his great riches to the hard and often ill-paid labor of the mining classes.

That was a generous act on the part of the lordly millionaire, doubtless prompted by good intentions, and from it we would not detract a particle of deserving credit, but, the query naturally presents itself, why, when pocketing enormous gains out of the toil and destitution of the poor delvers under ground, he did not then exert himself to see that they were equitably and not illy paid?

Education is a fine thing in its proper place, but the essential comforts and conveniences of life for wage-earners struggling to support themselves and families is something much finer.

Wholesome food, clothing and habitations are to them of far more practical importance than splendid buildings filled with book lore.

Throughout the world, with the vast majority of the laboring masses it is incessant and anxious effort to live, to procure from day to day the commonest necessaries of life, while at no previous time did the fortunes of employers tower so high.

There is an evident wrong to be righted—a remedy to be found.

Labor is honorable and entitled to just reward. It is the actual artificer of wealth, but, as a general rule, it does not share honestly in the garnered fruit.

We need not go to England and Europe for proof, our own country can furnish it abundantly. Get out of labor all you can, and pay for it as cheaply as possible, is the generally enforced programme.

Therein abides the wrong that ought to be effectually righted.

Down with monopolistic tyranny should be the popular battle-cry.

Onward to victory the people's determined resolve.

There was an election in the State of Oregon last week. The Republicans elected all their State officers by large majorities except Governor, the Democratic candidate receiving some thousands of votes more than his Republican opponent.

Why so?

Because the Democrat was an outspoken ANTI-MONOPOLIST, while the Republican, rich and arrogant, wore the badge of moneyed monopoly.

From thence springs a hopeful sign of the coming triumph of right over wrong.

A statesman used to be "a man versed in the arts of government." A statesman today is a man who maintains that "The Decalogue and the Golden Rule have no place in a political campaign."—Evening Post.

"The time has come when the law should either cease to punish the burglar and the highwayman or punish with at least equal sternness the greater thief who steals the money of others intrusted to him."—Philadelphia Times.

"If the President signs the McKinley bill, which, indeed, he is likely to do, it will require very astute political management to keep the grand Republican party from a melancholy decline and fall after the Congressional elections."—Minneapolis Journal, (Rep.)

"The McKinley bill is an outrageous performance. It is but a cheap monkey show in the face of high heaven and of the American people. It takes dollars from the farmers and returns them dimes. It does not impose a single duty which will help a Kansas farmer. What do we care about the duty on eggs and hay."—Wichita, (Kansas,) Eagle, (Rep.)

Will Paint the Town Red.

On Saturday evening, June 28th, [illegible] hundred of the members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 114, G. A. R., of Philadelphia, will visit this city as the guests of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of here. The local post will welcome the visitors in grand style, and while here they will be extended the courtesies of the city.

Caught His Hand in the Pulley.

While at work cleaning out the North avenue sewer, last evening, Mr. Evan [illegible], the contractor, caught one of his hands in a pulley, which was used to raise and lower the buckets, terribly lacerating the flesh. The wound was dressed at a restaurant near by, and the injured man returned to his work.

No Extra Charge For Saturday's Game.

To show the public that the Crescent League ball team is not afraid of any club, the managers have secured at great expense the celebrated Hackett-Carhart, of New York, for next Saturday. This team occupies the Polo grounds when the New York League team is away, and [illegible] all the city's base ball lovers. Nothing but the offer of a large sum would induce them to come to Plainfield.

Of course they expect to win, and all their friends in New York think they have a regular cinch. The Crescents, however, will probably give them a close fight and prove to the public that nothing can scare them. In spite of the cost of the game, there will be no advance in the price of admission and seats.

Westfield Wisps.

Westfield has raised $200 thus far toward a rousing celebration July 4th. Our sister village is far ahead of Plainfield in patriotic efforts.

The Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches held their usual Children's Day celebration Sunday. The churches were handsomely decorated with wild and cut flowers, and the services very interesting.

Kate Lanigan, a domestic, in the employ of C. G. [illegible], of Westfield, was Sunday committed to the Morris Plains Insane Asylum by Overseer of the Poor [illegible].

The St. Louis College nine and Westfield Athletic Base Ball club played an interesting game of ball at Deane's Park, Westfield, on Saturday. The result was 6 to 5 in favor of the St. Louis club.

The Alta Lawn Tennis club of Westfield, played the first game of the season with the Roselle club on Saturday, and scored a victory. Mr. Augustus L. Alpers and John Sumner carried off the honors for Westfield.

THAT PASSE FACE AGAIN.

A Practical Implication That Everybody in Plainfield Stopped Drinking in 1889—Was the State of Things Then, Preferable to Now?

The Central Times of last week says that in Plainfield "the number of arrests for drunkenness are more, by a fourth, for three months of license than they were for the entire twelve months of so called 'free rum,' in 1889. Taking the advocates of the high license system on their own ground, these figures can be very properly commended to their thoughtful meditation."

Thoughtful meditation, however, knocks the implication the Times would convey higher than a kite. To be honest, the Times should have added the arrests of North Plainfield to the statistics of 1889 and 1890. The men who are in jail at Elizabeth today, from this city, for drunkenness, were in jail at Somerville a year ago for the same offense. That settles the comparison of "arrests" this side of the brook, as a proof that this year's drunkards were last year sober.

The "thoughtful meditation" of the Times and the people, is now directed to a comparison of the state of society under high license in 1890 and under no license in 1889. During the last three months, the Times says, there were 64 arrests for drunkenness. Good! Captain Grant and his men be praised, our householders may now walk the streets free from offense to their ears and eyes. But under no license, and no arrests, how was it? The following quotations from three consecutive issues of THE PRESS, April 4, 5 and 6, 1889, tell the story:

(From The Press of April 4, 1889.)

A statement appeared in the Elizabeth Herald that since the liquor licenses expired in this city no arrests have been made by the police. Such statement is true, but its heading, "Cause and Effect," puts a false face on it.

Numerous cases are [illegible] back and forth across the invisible line that separates that part of this place where no liquor is publicly sold, from that part where you can swim in it. If no arrests are made it is not because there shouldn't be. Two ladies coming from the performance at Music Hall, Monday night of last week, were spoken to by two drunken men on one of the main streets. This is the first time probably that ladies have been so insulted under the same circumstances since Plainfield was incorporated.

The article in the Elizabeth Herald implies that Plainfield's drunk-and-disorderlies have all reformed and drink no more. This is far from true. Saturday night a gang of them drank themselves beastly, [illegible] house for a North Plainfield dealer, and one another [illegible] with broken glasses and almost hammered a man to death with bottles. Yet there were no arrests.

(From The Press of April 5, 1889.)

A half-dozen men beastly drunk staggered about the corner of Front street and Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, and shouted indecent and blasphemous language at one another within earshot of the police, and ladies and children passing.

Fred Clark was very full round the city, yesterday. But that was all right. He foolishly escaped over the brook, however, and there he was arrested and sent to Somerville for 30 days.

(From The Press of April 6, 1889.)

The audience at Music Hall, last evening, were not only annoyed but disgusted by the loud talk and actions of two drunken lads in the front row of the dress circle. They shouted at the actresses on the stage and kept up such a [illegible] that those anywhere near were unable to hear anything else.

Notwithstanding a police officer was present and heard and saw their talk and actions, they were unmolested and allowed to go out and in again, stumbling up and down the aisles in sight of everybody. "There are no arrests in Plainfield since the hotel bars and saloons were closed." But never before were drunkards allowed to roam the main streets in broad daylight, insult women at night, or make a circus ring of the Music Hall auditorium in full view of the police.

We would ask Councilmen Dunham, Marsh and [illegible], the Police Committee, if they know of any orders having been issued that no drunkard should be arrested in Plainfield?

Does the Central Times prefer that picture in 1889 of free rum and no arrests, or their own picture of restricted license and the streets free of drunkards?

EX-JUDGE [illegible] FOR SENATOR.

A Political Writer at the Capital Thinks He Has a Show.

A correspondent from Trenton itself, writes to the Jersey City News, of last Sunday, that the Republicans are claiming they will again capture the State Senatorship in this county. But, the communication continues, there is doubt whether they will secure it. The two aspirants for the nomination are Assemblyman John Ulrich of this city, and Foster M. Voorhees of Elizabeth, the brilliant young Republican leader of the last House. Both are popular and would represent the county well. The machine does not want Voorhees nominated and does not propose to allow him to capture the prize if it can be helped. Voorhees is a man of force enough to kick over the party traces whenever he thinks the G. O. P. is in the wrong.

The leaders of his party had an elegant sample of this last Winter, when Mr. Voorhees went against their express commands, and voted with the Democratic members of the joint committee for the present ballot reform law. Unless John Kean chooses to plug up his barrel and take it with him on a fishing excursion if Voorhees is not nominated, there is not much hope that the genial Foster M. will be the candidate.

If he is, however, there will be none of the Damon and Pythias business in the Union county campaign, as many of the newspapers throughout the State have [illegible] termed the expected contest between Mr. Voorhees, the Republican, and his chum, Fred C. Marsh, the Democrat. Mr Marsh is undoubtedly out of politics, for a while at least.

His recent illness, brought about by the immense amount of work he did during the last session, has convinced him that he could not with safety to his health undergo the strain and confinement of another session. Moreover he wants to be Prosecutor of Union instead of Senator, and it is said that he is slated for that position, which will soon become vacant.

Plainfield in the Front of the Race.

The Plainfield homing pigeons who were in the 200 miles race, last Saturday, all made good time. They have beaten the Elizabeth and Brooklyn birds, and probably those from Newark and Philadelphia.

J. Harvey Doane's "Albatross" was the first home, just a minute or two ahead of J. Ingram's bird who was entered for a special prize. "Baby McKee" of the PRESS news service, was next, followed closely by the birds of F. B. Stevens and Charles Fisher.

He Will Be His Boss.

Mr Howard F. Frothingham has been appointed a Fish Warden of Morris county. To look after the interests of fishermen and see that the fish laws are enforced, particularly about Lake Hopatcong, where he owns one of the handsomest residences around the Lake, and has the prettiest and fastest naptha steam launch on its waters. Mr. Frothingham is an ardent disciple of the ancient "Uncle Isaak Walton," and has given out that he intends to stop the nefarious practice of the American Forcite Powder Works, located at the lower end of the Lake, emptying poisonous matter into the waters of the Lake, which is destroying thousands of fish annually. All fishermen will wish him success in his endeavors.

It was through the efforts of ex-Senator [illegible] Livingston of Union county, that a bill was passed the Legislature during that gentleman's term of office, which imposes a heavy penalty upon any person or corporation polluting the waters of the State as the above mentioned concern are doing. Lake Hopatcong is the finest sheet of water to be thus despoiled of its fish. Mr. Frothingham married one of Plainfield's fair daughters, Miss [illegible].

CHILDREN'S DAY.

How It was Observed in Trinity Reformed Church.

Infant baptism was very appropriately celebrated Sunday morning in the above church by the pastor, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, two young babies being thus consecrated to God. Mr. Schenck then delivered a sermon, especially prepared for children. His text: "I am the Rose of Sharon," Sol. 2:1, was simply, but forcibly, illustrated by a beautiful Jack rose, which he held in his hand during his entire discourse, and by comparison with which he illustrated the purity and love of Christ, our Saviour, to the pleasure and profit of both old and young of the large congregation present. At the close of the service the Rev. A. S. VanDyck, of Amoy, China, pronounced the benediction.

The floral display on the pulpit and about the platform was exceedingly pretty and gave evidence of no little labor on the part of the ladies who furnished and arranged the flowers. Mrs. C. Frank French and Mrs. Charles F. Leggett were the committee from the Ladies' Christian Work Society, and Miss Phebe Ellis, Miss Jennie Van Winkle, and Miss Etta Krymer from the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the church.

In the evening a special service for children was held that was very largely attended, Superintendent E. K. Anthony, of the Sunday school, presiding, Mr. H. J. Martin acting as precentor, and Mr. A. L. Titsworth presiding at the organ. The exercises were according to "Hull's Children's Day Service," and included an organ voluntary, the opening chant, songs, and choruses, prayer, responsive readings, recitations, and an address by the Rev. A. S. VanDyck.

A recitation, "The four Christian festivals"—Christmas, Easter, Thanksgiving and Children's Day—was acceptably rendered by the Misses Cora Laire, Annie Slater, and Masters Josie E. Runyon and Charlie Dolliver, and another recitation, incidental to the printed order of exercises, by little Miss Gertie Tier, entitled: "Daffy Down Dilly," elicited favorable comment, as did also still another, one by Miss Lucy Cortell, "What do the pansies think?" No. 10 on the programme, "The boy you can trust," a song and chorus, by Masters Willie VanDeventer, George E [illegible] and Horace Martin, Jr., the school joining in the chorus, was another pleasing feature.

The Rev. Mr. VanDyck was then introduced, and he gave an interesting and instructive talk on the manners and customs of the Chinese, particularly with reference to the young. He told of the great rejoicing in a Chinese house over the birth of a son, and of the equal amount of sorrow expressed over the advent of a daughter. He also spoke of the iniquitous traffic there among children, and cited instances to prove that mission work in China was not a failure, but a success, 1,200 children and 1,700 communicants being in the parish from whence he came. The Rev Mr VanDyck exhibited idols, articles of dress and other things characteristic of the heathen, which made his address highly entertaining.

The announcements were made, the farewell song and refrain was sung, and the audience was dispersed with the benediction.

Bury the Wires.

Now is the time to agitate the burying of electric and other wires beneath the street surface, while the work of laying the water mains is in progress. The wires are dangerous and should be buried out of sight.

Justice Hardy Sued for Wages.

Four of the late employees of Justice Jas. H. Hardy of North Plainfield, have brought suit against him to recover wages alleged to be due them. On Saturday, Justice Crossley, before whom the cases are to be tried, adjourned them all over for a week.

They're After Billy Lee.

The West Ends, of Somerville, have confessed that the Crescents' third baseman, Billy Lee, is even superior to their wonderful Al "Williams." So they would like to get Billy—but they can't.

He is probably very well satisfied right here where he has made his success. He is the grand stand's principal favorite, is playing in such company as can't be found in Somerville, and under the finest managers in the State.

The Rev. Mr. Schenck at Westfield.

It was the good pleasure of a large number to be present Sunday afternoon at the Children's Day services of the Sunday school of the Presbyterian church at Westfield, of which Mr. Hiram L. Fink is Superintendent. The exercises consisted in part of singing by the school and a quartette composed of the Misses and Mr. Harbison and Mr. Hall, which was well rendered.

The Rev Cornelius Schenck of this city, and the Rev. A. S. VanDyck, a missionary at Amoy, China, both made short addresses to the children, and the close attention they gave to each speaker gave evidence of their pleasure and profit. The church pulpit and platform was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and blooming potted plants, and the ladies who arranged them are to be congratulated upon the very pleasant effect produced. Altogether the services were a success, and prove that the Presbyterians of Westfield not only own one of the finest church properties in the State, but that they are presided over spiritually and socially by the right man, in their pastor, the Rev. N. W. Cadwell.

A Prosperous Season Commencing.

The main dining room of Hotel Netherwood is filling rapidly, and in another week probably the annex will be opened to accommodate the large number of guests arriving every day. Among those who have already engaged rooms, are:

HE'S EIGHTY, BUT OH!

Mr. Peck Jumps Overboard to Escape Being Run Down by a Steamer.

Samuel C. Peck, of Milford, Conn., the venerable though not aged father of S. C. Peck, Jr., of this city, had a close call from a watery grave, last Friday morning which was prevented by his presence of mind. Mr. Peck and Benjamin Sanford were fishing off Charles Island, on what is known as South Ledge. There were other boats within a hundred feet. Capt. E. L. Ford passed by with one of William M. Merwin & Son's steamers. He had in tow a barge. The steamer passed by all right but just before the barge reached the boat these gentlemen were in the barge darted towards them at a rapid rate.

Mr. Peck realizing that they were to be run into, sprang to the bow of his boat and as the barge was to strike them gave a push which, while it saved the boat and Mr. Sanford, sent him out into the water a distance of eight or ten feet from the boat. He fell on his side in the water, then turned over on his back and paddled away until Frank Burns, Frank Green and Edward Lamphere, who were near by, came to his assistance and helped him into his boat. Capt. Ford stopped the steamer and was about to lend aid when he was signalled to that the danger was over.

Mr. Peck, although over eighty years of age, is always clear headed and uses the same good judgment in emergencies which characterized his actions when he had charge of one of the military companies in his younger days. When he went overboard he was dressed in three woolen shirts and had on a pair of rubber boots. As soon as he got back in the boat, he continued his fishing perfectly unconcerned.

THE DESIGN COMPLETED.

Plainfield's Soldiers' Monument to be Different From All Others.

Following principally the suggestions of Major Gen'l James S. Negley, Edward Forbes, the renowned war correspondent, has completed a design for the monument to be erected on Crescent Square by Plainfield in memory of her heroes who died in defence of the whole country. All other designs have been thrown aside by the committee, and they have unanimously approved of the monument that Messrs Negley and Forbes have created.

It is a granite shaft 53½ feet in height. On its top instead of the customary statue of a soldier, or an angel, or victory with a wreath, will be a bronze eagle with wings spread at full length. At the base are three statues: One a soldier sheathing his sword, another Liberty, and the other Victory.

The sub-committee in charge have been requested to decide on the colors and kind of granite to be used in construction, and to secure estimates from all those who had been competitors for the design. Estimates will be called for specifying cost of both bronze and granite in the construction of the three statues.

PLAINFIELD 20 YEARS AGO.

Elizabeth Complained That Her Boys Didn't Get Enough to Eat but Too Much to Drink Here.

The issue of the Elizabeth Herald of September, 16, 1870, contained quite a long account of the "Parade of the Plainfield Fire Department," in which invited guests from Elizabeth took part. The reporter complains of the "very poor lunch" that was served and adds:

> The City Council was the caterers, and as they evidently do not understand the business, they should never attempt to do anything of the kind again. Plainfield may well be proud of her Fire Department, and should show her appreciation in some other way than treating the hungry firemen, after a four mile march, with nothing but bread and musk-melon—and with a small supply of that. After the half-famished company had demolished the few musk melons and pieces of bread they could find, dessert was served in the shape of windy orations, to which the poor fellows had to listen for over an hour. Numerous toasts were given and responded to. It was all dry-toasts, however, as the parsimony of the city authorities again showed itself in its neglect to provide for the thirsty crowd wine or ale of any kind.

The result was that the company grew dry and tired of listening to the windy orators and left the tables, the procession reforming. At the end of the march the reporter states that > in consequence of the boys of the department being kept so long without getting anything with which to quench their thirst, they drank to excess when they got the chance, and consequently a good many of them were intoxicated. So much for the Plainfield liquor law, which allows beer to be sold only by the quart, and licenses but one hotel for the sale of spirits!

An Expensive Wrangle.

A colored man named Peterson got into a wrangle with another man of the same color, in North Plainfield on Saturday evening, over the merits of a certain female individual, and Peterson was locked up charged with disorderly conduct. He was fined five dollars and costs.

The Moore Will Case Appealed.

The Moore will case, recently decided in the orphans' court, has been appealed to the prerogative court by the son, who was the contestant. Craig A. Marsh is the counsel for young Moore, whose father was "Uncle Billy" Moore, the well known railroad contractor, and resident of this city.

Dr. Hurlbut Speaks Again in His First Pastorate.

The dedication exercises in the Roseville M. E. church closed Friday night with a reunion meeting addressed by former pastors. There was a large attendance and at the close of the meeting $2,000 were raised towards paying off the church debt, making $30,000 that had been received since Sunday last.

The Rev. Mr. Mosher, pastor of the church, made a few remarks, speaking of the good work done by his predecessors and the affection in which they are held by the people of the church. He closed by bidding the former pastor a hearty welcome and introduced the Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, D. D., Corresponding Secretary of the Sunday School Union, School Trustee of this city, and one of the earliest pastors of the church.

Dr. Hurlbut said: "I have read that there once lived in Florence a very very wealthy man. He resided in a magnificent place filled with all that wealth could buy or taste suggest. There were costly marbles and the finest of pictures; but there was one thing that attracted more attention than all others. On the wall in one of the most prominent portions of the house hung a pair of worn and tattered old wooden shoes. Some one asked him why he kept those shoes there. He said: 'These were the shoes I wore when I entered this city a poor young man to seek my fortune. I keep them here that I may remember my lowly estate.' I stand before you to-night to hold up before you a pair of wooden shoes and to remind you of the early history of this church. I do not think there is a pastor here who remembers this church, as I do, when it met in a little building on Gray street. This was my first pastorate, and to me this was the biggest church in the city. We all felt we were somebody and held up our heads, and this church has been doing the same thing ever since. A new epoch opens before you now, and there arises before my mind a vision of what this church may be, and I believe you will go on and work for the salvation of souls as you have done in the past and lift up the banner of the Lord in this your city—God bless you."

THE BOROUGH COUNCILMEN HAVE NO POLITICAL ANTAGONISM.

But They Get There Just the Same—The Effort to Remove Police Justice Hardy Fails, but You'll Never Find a Coward Where Pete Emmons Grows.

At the regular meeting of the Borough Council, Friday night, in its rooms, Mayor Pierce and Messrs Buckle, Emmons, Hegeman, Needham, Sebring and Smalley were all present. Clerk Brokaw read the minutes of the last meeting as clearly as possible in spite of the vagarious action of a malarial effected gas meter. Borough Counsel Reed sat in his usual corner and mused over the possibility of a case against the Gas Light company for damages to the optical nerves of the Town Fathers. But no sooner had the meeting opened when the jumping gas was forgotten, and the mayor and council, three men who had [illegible], two reporters and a room full of constituents were deeply interested in a set-to between Councilman Emmons and his colleagues, and Counselor Reed had his hands full as referee.

The fight was opened by Councilman Emmons shying into the ring a petition from "the undersigned, residents of the Borough of North Plainfield," asking the Mayor and Council to revoke the appointment of James Hardy as justice to try cases, as in their opinion he was not a proper person to act in that capacity. Among the signers were: John P. Emmons, Wm C Smith, J. W A. Bauersachs, Chas Lyman, S. R. Fairchild, D. R Weaver, Will Williams, L. E. Barkalew, John A Thickstun, Edwin Loomis, L. B. Woodston, A. M. Griffen, Thos. Young, Jos Bodin, R. W. Mahaffee, H. A. McGee, J. M. Bettman, J. H. Cooley, H N. Spencer, W. H. Pangborn and Thos. Worth.

Mr. Emmons moved that it be referred to the Laws Committee (of which he was chairman) as that committee had recommended the appointment of Mr. Hardy. Mr. Smalley moved that it be referred to a special committee of three to be appointed by the Mayor. Mr. Smalley's motion was lost—Buckle, Emmons, Hegeman and Sebring, voting nay. Mr. Emmons' motion was carried—Buckle, Emmons, Needham and Sebring voting aye.

Time was called, and while the combatants were resting other business proceeded. Warren Engine company presented a list of the officers recently elected, and the action was ratified by the Council. Clerk Brokaw reported the granting of 19 pedler, cartmen and stage licenses in May. The following claims were presented, referred and some of them subsequently ordered paid: P Seader, $2.60; Geo. B. Stewart, $3.50; Philip Meig, $2.25; Times Printing Co., $6.00; James Hardy, $40; N. H. & J. J. Heidsloff, $10.33; Geo. Conover, $14.63 and $19.23; M. Powers, $38.16; Geo. Becker, $35; P. Kelleher, $13.65, P. T. B. Nevius, $613.22; $34.89.

Tax collector Spencer reported collected since April 4: Borough taxes, $14 24; lights, $42 72; roads, $35.60; fire department, $12 45; health, 3.56. Total collected including that previously reported, $8,029.93.

Police Justice Hardy reported ten on trial before him during May. Of these 3 had been convicted of being drunk and disorderly, 4 of being disorderly, 1 of riding a bicycle on the sidewalk, and 2 had been discharged. Fines of 39.45 were received, of which $17 45 had been paid as costs to the Marshal, witnesses and justice.

Chairman Sebring stated that the Fire Committee had made a thorough investigation of the department, and found two things necessary for its efficiency. The committee recommended the purchase of 500 feet of cotton jacket hose, and that the lock-up be removed from the engine house to make room for horses where most convenient for fire purposes. Amount on hand, $413.05, from which $75 must be deducted to pay interest on bonds coming due July 1.

Chairman Hegeman for the Street Committee reported the scraping of certain avenues and the macadamizing of Grove street. He recommended the borrowing of $300 for use only on the streets of the Borough. It was so ordered—all voting aye.

Then everybody took a long breath, the gas flickered expectantly, and Heavy Weight Emmons rose in his corner. He moved that the resolution of April 15, appointing James F. Hardy the Borough police justice to try cases, be rescinded. Mr. Buckle seconded him, as he said later, to bring the matter before the Council.

The Mayor called time, and quietly asked of nobody in particular whether the Council had the power to revoke Justice Hardy's appointment. Mr. Emmons said certainly, and asked if he might be permitted to make a few remarks. He said he was elected to represent the people, and in the face of such a remonstrance as had been received signed by such people as had signed it, he felt it his duty to offer the resolution he had offered. "It does not aim to take away Mr Hardy's office as a Justice of the Peace elected by the people" he continued, "but only his appointment by the Council to act as the Borough's police justice."

Mr Needham thought time should be taken to investigate the causes and reasons for such petition. Any man, said he, might fail in business yet be entirely free from any act of fraud. Wait till the committee to whom the petition is referred has investigated the matter. Mr. Buckle expressed the same view of the case.

Mr. Hegeman called attention to the fact that Mr Hardy's recent misfortunes in business were in no way connected with his office as Justice. He agreed that the signers of the petition were good men, but he thought it outrageous to ask the Council to try a man and kick him out, all in an hour. "Mr Hardy is a most efficient Justice," he continued, "and has served this borough well; but even if he had not, we have no power to remove him. The Council had better go slow in this matter. We can't afford to put the Borough in a false position. The law that gives us power to appoint a police justice, gives us no power to remove."

Mr. Buckle stepped to the bat just then, and got in a two-base hit. He said that the members' opinions were only governed by what they each knew, and were only worth what their knowledge amounted to. That being stated, he proceeded to say that probably Mr. Emmons and himself knew more about the matter than Mr. Hegeman did.

The Mayor called time just in time, and directed attention to the fact that the petition was referred to the Committee on Laws for investigation. They had had no meeting yet, and in equity there should be no action until the committee had heard and considered the case. Mr. Buckle here remarked that there was no charge in the petition, to investigate.

Counsel Reed rose for the wind-up. "All men are in justice considered innocent," he said, "until they are proven guilty; and certainly no man should be pronounced guilty who has not even been charged with anything, nor given a hearing and fair trial. Aside from that, however, the Council has no power to remove Justice Hardy. He is appointed under a law that gives the power to appoint such an officer to serve during the existence of the Council itself. If he is unfit to act as a Justice of the Peace, he can only be impeached as such, and then if removed from that office his appointment as police justice falls too. You cannot judge a man guilty of a crime simply at the request of somebody who does not think he is fit to serve as a Justice."

A vote was then taken, and Mr. Emmons' resolution was knocked out. All voted against the removal of Justice Hardy except Mr. Emmons, who said "aye," and Mr. Smalley who had disappeared.

Mr. Sebring then got a chance to move that the Fire Committee be empowered to purchase 500 feet of cotton jacket hose at a price not to exceed 80 cents a foot, and have the same by July 4. All voted aye.

Then Mr. Emmons, undaunted still, blew another blast of battle. He offered a resolution that the petitioners of Willow avenue be permitted to withdraw their petition asking for the grading and macadamizing of that thoroughfare. "They have not received justice from the Council," he said, "and in my opinion they never will."

Mr. Hegeman thought the petitioners were just as apt to receive justice, "as they call it," said he, as other petitioners of the same sort whose petitions also awaited careful consideration.

Mr. Buckle observed that there were too many personal reflections cast at every meeting by members on those who did not agree with them. He expressed a wish that Mr. Emmons would take a lesson in good manners from his fellow members. "It looks to me," he continued, "as if Mr Emmons had gone to the Willow avenue petitioners and asked them to withdraw their petition."

Then Mr. Emmons jumped in concert with the gas. "The idea," he said, in a tone of scorn and a glance of disdain at Mr. Buckle, "of your saying to this Council that I run around begging people to withdraw their petitions."

Mr. Hegeman wanted to know if Mr. Henry McGee and Wm White, who had guaranteed the raising of 50 per cent of the cost, were the petitioners who wanted the petition withdrawn; and Mr. Emmons answered that if he might be allowed to make a few remarks, there were no other petitioners appearing as such before the Council. Mr. Hegeman replied that Mr. Emmons had accidentally made a good point, and asked again if Messrs McGee and White asked to be permitted to withdraw the petition. Mr. Emmons answered that if he might be permitted to make a few remarks, he would say that Mr. McGee had said he wanted to withdraw the petition.

The resolution to grant the permission was then voted down—Messrs Emmons and Smalley alone voting in the affirmative.

Mr. Emmons then offered a motion that a warrant be drawn for $75 to pay the interest due July 1 on the fire department bonds, and everybody voted with him. Counselor Reed thereupon remarked that Mr. Emmons was in the "Ring" now. This referred to a previous statement in open Council by Mr. Emmons. He said that Councilman Smalley told him there was a "Ring" in the Council and he had better come in.

After listening to the merits of sundry fire hose, the Council adjourned.

NINTH IN SUCCESSION.

The "Original Acmes" Come to Town for Another Victory, but Get Shut Out.

On Saturday by a score of 3 to 0, the Crescents defeated the Acmes after one of the finest games ever played in this city. Only one error was charged to the home team, and that was because the wind so twisted a high fly that Runyon was afraid of running into the right field bleaching boards if he tried to capture it.

It was the ninth victory in succession that the Crescents have won since their complete organization on April 30. They have all been won in eight innings too, with a total of 90 runs to their opponents 18. The runs of Saturday's game were all made in the fourth inning. Lufbery led off with a two bagger that Rivera could not guage. This followed by three singles in succession by Jones, Gillis and Gregg, netted three runs and won the game.

Runyon in right field got three difficult flys, and Walker two. Martin played deep expecting to pull down some long hits against the wind, so Lee got all the infield chances. He handled them, seven in all, with great credit. The game closed with a one handed catch by Martin of Heiser's drive. There were only four hits by the Acme batters, and but one man stole second base. The score:

Three Months in All for Assaulting McCue.

John Couhig was arraigned before Judge McCormick at Elizabeth, Saturday morning, on a charge of assaulting Officer McCue of this city. Mr. James C. Connolly spoke in behalf of Couhig, and showed that he had never before been accused of wrong doing, and that this offense was committed while drunk. Couhig had been in jail eight weeks, and the time was extended for one month more.

Saturday's Trotting.

There was a fair attendance at the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, on Saturday afternoon. The track was in bad condition but some good time was made by the local trotters notwithstanding the condition of the track.

Mr. M. Quinn's "Little Shamrock" trotted two heats with Mr. C. Brower's "Bantie," winning both heats in 2:43½ and 2:36½.

Mr. A. C. Vail's new horse, "Frank S.," trotted a mile heat with Mr. O. T. Waring's "Copeland," winning the heat in 2:38. "Frank S." was driven by his trainer, Owen Monks, and Mr. Waring handled the reins over "Copeland."

Mr. J. W. Johnson and other owners of fast horses in this city and vicinity are getting their stock in order so as to enter them in a series of contests which is being arranged to take place on the track on Saturday afternoons during the Summer months.

All medical authorities agree that catarrh is no more nor less than an inflamed action of the lining membrane of the nasal air passages. Nasal catarrh and all catarrhal affections of the head are not diseases of the blood, and it is a serious mistake to treat them as such. No conscientious physician ever attempts to do so. It is held by eminent medical men that sooner or later a specific will be found for every disease from which humanity suffers. The facts justify us in assuming that for catarrh at least a positive cure already exists in Ely's Cream Balm.

Installation Services.

The Rev. Hobart Clark, the new pastor of the Unitarian church in this city, will be publicly installed in Seminary Hall, on Friday evening of this week, at 7:45 o'clock. The Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., will preach. The Rev. Robert Collyer, the Rev. J. W. Chadwick and other prominent ministers will be present. Everyone is invited.

Not Known Here.

The Newark News was probably mistaken in the man's residence when it said, Thursday: "A brakeman on the Central Railroad, living at Plainfield, named Wm. Kenny, was brought to St. Michael's Hospital in this city last night, suffering from injuries sustained while coupling cars at Jersey City. His right hand was crushed, and it is thought amputation will be necessary.

A Sunday Clam-bake.

About thirty-five young people from this city participated in a clam-bake in the woods near New Market, Sunday, and spent the day in devouring clams, playing base ball, pitching quoits and in various other out door amusements. The party drove over in stages and in private vehicles, and on the way home one of the latter named rigs was runaway with and upset. No one was injured, however. The party reached home early in the evening, all apparently well pleased with the day's enjoyment.

Lightning's Freaks.

Friday afternoon's thunder storm was more severe in Westfield than in this vicinity. In that town a bolt of lightning struck the house of Mr. John S. Burhans, corner of Dudley avenue and Prospect street, entering the kitchen and tearing out the sink. From thence the electric fluid meandered across two rooms to the parlor where it effectually spoiled all the gilt moulding surrounding the upper side walls of the room and finally made its exit through the cellar foundations. Mr Burhans was standing near a window and was stunned for a time by the lightning while Mrs. Burhans was rendered deaf in one ear. THE PRESS is glad to record, however, that she is improving from the shock and is likely to recover her full hearing.

During the same storm, a large buttonball tree in the rear of Mr. Geo. Condit's house on Elm street, was struck by lightning and shattered to pieces.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

J. A. DEMAREST, City Editor.

—Ground has been broken for a brick store building at the corner of Third and Richmond streets.

—The First Baptist Sunday school will go on their annual excursion to Asbury Park, on July 11.

—Read Florence Sewing Machine Co's advertisement in another column. It will be of interest to you to so do.

—Some delicious home cookery is on exhibition and for sale at the Woman's Exchange, No. 8 Park avenue.

—The Plainfield Fire Department have purchased of D. J. Woodhouse 1,300 feet more of same hose at the same price, as now in use.

—The Hotel Mail of New York says: "The Hotel Netherwood at Netherwood, N. J., is highly praised as a resort for pleasure seekers."

—John Harkins, the pusher for the West Ends, has permanently taken up his residence in Somerville, where he is worshipped like an idol.

—Officer Cooney had a lively chase over the top of some freight cars, after some tramps, a few evenings since, but the men finally escaped.

—The case of Tunis L. Carey vs. the Plainfield Police Board, it is expected, will be argued in the Supreme Court at Trenton on Friday of this week.

—Another section of lock and call boxes have been removed in the Post Office to make room for increasing business and the wants of the letter carriers.

—Sunday school at the First Baptist church, will on Sunday next begin at 9:30 o'clock A. M. This order will continue throughout the Summer months.

—Many of the West Seventh street residents have done away with the fences in front of their houses, thereby adding greatly to the beauty of the surroundings.

—The best lines of insurance in this city, are written every day by J. C. Pope & Co. They are the agents for the German American and most of the other first-class companies.

—Ex-Judge Wm. M. Stillman, as Supreme Court Commissioner, has begun the taking of testimony in the certiorari proceedings of Carey vs. the Mayor and Board of Police.

—Some matches in Stephen McIntyre's vest, that hung in the closet of his house on West Third street, took fire last Friday, and burned up the vest and some other clothing.

—According to Carey's organ, Councilman Newhall said at the Council meeting last week that it was governed by the rules of "Cushing's Manual." They'd let a fellow down easy.

—The work on the extension at The Pond Machine Tool Company's Works, is progressing favorably, and weather permitting, but a few weeks time will be required to enclose the building.

—Depending upon the well-known liberality of the people of Plainfield, the treasurer of the Relief Association, would appeal to its many friends for donations to reimburse its empty treasury.

—A runaway horse on West Fourth street, at half-past 12 o'clock Tuesday, created considerable excitement. The animal was without harness or wagon attachments. No one was injured.

—For reliable information concerning the racing on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, THE PRESS should be consulted. All other published accounts are inaccurate.

—The meeting rooms of Howell Division, No. 87, Sons of Temperance, have been newly carpeted with attractive brussels carpet, furnished by a local dealer. The new carpet was put down by the lady members of the Order.

—Charles Keewan has resumed the position he occupies each summer with so much satisfaction to the patrons of the Coleman House, Asbury Park. He has entire charge of the pool and billiard rooms, and the bowling alleys.

—Ernest Marx's ten-year-old boy, took off his shoes and stockings and went wading in Green brook one day last week. He stepped on a piece of tin which cut his foot so bad that Doctor Hope had to get a hack and take the lad home.

—The Epworth League of the M. E. church of this district, held a convention at Westfield, Thursday. There was a large attendance of delegates, who were afterwards entertained at supper by the ladies of the Rev. Wesley Martin's church.

—A canopy tea is to be held on the grounds at Park avenue and Sixth street, Tuesday the 17th inst., under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. The affair will be from 3:30 to 10 P. M. In case of rain, it will be postponed until the first pleasant day following.

—The seventeen-year-old son of John Naylor of West Third street fell out of a cherry tree on Jeremiah [illegible]'s place at Fourth street and Madison avenue, yesterday. So far as is now apparent, the only injury suffered is a severe bruising of the side of his face.

—Mr. Will Williams, one of Plainfield's popular news dealer, says: "because a man fails in business is no reason he should be removed from office." And he wants the public further to know that he is not the "Will Williams" who signed the "petition" to remove Justice Hardy.

—The case of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, whose Treasurer is Mr. Carey, against Walter Smalley for alleged ill-treatment of a horse, was before another jury Thursday, and a verdict of no cause of action resulted. The prosecution had twelve witnesses, and the defense only three. The jury did not believe the twelve, however. If the case is carried any further now, it will look like a matter of persecution.

Tempted by a Pair of Shoes.

Randolph Jones, a colored man, "lifted" a pair of shoes from a peg in front of a Somerset street shoe shop, on Saturday night, and made off with them. He was followed to a barber shop on Madison avenue, where the shoes were forcibly taken from him, and returned to the owner.

Referred to the Board of Health.

Complaint is made of a [illegible] cesspool on Richmond street, near Broadway, which it is claimed, has not been cleaned out within the past three years. The place is likely to breed disease, and should be attended to without delay. The attention of the Health Board has been called to the matter.

Plainfield Graduates [illegible] to [illegible] College.

The faculty of Vassar College have informed President Goodwin that hereafter a certificate of graduation from the Plainfield High School, will be a sufficient passport for admission into Vassar without examination. Wellesley and Rutgers colleges have long ago adopted such a practice.

A Ridiculous Question.

"Do you enjoy good health?" asked Brown of his friend Jones. The reply of Jones was short, sharp and to the point. "Why of course I do, what did you think?" Everyone enjoys good health when he has it. But some people do not have it to enjoy. Sick headache, biliousness, deranged liver, and host of ills, real and imaginary, are their feelings. Thousands of persons [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] by taking Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. Small, sugar-coated and easy to take; one a dose.

PERSONALS.

Wm. A. H. McKeown has returned to Fanwood for the season.

Mrs. John R. Evans, and Miss Evans, are at The Netherwood for the Summer.

Mrs. Stephen B. Strothers of 32 Grove avenue, has gone for a visit to the Catskills.

Mr. Hiram H. DeCamp of Chester, N.J., and brother-in-law of "Uncle" John W. Laing, is a visitor in the city Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. May of Newark, are spending the summer with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Busby of Somerset street.

In a very few weeks now, City Clerk Coward will begin the erection of a fine brick building on his property at 9 and 11 Park avenue.

The beautiful roses in the front yard of Mr. E. F. Thorn's residence on East Front street, attract universal attention from passers-by.

Mrs. Neely, an aged lady of 83 years, walked from her home in Scotch Plains to Plainfield, Sunday, attended church and walked back again.

Mr. William Geary, superintendent of a large paper mill at Castleton, N. Y., was Monday the guest of Chief T. O. Doane of the Fire Department.

Mr. Lohrmann, who for many years was employed by Louis Marin of East Second street, started on Saturday on the Steamer Ida, for Europe.

Mrs. Cornelia Morris, mother of Mrs. Robert C. Dugee, is very ill at her daughter's home on East Fifth street, and her end seems to be drawing near.

J. Allen Sangston, the popular young druggist who has so many friends in this city, has again been secured for the Summer by the West End Pharmacy, Asbury Park.

To Edward Petrie has fallen the honor this year of being the valedictorian of the graduating class of the high school. The honor was never more deservingly bestowed.

Palmer B. Stillman, and family, who have been Summer guests of The Netherwood, and also residents of this city during other seasons, have again returned to Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank George of New Haven, Conn., have been spending a few days with relatives on West Fourth street. Mrs. George is a cousin of Mrs. Adelbert Vail.

Mr. Chas. Hallock, formerly editor of Forest and Stream and now of the American Angler, has located in Plainfield for the Summer. He and his wife are at Mrs. Mason's, 121 Broadway.

John Ridley, Esq., of 9 Second place, was on Thursday last admitted to practice as an Attorney of the Supreme Court of this State. Mr. Ridley is a graduate of Columbia Law School, New York.

The Somerville Democrat says: "Miss Bessie Ulrich, daughter of the Hon. John Ulrich, of Plainfield, is at J. C. Kinyon's, enjoying the comforts of his home and surroundings. She is a bright little tot."

The event of this season, again, is the piano recital by the pupils of A. Vosburg. It will take place Thursday evening, June 19, in the new Chapel of the Crescent Avenue church. Cards of invitation are being eagerly sought.

On Thursday evening of this week, two of the most gifted graduates of the Boston School of Oratory—Miss Maude Agnes Bowers of this city, and Miss Gertrude Marchand, of Pittsburgh—will give a recital in Seminary Hall.

The body of the late Mrs. Frances M. Anglemann, who died at Newark, on Friday, was brought to this city and interred in the M. E. cemetery, Sunday afternoon, the Rev. C. B. Mitchell conducting a short service at the grave.

Miss Louise Holmes, daughter of Mr. E. H. Holmes, made her first appearance in public at the Royal Arcanum entertainment, Monday evening, her piano solo showing skill and careful training. Miss Holmes was presented with a handsome bouquet.

The Rev. John VanMeter, formerly pastor of the M. E. church, of this city, and now President of the Baltimore College for Women, has accepted the invitation to deliver the address to the High school graduates at the coming commencement.

Mrs. J. Williams, the mother of Mrs. Rev. C. Schenck, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Geo. Tams, both of Roxborough, Philadelphia, are visiting Mrs. Schenck during the absence of Mr. Schenck at the St. Louis Christian Endeavor Convention, which opens in the latter city on the 12th instant.

Ex-Collector Lewis E. Clark, Clerk of the Board of Education, is still confined to his bed from the stroke of paralysis he was the victim of some weeks ago. The physicians are now trying electricity to bring back the use of his arm and leg. Heart failure through "sympathy," is one of the ill results of his attack.

A Lake Hopatcong correspondent writes: "Bass fishing had been very good for those who know how and where to fish. Ex-Postmaster Force and John Simpson, of Plainfield, with Mahlon Decker as guide, caught sixty-seven. They had some very fine bass and pickerel—no doubt they would average a pound apiece."

Word was received in this city Thursday, of the death of Mrs. Catherine Dysart, a cousin of Mrs. W. R. McClure. She died on her estate at Bert, in the North of Ireland, May 18. This makes the third death in Counselor McClure's family, in three months consecutively. Mrs. Dysart leaves a large fortune of which Mrs. McClure's share will probably amount to about $75,000.

At the regular meeting of the Plainfield Crescent League, on June 4, the following were elected new members: F. L. C. Martin, Robt. S. Miller, Thos B. King, Jr., Rev. on J. Martin, J. M. Hamstead and W. H. Drayton. Letters of acceptance of their election to honorary membership, were received from the Revs. E. M. Rodman, C. B. Mitchell, T. Logan Murphy and Cornelius Schenck.

John W. Taylor, Esq., Cashier of the First National Bank of Somerville, died at his home in that town Saturday night. Mr. Taylor was one of Somerville's most prominent citizens and his place in their esteem will be long unfilled. Mr. Taylor was at one time a conductor on the Central Railroad and for a long time identified with the Hope Express Co., which was afterwards bought by the Adams Express Co.

On the steamer "Ems" from Bremen, last Saturday, sailed Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kirkner, and the Misses Kirkner. They are expected to arrive in New York next Monday, and many anxious hearts await them here. Miss Carrie Kirkner continues to fail in health, but there is a slight hope that she will live to reach the home in Plainfield she has longed so many weary months, to see again. It seems probable that the railway journey from Dresden was accomplished with no ill effects, else Mr Kirkner would have cabled to his son from Southampton, Sunday.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, has been unanimously chosen by the Y. P. S. C. E., of his church, as a delegate to represent their Society at the 9th annual International convention to be held at St. Louis, Mo., June 12 to 15 inclusive. He left on Monday evening per B. & O. route foot of Liberty street, N. Y., on special excursion train of Endeavor delegation. Besides affording Mr. Schenck a much-needed rest, the Society will be amply repaid by the report he will bring home from the convention. He was also presented, as a substantial token of esteem, with a purse of $50 for incidental expenses of the trip.

Mrs. Geo. Stowe of Mechanics Falls, Me., is visiting relatives on Somerset street, this city.

Mrs. James W. Davis and children of East Fifth street, are at Asbury Park, spending a few weeks.

Mrs. Julia E. Johnson of this city has sold to Samuel Skinner of Newark, ½ acre of land on Third street, for $2,500.

The Rev. and Mrs. Rodman were the generous hosts who tendered the clergy of this city, a dinner, Monday evening.

A. W. Haviland and family, of Rock View avenue, have gone to St. Andrews, Canada, where they will spend the Summer.

Frank W. Runyon, one of the editors of the Philadelphia Press, and Mrs. Runyon, are in Plainfield again for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dunn of East Seventh street, started for California, Monday, where they will remain for an indefinite period.

Counselor Wm. W. Pearson presented every member of the Crescent League base ball team with a fragrant buttonhole bouquet, Saturday afternoon, at the close of their ninth successive victory. He says the team will also win next Saturday, and through this prediction seems dubious, yet it must be confessed that Counselor Pearson's judgment on base ball is almost right.

The lecture on Florence by the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, and the music by Miss Alice Holmes and E. E. Runyon, at the Congregational church, last Thursday evening, was highly appreciated by the Ladies Aid society, and their many friends who attended. It gave such general satisfaction that another entertainment of the kind has been requested for the near future.

An opportunity to hear Miss Maude Agnes Bowers for the first time in public since her graduation from the Boston School of Oratory, will be afforded at Seminary Hall, this evening. With Miss Bowers will appear the also charming Miss Gertrude Marchand. The programme will include a variety of literary selections and quartettes by the N.Y. College banjoists, concluding with the farce, "Fast Friends," in which Miss Bowers and Miss Marchand will enact the characters of Laura Latimer and Mabel Hamilton, respectively.

Rowland Cox, Esq., of this city, is the counsel for the Blacks, of London, who spent over a million dollars in the compilation and production of the Encyclopedia Britannica. Mr Cox is also counsel for Scribner's Sons, in the same matter, before the U. S. Circuit Court. The valuable volumes have been photographed page by page, maps and all, and reprinted by a firm of New Yorkers, who have also been the publishers of a Christian weekly upholding the ten commandments including "Thou Shalt Not Steal!" These reproductions are sold at a price "within the the reach of all," to the great loss of Messrs Black and Messrs Scribner.

HYMENEAL.

HEDENBERG—THOMPSON.

Under a canopy of Florida moss and palms, with a ball of roses suspended above them, Margaret Helen Thompson, daughter of ex-Councilman Wm. Thompson, of this city, was married, evening of June 4, at 7 o'clock, to Mr. John E. Hedenberg, son of the late Watson S. Hedenberg of Newark, and Treasurer of the Republican club of that city.

The ceremony was performed at the house of the bride's parents, Central avenue and Sixth street. The Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D. D., officiated. Miss Thompson was most becomingly attired in a gown of white faille trimmed with point lace. She carried a bouquet of Bride roses. Miss Elizabeth Thompson, sister of the bride, and Miss May Taylor, daughter of Morgan S. Taylor, of Washington Park, were the bridesmaids. They were dressed in pale blue mull, and carried bouquets of pink roses and forget-me-nots.

The bridesmen were Mr. Albert Wright and Mr. Alexander Coe Thompson. The groom's best man was Mr. John Conger, of Newark. The house was profusely decorated with cut flowers and plants. The supper served by Davis, of Newark, has never been excelled in this city by any other caterer. The attendance of guests included all the best of Plainfield's society besides representative people from other cities.

There was dancing from 9 until 11 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Hedenberg left for an unknown wedding trip, on the 10:12 train. They will be at home on Wednesdays at 213 Plane street, Newark.

The New One of Pittsburgh's Largest Churches.

The Rev. Richard S. Holmes, D. D., for so many years a resident of this city, was recently elected pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh, and was formally installed therein last Thursday evening.

One of the papers of that city, in speaking of him, says: "The Rev. Richard S. Holmes is a man of apparently middle age. He is about the average height and rather slender. His hair and beard was once dark, but is rapidly turning gray. He comes to Pittsburgh from Warren, Pa., where he was very popular. He is spoken of as a very eloquent and scholarly man. The congregation over which he will preside is one of the largest in the city."

A Bad Runaway.

A serious runaway happened in Washington Valley, just Northwest from Scotch Plains, on Saturday afternoon, which resulted in the complete demolition of a business wagon, and perhaps fatal injuries to Mr. Robert Jahn, a tinsmith from Scotch Plains.

Mr. Jahn and his hired boy had been doing some work for a Mrs. Bloom, who resides in the Valley. They had just started for home, seated in a light business wagon, when the horse became frightened and ran away. The wagon struck a tree, throwing the occupants violently to the ground, badly injuring Mr. Jahn. The boy was more fortunate, however, he escaping with slight bruises.

The injured man was taken to his house, and three physicians, including Dr. Jenkins of this city, attended the patient. Today his condition is reported to be slightly improved.

The Team and Their Victories.

Managers Burnet and Leggett are receiving the highest kind of praise from everybody for their enterprise and courage in inducing the Hackett-Carhart team to come to Plainfield, next Saturday, and see what the Crescents are made of.

Here is a list of the visiting team's victories for 1890, and their only defeats: Victories—Stars of L. I. City, 13-2, New Jersey A. C., 6-2, Bayonne A. A., 6-2, Rahways, 5-0, Iroquois A. C., of Newark, 8-2, Jersey City, 14-2, New Haven, 7-3, Hartford, 6-4, Albany, 2-1, Albany 5-1, Columbia College, 10-0, Stars of L. I. City, 4-3. Defeats—New York (National League), 1-4, Brooklyn (National League), 3-8, Rahways, 9-10.

The batting order of both teams will be as follows: Hackett-Carharts—Morehead, ss., Kruse, c., Hummel, cf., Dixon, 1b., Berry, 2b., Abel, lf., Nugent, 3b., Carmichael, rf., Tierney, p., Gough, extra.

Crescents—Martin, ss., Laffery, 3b., Wiegand, 1b., Jones, c., Gillis, cf., Gregg, p., Lee, 2b., Walker, lf., McIndoe, rf. The latter is Rahway's celebrated first baseman.

It is false! No imitation is as good as the genuine Hires' Root Beer. Some dealers recommend imitations for the larger profits they yield. What a delicious drink Hires' Root Beer Package makes.

WEDDING BLOSSOMS AND RICE.

TAMS—MOFFETT.

A pretty home wedding took place on Thursday at 15 Orchard place. Miss Ella Moffett and William H. Tams, of Trenton, were married. The bride is the daughter of President Elmore D. Moffett, of the City Council, and the bridegroom is the son of James Tams, President of the Greenwood Pottery, of Trenton. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents. The house was handsomely decorated with flowers, plants and palms.

The bride looked charming in a handsome traveling gown. The Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D. D., of the First Baptist church, officiated. A large and fashionable company was present. Among the guests were many from New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Paterson, Brooklyn, Trenton and Jersey City. The gifts were beautiful and many.

The happy couple left on a late train under showers of rice and with the best wishes of their friends. They will make a bridal tour of the South, and on their return will live in Trenton.

THREE MORE CONCERTS PROMISED.

But if You Want to Attend, You Must Subscribe Now.

The Plainfield Choral Society, in announcing its plans for 1890-91, refers with much satisfaction to the season just ended, the most successful in every respect in the musical annals of this community. Opening the series of concerts with Gaul's "Holy City," and closing with Handel's greatest work, the "Messiah." The society presents this record as an indication of the character of its concerts for the ensuing season. These gratifying results have been made possible by the prompt and liberal support of the subscribing members, and the Directors confidently count on the same substantial co-operation from them for the coming term.

It is proposed to give three more private concerts, dates to be announced hereafter. But the seating capacity of Stillman Music Hall is limited, and therefore but few names can be added to the list of subscribing members. Applications can be made at once to Mr. H. Otis Newman, 4 West Fifth street, which will be acted upon in the order received. Four reserved seats for the season, allowed for each ten dollar subscription. Subscriptions payable October 1, 1890.

Violated the Health Ordinance.

On complaint of Health Inspector J. W. A. Bauerschs of North Plainfield, David K. Vail was arrested last week charged with violating section one of health ordinance No. 5, by leaving fish barrels and other obnoxious trash in the roadway on Race street. His hearing was set down for Saturday evening last, before Justice Crossley, but through some misunderstanding the defendant failed to put in an appearance. The case will be heard by Justice Crossley this evening.

The German Ladies Aid Society.

The general annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the German church was held Thursday in the lecture room, and well attended. The reports showed the society to be in the best condition, and were very encouraging.

The officers elected for the ensuing year, are as follows:

President—Mrs. Sauermann.
Vice Presid nt—Mrs. Mennenbach.
Secretary—Mrs. Valentine Utzinger.
Treasurer—Mrs. Newman Müller.
Treasurer for Mission—Mrs. Sack.

Thursday of this week the anniversary entertainment of the society will be held. Admission free.

New Officers of the Knights of Honor.

Wetumpka Lodge, Knights of Honor, met Thursday and initiated seven candidates besides receiving several propositions. At the next meeting, June 19, the Grand officers will be present and a large number of applicants will be initiated. The following officers were elected to serve for the term ending December 31:

Past Dictator—John H. Doane.
Dictator—E. C Pease.
Vice Dictator—S. E. Flower.
Assistant Dictator—V. L. France.
Reporter—W. Addis.
Guide—G. W. Houseman.
Chaplain—C. Dickinson.
Financial Reporter—C. E. Vail.
Treasurer—J. C. Pierson, Jr.
Guardian—T. Osment.
Sentinel—John Richter.
Representative to Grand Lodge—G. J. Feyrel.
Alternate—F. P. Haffner.

One of the Adirondacks' Best Hotels.

Those of THE PRESS readers who will spend some coming weeks in the Adirondacks, would do well to entrust themselves to the genial and generous care of host McMartin. His thorough knowledge of how to run a hotel, his uniform affability, and the charming location of "Kunjamuck Inn," has gained for him and it, an enviable reputation.

The "Inn," formerly "Call's," is in a most attractive portion of the Adirondacks, situated at an elevation of 1,800 feet above sea-level and commanding an extensive view of mountain scenery. Lake Pleasant is at the right, and Round Lake in front—only a few yards from the house. New boats have been placed on the lakes for rowing, in addition to which there are facilities for tennis, croquet, quoits, riding and driving, while fishing and hunting, in their season, are unsurpassed. Sportsmen will appreciate the fact that the New York State Hatchery is only three miles distant and that the neighboring streams and lakes are stocked from there. The rooms are large and comfortable, with ample closets.

The house has been thoroughly renovated, and the present management will cater to the comfort of its patrons and maintain a bountiful and excellent table. The atmosphere is pure and bracing, peculiarly adapted to the relief of hay fever, malaria and pulmonary troubles. New York Central railroads connect at Fonda with Fonda, Johnstown and Gloversville Railroad to Northville, N. Y., where stages meet the mid-day trains, from which point there is a most enjoyable and picturesque drive to Kunjamuck Inn. In writing for particulars, address, A. M. MacMartin, Sageville, Hamilton county, N. Y.

Weary, worn and discouraged,
Heartsick and hopeless and sad;
Longing for help and comfort
When none can be had,—

Describes the condition of those persons who are said to be "going down hill," or "going into a decline." There is an indescribable weakness of the system, a general lack of vitality. They cannot tell what the matter is with them. They only know that they feel miserable in mind and body. They are gloomy and despondent. They have tried this and that remedy prescribed by their friends or doctors. They have failed to receive any benefit from them. They reach the conclusion that there is no help for them and that they must die. Now the fact is that the trouble originates, in nine cases out of ten, in impure blood. There is poisonous, effete matter in it that ought to be got rid of. But how can this be done? Simply by taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which acts on the blood and various organs of the body in such a way that the man or woman using it seems to be made over—reconstructed. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure all cases of disease for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded.

A Boy Fell From a Tree.

Tunis, a son of Mr. Wm. Hewett, of East Third street, fell from a tree on Monday afternoon, and sustained a fracture of his right arm. The boy was sitting on a limb, when the limb broke, throwing him headforemost to the ground.

No Rival in the Field.

There is no remedy which can rival HAMBURG FIGS for the cure of habitual indigestion and sick-headache. Their action is as prompt and efficient as their taste is pleasant. 25 cents. Dose, one fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

ENTERTAINMENT BY THE ROYAL ARCANUM.

Plainfield Council, No. 711 Entertains its Guests in a Commendable Manner.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, met in regular session, Monday evening, and transacted some routine business, after which the rooms were thrown open to the public, and an entertainment was given to the members and friends of the Council, according to the following programme:

PART FIRST.
Overture—"Encouragement," .... Boettger
Orchestra.
Song—"The Postillion," .... Molloy
Paul C. Tapley.
Galop—"Formosa," .... Weingarten
Orchestra.
a "When the Frost is on the Punkin," ... Riley
b "Treasurer's [illegible]," ... Small
Wm. B. Green.
Piano Solo "Mazurka," .... [illegible]
Miss Louise Holmes.
Valse—"Love's Dreamland" .... Roeder
Orchestra.

PART SECOND.
March—"Always Ready" .... Wiegand
Orchestra.
Piano Solo—"Fantasie, [illegible] Theme, Allemande" .... Leibach
Edward Hasselman.
"He Spoke His Piece" .... Green
Wm. B. Green.
Song—"The Minstrel Boy" .... Shelly
Paul C. Tapley.
Valse—"Lyceum" .... [illegible]
Orchestra.

The R. A. Orchestra consisted of 1st Violin—Joseph [illegible], 1st Violin—Harry Conde, 2d Violin—E. A. Bigelow, Clarinet—J. J. Moore, Cornet—Richard Stockton, Flute—Edward Garthwaite, Trombone—Daniel E. Davis, Piano—Edward Hasselman.

Piano Soloists—Miss Louise Holmes, Edward Hasselman, Baritone—Paul C. Tapley of Brooklyn, Reciter and Story Teller—Wm. B. Green, (The Judge), of Brooklyn.

The orchestra, which consisted of home talent, rendered some delightful music, and the piano solos by Miss Holmes and Prof. Edward Hasselman, the humorous recitations by Mr. Wm B. Green, who is a brother member of the order in Brooklyn, and the songs by Mr. Paul C. Tapley, were all exceedingly well rendered, and elicited prolonged applause. On the whole the entertainment was a grand success, and those who composed the large audience present, would be glad to have the exercises repeated at an early date.

Following is a list of the officers for the year 1890:

Regent—E. W. Coakle.
Vice Regent—Seymour Marsh.
Past Regent—A. W. Rand.
Orator—E. C. Baker.
Secretary—E. A. Thorne.
Collector—L. M. Stover.
Treasurer—W. J. Leonard.
Chaplain—A. W. Kleinecke.
Guide—F. A. Emmons.
Warden—J. B. Phillips.
Sentry—Emil Dreyer.
Past Regents—Wm. H. Lyon, Jr., E. C. Baker, D. E. Titsworth, E. E. Anthony, E. M. Rodman, W. J. Leonard, B. M. Stover.

The Plainfield Council, R. A., was founded in October, 1882, and it has steadily increased in membership, until at the present time it numbers 125 active members, representing the very best class of people in the city.

The Royal Arcanum is a fraternity composed of men who at entrance must be physically sound, socially acceptable, and between 21 and 55 years of age. $3,000 is paid to widow, children or other beneficiary, on the death of a member. The Plainfield Council has had a remarkable history, having lost only one member since its organization.

ANNUAL ANNIVERSARY OF THE HOME.

Appropriate Addresses, Enjoyable Music and Encouraging Reports.

The anniversary exercises of the Children's Home were held in the First Presbyterian church, Thursday. Addresses were made by Drs. Rodman and Ketcham. Miss Jessie Utter played the organ, and a special choir consisting of Mrs. Collier, Miss J. J. Ketcham, Miss Thompson, of North Plainfield, Morris VanArsdale and Arthur Freeman gave some excellent selections.

The treasurer's report showed the total receipts for the year to have been $3,601.81; total expenditures $3,426 29; leaving a balance on hand of $175 52. Since that time generous responses have been made to the appeal for funds. The Kinder Symphonie netted to the Association, $138.25. Mr. Neuman of New York city, sent to the ladies a check for $20 from the shares of receipts which he received. The ladies of the Association wish to return their thanks to all friends who aided in any way in the entertainment.

Cricket.

At Trenton, on Saturday, the Trenton cricket club beat the St. George's cricket club of this city by a score of 128 to 49. The members of the St. George's club played well, however, when the fact is taken into consideration that the club is scarcely yet two months old, and the Trenton club is an old established one.

Most Fortunate Escape.

As Mrs. George Thatcher with her little niece, was driving in her cottage cart Monday evening, just before 7 o'clock, the horse started to run as it went under the Central avenue railroad bridge. As they passed Fifth street Mrs. Thatcher still had the animal under some control, but her anxiety for the little one by her side, and the terrible strain on her arms, was too much for her.

As the horse passed John M. Crane's house, on Central avenue, between Seventh and Eighth street, his little girl cried out to him, "There goes Mrs. Thatcher and Mamie running away with their hands before their face." Mr. Crane sprang from his dinner table and bare headed gave chase on his bicycle. The horse unguided turned suddenly into Ninth street, upset the vehicle, and threw both occupants out. Fortunately they were only bruised. A few minutes after the horse ran into Seguine's stables on Front street with only one shaft attached to him.

A Valuable Horse Killed.

The high wind which preceded the thunder storm June 4, broke a large limb from a tree on Crescent avenue, near the Crescent Avenue church, which in its descent tore loose from its fastenings a street lighting electric wire, which sagged across the street. Before the damage could be remedied, Geo. Sadler came along driving Mr. John Chandler's famous and valuable trotting horse "Rambo" toward its owner's home. Not noticing the sagging wire, the horse struck it, and in a flash dropped dead in his tracks. Evidently the wire struck the horse in the abdomen, as he lay directly across it. Sadler attempted to raise the animal by catching hold of the bridle, and received a slight shock.

Assistant Supt. McClurg was summoned, who cut the wire and drew it from beneath the dead body. The power used on the street lighting wires is much greater than that used for house lighting. The charge on the wire which did the mischief was over 1,000 volts. The animal was returning from exercise at the Driving Park, and being warm and nervous was more susceptible to the current. The wire was insulated. Mr. Chandler valued "Rambo" at $2,500, and the loss is a severe one to him, as the animal gave great promise as a trotter. It is likely that the Electric Light company will pay damages to the owner.

The preparation which most closely resembles mother's milk is confessedly the best food for babes, and the preparation which is most grateful and nourishing to the delicate organism of the invalid or convalescent is destined to win the favor and confidence of the medical profession and the public. Mellin's Food has long since been found to meet these requirements.

THE OWLS REIGN.

So the Mair Family Carry Open Umbrellas When They Go to the Barn.

The New York papers are very much interested in the plague of owls that has for two weeks disturbed the peace of Jno. Mair's home in the outskirts of this city. The first appearance of the feathered creatures was noticed by one of Mr. Mair's sons, who, in romping about the barn, discovered a snug nest of the young birds. There were no larger owls in sight, and the boy made one of the owlets captive and carried it to the house. His mother compelled him to restore it to its nest. He had no sooner placed it with the others than one of the older birds appeared and attacked him furiously, beating him in the face with its wings, and scratching with its claws and bill at his eyes shielding himself with his arms, the lad ran away. The owl left him at the barn door.

That afternoon one of the young ladies of the family had occasion to visit the carriage house, where a great owl flew down and alighted on her back. She shook it off with difficulty, and in the struggle had her garments torn. Since then owls have taken complete possession of the out-buildings and their surroundings. Scores of the birds—which are of the d y-owl species—have followed the first comers, and have made their nests in the barn. Several have been killed, but this seems only to make the others more fierce. Even the men dare not venture near the nesting places without masks or other protection.

The novel defence of umbrellas has been at last adopted, and now when any member of the Mair family visits the owls' castle he holds a parachute over his head. Already three umbrellas have been ruined by the birds dashing against them in vain endeavors to reach the faces of the carriers. The Mair family are in a state of mind. They don't want to move out, but they can't dispossess their unwelcome and belligerent tenants.

PLAINFIELD HAS THEM.

But the Curbstone Guard Here is Not Yet Disorderly.

Complaint is made of the great number of young men who stand along the sidewalks when church turns out Sunday evenings.—These young men think they ought to see the young ladies safe home, and the curbstone guard, extended far along the street, has long been in vogue. We would caution them to be careful what they say as the miss s pass by, even if they do not care to, or cannot if they would, go along home with them. Offensive remarks will not exalt you in the opinion of any one.—[Frenchtown Star.]

—The "curb-stone guard" is a noble company, to be sure, and no doubt sensible people in Frenchtown are heartily ashamed of its existence. It seems to us that the people now have it in their hands to disperse the "guard" and break up their meetings. If, as the Star intimates, the curb flowers have resorted to making offensive remarks as ladies pass by them, it is high time the authorities interfere in the name of common decency and arrest the young blackguards. Church-going people have some rights guaranteed by law, and it is for those chosen to enforce the law in such cases to act promptly and determinedly. Flemington, too, has a "curb-stone guard," but the members are civil-tongued. They are satisfied with a silly gaping into the faces of an out-going congregation and puffing foul-smelling cigarette smoke high above the church spire.—Flemington Democrat.

Plainfield's "curbstone Guard" is on duty every night, but it is a most orderly gang as yet—in most respects. They hang over the letter boxes so that a lady cannot post anything. They make everybody step off in the gutter, to get by. They expectorate tobacco everywhere, and blow cigarette smoke in your throat. But they havn't insulted anybody, nor knocked anyone down, yet.

Changes in Borough Realty.

The late changes in borough real estate have been as follows:

James W. Jackson and wife to Chas. W. McCutchen, property in North Plainfield, $1,500.

Caleb Evans to James D. Cleaver, property in North Plainfield, $1.

Elisha Coriell to Joseph A. Blatz, property in North Plainfield, 1,750.

Of Interest to Sportsmen.

The woodcock crop promises to be large. It is legal to shoot them during the month of July.

The catch of black bass in the Raritan thus far this season has not been very good. The fact is the season opens too early, the fish being still on their spawning beds.

The late Legislature did one good thing when it repealed the charter of that abomination and fraud, the West Jersey Game Society. It is to be hoped that the Governor will sign the bill.

A Cricket Tournament in Plainfield.

The St. George Cricket Club of this city, has arranged for a series of tournament games to be played against New York, Brooklyn and Paterson clubs on its new grounds at Spooner avenue and Fourth streets, Saturdays. The tournament team is composed of Messrs Ardan, Ogden, Wharton, Stansfield, Gow, Ahlgren, Hendry, Neal, McIntosh, Chamberlain and Sylvester.

The officers of the team are: Captain—Robert Gow; Vice Captain—T. Chamberlain; Treasurer—R. J. Neal; Secretary—Wm. Ahlgren; Assistant Secretary—Fred Wharton; Committee—C. Burns, J. Clifton, N. Head, J. Arden, R. Pullen.

The officers of the Club are: President—James E. Greensmith; Vice Presidents—Thomas Lea, George E. Greenleaf, W. P. Lincoln, L. B. Morgan, George Wm. Moreton, A. McCardell; Patrons—A. C. Stebbins, D. W. Pond, A. T. Wing, James Lancey.

"For a long time I had no appetite, was restless at night, and very much debilitated. After taking two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my strength and appetite returned, and my health was completely restored."—D. M. Fisher, Oswego, N. Y.

Save Your Hair

By a timely use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation has no equal as a dressing. It keeps the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, and preserves the color, fullness, and beauty of the hair.

"I was rapidly becoming bald and gray; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—Melvin Aldrich, Canaan Centre, N. H.

"Some time ago I lost all my hair in consequence of measles. After due waiting, no new growth appeared. I then used Ayer's Hair Vigor and my hair grew Thick and Strong.

It has apparently come to stay. The Vigor is evidently a great aid to nature."—J. B. Williams, Floresville, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Bailey, 9 Charles street, Haverhill, Mass.

"I have been using Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years, and believe that it has caused my hair to retain its natural color."—Mrs. H. J. King, Dealer in Dry Goods, &c., Bishopville, Md.

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. Write to F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn., for maps, books and guides. A SPANKING SAVED HIM.

A Man of Serene and Quiet Habits Who Couldn't Be Hurried.

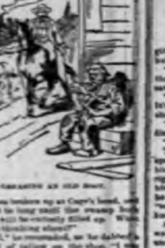
He Never Ran for a Mississippi Flood Until the Water Spanked Him—With the Help of a Stranger He Got Started for the Hills.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

The water was rising rapidly in the lower Mississippi. Heavy rains had been falling above, and the strain on the levees had become so great that hundreds of plantations were flooding [illegible] high-lands. Everywhere [illegible] down the surging flood, and an occasional cabin with some one on the roof could be seen bobbing its way toward the gulf.

Late in the afternoon a man riding a horse drew up in front of a cabin near the river, and seeing an old fellow sitting on a soap-box lazily greasing a pair of shoes, thus addressed him:

"Why, what can you be thinking about, sitting here so unconcerned when the water is rising so fast? The levee has broken up at Capt's bend, and it won't be long until this swamp [illegible] yonder will be entirely filled up. What are you thinking about?"



GREASING AN OLD BOOT.

"Well," he responded, as he dabbed a handful of tallow on the shoe, "I was thinkin' about several things. Was thinkin' that I would go to meetin' [illegible] to hear that new feller that they 'low kin fling down any man on the circuit, an' then I thought that I would go over and [illegible] old Bobby [illegible] an' me has been mighty good [illegible], but t'other day I took up the idee that he shot my dog an' he's got to be whipped. I'm a little sorter curious thater way. When I take up a notion that a man has shot my dog it don't make no difference whether he done it or not. I jest hain't got to whip him. My daddy was thater way, an' I jest took atter him. Whither [illegible] are you travelin'?"

"I am going to get out of this infernal bottom. I came down here day before yesterday, and if I get out you may rest assured that I'll never come here again."

"Sorty obleeged to you, fur I allers wanted ter. Makes no difference whether I was axed or not. What I'm after is the man."

"How far is the nearest high ground from here?"

"Oh, you kin find high ground all along the river here. Land right down thar is sorty high. Couldn't buy it, I don't reckon, for less than fifty dollars a acre. Mighty fine land. Cotton stalks grow as high as a hoss."

"I mean a hill, for Heaven knows I don't care what the land is worth."

"Well, hossmen." He put down the shoes and wiped his hands on the bosom of his shirt. "That's a hill 'way yonder [illegible], but I don't know how you kin git thar from here, but if you was way over at the Absee place, w'y you'd be right thar."

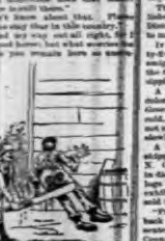
"How can I get to the Absee place?"

"Well, I hain't been over thar in some time, an' I did hear that old Absee had moved away."

"What difference does that make? The place is still there."

"I don't know about that. Places don't allus stay thar in this country."

"I'll find my way out all right, for I have a good horse; but what worries me is to see you remain here so unconcerned. I am a member of the American Humane Society, and it is my duty to urge you to save yourself."



SPANKING HIM.

"Don't fret about me, mister. The Bible tells us not to worry, an' that's one part of the good book that I foller well."

"I am really interested in a man so peculiar. How long have you lived here?"

"Mighty nigh all my life."

"Why don't you move away?"

"Feared I mout not have good health."

"You surely have chills, for you are yellow as a pumpkin now."

"Oh, yes, have lots of chills. Have 'em mighty nigh every day. Wife an' [illegible] an' [illegible] in thar now a-shakin' with chills."

"You surely could not live in a more unhealthful [illegible]."

"Yes, think I could. Some of [illegible] ain't dead, but lots of folks that lived up on the high ground is. Some [illegible] like chills, but then [illegible] folks don't like you. I tell you that a right hot day when the heat [illegible] down the road like somebody shakin' a [illegible], a chill is a mighty fine thing. You see, a man gits tired of one sort of weather, such as they have in the hills, but down here he kin have two or three seasons in one day. In [illegible] he's just a leetle warm, [illegible]."

"You beat any body I ever saw."

"No, I don't beat nobody. Did beat a ferryman once by wadin' the river, but that was a long time ago an' I have jined the church since then."

"Have you ever been run out by the high water?"

"Many a time."

"Then why don't you go now, for you must know your danger?"

"Well, I am a man of fixed habits, [illegible] how fast the water is risin' I never make a break for the hills till the water comes up an' wets my [illegible]. Then I know it is time to move, an' I holler for the folks an' we strike out. W'y, it is so much of a habit with me not to take action in the matter till [illegible] that one day last August, when we hadn't had a drop of rain [illegible], a feller that wanted [illegible] of the neighborhood come along [illegible] the truck patch whar I was grabblin' some potatoes, and just as I [illegible] over he spanked 'em with a wet board, and I called the folks an' struck out."

"Look here now, that's too much of a delusion."

"All right, but I reckon a man ought to know what his habits are. If you had confidence enough in me to tell me of your habits, w'y I wouldn't dispute you, for I wouldn't know, an' [illegible] ought to be mighty careful about disputin' something he don't know anything about."

"Well, I'll have to leave you, [illegible] doing so."

"Oh, don't fret about me [illegible]. I'll set around here a [illegible] an' 'plow gear,' an' the folks will be in the house a-[illegible] with that chunk an' stone while the water will come up an' wet my britches, an' then we'll all strike out for the hills. As the water is risin' pretty smart, mebbe I'll overtake you, for I don't reckon you kin ride through the woods so mighty fast."

"Good-bye, for I see that I can not move you."

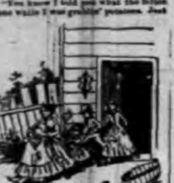
"You could do it, but I don't want to put you to any trouble."

"It would be no trouble whatever to me. Follow my advice is all I can ask of you and [illegible] all I can do for you."

"But you forgit my habits."

"Nonsense; what are you talking about?"

"You know I told you what the feller done while I was grabblin' potatoes. Just git a wet board an' spank me an' I will holl-out."



THE FAMILY CAME OUT.

"I would be willing to take an oath that you are the biggest fool I ever saw."

"Not a fool, but just a man of habits. It's little enough to ask of you, I am sure."

"All right," said the stranger, as he dismounted; "where is your board?"

"Yander it is, good an' wet."

The stranger took up the board and spanked the man of habits—spank'ed him so hard that it made him grin. "All right," said the sufferer, as he rubbed himself, "we'll scamper. Mari oh, mar!" he called, turning toward the house, "come on now all hands, for it is time to hustle for the hills."

A moment later the family, evidently waiting to hear the tidings of deliverance, came pouring out of the house.

NEWSPAPER NOTES.

Cincinnati boasts of a dozen millionaires, all of whom started life in an humble manner.

It is proposed to establish a museum of war relics in the Confederate White House at Richmond.

The Government pays annually to the railroads the sum of nearly $20,000,000 for carrying the mails.

Chicago is to have a tower erected by Eiffel, and lighted by Edison with 1,000,-000 incandescent lamps.

A man dropped dead in Spokane the other day on his way to mail a letter to his wife telling her he was well.

Postage-stamps of all issues since the beginning of the civil war are good, and may safely be used for postage.

The number of desertions from the United States army for the first nine months of the present fiscal year is 1,878.

A Kentucky physician says an epidemic prevailing in that State was introduced by the tornado, which bore the germs.

A fence is to be erected around the Lincoln monument in Springfield, Ill., to prevent further mutilation by relic-hunters.

Congress appropriates annually the sum of $6,000 for White House stationery, telegrams, books and other such contingent expenses.

It is reported that a vein of black marble has been discovered near [illegible], Va. There is none found elsewhere in the United States.

The city of Philadelphia makes $1,000,000 a year by supplying gas to consumers, besides having the entire city lighted free of cost.

The divorce statistics recently published made a very bad showing for the District of Columbia, the ratio of divorce to marriage being one to twenty.

It is estimated that more than twenty-five thousand colored people have emigrated during the past winter from the South Atlantic States to the Mississippi valley.

A mineral oil of a beautiful pink color has been discovered near Bowling Green, Ky. The oil is odorless when cold, but when heated it emits an odor not unlike that of attar roses. It burns slowly, with a rose-colored flame.

A pair of curled poplar logs were shipped to Germany from Swain County, N. C., each 12 feet long and 4 feet in diameter at the smaller end. These logs will be sawed and polished for exhibition in Berlin. The farmer who sold the logs was paid $[illegible] for each.

"Plese give pa 10c," written upon the back of an envelope, was a check presented to Cashier Hart, of the Lenawee County, Mich., Savings Bank, the other day, and it was good. The cashier filed it away as the most unique thing of the kind ever offered over that counter.

Elizabeth, N. J., has a young man who plays foot-ball, and the other night as he was coming home three dogs attacked him. With a fine drop kick he laid one dead, and a second flying in the air with several broken ribs, and so scared the remaining dog that he ran away.

A planter residing near Corinth, Miss., is believed to be the possessor of the longest beard in the world. He is a man of unusual stature, standing nearly six and one-half feet in his stockings; this notwithstanding, his beard reaches the ground when he is standing erect. This remarkable growth is but fourteen years old.

A Benton Ridge (Hancock County) father, who is proud of his children, makes the following challenge and gives it publicity: He will wager $[illegible] that he has a pair of 8-year-old twins that can defeat any twins of similar age in the country in a spelling contest; also, a similar amount that he has a 6½-year-old child that can spell or read better than any 6-year-old boy or girl within the boundaries of Hancock County, or the State of Ohio. Money and children now ready.

A MISCELLANEOUS LOT.

The Sisseton Indians in South Dakota have signed, by a handsome majority, an agreement to sell about 600,000 acres of their surplus lands to the Federal Government. Such agreement will become a law as soon as it is approved by Congress. The terms of sale by acre are $2.50.

While the sealing industry of Alaska holds a prominent place in public attention, and gold mining in Southeastern Alaska and at Unga Island to the westward is inviting capital for gradual and certain development, the coal deposits in the vicinity of Cook's Inlet and at other points west of Sitka are rapidly coming to the front. Experts pronounce the coal of good quality and the beds extensive.

The district attorney of Georgia says that [illegible] make a broad distinction between perjury in the State courts and perjury in the Federal courts. They perjure themselves outrageously in the latter tribunals and think nothing of it. They consider it their privilege to beat the Government if they can, fair means or foul. These same people can not be induced to perjure themselves in a State court.

A young Englishman, who landed in New York a few days ago, has started out to "beat his way" across America and around the world in the space of four months without cash outlay. From San Francisco he will stow himself away or work his passage to New Zealand, thence ship for some Chinese port, and journey through the Balkan Pass to Europe, thence to Germany, down the English channel to England, and ship from there to New York City.

There is a new counterfeit ten-cent piece in circulation which so closely resembles the genuine coin that it can be easily passed off on the unsuspecting. It differs from the usual counterfeits in that a genuine silver plating covers the German silver which forms the body of the coin. This gives it a "ring" very nearly like that of good money, and also does away with the greasy feeling by which most counterfeits can be detected. The coin bears the date of 1887.

PERSONAL POINTS.

B. P. Shillaber (Mrs. Partington) is nearly eighty years old, but he still makes a living by writing humorous articles for a syndicate.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes is not fond of being interviewed. He is cordial and polite to a reporter, but he evades the point at issue with great skill.

Senator Vest is one of the plainest men, as regards dress, in Congress. Sometimes his appearance has been described as shabby. His favorite garment in winter is a rough, gray ulster, worn almost threadbare and slit up the back.

A few weeks ago Gladstone was invited to be present at a festival given in behalf of a charitable enterprise; he sent his declination upon a postal card; at the festival the postal card was put up at auction sale and brought the goodly sum of $18.

Mrs. Garfield is now 58 years of age. She is somewhat stouter than of old, and her hair is whiter than in the days of her Washington life. She is said to look prettier in her mourning costume than in the brighter colors that she used to wear.

General Alger owns a tract of pine land in Northern Michigan containing 200 square miles, and his wealth is estimated at $10,000,000. When he went to Detroit at the close of the war he was compelled to borrow money to pay his board bill.

Justice Lamar, of the United States Supreme Court, says: "I have no doubt that Justices Matthews and Woods died from the indirect result, if not the direct, of overwork. I fear that others who are now on the bench are liable to break down in the same way."

General Fremont wore his hair falling over his shoulders until within five or six years ago, when some friends induced him to have it cut quite short. This changed his appearance so greatly that he declared he could hardly recognize his own reflection in the mirror.

Samuel J. Randall always lived in the most modest and unostentatious way at his little country place on the Pennsylvania railroad, a short distance out of Philadelphia. The house was no larger than many a laborer's, and was furnished in the most unpretentious style.

The man who is credited with the original device and manufacture of the revolver pistol, Benjamin Darling, died recently at Woonsocket, R. I., at the age of eighty-two years, but without having experienced any of the substantial rewards the invention brought to others.

VARNLETS RARE.

A famous college president, a clergyman, was addressing the students in the chapel at the beginning of the college year. "It is," he said, in conclusion, "a matter of congratulation to all the friends of the college that this year opens with the largest freshman class in its history." And then, without any pause, he turned to the Scripture lesson for the day, the Third Psalm, and began reading in a voice of thunder: "Lord, how are they increased that trouble me."

One night at a party Bayard Taylor was greatly bored by the persistent attempts of a guest to discuss sun-myths. No matter into what groove the conversation strayed, this individual was sure to drag it back to sun-myths. "Did you ever think that the name 'Smith,' so common in all countries, is derived from 'sun-myth?'" asked Taylor, mischievously. "No, indeed!" was the reply. "Undoubtedly! Sun-myth, Sumyth, Smyth, Smith!" Every one laughed; and the pest was successful in banishing the threadbare subject.

At Oxford, some twenty years ago, the tutor of one of the colleges limped in his walk. Stopping one day at a railway station, he was accosted by a well-known politician, who recognized him and asked him if he was not the chaplain of —— College at such a time, naming the year. The doctor replied that he was. "I was there, and know you by your limp," said the interrogator. The doctor replied: "Well, it seems my limping made a deeper impression than my preaching." "Ah, doctor," was the reply, with ready wit, "it is the highest compliment we can pay a minister to say that he is known by his walk rather than his conversation."

It is said that on one occasion as Miss Wordsworth, sister of the poet, was passing through a wood, which the stockdove was filling with its soft music, she fell in with a countrywoman, who exclaimed: "I am so fond of stockdoves!" "Oh!" thought Miss Wordsworth, "at last I have come on one of Nature's poets, with a soul to appreciate the beautiful music of the birds." Very ruthlessly was the dream disenchanted by an explanatory remark of the woman's—"Some likes them in pies, and some likes them roasted; but for my part, I think there's nothing like them stewed with onions."

LIGHT AND LIVELY.

A man is like an omnibus—when he is full he always thinks there is room for one more.

The man always wishing he were dead is always first to make for the door of a theater at the cry of fire.

A woman has suggested that when men break their hearts it is the same as when a lobster breaks one of his claws—another sprouts immediately and grows in its place.

If, in the heat of a family quarrel, the angry wife makes a move to pick up a flat-iron, by no means is this to be taken as implying a willingness to smooth things over.

Count Arthur Potocki, who recently died at Cracow in his fortieth year, left a fortune of $4,000,000. He was the richest land-owner in Galicia, and never came to America to look for a wife because he was amply able to support himself.

When you see a girl pasting a scrap-book full of cooking recipes out of the weekly papers you know pretty well that some young man is in a position to be congratulated, and yet, when you think of the recipes, you feel rather sorry for him too.

SOMEWHAT SINGULAR.

A Georgia man had to sell his last cow to pay the expense of a lawsuit about some chickens.

A lady in New York State got a verdict of $1,000 against a railroad because two men squeezed her in a car seat.

The Maine Savings Bank in Portland has 825 unknown depositors, of which number twenty-six have not troubled their deposits since 1828.

A curiosity revealed the other day at Holly Hill, near Daytona, Fla., was the hatching out of a couple of chicks by a cat from eggs left in the nest by a hen that had got tired of waiting for them to do as had the other eggs.

A physician at Nantes, France, has the strange gift of being able to see the color of sounds. He says that human voices are red, blue, black, tan, slate and all other colors, and that the color of some very handsome women's voices is like buttermilk.

Two years ago a colored woman slipped down on a street in Cincinnati. A white man named James Taylor assisted her to her feet without reference to color or previous condition. She died recently and in her will she left him $5,000 in cold cash.

The St. Joseph (Mich.) Valley railroad is eleven miles long, and one man is superintendent, general passenger and freight agent, manager, president and a very large slice of the board of directors, besides running a newspaper and practicing medicine.

A colored dentist in Macon, Ga., uses no instrument except his fingers in extracting teeth. By means of long practice his fingers have become as strong as forceps, and he claims that he can pull teeth faster and with less pain than any dentist with instruments.

Marlac County, Mich., has a school district with only one family in it. The home-steader built a school-house, used it as a dwelling, taxed the non-resident land-holders for the nine months' school each year, hired his wife as school-teacher, and elected himself, son and daughter as the school board.

"Ich verstehe kein Englisch," was the reply of a coal-black negro who was asked his name in a New York police court recently, and a court interpreter found that the only language the man knew was German. His name is Joseph Steinmetz, and he has lived all his life in Berlin, where he was brought from the Congo in babyhood.

A Mexican shepherd made a bet with his employer that his dog would stay alone on the ranch for five days, taking the sheep out to pasture in the morning and penning them at night. The dog was instructed by his master, plenty of meat was hung up within reach, the shepherd went off, the dog faithfully discharged his duties and the bet was won.

Twenty-five years ago a woman at Crawfordsville, Ind., vowed that the sun should never shine upon her again, and she kept her word. Her husband humored the whim, and, when the house in which they lived was sold, compelling a transfer, she was removed at night, in order that her vow might be kept intact. Some months ago she became blind, and her death occurred lately.

A family in Dover, N. J., who have long been missing valuables, were amazed a day or two ago to find them in the secret nest of a pet goose. Among the articles which the bird had appropriated were two gold thimbles, a tortoise-shell comb, scarf-pins, spools of sewing silk, silver lace and a watch. The goose had a trick of knocking at the door in quest of edible dainties, and, on being admitted and petted, would seek a sunny corner of the room and doze. When left alone, it began its purloining operations. It was hiding the stolen time-piece with its other treasures when discovered.

RELICS AND RARITIES.

A Berlin antiquary has discovered in a hollow cane the dagger with which Ravillac assassinated King Henry IV. of France. The dagger was stolen from the Palace of Justice, in Paris, in 1815.

There has been discovered in a convent at Ravenna, Italy, a painting by Giotto containing a portrait of Dante, the only really authentic portrait of him known. It is decidedly different from the accepted idea of the poet's looks.

A farmer at Ipswich, Mass., while plowing turned up an Indian idol of solid stone, in the shape of a serpent. It is thirty inches in length and of a dark color. It is to be deposited in the Essex Institute collection at Salem, Mass.

One of the relics placed in the corner-stone of the Confederate Soldiers' Home, at Atlanta, is a spur sent by General Longstreet. It was made from a Union cannon captured at the first battle of Bull Run and was worn by General Longstreet throughout the war.

The home and office furniture owned by Abraham Lincoln has been purchased by a firm in Chicago and is now on exhibition there. The only office desk he owned is there. It is a plain table surmounted by an old-fashioned bookcase, with the first law books Lincoln read.

A Roman doctor has discovered in many of the skulls in different Etruscan tombs, as well as in those deposited in the various museums, interesting specimens of ancient dentistry work and artificial teeth. The false teeth were, in most cases, carved from those of some large animal, and in many instances were fastened to the natural ones by gold bands. The skulls examined date as far back as six centuries before Christ, which proves that dentistry is not a modern art.

An interesting discovery has been made in Manchester. While looking over some old manuscript music in the shop of Mr. Cornish, the bookseller, Dr. Henry Watson came upon several manuscript copies of works by Mozart, which further examination convinced him to be, for the most part, in the composer's own handwriting. Among the manuscripts found are two concertos written by Mozart when a child, and several numbers from the opera of "Mithridate," composed at Milan in 1770. The latter manuscript is, without doubt, in Mozart's own handwriting.

JEST AND JOLLITY.

Mrs. Smithers—"Did you ever hear those hens cackle so?" Mr. S.—"Probably they are caroling a lay."

Claim-jumpers are so unpopular in Oklahoma that a man who has a jumping toothache is regarded with suspicion.

The Duke of Orleans is to be married in prison. Mrs. Orleans will have the advantage of knowing where he is at night.

A professional giant and giantess, each seven feet in height, were married the other day in Cincinnati. A genuine wedding in high life.

In Hungary a man convicted of bigamy was compelled to live with both wives in the same house. Hence bigamy was rare in that country.

It is noticed that in the springtime of the year the newspapers which really have the welfare of the public at heart publish the advice: "Don't take off your undershirts too soon."

"A good memory is a blessing," says a writer, and it may be remarked that it is one that wealth can not buy. Just look at the man who became suddenly rich. He can not even remember the faces of his old friends.

"I suppose that you will soon find somebody to fill my shoes," said Mrs. Bluskins who hadn't been feeling very well. "I doubt it very much," and he looked at her feet so significantly that she entirely lost her temper.

Congratulatory epistle to old chum about to be married—"I suppose I ought to wish you both happiness; but as I don't know the bride, I can not congratulate you, and as I know you altogether too well, I can not congratulate the bride."

An accepted authority says the spring onion is a great sleep inducer, and about equal to quinine for malaria. It is kept out of its most useful province by the prejudice against the odor. This may be overcome by hypnotism, and made a nasal delight.

A lady whose husband was the champion snorer of the community in which they resided, confided to a female friend the following painful intelligence: "My life has not been one of unalloyed delight. I have had the measles, the chicken-pox, the cholera, the typhoid fever and inflammatory rheumatism, but I never knew what real misfortune was until I married a burglar alarm."

WONDERS OF THE AGE.

Two Danbury (Conn.) engineers have invented an apparatus by which all the cars of a train can be heated by hot air direct from the locomotive.

A German has invented an apparatus for forcing sidewise the swell in front of fast-going ships by means of steam jets from a nozzle under the water at the bow.

A French photographer has discovered a method of obtaining the exact reproduction of a photograph by which a genuine portrait under the form of a marble bust is the result.

The scintillometer, the invention of a Belgian scientist, which is used for measuring the scintillation of the stars, is now utilized by meteorologists as an aid to the prediction of the weather.

A recent invention consists of a fender for street railway cars run by electricity. It presents a platform capacious enough to receive a victim so unfortunate as to be caught upon the track before a car. At a slope before it is a heavy four-ply rubber belting, pliable enough to pass over paving stones and similar objects, but sufficiently rigid to prevent an arm or leg from being drawn under the fender.

An apparatus has been invented which is intended for the prevention of collision in time of fogs. A large funnel is mounted on the bow part of the vessel, and turns round at the rate of five turns a minute. The waves of sound caused by the movement of another vessel are received by a membrane and transmitted by means of a microphone to a receiver, which indicates by means of electro magnets from which point of the compass the noise comes. These are indicated by white disks marking the direction, and an electric bell also sounds. Several receivers are intended to be worked from the same transmitter, for the captain and pilot, for the engine man, who could stop at once, or slow down if the vessel was coming in the opposite direction.

ITEMIZED INFORMATION.

A medical journal estimates that during its seven weeks prevalence in the United States the grip killed 12,000 people.

There are over two hundred men in Chicago worth $1,000,000 or more, the average possessions of each exceeding $2,000,000.

The oyster is one of the strongest creatures on the earth. The force required to open an oyster is more than thirteen hundred times its weight.

The longest electric railway in the United States will soon be put in operation in Topeka, Kas. The distance between the two termini is fourteen miles.

Young Japs are regarded by American naval officers as the best kind of servants on shipboard. They are marvels of neatness, intelligence, obedience and courtesy. Some Japs of excellent position at home are performing such services on American men-of-war.

Any law firm in New York with a really profitable business expends from $10,000 to $50,000 a year for rent, light, fuel, stenographing and the like. Some of the older lawyers still refuse to employ typewriters, and a noted member of the bar astonished some of the younger brethren at Albany the other day by presenting a voluminous brief written out in his own hand.

Assistant Postmaster-General Clarkson has had eight post-offices named after him. Wanamaker has given his name to five new towns and Harrison to four. Vice-President Morton, Senator Edmunds and William E. Gladstone have a score or two post-offices each. Missouri has thought fit to dub a new post-office Dudley, while Indiana honors Private Secretary Halford in the same way.

TOLD OF THE TITLED.

King Humbert of Italy affects to be English, and calls for rare steak and thick mutton chops.

The Prince of Wales is an expert type-writer, and his dozen secretaries have all been supplied with machines.

The Duchess of Albany, widow of the Queen's invalid son, took a regular course as hospital nurse and has just received her diploma.

Margaret of Savoy, the silver-haired Duchess Dowager of Genoa, mother of the Queen of Italy, despite her age and rank, walks to church like the poorest working woman of the town.

The ex-Empress Augusta of Germany left Lady-in-Waiting Fraulein von Reindorf, who has been in her service nearly fifty years, a legacy of $12,500. Another lady-in-waiting received $7,500.

The Crown Prince of Sweden and Norway, during his recent stay in Meran, adopted two little Tyrolese boys, sons of a poor carpenter, and they are now members of his household at Stockholm.

King Charles of Roumania is fifty one years old and gives most of his time to military affairs. He has a salary of $300,000 and doesn't want to go into any movement for the adjustment or unification of wages.

The Roumanian Queen, Carmen Sylva, is an illustrious epicure. She has invented several dishes, and sometimes cooks one for the King with her own hands. She tries them on her royal lord and if he survives she knows they are all right.

The adoption of "visible means of support" becomes more and more fashionable among the English aristocracy. Lord Albert Edward Godolphin Osborne, a younger son of the Duke of Leeds and namesake of the Prince of Wales, has gone to Ceylon to manage a tea plantation.

Emperor William has some respect for America. For the occasion of the entry of the American riflemen into Berlin he gave orders that the stars and stripes should be saluted with 101 guns when the palace was reached and that a company of the Imperial Guards should form an escort of honor to the flag.

PECULIAR PLANTS.

In the Botanical Garden of the Government is the "cruel plant," which is so designated because it catches butterflies and kills them for sheer sport. Its flowers attract the poor little flutterer by the honey it offers, and when the victim lights upon it it grabs the butterfly by the head and holds it fast until the captive dies. Then the flower drops it on the ground and lies in wait for a fresh unfortunate.

A curious looking tree from the Isthmus of Panama bears a round red fruit as big as an apple, which has this remarkable faculty, that its juice, when rubbed on tough beef or chicken, makes the meat tender by the chemical power it possesses to separate the flesh fiber. One is interested to observe in the botanical greenhouse three kinds of plants that have real consumption of the lungs—the leaves, of course, being the lungs of a plant.

Several specimens of hygrometric club moss from Mexico were recently presented to the Royal Botanic Society of London. In calling attention to them the secretary stated that these plants have the power, ascribed to the well-known rose of Jericho, of rolling themselves up like a ball and becoming apparently dead and then reviving on being exposed again to moisture. The specimens shown had been kept in a dry state for three months, but were again green and flourishing.

A very funny plant in the Government Botanical Garden is the so-called barber plant, the leaves of which are used in some parts of the East by rubbing on the face to keep the beard from growing. It is not supposed to have any effect on a beard that is already rooted, but merely to act as a preventive, boys employing it to keep the hair from getting a start on their face. It is also employed by some Oriental people who desire to keep parts of their heads free from hair, as a matter of fashion.

THE VARIOUS NATIONS.

The Chinese tan the skin of the sturgeon and make it into shoes.

The Mahometans considered silk unclean, from its being produced by a worm. Hence it was decided that a person wearing a garment made entirely of silk could not lawfully offer up the daily prayers enjoined by the Koran.

In China the man who lives nearest the scene of a murder is accused of the crime, and he must prove his innocence or else stand the punishment. It doesn't take a Chinese detective long to find a clue, and thus thousands of dollars are saved, if the accused is not.

At Castas, a small town in Austria, all the couples who become engaged during the year are united in the bonds of wedlock at one and the same marriage ceremony. In virtue of this ancient ceremony, thirty young women were the other day led to the altar.

The Japanese never sleep with the head to the north. This is because the dead in that country are always buried with the head towards the north. In sleeping rooms of private houses, and of hotels even, a diagram of the points of the compass is pasted upon the ceiling for the benefit of guests.

When a Corean marries he is careful to present his wife with a wild goose, even if he is obliged to hire the bird especially for the occasion; for, once upon a time, a wild goose whose mate was killed returned year after year to the same spot to mourn her loss, and the Corean bridegroom wishes his bride to understand the virtue of constancy.

There are many curious customs observed by the Brazilians. Funerals are notable in that for a young unmarried lady coffin, hearse and the livery of the driver must be bright scarlet, the four white horses drawing the hearse must be covered with scarlet nets, and scarlet plumes must deck the horses' heads. No women go to the cemeteries. The mother, the widow, must not exhibit her grief in public.

Photography has apparently disproved the theories of the old-school meteorologists, who maintained that lightning never turned back in its path. An examination of lightning photography shows that a flash not only turns back sometimes, but tangles itself into a kind of knot.

MISSIONARY MATTERS.

In Burmah, seventy years ago, there was not a single Christian. Now there are not far from 100,000. The Baptists alone have 500 churches and nearly 30,000 communicants.

Micronesia saw her first Christian baptism but a little over a quarter of a century ago. Now there are forty-seven self-supporting churches and about 5,000 church members.

The Friendly Islands fifty years ago had not a native Christian. Now there are more than 30,000 church members, who give annually from their scanty store $15,000 for religious objects.

Pomare, the South Sea Island Queen, died at the age of seventy years. At her birth the first missionaries were just landing; at her death, 300 of the South Sea Islands had become Christianized!

The Sandwich Islands in 1820 were peopled by naked savages, living in the surf, eating raw flesh, and practicing human sacrifice. In fifty years they were regarded as Christianized. Already these native churches have trained up more than seventy-five foreign missionaries to be sent to the islands beyond.

China's pioneer missionary, Robert Morrison, began work in 1807. In 1843 only six Christians could be found in the Empire. Now there are 32,000 church members who gave last year more than $38,000 for the support of the Gospel. There are at present thirty-eight societies at work in China, employing more than 1,000 missionaries. Already there are from 135,000 to 151,000 adherents.

The Fiji Islands fifty-five years ago had never seen a missionary, and were peopled by ferocious cannibals. In 1879 Sir Arthur Gordon, the first British Governor, said on his return to London: "Out of a population of about 120,000, 102,000 are now regular worshipers in the churches, which number 800, all well built and completed. In every family there is morning and evening worship."

Japan had but ten Christian converts in 1872. According to statistics just now published there are now 31,181, of whom 5,540 were received into the churches last year. Twenty-six missionary societies are at work in the Empire, and already there are no less than fourteen theological seminaries with nearly 300 native students for the ministry. The Buddhist priests have dwindled from 244,000 to 50,000—a most significant fact.

It is not yet seventy-five years since the first convert was gained in Polynesia. Now the converts number 750,000. A band of 100 young men and women from Tahiti and the neighboring islands are going forth as evangelists to other benighted tribes. Of all these native workers not one, it is said, has ever proved recreant or faithless. Yet these are the cannibals of less than a century ago who had lost all idea of any God save that of some strange, tyrannical despot.

Africa now has at work within her borders ten American, twelve British and thirteen continental missionary societies. There are more than 700 ordained missionaries, and more than 7,000 native preachers. It is estimated that there are, both white and native, about 175,000 communicants and 400,000 adherents. The Congo region, so recently opened, now has a chain of mission stations extending almost from the mouth of the river to the equator, and five large steamers are engaged in mission work on the Upper Congo.

Madagascar, early in the century, was a nation of fierce idolaters. The first missionaries were told that they might as well try to convert cattle. The most inhuman cruelties were practiced upon the first converts, and as late as 1857, 2,000 were put to death for their faith. But the church that went under the cloud with a few hundred souls and God's Word in their hands came out a host of 37,000! Now the London Society alone has more than 60,000 church members and about 230,000 adherents. Sixty-five years ago not a native of the island could read, now 330,000 can read. Madagascar has more than 5,000 ordained and native preachers.

AMUSING ANECDOTES.

A country politician, having made a speech, wound up by saying: "Gentlemen, them's my sentiments; and, let me assure you, they are the sentiments of an honest man. But, gentlemen, if they don't suit you they kin be altered."

A Western lawyer addressed the court: "I am about to illustrate my case by diagrams, and I hope to make it so plain that it will be comprehended by the jury, and perhaps I may even bring it within the comprehension of the court."

The summit of the Dublin post-office is adorned by three statues. Upon an Irish coachman informing a traveler that they were truly the Holy Apostles, the latter inquired: "Where are the other nine?" "Shure!" said the Irishman, "they are inside the building, sorting the letters."

In the middle of one of Rev. Rowland Hill's sermons he was disturbed by a commotion in the gallery. He exclaimed: "What's the matter there; the devil seems to have got among you?" A countryman replied: "It arn't the devil as is doing it. It's a lady wot's fainted." Hill rejoined: "I beg the lady's pardon, and the devil's too."

Dr. Radcliffe, while dining at a convivial party, refused to leave it to attend to a sick woman. Her husband thereupon picked him up bodily, and forcing him into a carriage, drove off with him. The doctor at first was enraged, but finally took it as a joke, and said: "Now, you impudent dog, I'll be revenged on you, for I'll cure your wife."

A young man of Nantucket, becoming engaged recently, was desirous of presenting his intended with a ring, appropriately inscribed, but being at a loss what to have engraved upon it, he asked his father for advice. "Well," said he, "put 'When this you see, remember me.'" The young lady was much surprised a few days afterwards to receive a beautiful ring with this inscription—"When this you see, remember father."

TRANSPIRING ABROAD.

An electric street-railroad is the latest innovation in Tokio.

A paper in Canton estimates that 75,000 people die in China every year by fire and flood.

The drain of the wealth of China for the purchase of foreign opium amounts to 90,000,000 taels yearly.

Rosa Kerschbaumer is the first woman in Austria to receive from the Emperor permission to practice as an oculist.

Pilgrims are not numerous in Jerusalem this year, but all the hotels are crowded with tourists, chiefly English and American.

The state of siege on the island of Crete has been raised, and martial law has been abolished. The Christians on the island are jubilant.

Professional florists of England are cultivating old-fashioned flowers, such as the daisy, the columbine, larkspur, hollyhock and Canterbury bells.

The Russian Government has adopted measures to prevent the immigration to Siberia of the Chinese. They were flocking to that dismal country in hordes.

A Berlin publisher will bring out a people's edition of Bismarck's collected works in four volumes, comprising the most important letters, speeches and political papers.

People at Middlesborough, England, are excited over the alleged discovery of petroleum in the ground beneath them. Experimental borings are being made to a depth of 2,000 feet.

Besides supplying the wants of its own population, France exports to Germany, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Sweden large quantities of salted and smoked geese for winter provision.

In Russia the Government has recently given permission for the employment of women by the railway companies. The Transcaspian Railway Company has engaged thirty female servants, and women can become inspectors of stations, engine-drivers, "pointsmen," etc.

The marble statue of the Princess of Wales, which is being executed in Paris by the famous French sculptor Chapius, is now nearly finished, and is to be presented to the National Art Gallery in Copenhagen. It promises to be a splendid work of art, and is an excellent likeness.

Captain Shaw, chief of the London fire brigade, has published statistics of fires in theaters throughout the world in 1889. He says that fifteen theaters were destroyed, nineteen persons killed, ninety-one badly wounded, and goes on to prove by figures that by entering a theater a person improves his chances of an untimely end.

A project is now on foot to connect St. Petersburg with Archangel, a distance of five hundred miles, by an electric railway. The enterprise, with which the name of Siemens is connected, is backed by Archangel interests, and the estimated cost of the road, including rolling stock, will be $15,000 per mile.

An attempt has been made in the Chinese province of Hupeh to stir up the people against the missionaries and foreigners generally. Inflammatory handbills were posted about the capital city, grossly caricaturing Christianity and demanding the extermination of foreigners. The matter was vigorously taken in hand by the French, English and American Consuls, and at last accounts, the excitement had subsided.

PEOPLE BEFORE THE PUBLIC.

Sig. Crispi, the Prime Minister of Italy, is seventy years of age.

Chief-Justice Fuller made his first public speech at a Pierce and King meeting in Augusta, Me., in 1852.

Ben Butler is reported to be worth $5,000,000. He has law offices in several cities and a practice worth $100,000 a year.

Miss Olive Buchanan, of St. Louis, is the first woman in the United States to hold the office of United States deputy marshal.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage is a drawing card upon the platform. He is to receive $10,000 for twenty lectures with Chautauqua assemblies this summer.

Acting-Governor Taggart, of New Hampshire, who was born in 1858 and graduated from Harvard in 1878, is the youngest chief executive in the United States.

Jay Gould's daily income has been estimated recently at $7,446, Cornelius Vanderbilt's at $15,249, John D. Rockefeller's at $16,715 and William Waldorf Astor's at $23,503.

A Paris correspondent says that Mr. Stanley is the color of a cooked olive and his hair is white, but he does not look much aged and has every appearance of being in good health.

George Bancroft, who was Secretary of the Navy for a year and a half in the administration of President Polk, is the oldest ex-Cabinet officer, both in age and date of service, now living.

Superintendent Porter, of the Census Bureau, has decided to form a collection of all the newspaper, magazine and periodical publications of every description published in the United States this year.

General Fremont is living on Staten Island in retirement, and he is apparently good for many years yet. His form is erect and his eyes have the same flash as when he crossed the Rockies and wrote those enchanting reports which, strictly true as they are, have all the freshness and vigor of a romance.

The accounts of the condition of Mr. Lawrence Barrett recently published are not sustained by private letters, which speak of his early return to the United States. The fact that he has purchased a new play in England would seem to indicate that he is more hopeful of recovery than the reports would indicate.

Henry Irving has once more repudiated the notion that he intends to go into Parliament. "Not only," he says, "do the circumstances of the actor's work forbid such a possibility, but the work itself needs a calmer atmosphere than is to be found in the strife of public needs and personal ambition of such a lofty kind."

FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

Antwerp is on the decline. Hamburg and Rotterdam are drawing off its commerce by lower port charges.

Australia has entered the field of silver production, and in the last year turned out 300,000 ounces a week.

The Supreme Court of Saxony has decided that boycotting is equivalent to disorderly conduct in the first degree, and punishable as such.

Mosquitoes in Siberia have bills that pierce through the thickest clothing. Overcoats and winter gloves furnish no protection against them.

Notwithstanding the constant heavy emigration, the population of Great Britain has increased more than 4,000,000 since 1885. The total population is about 38,000,000.

Discovery of ancient subterranean tombs similar to the Roman catacombs has been made on the Mount of Olives. They appear to have been made partly by Jews and partly by Christians.

A novel duel has just taken place at Vienna. A young doctor offended a nineteen-year-old Croatian girl and, refusing to apologize, she challenged him. They fought with swords. The girl escaped unhurt, but the doctor was wounded twice.

Four young whales, each about seven feet long, appeared in the Thames, Eng., recently. They gambolled about in the river, and spouted to the great entertainment of a large number of persons who gathered on the river bank and bridges. Two men followed them about in a boat and shot at them, but unsuccessfully.

The Royal Burg Museum, which is in the Nuremburg Castle, built, it is claimed, nearly 900 years ago, by the Emperor Conrad II., is to be sold at auction. One of the most remarkable, as well as one of the smallest curios in the collection, is Hepner's famous cherry-stone, on which are carved 113 various and distinct heads.

The French fishermen are troubled by the depredations of porpoises, for which they have not succeeded in finding a remedy. An attempt was made to catch them in seine nets, but they jumped out of the snares. They were scared away by guns and torpedoes, but the fish were frightened and disappeared with them. They are too numerous to be shot one by one in an effective manner.

Twenty known survivors of the battle of Balaklava have been found in a London work-house. A public subscription was lately started for their relief, the sum total of which up to date is $120. If they had fought for this country as they did for England, our pension system would have taken good care of them, and nobody would have complained either. The private soldier has to take care of himself in England.

Something new in the line of strikes is presented by the beer-drinkers of Munich. Soldiers, railway employes, tradesmen and workers in the factories have signed a pledge not to drink any Munich beer, because the proprietors of the breweries have raised the price. In order to bring them down to the old figures, the strikers drink Strasburg beer, Frankfort beer, Dortmund beer, or any kind of beer that does not come from the Munich breweries. This strike has been in full force since the 1st of April, and it is believed that the breweries must come down.

There are three men in the Oregon State prison each of whom cut off a hand to avoid work. They are confined in solitary cells. Two others cut off the ends of their fingers.

The oldest man ever applying for a marriage license in West Virginia was Reuben Shinn, aged ninety-six, who was given a license at Sisterville to marry a woman fifty years of age.

A curious package was recently shipped by express from Jacksonville to Baltimore. It was a small white casket, with silver trimmings, containing the embalmed remains of a valuable dog which died at the former place.

The sum of $35,000 in gold coin was sent from San Bernardino to San Francisco by mail a few days ago as second-class matter at one cent an ounce. An insurance company took a risk on the coin and the bank saved $150 by using the mail.

The Oakland (Cal.) dupes who lately sold their property for a trifle because they thought the world was coming to an end now want somebody to kick them. They would like to kick the prophet who misled them, but he has disappeared.

A VARIETY OF VERSE.

It Performs Wonders.

Fate moves in a mysterious way,
The little barefoot boy
Dreams not what wealth and power
In future years enjoy.

The pebble deep in Afric's clay,
Knows not, as peerless gem,
It may flash out with dazzling ray
From some queen's diadem.

The rabbit down in Tennessee,
Ne'er thinks his furry back
May, posed in stage store window, be
A London-dyed seal sacque.

The Jersey calf, he doth not feel
That he—to show my [illegible]—
Will one day serve as roasted veal
And next day chicken salad.
—R. H. Titherington, in Night.

Eventide.

When the sun has sunk in splendor,
Leaving clouds of varied hue,
Amber, brightest pink and opal,
Purple melting into blue,
To the sheepfold
From the pasture
Come the snow-white sheep to view.

Now like music in the distance,
Borne upon the breeze to me,
Comes that rhythmic gentle tinkling,
Like the hum of [illegible] bee,
'Tis the tinkle
Of the sheep-bells,
Sweet as pastoral symphony.

Nearer, nearer, breaking silence,
Comes the sound of pattering feet
Till the air is full of echoes
Evening call to vespers sweet,
Like a temple
In the woodland,
Hallowed is its calm retreat.

Then the music dies to silence,
Leaving echoes on the air,
And my evening hymn arises,
Followed by a grateful prayer,
Giving praises
To the Father
For a world so passing fair.
—Ethel M. Brigg, in Leeds Mercury.

Impromptu Speeches.

A sudden audience strikes a blow
On some men's brainy dynamite,
And, grandly crashing, up they go
In clouds of rhetoric out of sight,
And Heaven be praised when they alight.

On my bewildered brain, alas!
Howe'er imperious fall the blow,
It strikes but on a flabby mass
Of feeble putty and of dough:
Of feeble intellectual dough.

Forefend that impious call insane
To more than Moses's miracle,
That bids me pierce my stubborn brain
For thought that will not heed the spell!
For eloquence that scorns the spell.

And teach all fools, ye blessed powers,
That thought must on still uplands fall
And slowly wind through musing hours
Before it leap to eyes of all
A torrent oratorical!
—Amos R. Wells, in Judge.

When Love Is Love.

Faint heart, fail not in loving,
As day breaks still again;
Now is the time of tenderness,
When life is mixed with pain.

When Age is drawing nearer,
And we see how grows his lip—
Pile on the logs, that the firelight
May glow and dance and dip.

And the loved one will say, in the evening:
"How glad the hour, how dear
Thou art, how thy love is greater,
To-day, to drive out fear!"

And then the face of the loved one
Will be fairer than any youth,
And bliss take crown of joyousness
And hopes turn into truth.
—Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, in S. S. Times.

Ash-Cake and Buttermilk.

W'en de waggin is stalled in de hillside rut,
An' de fiel's is kivered wid winter's snows,
W'en de squ'el is crackin' de big, fat nut—
Dat's de time fo' settin' and toastin' yo' toes;
But soon es you hyers de chatterin' crows,
An' de ha'r 'gins ter drap f'um de roan mule's back
W'en de mornin' glories and dock weeds grows—
Dat's de time fer ash-cake and buttermilk snack.

W'en de barker is stripped and de back logs out,
An' de icicles hang f'um de tip uv yo' nose,
W'en de gobbler's too cold ter gobble and strut—
Dat's de time fer settin' and toastin' yo' toes;
But soon es de win' f'um de southwes' blows,
An' de bay filly prances in front uv de rack,
An' you hyers dat shoat uv de [illegible] and hoes—
Dat's de time fer ash-cake and buttermilk snack.

W'en de corn ain't nothin' but nubbins and smut,
An' de cows come back kase the creek's all froze,
W'en de north win' fin's all de cracks in de hut—
Dat's de time fer settin' and toastin' yo' toes;
But soon es de rain f'um de May cloud po's,
An' you hyer in de low groun' de plow-whip crack,
An' de bullfrog sing an' de ole folks doze—
Dat's de time fer ash-cake and buttermilk snack.

ENVOY.

All things in dere season—fer winter, I knows
Dat's de time for settin' and toastin' yo' toes:
But long in de dorg-days—die is er lie'—
Dat's de time fer ash-cake and buttermilk snack.
—William G. Eggleston, in Chicago Herald.

A Shock.

In envelope of snowy white
To me it came;
And my expectant heart grew light,
My cheek aflame.
I felt that in that tender scroll
My fate I'd read;
For long I had not been heart-whole,
I'd not, indeed.

I thought with mingled fear and hope,
Both quite intense;
No longer need I darkly grope
In sad suspense.
No longer need I mope and yearn
Through nights and days,
For in this missive I shall learn
What Alice says.

Her delicate chirography
To me was new,
"Now," said I, "let me open and see
What she will do;
Reject me straight or all my days
With rapture fill—"
Oh! horror, anguish and amaze!
It was a bill!

The Bibliophile to His Baby.

A bibliophile you'll be,
Your father's heart it grieves
To note the ghoulish glee
With which you chew the leaves;

To note the happy look
That lights your visage fair
When you take up a book
And kiss its binding rare.

There was a time when I
Thought love for books the best—
A time not long gone by,
Nor is that love at rest;

When treatment such as this
You grant my treasured tomes
Would drive the sense of bliss
From happiest of homes.

Yet I can't but confess
You're welcome to my lore—
Not that I love books less,
But that I love you more.

ABOVE THE DOME.

Amos J. Cummings Takes a Bird's Eye View of Historic Ground.

A Graphic Pen Picture of Washington and Its Surroundings—Looking Down Upon Towers, Steeples, Mansions, Public Buildings and Great Men.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

Let us stand above the dome of the Capitol and gaze upon the most beautiful city on the continent. The sky is intensely blue, and parks, buildings and avenues are bathed in sunshine. After three days of rain the atmosphere has become unusually clear, and objects miles away are distinctly visible. Broad avenues radiate from the Capitol below us like spokes from a hub. They run to the boundaries of the city. All are shaded with foliage. A cool and refreshing breeze comes from the west. The Potomac and its Eastern Branch stretch along the south flank of the city like a bow of silver. The Long Bridge, over which millions of armed men poured into Virginia more than a quarter of a century ago, spans the river in the distance to the left of the Washington Monument. Beyond is Arlington, the homestead of Robert E. Lee, glistens in the sunlight like the Acropolis at Athens. Dying Alexandria with grass-grown streets secures a far-away peninsula to the south.

The Mount Vernon boat is coming up the river, and three or four sailing vessels lie at anchor miles away. You see the old signal station to the right of Arlington. It was Fort Whipple when it was built. General Greeley has command of it now. The Aqueduct bridge is hidden by the heights of Georgetown.

From Georgetown around to Benning's bridge the horizon is fringed with foliage. Glimpses of the Catholic University, the Soldiers' Home, Howard University, the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, on Kendall Green, the Reform School and other institutions are to be had. Pennsylvania avenue lies directly in front. It seems much shorter than the other spokes in the hub. The Treasury building cuts it from sight above Fifteenth street. The trees that adorn it on either side are in full leaf. The car tracks in the center of the street seem to rob it of its width. Landaus, hansoms, phaetons, back-boards, and carriages of all descriptions are rolling over its smooth asphalt pavement. From the dome of the Capitol they look like small moving automatons. Bicycles dart hither and thither, but they are so far away that only an occasional glint of a machine strikes the eye.

Both houses of Congress have just adjourned. The members are streaming across the avenue near the Peace Monument. Although hundreds of feet below us, and more than a thousand feet away, their forms are clearly defined. At this distance they are veritable pigmies. Speaker Reed can be distinguished by his filbert-like form and sailor-like swing. A thin gentleman strides at his side. He is so far away that he looks like an animated shingle-nail. An associate above the dome says that it is Congressman Stivers, of New York, but it has the action of William G. Laidlaw. For ten minutes the stream of Representatives crosses the street and pours under the foliage shading the walks of the avenue.

REED'S SAILOR-LIKE SWING.

The view is magnificent. The city is partly engulfed in a sea of living green. Its immensity is hidden. Scores of little parks can be seen, but the statues adorning them are hidden underneath the branches of maples and flowering chestnuts. The grandest thing in the city is the magnificent marble shaft recalling the grandest figure in our National history. It loses its height when seen from the dome of the Capitol, which stands on much higher ground. It seems to spring from the bosom of a park which runs from the Capitol to the left of Pennsylvania avenue and beyond the White House. Within it are the minarets of the Smithsonian Institute, the gables of the Agricultural Department, and the pressed brick of the National and Medical museums. Beyond these appears the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, beneath a snow-white cloud of steam. The White House is entirely hidden, but the War, State and Navy building stands out in the sunlight, like a toy temple.

The Treasury, low, grim and squatty, is lost in the towering structures intervening. Looking to the right of the avenue two low marble buildings are seen. Viewed from the street they appear magnificent. At this height and distance, however, they look like fortifications of the olden time. You can almost see the drawbridges and portcullis. They are the Patent Office and one of John Wanamaker's bazars. There are hundreds of low, flat roofs around them—so low that they are overtopped by the trees. From where we stand they look like ruins scorched by fire.

The most striking of all the edifices is the Pension Office. It looms head and shoulders above everything else—a massive pile of red brick, rising into the heavens. A white band girts its loins. It is a ribbon of stucco in which are carved regiments of cavalry, infantry and artillery—all on the move.

A Congressman once characterized it as a delineation of the Grand Army of the Republic marching upon the Treasury. Away to the left of the Pension Office stands the Sun building. It is the highest edifice in the city. Its white walls reflect the sunlight, and it rises above its fellows, high and narrow, like the Field building in New York.

Off to the right of the Pension Office lies the great gray shell known as the Government Printing Office. It is an old and a dangerous pile. A fire would quickly ruin it, and endanger the lives of hundreds. The greatest printing establishment in this country, it is the most poorly constructed. The Government ought to take a lesson from Harper Bros. and put up a fire-proof structure. The destruction of the present establishment would entail a loss of millions of dollars upon the Government. Beyond the printing office there is an immense structure with an arched roof, something like the Grand Central depot. It looks like a young Pension office, but it is really the K Street market.

The most prominent steeple seen from the dome is that of the Metropolitan Church. It stands between the Pension office and Pennsylvania avenue. This is the church where Rev. John P. Newman, now a Methodist Episcopal Bishop, preached, and where President Grant and Rutherford B. Hayes worshiped. To the right of it, you see the spire of the little church where Rev. Dr. Sunderland officiates and where President Cleveland attended. President Harrison goes to a church a little more fashionable. It partakes of the new order of architecture, and stands upon Connecticut avenue, or Vanity Fair Lane, as John Bunyan would call it. Its steeple is barely discernible, two miles away, to the right of the Army and Navy building.

SEEN FROM THE TOP OF THE DOME.

There are historical reminders in sight. Look to the east. At our feet you see what appears to be a ship-yard. It is the foundation for the great Government Library. The big cranes used in moving huge blocks of stone resemble the masts of vessels, and the ropes which hold them in place are the rigging. Beyond it, on the left, at Maryland avenue and First street, is a cream-colored building, looking like a dry-goods box. It faces the Capitol grounds, and was the old Capitol prison. It is now the residence of Stephen J. Field, Justice of the Supreme Court. Now look to the southeast. You see, a mile or more away, a triangular plot extending into the eastern branch of the Potomac. It looks like a park, but it contains the old arsenal made famous by the execution of Paine, Harold, Atzerodt and Mrs. Suratt. At this distance it appears to be one of the most charming spots in Washington. Thousands regard it with horror, believing that within its walls an innocent woman was executed as a felon.

Now walk around the cupola to the northwest. Ford's old theater, where President Lincoln was assassinated, stands to the left of Wanamaker's bazar. It is so far away that you can not distinguish it from other buildings. You can trace the route of Wilkes Booth on horse-back after the assassination clearly and distinctly. The city is spread around you like a map. He came down Massachusetts avenue, near the Government Printing Office, in the darkness of the night, dashed across what is now the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, striking Pennsylvania avenue, southeast, and following it until he turned and crossed the bridge over the Eastern Branch. There is the bridge, nearly two miles away, just above the old gas-works. The rising ground beyond it is dotted with white houses. It is Uniontown, Md., where Harold joined Booth in that stormy, midnight ride towards the house of Dr. Mudd.

Look again to the north. Away off on the horizon, four miles away, you see the shining roof of the new Catholic university endowed by Gwendolin Caldwell. It stands among the trees on the heights where Jubal Early's pickets appeared in his raid on Washington. Silver Spring, Francis P. Blair's old homestead, burned by Early, lies in the valley beyond it. From the ridge the Confederate soldiers had a plain view of the Capitol, with the immense dome upon which we stand. If Stonewall Jackson had been in command, Washington would undoubtedly have been captured, for her kitchen door was wide open.

GENERAL EARLY'S PICKETS.

Gaze toward the west. The turrets of the oldest Catholic college in America stand upon the heights of Georgetown. Within its classic precincts, many a man has been graduated whose eloquence has stirred the halls of Congress.

Glance along Pennsylvania avenue once more. There is a white pile upon its right a third of the way to the Treasury building. It is the National Hotel, where Old Hickory once quartered, where Henry Clay died and where James Buchanan was poisoned. The Baltimore & Ohio depot stands diagonally opposite on Sixth street. It was here that President Garfield received his fatal wound at the hands of Guiteau. Here Senator Beck, of Kentucky, fell dead three weeks ago. The brick towers of the depot are plainly seen, and an express train creeps from its rear through the Government reservation as we gaze upon it.

The avenue itself lies below us, filled with life and animation. Twenty-five years ago this month it echoed for three days with the tramp of armies. The most magnificent military review ever held upon this continent was held at its head. It was a review of the real and only Grand Army of the Republic. One day was given to the heroes who marched with Sherman to the sea, and another to the battle-scarred veterans of the army of the Potomac. On a third day the avenue was filled from curb to curb with John Sedgwick's old brigades—the fighting Sixth Army Corps—the pets of Phil Sheridan, and the men who sent Early whirling up the valley after the attack on Washington.

So much for historical reminiscences. Captain Boyden, our guide, points out many objects of interest. He has been officially employed in the dome ever since the day of the grand review. More than one army comrade has he seen sworn to support the constitution in the halls of Congress. Congressman Charles A. Hill, of Illinois, was a Lieutenant in the Captain's company. While listening to his reminiscences we are charmed by the beauty of the grounds below us.

The botanical garden is at the foot of Capitol Hill. Its jewel is the Bartholdi fountain, presented to the Government after the centennial exhibition in Philadelphia. At this hour it fills the air with silver spray, making an exquisite spectacle. The park around the Capitol has the freshness of spring. You hear the robins calling in the trees below and see the rich green verdure on the mead. The work of the lawn-mower gives the carpet variegated shades of green. A thousand shrubs and bushes, bearing flowers and roses of many hues, flank the green terrace, and fill the air with perfume. Ben Butler's stone castle frowns upon the south of the park, and the empty Maltby House glowers upon it from the north.

The sinking sun is gilding the aluminum point of the Washington monument as Captain Boyden observes that time is flying and that the entrance to the dome should be closed at four o'clock. A glance at the tall shaft that in the light of the setting sun shines like alabaster, a final survey of the beautiful city nestled in the sea of foliage below us, and we pass through the iron doors leading down into the dome. They close with a clang that is heard one hundred and eighty feet below upon the marble floor of the great rotunda. We descend over four hundred steps, and are again upon terra firma. AMOS J. CUMMINGS.

HE DID NOT ACCEPT.

A Colored Man Who Thought He Wanted a Shave, But Changed His Mind.

A certain prominent colored man in Washington has been making himself conspicuous for some time past in demanding recognition as an American citizen and compelling restaurant-keepers to serve him in company with white people. On several occasions he has been denied food and drink, on the ground of his color, and has brought suit for damages under the civil rights law. He has succeeded in nothing save causing annoyance to business men and making a reputation for himself. Recently he entered a barber shop kept by colored men, as are all of the barber shops of Washington, and demanded that he be shaved. The proprietor said:

"Mr. H——, you know that I depend upon white people for my living. If I shave you my white customers will cease to patronize me, and you know that I would not get enough colored patronage to keep up my business, and I don't think you ought to ask me to shave you."

"You decline to shave me here, do you?" was the threatening response of the would-be customer.

"Come over here to my chair," shouted Wade, one of the best barbers in the city. "Come over to my chair, Mr. H——, and I'll shave you. We don't refuse any one here, and you needn't threaten us with the law. You get into my chair, and I'll warrant that you will not complain afterwards of the shave. I'll do you up in splendid shape, you can bet. Call in some of your friends and see me do it. Nobody refuses to shave you. Come over here, and don't be slow about it, either. I've got a sharp razor here which will surely please you, and I want you to be certain beforehand that I'll give you such a good shave as you never had before. Look at this razor. It's keen and ready. I never cut any one, when I shave 'em. There's no danger of my razor slipping. You just get into my chair and let me put this blade on your face and neck. I'll do the job so smoothly and so completely, that you'll never complain of it afterwards. Hurry up, and get into my chair. I've been waiting to get you here for a long time. Come on."

There was no threat in his language, of course; but the barber looked so wicked, and evidenced by his actions that he was extremely anxious to get him under his razor, that Mr. H—— beat a retreat and will not be likely to enter that shop again, demanding to be shaved.

If Convenient.

Barber—How would you like to have your hair cut, sir?

Customer—Oh, very much indeed, thanks, if you've the time. Or if you would prefer, I'll come in again when you are not busy.—Puck.

STRAY STATISTICS.

SPIRITUALISTS claim a membership of 80,000 in Boston.

THE annual aggregate number of letters transmitted through the post-offices of the world may be estimated at 8,000,000,000, and of newspapers, 5,000,000,000.

THE people of the United States during 1889 smoked 3,355,955,773,722 cigars, which, at five cents each, cost the consumers $167,788,686.10. This sum at $20,000 a mile, would have built 8,680 miles of railroad; and at $8,000 each would have purchased 20,973 locomotives.

IN 1831 there were in the United Kingdom 1,000,000 servants; in 1881 their number was only a few over 1,250,000. More significant still is the circumstance that, while during the decade 1871-'81 the general population increased by more than fourteen per cent., the ranks of the domestic servants were reinforced by less than one per cent.

A COMPARATIVE study of infant mortality in the different countries of Europe has been made by Dr. Fodar, with the following results: Of 1,000 children born alive, 106.3 die during the first year in Norway, 137.1 in Sweden, 154 in England, 169.1 in France, 217.7 in Prussia, 220.1 in Italy, 258.2 in Austria, 317.1 in Bavaria, and 339.5 in Wurtemburg.

THE taxes upon distilled spirits collected under the internal revenue law from 1863 to 1889 amounted to $1,236,236,093.65. Upon fermented liquors the taxes collected during the same period aggregated $295,311,185.89, making the total tax on spirits and fermented liquors collected and paid into the United States Treasury under the internal revenue law $1,528,547,281.54.

THE Journal Telegraphist de Berne publishes a list of the cases of damage done by lightning to telegraph and telephone wires during 1888. In France 647 poles were struck, 347 being afterward useless. In Germany 787 poles were struck, but only 266 were so badly damaged as to necessitate their removal. In Germany 94 insulators were injured during the year, while in France the number reached 813.

THE average daily consumption of water (in September, 1889) in London, Eng., was 177 7-10 million gallons or, the population being 5 6-10 millions, 31.71 gallons per inhabitant, or—the number of houses being 755,850—235 gallons per house. The water used for street cleaning is per inhabitant about 5 gallons per day, whilst in Paris it amounts to between 24 and 25 gallons.

THE boiler bursting record is a large and growing one, says the Boston Transcript. Over 200, all undoubtedly supposed safe, exploded during the past year. The invention of the safety team steam boiler, which opens at the joints, and puts out the fire before the pressure reaches the bursting point, must save many lives in a year's time. More than 700 persons were stricken down, without warning, by boiler explosions within our country during the past year. More than half these persons were killed outright, and many of the remainder were maimed for life.

SCIENTIFIC SELECTIONS.

AN electric typewriter is being constructed which will write letters in New York as they are transmitted from Boston, and vice versa, the communications being transmitted simultaneously over four separate wires.

PHYSICIANS state that a diet of twelve to fourteen ounces of chemically dry food, digestible and with the ingredients in proper proportion, is sufficient for the daily needs of an average-sized man on moderate work. Most persons eat literally twice as much.

IT has been observed that the skin of arctic travelers has a yellowish green tinge after the long winter of six months, and the effect has been generally attributed to faulty eyesight. Dr. Gyllencreutz has studied the matter, and decides that it is due to changes in the pigment of the blood.

THERE is a growing tendency among chemists to regard the elements as varying arrangements—produced at successive stages in the process of cooling—of one original form of atom. Evidence in favor of the hypothesis is claimed in the fact that some elements seem not to have formed in the sun, while yet more are absent from still hotter stars.

A GIRL playing a tune on glass tumblers suggested to Jerome Prince, of Milford, Mass., the latest invention in way of a telephone. The diaphram is of glass, resting on a number of glass rods, and communicating with an ordinary wire. It is claimed that a whispered conversation can be heard three miles over the trial instrument, and great things are hoped for it.

A CHILIAN bark possessed of remarkable and valuable properties—the bark of Quillia saporaria—was lately exhibited to the Linnean Society of London. An extract of this bark has been used for cleaning silk, wool and gloves, but it is now stated to be capable of solidifying the hydrocarbon oils, even benzoline, and thus ensuring safe transport. A small quantity of citric acid restores the oils to their liquid form.

A CURIOUS connection between the color and the auditory sense has been observed by Dr. Albertine. He has discovered that persons suffering from daltonism, that is, color blindness to certain hues, have a corresponding deafness to certain musical notes. Special instances are given. For example, a person not having the sensation of red can not distinguish the note sol, a person blind to green can not recognize re, nor can the notes be produced by the voice.

UNDER the most intense chemical rays of the spectrum ants are thrown into most violent perturbation, while they go quietly about their business under the color rays. A pistol shot over their head causes them not the least disturbance, except that which is occasioned by the mechanical jarring of the earth and air; sound plainly is not to them what it is to us. It is not their minuteness that gives this another world than ours, but the construction of their sense organs.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

A LADY in Apoka, Fla., has used the same needle for seven years. She says she would sooner lose a dress than the needle.

THEY had wedding cake five and twenty years old at a New York marriage anniversary the other day. It had been kept in stone jars.

A CITIZEN of Birmingham, Ohio, died lately aged one hundred and eight. A son, eighty-four years of age, attended the funeral.

A PENNILESS Scotch immigrant accidentally stumbled upon a rich brother in New York the other day whom he had not seen for thirty-seven years.

A BIRMINGHAM, (Ala.) colored man, earned $5 by butting a three-year-old bull to death. After the animal had been butted five times it fell to the ground and in five minutes was dead. The negro was not injured.

THERE is a man in Southern Illinois who laughs at the idea that marriage is a failure. He was recently married to his sixth wife. Each successive spouse brought him a farm, and he is now one of the largest land owners in that part of the country.

A CINCINNATI woman, enraged at her husband, determined to ruin him, financially. She "shopped" all day and piled up bills to his account to the amount of $3,000, and then concealed the goods so that her husband could not return them to the merchants from whom purchased.

A DUMB woman at Martha's Vineyard owns and manages a small schooner, living in it with a kitten and a huge Newfoundland dog for company. She supports herself by fishing, and her lobster pots, and by peddling thread and buttons and such small wares along the coast when the fishing season is over.

A SHOE factory at New Canaan, Conn., has just made a pair of shoes for a Charlotte, N. C., man. They are the biggest ones ever made. The size is No. 32. Each sole is 20 inches long and 8 inches wide. The man who is to wear them is a clergyman, 6 feet 10 inches tall, and weighs 410 pounds, and the county in which he dwells is a roomy one.

AT the First National Bank of Chicago the other day a strange bank-note made its appearance. It had a face value of $50, and was issued by a Kansas City bank. The back was printed from the $100 form, and the number indicating the dollars was upside down. The bank officials regard the "stranger" as a great curiosity, and are at a loss to explain how such a combination of errors could occur. The note is worth $50, its face value.

A "WIDOW" in Utica, N. Y., upon answering the door bell one day recently, was startled at the appearance of a full-bearded man, who recalled to her memory visions of her early married life and then caught her in his arms and showered kisses upon her still handsome face. It was her first husband, Arnold, who, after an absence of twenty-five years, had come back to ask forgiveness and be reinstated as the head of the family.

AN Americus (Ga.) young man had a game rooster that kept every other fowl off his beat, and one night he heard a fluttering in his chicken house. The next morning he investigated it and found the rooster and a very large owl on the floor of his hen house. The rooster had driven one of his spurs clear through the owl's head, and it hung there, while the owl had a death grip on the rooster's wing. The owl was dead, but the rooster, as soon as released from the talon of the owl, stretched his neck and crowed lustily.

A GRIST FOR THE GARDEN.

PHOSPHATE fertilizers of all kinds are good for fruits.

RASPBERRIES should be set out very early in the spring and need a rich, loose soil.

THE size and quality of fruit for one season can often be increased by root pruning.

SPRINKLING copperas on the ground under the grape vines is considered a good remedy for the rot.

QUINCES need severe pruning. In many cases the trees should be pruned from one-third to one-half.

YOUNG trees especially are often badly injured, if not ruined, by being allowed to bear fruit too early, or to overbear.

UNLESS grapes are trimmed without delay it may do them injury to cut them back later on. All varieties of grape vines should be trimmed early.

HEALTHY, thrifty, growing fruit trees that bear no fruit can often be improved by root-pruning. Dig a trench around the tree, so as to cut off part of the roots.

THE melons prefer a light, sandy soil and plenty of manure. They will not thrive during a wet season, or where the ground is damp. Until they begin to run they should be kept clear of grass and weeds, but they will need only slight attention after they cover the ground.

WHILE the weather is dry the roots of plants will quickly dry if exposed. It is best to pour a little water around the roots of plants that are transplanted, as as it will prevent many of them from wilting. If the ground below the surface is quite damp this precaution is not necessary.

To raise cucumbers and protect them from flying insects, place the rows five feet apart and the seeds one foot apart in the rows. Place two by six scantling on each side of the rows, and cover with mosquito netting. The plants will have more room by not being "cluttered up" in hills.

IN planting raspberry tips great advantage has been found in leaving them until new growth has put forth four to six inches. When removed only a short distance they are taken up with a ball of earth. The growth for the season is much greater than when transplanted previous to the bursting of the buds. In case it is desirable to send them a long distance, the roots should be puddled in moderately thick clay-mortar, and laid out to drip and partially dry off the surface before packing.

His First Visit.

'Squire Oatcake (of Podunk)—See here, I don't think you hotel folks are treatin' me half right.

Hotel clerk—Why, what's the matter now?

Oatcake—Didn't I sign my name good an' big on your register when I came here?

Clerk—Yes.

Oatcake—An' didn't I tell ye I was a justice o' the peace in Wayback County?

Clerk—Yes.

Oatcake—Then why in thunder haven't some o' your New York papers said somethin' about my comin'? We allus do that when your folks come to our taown.—Judge.

OLD AND STILL [illegible]

The present high-rated tariff was not enacted for the protection of home industry.

It was exclusively a war measure, designed to furnish means for the triumph of the Union cause, which necessarily demanded an enormous outlay of public money.

That was a patriotic purpose, and the people cheerfully submitted to the heavy financial burdens it imposed.

But when the war ended, with the Union fully restored, the debt incurred by the conflict largely reduced, and the treasury plethoric, the need of war taxation ceased, and by right should have been stopped.

Yet it continues in effect to this very day, twenty-five years after the establishment of peaceable relations between the North and South.

Aye, it is in full vigor of [illegible]—

And when they die, to quote Sidney Smith, "they must rest in taxed coffins, to be taxed no more."

Notwithstanding all that agony of war tariff taxation, by the edict of Messrs. McKinley, Reed, Quay and Company, the people are destined to stagger under an augmented load.

THE CONSTITUTION.

The preamble to the Constitution of the United States, as adopted September 17, 1787, by a Convention over which George Washington presided, declared that a positive purpose of that compact was to promote the general welfare of the people.

Be it remembered, that such an ordained provision was not for the aggrandizement of any particular class, or any special interest, but for the general welfare of all the people, irrespective of vocation or condition.

For that just end was the Constitution framed in Convention and ratified by the States, which others, it is safe to assert, would never have [illegible], had the organic law of the American Union been ever suspected of favoring [illegible] designs.

The Constitution conferred upon Congress the power to raise revenue for the legitimate expenses and obligations of Government.

It neither authorized nor contemplated the accumulation of surplus revenue for extravagant and unnecessary expenditure.

For the direct purpose of revenue it permitted the collection of duties upon foreign imports.

It never granted the right to levy tribute upon the masses for the enrichment of privileged classes.

Never!

If our governmental structure is to stand as originally founded, for the benefit of all, the people, the Constitution must be preserved unsullied by venal spoliation of any name or station.

FARMERS MOVING.

The Farmers of the Northwest are rousing themselves for political action. Those of South Dakota have resolved to hold a convention early in July for the formation of a new party to be called the Independent, and one of their principal [illegible] reads thus:

"Our tariff laws should be so changed as to reduce the present rate, taking from the highest, putting on the free list all articles of prime necessity and raw materials which enter into manufacture, raising only sufficient revenue for the needs of economic government."

That is the Democratic idea [illegible].

[illegible] at Table by the Mayor [illegible]

President Moffett, City Judge [illegible], Corporation Counsel Marsh, Clerk Coward, and Councilmen Gallup, [illegible], Johnston, Roberts, [illegible] and [illegible], sat down in the [illegible] hall of Hotel Netherwood, Friday evening, as the guests of Frank E. [illegible]. A sumptuous banquet was served that all thoroughly enjoyed, together with [illegible] of reason and extra dry—[illegible]. Mayor Hale and Councilman Dunham, [illegible] and Rodman, were absent.

Ex-Councilman Marsh Before the Chancellor.

At Newark, on Tuesday, June [illegible], ex-Councilman Francis E. Marsh of this city made a motion before Vice Chancellor Van Fleet to [illegible] by the Court of Chancery for the sale of certain land, on the ground that the notice, the advertisement of sale and the sheriff's deed only called for twenty feet, when it should have been twenty-five feet. The Vice Chancellor said he could understand how the deed could be amended, but the court could not amend the advertisement and [illegible] the motion was denied.

We Were Rather Ahead of the Senator.

As Senator McPherson was always right, THE PRESS has never before had occasion to dispute a point with him. But on occasion a serious [illegible] where we must [illegible] as unintentionally [illegible] statement of fact, on his part.

He claims that he was the first to publicly nominate Grover Cleveland for President in 1892, and that he so [illegible] him in a [illegible] in the city. The facts of this matter are [illegible] McPherson made such speech, [illegible] nomination, some weeks, [illegible] after Mr. Cleveland vacated the presidential chair; while on Wednesday, March 6, 1889, two days after President Harrison's inauguration, THE PRESS [illegible] a big streamer with these words:

For President in 1892, Cleveland!

[illegible] displayed it on high at the [illegible] the afternoon when the special [illegible] Washington passed, [illegible] and Mrs. Cleveland to New York.

IN MEMORY OF OUR DEAD HEROES.

Plainfield's Soldiers' Monument and The Legend of its Design.

The Story of the Project—Its Rise and Progress—The Men Who Have Interested Themselves For It—The Suggestions of THE PRESS Regarding Style and Site, Followed—The Final Design Adopted.

It is almost a year now since the project of erecting a Plainfield monument to the memory and honor of its heroes among the roll of those who had died for their country, first assumed proportions and conditions that looked like success. Then the trustees of Hillside Cemetery offered the gift of a plot in its grounds as a site, and everybody was filled with enthusiasm.

The following from THE PRESS of November 17, 1889, all of which information was published exclusively in these columns, is an interesting chapter in the early history of the monument, worth reproducing:

There is to be a Plainfield soldiers' monument erected in this city to the memory of the dead soldiers of the late war. That much is certain, as the project is in charge of Plainfield's leading citizens and veterans. [illegible] Gen. J. S. Negley, Col. Mason W. Tyler, J. E. Stewart, L. V. F. Randolph, George W. Moore, [illegible], [illegible] Wm. E. Williams, [illegible], E. R. Clark, J. Evarts Tracy, [illegible], [illegible], E. A. Olsen, [illegible] and L. W. [illegible]. Col. Tyler is Chairman, Judge [illegible] is Secretary and John E. Stewart is Treasurer of the committee upon which is [illegible].

[illegible]

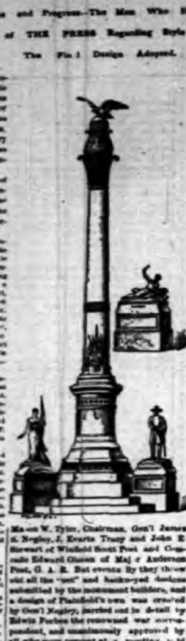
A month ago THE PRESS said:

[illegible]

The public will be glad to know that the committee is acting on this very suggestion so far as the site is concerned, and will consider the question of form of monument later. [illegible]

[illegible]

Meeting after meeting was held, and a number of designs submitted by all the best artists and granite companies. Then on Saturday evening, January 25, another step towards success that was taken. A sub-committee was appointed to select a design for recommendation and adoption by the general committee at a future meeting. The sub-committee was Col.



Mason W. Tyler, Chairman, Gen'l James S. Negley, J. Evarts Tracy and John E. Stewart of Winfield Scott Post and Comrade Edward Olsen of Major Anderson Post, G. A. R. But events fly they threw out all the "set" and hackneyed designs submitted by the monument builders, and a design of Plainfield's own was created by Gen'l Negley, carried out in detail by Edwin Forbes the renowned war correspondent, and unanimously approved by all who were present at a meeting held Saturday evening, June 7, as published exclusively in the next issue of THE PRESS.

There was at first some objection made by residents in the vicinity of Crescent Square, against the erection of the monument there as suggested in these columns. Then Councilman Bowers told a PRESS reporter for publication, that if the committee would decide to erect it on Franklin Square, at the junction of LaGrande and Putnam avenues, he would guarantee to raise $10,000 towards its cost. But now it is understood that the Crescent Square site can be obtained if the design meets with the approbation of the Trustees of the Crescent Avenue church and others who are residents in the vicinity and are also trustees in charge of the plot.

Nothing more need be said regarding the design decided upon, than has already been said in these columns. The picture of it given today speaks for itself, and the legend of the monument given below, is from the pen of the designer himself, Gen'l Negley. Estimates for its construction are being received, and will be opened at a meeting next Saturday evening. The eagle will be in bronze, but the shaft and the statues will be in granite. It is expected that the total cost will be under $20,000.

THE LEGEND OF THE MONUMENT.

The design is thoroughly American in sentiment and dissimilar in its idealistic features from all existing types. Its inspiration is a votive tribute to a world of heroic memories, to a world of glorious deeds, to a world of joyous victories and to a world of devotion to the principles of justice and humanity.

The column starts with a hexagon base of classic proportion, and rises to the height of 53 feet and 6 inches. The vertical development is corinthian in its lower section, but in place of the usual architectural acanthus—i. e. bear's claw capital—there is substituted the exquisitely graceful form of the tropical palm. Its frond-like leaves bend outward and spring upward with a richness of outline and charming relief.

The capital is separated by a bold division which is charged with a limited amount of incised embellishment to relieve the cold gray monotony of the granite.

A spirited figure of an American eagle poised on the crown of the shaft, completes the national imagery of the structure.

The first section of the shaft has a polished die of sufficient dimensions to accommodate suitable inscriptions of battle records. Above the die will be fashioned an emblematic shield of bronze with trophies, State and National colors and the coat of arms of the State of New Jersey; supported by a cartridge-box all in bold relief.

Three piers or pedestals project from the base of the column at equal distances. The outward faces of these pedestals present panels enriched by sculpture in low relief; each pedestal supports a figure of heroic size, over six feet in height. One of these is idealistic, the others are realistic. Each subject is instinct with character and offers an incentive to sympathetic and profound study.

"Victory," the reclining figure, epitomizes a battle scene where heroism ennobles the life of the private soldier as he stood in the lines aflame with fire and death. There is deep pathos and genuineness of sentiment in the form and attitude of this wounded soldier.

Sir Walter Scott has woven a fadeless poetical garland for the brow of his hero Marmion, which we quote to illume our description:

> A light on Marmion's visage spread, and fired his glazed eye,
> With dying hand above his head
> He shook the fragment of his blade,
> And shouted "Victory."

"Mustered out," illustrates the strong individuality of the volunteer soldier. When slavery was disowned and dishonored, and the shackles of the bondmen fell at his feet to become a pledge of unity and peace, he returned his sword to its scabbard and took his place in the column of progress without a murmur of regret.

"Liberty," is represented by a Greek maiden attired in a classic diploidion with a crenele or fillet of stars encircling her brow. She holds uplifted the standard of the Union of States and offers with her right hand the laurels of fame and imperishable honor to those who defend the inalienable rights of man.

The truth and spiritual force of this ideal figure fills the full measure of historic expression and interest. Immovable like the past, faith, in her rewards has survived the tragedies of every age. The oppressed of all peoples have worshipped at her shrine and the helpless victims of despotism will forever lay their perennial flowers of hope upon her altar.

Notes of the New York Theatres.

The history of the American stage suggests the new axiom that "money is the measure of success," and, in no instance, is this trite saying more applicable than to DeWolf Hopper's tasteful operetta, "Castles in the Air," now in its seventh week at the Broadway Theatre, New York. There are many reasons for this, the most potent of which is a careful attention to the wants of the theatre-going public. In its present condition the opera is one that directly appeals to the sunny side of human nature, and it has become so popular that the authors and composers, Messrs Byrne and Kerker, can honestly pride themselves upon their work, while Mr. Hopper and his managers are certain to make both fame and fortune out of it. A singular feature in connection with "Castles in the Air," is that so many individual members of the cast have made distinct and emphatic hits in their respective parts. Among these are Marion Manola, Della Fox, Thomas Q. Seabrooke and Rose Leighton. The chorus, too, has received an unusual share of praise for its effective work and general comeliness.

⁂

J. K. Emmet's next tour will commence at the People's Theatre, New York, September 8. His "Fritz in a Mad House," which was such a success in Plainfield and elsewhere last season, will be continued again next season, as he finds that there is no need of any new material for at least a year to come.

⁂

Miss Minnie Palmer's American season commences on September 15. She will be under the direction of W. W. Randall, of Randall's Theatrical Bureau, and will probably have a better supporting company than she has yet had. Prominent among the members already engaged are Charles S. Dickson, the well known leading light comedian; Marjorie Bonner; Samuel Edwards, who made such a hit in "The Stepping Stone"; Thomas A. Wise, at present one of the light comedians of "The Private Secretary" cast at the Lyceum Theatre. Miss Palmer sails for America on June 28 closing her provincial season at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, on June 26. Her repertoire will consist of the always-welcome and ever-popular "My Sweetheart," "My Brother's Sister," and her new play by two New York journalists, entitled: "My Prima Donna."

⁂

Mrs. Leslie Carter's play with which she opens her season at the Broadway Theatre, on November 10, is "The Ugly Duckling," and is by Paul M. Potter, the well-known newspaper man. Prominent among the members of her company are Arthur Dacre, the well-known English leading man; E. J. Henley, W. J. Ferguson, and Helen Bancroft. Mrs. Carter's tour will be under the direction of E. D. Price, former manager of Richard Mansfield.

The Current Was Not Turned On.

Manager Moore of the Electric Light Co., claims that Alfred Naylor's recent fall from a cherry tree at the corner of Fourth street and Madison avenue, could not possibly have been caused by his hand striking a "live wire." Mr. Moore says the current was not turned on at the time the accident occurred.

Caught a Ground Hog in the Chicken Coop.

Mrs. Runyon of 5 Central avenue, has for some time past been missing chickens from her hennery, and Monday J. Howard Leggett of Reynolds' pharmacy, discovered a full grown ground hog in the coop about in the act of devouring another spring chicken.

Mr. Leggett hastily procured a shot gun, and after emptying both barrels into the animal's body, succeeded in capturing it. The animal tipped the scales at six pounds.

The Sewer Bill Meeting.

A public meeting was held in Music Hall, Monday night, to protest against the Governor's signing the pool selling and book-making bill. Hon. Job Male presided, and the Rev. E. M. Rodman stated the object of the meeting. The Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes offered prayer, after which protests were entered by several of those present. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Signed: JOB MALE,

His Grandfather Showed Washington the Way to the Rock.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Referring to your article on Washington Rock in your Saturday's issue, I beg to say that Edward Fitz Randolph did not ride Washington's horse.

The facts are these. Washington with his aide de camp rode along Green Brook road until they reached the Jonah Vail farm; they turned in the gate and rode up to several men who were between the house and barn (one of whom was Edward Fitz Randolph who was there on a visit) and enquired if any of those present could direct him to the best point on the mountain for a good view of the surrounding country. Randolph said if he had his horse with him, he could take him to a rock from which he could get the best view to be obtained on the mountain. Thereupon Washington directed his aide de camp to dismount, and upon this horse Randolph conducted Washington by the old road yet used (near the Jonah Vail farm) over the mountain, thence along its crest, to what is now known as Washington Rock.

Ephraim Vail a short time before he died, gave me the exact history of the transaction, and it would seem quite proper that any incidents and facts connecting Washington with the Rock that bears his name, should be given and correctly stated. After us some one may have occasion to write up for some other paper, the history of Washington Rock.

LEWIS W. F. RANDOLPH.

[We accept this correction as the truth, because the writer is the grandson of the Edward Fitz Randolph spoken of.—ED.]

A COLORED ELOPEMENT.

A School Girl of Fifteen Suddenly Leaves Town, it is Alleged, With a Man Twice Her Age.

Laura Robinson, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. Mansfield Robinson of East Second street, and William McQuay, until recently employed as coachman by Mr. E. L. Finch of Park avenue, have suddenly and mysteriously disappeared, and it is surmised that the two have eloped.

Laura was a pupil in the high school, and Monday morning she told her mother that in order to successfully pass her final examination for promotion, she must go to school early. The girl left home about seven o'clock, but she did not go to school.

Some hours later Mrs. Robinson began to miss her daughter's clothing, and she became suspicious that something was wrong. She went to the school and there learned that Laura had not been to school during the day. Mrs. Robinson then called on McQuay's former employer and there ascertained that McQuay, too, was missing, having left with his baggage, saying that he was going to Saratoga.

The couple, it is said, have been intimately acquainted for some time, and it is believed that they have gone off together.

McQuay, it is said, was engaged to Laura's older sister, Emma, but he was in the habit of clandestinely meeting Laura, while the latter was on her way to and from school.

Closing Exercises at Miss Kenyon's Seminary.

There were scenes of Commencement Day at Miss Kenyon's Seminary for young women, on West Seventh street, Tuesday morning, when the annual closing exercises took place. The exercises were simple and unostentatious, but they were nevertheless very pleasing and entertaining.

The programme included a cantata in one scene, entitled "A Garden of Singing Flowers," with music written, arranged and adapted by Albert J. Holden. It was admirably rendered by the pupils. Miss Lillian Erskine was the only pupil graduated. She was presented with a handsome diploma. Following the exercises dancing was indulged in by the younger pupils of the Seminary and their friends.

The drawings and other handiwork of the scholars were exhibited in some of the rooms on the second floor, and all showed skill on the part of the pupils and careful training on the part of their instructors, Miss E. K. Kenyon, Mrs. J. W. Stimson and their corps of able assistants. The floral decorations were rich and artistically arranged.

Fell on His Head.

A boy about 12 years of age, by the name of Scribner, living with his parents on Somerset street, on what is known as the Hillman place, while playing on a farm wagon on Monday, accidently fell off, striking his head on a stone and cutting his scalp open so that surgical aid was necessary. The boy became quite weak from the loss of blood.

Fell Down a Flight of Stairs.

Mrs. Edwin Maynard, wife of the Park avenue tonsorial artist, was ascending a flight of stairs leading to her residence on North avenue, about 9 o'clock Monday evening, when she became dizzy and fell backward to the landing below, striking on her back.

Mrs. Maynard was badly bruised about the body, and she also received a deep cut on her side.

When fragile woman sighs, deploring
The charms that quickly fade away,
What power, the bloom of health restoring,
Can check the progress of decay?
The only aid that's worth attention,
For pains and ills of such description,
Thousands of women gladly mention—
'Tis "Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

The price of this royal remedy, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is but one dollar. Specific for all those chronic ailments peculiar to women. The only medicine for such ills, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction or money refunded. See guarantee on bottle wrapper. Large bottles $1. Six for $5.

ALMOST KILLED BY HIS BULL.

Mr. Burghmiller Saved by His Neighbor, But His Condition Still Very Precarious.

Lewis Burghmiller, who owns and occupies a farm near Berkley Heights, about five miles Northeast of this city, on which he keeps a large herd of cattle, was set upon by an alderney bull, Sunday morning. In the encounter, Mr. Burghmiller came near losing his life.

As is Mr. Burghmiller's custom he went down to the pasture lot to salt the stock. While looking over the cattle his attention was drawn away from the fact that a large alderney bull, 3 years old, was in close proximity to him. The animal had never shown signs of ugliness but was of an unusually quiet nature for one of this breed, which is noted for its fierce and treacherous disposition, especially those of the finer strain. But this time the animal made a lunge at Mr Burghmiller, knocking him down and so prostrating him that he was unable to arise.

The bull then set deliberately at work to finish his victim. Mr. Menegar, who happened to be in an adjoining lot where there were some cattle of his own which he was showing to a neighbor, chanced just then to notice Mr. Burghmiller's precarious position and the bull standing over him. Not ten minutes before they were both admiring the relative merits of the animal as only stock raisers can.

Mr. Menegar seized a club and ran to his neighbor's assistance, but before he reached him the bull had torn open his vest and shirt, lacerated his breast, ripped his trousers leg from the knee to the waistband and dug deep into the flesh from knee to thigh. On the approach of Mr. Menegar, the bull ran to the herd bellowing his defiance and pawing the earth in his rage at the defeat of his purpose of killing his victim. The timely arrival of his neighbor with a club had certainly saved Mr. Burghmiller's life, although he is not yet out of danger. He was carried to his home where he now lies in a critical condition. It is feared that he has received internal injuries, and until a more careful investigation is made by a surgeon, it is impossible to know whether there is any hope. No one is allowed to ask him any questions as it hurts him to talk. He told his wife that after the bull struck him he had not the slightest idea what took place.

The bull which is a fierce one will in all probability be sent to the shambles as it is not considered safe to have him running at large where persons crossing the lot are liable to be injured.

IN MEMORIAL.

The Knights Decorate the Graves of the Pythian Dead.

In accordance with a law made by the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias of the World, at their last session—that a day should be set apart to decorate the graves of the Pythian dead—Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., No. 101, of Scotch Plains at their regular meeting held on Friday evening, June 6, passed a resolution to decorate the graves of their deceased Brothers on Thursday, June 12.

On that date they assembled at their Castle Hall, and after opening the Lodge with prayer by Brother John Hughes, and listening to appropriate remarks by each Brother present bearing testimony to the worth of the departed and referring to the duties of the living ones, they proceeded to the burial ground. Each Brother carried a beautiful floral tribute, and with impressive ceremonies decorated with handsome flowers and evergreens the graves of Past District Deputy Frank Hosinger, and Past Chancellors James Buckley and Jno. Hankard. At the next meeting of the Lodge a resolution was passed thanking the Decoration Committee for the able manner in which they conducted the decoration ceremonies.

PLAINFIELD'S SEWER BILL

And Other Laws Just Approved by the Governor.

Among the bills approved and filed by Governor Abbett with the Secretary of State, Friday, was House 489, otherwise the Plainfield sewer bill as published in THE PRESS when first introduced. Others of the new laws, were:

Senate 211, allows boroughs to issue bonds to the amount of $30,000 for the improvement of streets.

House 449, provides for the election of a borough marshal and a borough superintendent of roads.

House 490, makes the theft of poultry and fowls a misdemeanor punishable by $100 fine or three years' imprisonment or both.

House 502, makes it illegal to peddle, hawk or vend articles in streets without a license.

House 382, permits townships to sell unimproved real estate to which they hold title.

Real Estate Transfers.

Real estate transfers have recently been made in this city as follows:

Richard Merritt to James Merritt, land on Kensington avenue, e s, 126 ft n from Broadway, 106x175 ft., $1.

George W. Phillips and wife to Louisa Greder, of North Plainfield, land on Dunellen avenue, and Green Brook, 5.83 acres, $2,500.

Peter Flynn, to Michael Nugent, tract on s e side of 3d street, 156x22½ ft., $1.

Mary Nugent and husband to Peter Flynn, same tract, $1.

Dead and Buried Within a Few Hours.

John D. Whiting, an aged man, died at his home on Grove street, North Plainfield, about eight o'clock on Saturday morning, from old age. Mr Whiting was seventy-four years old, and had been an invalid for a long time. He was the stepfather of Mrs. Garret VanWinkle of Madison avenue.

The Rev. Charles B. Mitchell officiated at the funeral, which took place from the house on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock. Interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield.

Held For the Grand Jury's Action.

There was a large gathering at the house of Justice Hardy, in North Plainfield, on Monday. The occasion was the hearing of the case of the State against Mrs. Newton Drake charged with the ill treatment of her youngest stepson. Those in attendance were principally witnesses and neighbors of the accused, who had been called to testify for the prosecution. Their vindictive feeling against the accused was apparent from their conversation.

Just before the hour set, Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Mrs. Drake, had a consultation with her as she sat in a closed carriage in front of the house. He subsequently stated that he had intended upon this hearing to place his client on the stand and by her testimony and that of others, to fully show the court, the prosecutor and the community that the charge was entirely a mistake.

But Mrs. Drake, he said, was in such a state of complete nervous prostration that it was impossible for her to appear, and in consequence the examination must be waived. Mr. Marsh further stated, that his client and her friends—"for she has some friends," he said—appreciated the motives of those who had brought forward the charge, and he believed them made in a commendable spirit, but under a mistake that would be fully shown.

A new bond was then prepared in the sum of $300 signed by J. P. Homan, under which Mrs. Drake was held to await the action of the next grand jury of Somerset county.

JUSTICES NO LONGER MONARCHS OF ALL THEY SURVEY.

Counsellor McClure Sitting as Supreme Court Commissioner, Sets Aside an Order of Arrest Made by Justice Nodyne, and Discharges James Hardy.

Some months ago James Hardy, Justice of the Peace of North Plainfield, became indebted to J. H. McCullough for doors furnished by McCullough, and as part payment Hardy gave McCullough an order for $75 on a Mr. Kissam for whom he was building a house. About a month later Hardy had a settlement with Kissam, and Kissam after deducting the amount of several different orders which had been given by Hardy to other people, paid Hardy the balance then appearing due him. McCullough having neglected to present his order to Kissam it was not considered in the settlement.

The fact that McCullough's order had not been presented or paid, having afterwards been brought to Hardy's attention, he at once offered to secure McCullough for the amount of his claim, which he was then unable to pay in cash. This offer was not accepted, but in lieu thereof McCullough, through his attorneys, Jackson & Codington, brought suit before Justice Nodyne and obtained from him upon affidavit, a warrant for the arrest of Hardy, in a civil action, for fraud in the contraction of the debt. Hardy was arrested and appeared before Justice Nodyne with his counsel, Chas. A. Reed, Esq., who moved for his discharge upon the ground that the whole proceedings were fatally defective and irregular. Counselor Jackson offered the motion, and Justice Nodyne refused to discharge the defendant.

Counselor Reed subsequently applied to Supreme Court Commissioner McClure for an order to set aside the orders of arrest made by Justice Nodyne, who was thereupon subpoenaed to produce all the papers in the case before the Commissioner.

Yesterday A. M. Justice Nodyne, and the parties with their respective counsel appeared before Commissioner McClure, who after hearing argument by Chas. A. Reed, on the part of the defendant, Hardy, and John H. Jackson on the part of the plaintiff, McCullough, set aside the order of arrest and discharged, the defendant, upon the ground that there was no proof of fraud in the affidavit. It is stated that McCullough requested the constable who arrested Hardy, to march him (Hardy) publicly through the streets, and that he (McCullough) declared that he himself would notify all the newspapers of the arrest.

They're Ball Players.

Since April 30, when the regular season of the Crescent League ball team opened, they have not lost a game. They have played ten, and won each one in eight innings. They have made a total of 94 hits and 92 runs, against 36 hits and 14 runs by their opponents.

During these games, Lufbery has had 57 chances and 4 errors; Lee, 40 chances and 2 errors; and Martin, 36 chances and 1 error. In the ten games Jones has made 15 hits; Lufbery, 14; Wiegand, 11; Martin, 10; Walker (9 games), 8; and Lee and Gillis, 7 each.

Trials of the Census Enumerators.

One of the census enumerators in this city who started out early on his rounds one morning this week, rang the doorbell in front of a certain house in the heart of the city, and a small boy answered the call. "I'm the census man," remarked the enumerator. "No, we don't want any," said the boy, as he shut the door in the man's face.

Another amusing incident happened a few days ago, when the census enumerator called at another house. "Good morning," said he to a female, who responded to a call, "Is it hot enough for you?" "I refuse to answer your foolish questions," said the infuriated woman, leaving the census man standing on the stoop. "Refused to answer," was inserted in that blank.

An Important Measure.

*Senate bill No. 268, which recently be*came a law, is one of considerable importance in financial circles. It requires all banking, savings, trust, guarantee, safe deposit, indemnity, mortgage, investment, loan and building corporations doing business in the State to file reports annually with the Secretary of State in January or whenever the Board of Commissioners may require.

It requires them to have an actually paid in, well invested and unimpaired capital of at least $100,000. It requires a *deposit of at least $30,000 with the Secre*tary of State, in trust, for the benefit of creditors within this State; provided, that such corporation maintaining a deposit of at least $100,000 in the State where organized may be admitted to this State without making a deposit here.

Why Don't You Print Our Argument, as We Printed Yours.

We observe that our young contemporary, The Daily Press, doesn't like the figures which the Times is producing from time to time from the police court records to show the work the open saloon is giving the Plainfield authorities to do. They cannot, however, be explained away on any such line of argument as The Press follows. The figures are an appalling illustration of what the licensed liquor traffic is doing in this city which boasts of its righteousness, and yet they do not begin to tell all the tale.—Central Times.

But we did like the Times' figures—republished them and offered our congratulations. At the same time we stated a simple fact in answer to the argument that more arrests were made for drunkenness in 1890 than in 1889. That fact is:

Those who are in jail today from Plainfield for drunkenness, were in jail last year for the same offence, from North Plainfield.

Will Celebrate About as Usual.

*Only a little more than three weeks be*fore the Fourth of July, yet there has been no effort made by any one, so far as THE PRESS is informed, that is likely to result in a grand public demonstration in this city. In this respect Plainfield has moved back apace, within the past decade or less, and about the only celebration this city can now boast of on the Nation's holiday, is a couple of ball games during the day time, and a private pyrotechnical display at Netherwood in the evening.

In years gone by the day was usually ushered in by the ringing of church bells and the booming of cannons. Hundreds of dollars were also expended annually for fireworks, and a public display was made in the evening. But those are all things of the past.

It is to be hoped, however, that there are enough enterprising and public spirited citizens in Plainfield to arrange for a grand Independence Day celebration. Who'll start the ball a rolling?

Thief Arrested.

The news was received with the utmost satisfaction by the community that he had terrorized; but the arrest of a disease that is stealing away a loved and valued life, is an achievement that should inspire heart-felt gratitude. Chilliness, cold extremities, depressed spirits and extremely miserable sensations, with pale, wan features, are the results of disordered kidneys and liver. Arrest the cause at once by taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a purely vegetable detective that will ferret out and capture the most subtle lung or blood disorder. Druggists.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

All medical authorities agree that catarrh is no more nor less than an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nasal air passages. Nasal catarrh and all catarrhal affections of the head are not diseases of the blood, and it is a serious mistake to treat them as such. No conscientious physician ever attempts to do so. It is held by eminent medical men that soon or later a specific will be found for every disease from which humanity suffers. The facts justify us in assuring that the catarrh at least a positive cure already exists in Ely's Cream Balm.

HE NAMES HIS NAMESAKE'S TWINS.

"Baby McKee," the Boy, Thinks it Would be Fine to Call "Baby McKee," the Bird's, Little Ones, "Jack & Jill."

Some days ago when THE PRESS news service homing pigeon, "Baby McKee," made a wonderful jump of 170 miles and came home before some of the rest in an interstate federation race, a copy of this paper containing an account of the event was mailed to Master Benj. Harrison McKee, at Washington. Word was also sent at the time that the Bird was the proud father of twin youngsters, and the desire was expressed that the Boy would name them. The following letter tells the rest of the story:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington.

Mr. J. A. Demarest:

DEAR SIR—Your note enclosing cuttings about the news bird, "Baby McKee," is received, and as you request an exchange of photographs between the bird and the baby—or rather bird and boy—I send one taken about a year ago.

We were interested to hear of the success of the bird's flight, and, as you desire Benjamin to name the two young pigeons, he thinks it would be nice to call them "Jack & Jill."

I am, Very Truly Yours,
MARY HARRISON MCKEE.

June 10, 1890.

Death of an Old Resident.

At his home, No. 2 Elm street, at two o'clock Tuesday morning, occurred the death of Albert Vanderweg, in the 75th year of his age. Mr. Vanderweg has been a resident of this city for many years past. His death resulted from inflamma*tion of the bowels.*

The funeral will take place from the house on Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

Forty Thousand Dollars For a City Hall.

Mr. Charles Hand, owner of the new Amphion Hall building on West Second street, offers to sell the building to the city for a City Hall for $40,000. He claims that the rent the city would derive from the building would more than pay the interest on the investment together with the taxes and insurance. An architect is now drawing up plans to ascertain what changes would be necessary, in the event of the city purchasing the property.

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE

Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

ADOPTED IN HOSPITALS AS THE BEST FOR INVALIDS.

Speer's Port Grape Wine
FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyard, and left hang until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsur assed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Social) Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, specially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS WHO KEEP FIRST-CLASS WINES.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

A. DEMAREST, - - City Editor.

—The streets in this city are now lighted by 130 electric lights, and the [illegible] extends from [illegible] to Netherwood.

—The argument [illegible] case [illegible] the Supreme Court at Trenton, will probably [illegible] Thursday or Friday.

—Mr. Patrick [illegible] returned to his Boulevard residence yesterday, after an absence of five weeks in Ireland, the land of his birth.

—Read in another column the advertisement of charming cottages and lots for sale, the property of W. R. S. Taylor, North Plainfield.

—A horse belonging to Mr. T. O. Lobdell of Putnam avenue, [illegible] the dashboard from a wagon near the railroad station, Saturday evening.

—The poles of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in this city are being coated with a preservative of dark green colored paint.

—The hotel at Mt. Bethel has changed hands, and the new proprietor is remodeling the building and getting it in readiness for Summer boarders.

—Albert [illegible] was arrested by Officer Flanagan Friday night on a warrant issued by Justice Nash charged by his wife with assault and battery.

—A free fight took place in North Plainfield, on Saturday afternoon, but no arrests were made. The principals, it is said, were young men of this city.

—The recent grand jury did not find an indictment against Daniel Miller, the man who made an assault upon two little girls at Netherwood, a few weeks ago.

—Beginning with last Sunday the Sunday school of the First Baptist church will begin at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, instead of in the afternoon, as heretofore.

—The [illegible] column in THE PRESS grows more popular every day. People read it with nearly as much interest as they do the local or telegraphic news.

—A horse belonging to Charles Potter, Jr., which had so hurt itself that it was in continual pain and beyond recovery, was killed Friday to relieve it of its misery.

—It is said that one of the grocery clerks in North Plainfield was arrested on Wednesday and fined ten dollars for dumping a lot of decayed vegetables in a lot on Grove street.

—The contract has been awarded A. M. Griffen for the plumbing in William Sandford's elegant residence at Sandford avenue and Front street, which is to eclipse some of the handsomest houses already erected in this city and borough.

—Auctioneer John M. C. Marsh will sell at auction on Monday, June 30, the property at [illegible], known as De Reed's Hotel, together with forty building lots, situated near the hotel. The sale is made to settle up the estate.

—The horse that was found on West Front street by four young men on Friday night, and which was subsequently cared for at Seguine's livery stable, belonged to Mr. John H. Tier. The animal was returned to its owner on Saturday.

—John J. Robertson, late of C. F. Wilogh of 352 Broadway, New York, has been engaged as bartender at Force's Hotel on North avenue. Mr. Robertson comes to Plainfield very highly recommended, and he will doubtless gain many friends here.

—Complaint has been made to the effect that [illegible] number of young men and boys are in the habit of assembling under the sheds in the rear of George R. Pound's [illegible] establishment, and playing cards for money. The police will stop the nuisance.

—Among the patents granted to residents of this State within the past few days, were two to Mr. Glen H. Babcock of this city, for an apparatus for projecting combustible material, and two to J. D. Carr, also of this city, for a key-board self-playing attachment.

—The farmers in this vicinity predict a plentiful supply of grain next season. They are already harvesting, the season being earlier than usual. Large crops have been seen in various parts of the country and the speculators are directing anxious eyes towards them.

—The manager of the Washington league ball team, came all the way to Plainfield, Monday night, and asked the privilege of bringing his men here for a game against the Crescents, Wednesday. It was impossible, however, for a game to be arranged on so short a notice.

—Friday last was closing day at Rodman Seminary. The year just closed was a profitable one in that institution, and the scholars who have been fitted for college or other pursuits owe their rapid advancement to Mrs. E. C. Dingee, the principal, and Miss [illegible], her able assistant.

—The case of Mr. J. B. Miller vs Tunis J. Carey, to recover a balance alleged to be due on a note, was again adjourned by Justice Nash, Friday, until Thursday, the 19th inst. The adjournment was made at the request of the defence, the complainant and his counsel appearing in court at the appointed time.

—The work of building a skylight in the Camera Club working room, is progressing rapidly. A portrait camera, and a bromide enlargement apparatus, are to be added to the Club's appurtenances. The membership is increasing at each meeting, and the Club's parlors are becoming quite a resort for the members and their ladies.

—A handsome "[illegible]" wagon is the latest addition to the "rolling stock" of Edward Milligan, whose home-like Summer residence in Washington Valley is always open to friends and acquaintances. "Ed" is proud of his new and handsome purchase, and well he may be, for no nobbier rig is driven to the station to convey its owner to business in the great metropolis each morning.

—It is understood that the Crescent League is very much opposed to the betting of money on the ball games, and the Board of Trustees published a card to that effect in Saturday's PRESS. Signs positively forbidding betting on the grounds have been posted, and every other effort will be put forth by the League to stop the practice. Over a thousand dollars changed hands on the result of Saturday's game.

The City Park is a Disgrace.

What a dilapidated, [illegible] looking spot of ground is that bounded by Eighth and Ninth streets, Arlington avenue and College place, otherwise known as the "City Park." True enough there are plenty of handsome shade trees there, but aside from that the place resembles anything but a park. The few rustic looking seats which were placed in the "park," when the old First Presbyterian church was torn down, have been carried away piece by piece and used for kindling wood, until there now remains scarcely any seats at all.

About the only work that has been done in Plainfield's model park within the past few years, has been the dumping of a few loads of dirt therein. Left in the present condition the park is a disgrace to the city, and it would be far better for the city fathers to [illegible] the place [illegible], and have the Street Commissioner sow a crop of oats.

PERSONALS.

Another son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Stillman, at their home in Hoboken.

Mr. and Mrs. C. DeLancy Evans, of Mount Washington, Md., were guests at The Netherwood, yesterday.

Miss Annie Hasbrouck, of East Fifth street, is visiting her friend, Miss [illegible], at New Brunswick.

It is announced that the marriage of Miss Taylor and Edwin Lewis, will take place Monday, the 30th inst.

The Misses Caroline and Edith Yeager of Brooklyn, N. Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lagnest, at their home in Washington Park.

Councilman S. G. Smith has just returned from a week's trout fishing trip to the Pocono Mountains, looking and feeling decidedly better for his outing.

Upon Mr. I. C. Pierson of this city has been conferred the degree of Ph. D. by the University of New York. Mr. Pierson is a graduate of that University.

Mr. James Lansing and wife of Troy, N. Y., are the guests of Mrs. L. Adams, at Force's Hotel. Mr. Lansing is the Surrogate of Rensselaer county, New York State.

At Annandale, June 11, occurred the marriage of Mr. Wm. Grassmit, Jr., of this city, and Miss Minnie Prue, of the former place. The Rev. J. P. Taylor of this city officiated.

Al. Field, brother of Dr. Field, arrived in this city, last evening, from his home in Florida, where he has a fine and paying [illegible] farm. He has not visited this section before in the past six years.

The Westfield Standard says: "While superintending the erection of some window shades in Plainfield last Monday afternoon J. Warren Brown fell from a step ladder and broke his knee cap."

Miss Elizabeth Smith, aged 32 years, of Newton Centre, Mass., died in North Plainfield, June 12, of epilepsy. She had been a victim of the disease for some years, and was living here for treatment. The remains will be sent to her former home.

Alice Burt, a former teacher and an instructor in drawing in the Public Schools here, died at Albany, Sunday, June 8. She was in the 45th year of her age. The nature of her illness has already been told of in these columns.

The Misses Minnie, Carrie and Ida Hammond, and Mr. Robert Yarwood, of Brooklyn, and Mr. W. G. Hammond, of Washington, D. C.—who is a yeoman on the U. S. Steamship "Essex"—have been the guests for a few days, of Mr. and Mrs. Carl K[illegible].

Many Plainfield citizens were among the large audience at the Tabernacle Convention in New York city, June 11. Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Tomlinson, Dr. Utter, Geo. Opdyke, Ethan Lanphere and the Rev. C. B. Mitchell occupied prominent places on the platform.

One of J. Harvey Doane's homing pigeons, in training for an ocean fly on the 19th inst., came home from Connecticut the other day in three hours. Its name is Gen'l Harrison, and its registered number is 892. Mr. Doane's loft already holds the champion ocean record.

Mr. Henry J. Sayers, manager for George Thatcher's Minstrels, and Mr. Harris, of the wealthy Boston firm of Rich & Harris—who own the Athenaeum of that city and a large lot of other valuable theatrical property and investments—were the guests of Mr. Thatcher at his home in this city, on Thursday last.

The Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Welch, who have been making a brief visit since their wedding trip, with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McGee, left on Thursday for their permanent home at Bedford-St[illegible], New York, where, Mr. Welch has a rapidly growing parish who hold him in exceptionally high esteem.

Alexander Campbell Eustaphieve, who will be remembered by some of the young men of Plainfield, as he spent his early boyhood here, died recently in California. He was a bright lad and gave promise of a successful and useful life. He had just reached his 21st year, when he was called away from work here to the rest of Paradise.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, of which Mr. Carey is Treasurer, has sent through its veterinary a solemn protest against the check reins used by O. T. Waring who is a member of the standing committee of "indignant" citizens whose report on the "outrageous proposition" of Mr. Carey is yet awaited with ghoulish glee.

Mrs. Wm. J. Smith and family of West Third street, were among the cabin passengers who sailed Saturday by the Anchor Line steamship "Anchoria," for Scotland. They will be absent probably a year. Mr. Smith, who is connected with The Pond Machine Tool company, finds it impossible to leave his business and accompany them.

At four o'clock of Sunday morning, at Stroudsburg, Pa., occurred the death from consumption of Lambert Foster, formerly of this city and son of the late John Gray Foster whose second wife is the daughter of D. N. Groendyke, of North Plainfield, where she has lived ever since the death of her husband. Lambert Foster was in the 29th year of his age.

It was a very cultured and fashionable audience that gathered in Seminary Hall, Thursday, upon the occasion of Miss Maude Downs' recital, in which she was assisted by Miss Gertrude Marchand. The programme was as already announced in these columns, and rendered in an entirely successful manner. It deserves a repetition at a more favorable season.

In a letter to the Rev. Father Stafford, assistant pastor of St. Mary's church in this city, received recently from the Rev. Father P. E. Smyth, who is traveling abroad, the latter stated that he had had a very pleasant voyage over, having met several stranger priests on the vessel. Father Smith is now in Paris, and will make a tour of the Continent before he returns.

The death of Carrie Kirkner occurred at Dresden, Germany, on Sunday, May 25. She was in the twenty-second year of her age. Her parents and sister were with her, but it was deemed best by Mr. Kirkner to keep the sad news from those at home here, until a letter should arrive. Mr. and Mrs. Kirkner, and Miss Kirkner, are expected to arrive, with the remains, by Steamer "Ems."

Assistant Supervising Engineer Cady is slowly recovering from the effects of an accident that caused him considerable lameness. He stepped down on the crosswalk at Broadway and Fifth street, the other day, just as a butcher wagon suddenly turned the corner. The step protruding from the shaft struck his knee, and with such force as to push him away from greater danger under the wheels.

The Building committee of the Union County Country club, of which Elroy Clark is chairman, is making rapid progress in its plans for the ten-thousand dollar club house at the corner of West Seventh street and Arlington avenue. Meanwhile the board of governors is considering applications for membership daily. The initiation fee is $25, and the dues $40 a year payable semi-annually in advance.

A well-written sermon was delivered Sunday morning in the Trinity Reformed church by the Rev. W. R. Honeyman, from the text, "Hearts of Gold, and [illegible]."—[illegible] At the evening service "Holiness" was the subject of an able discourse by the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts of the Park Avenue Baptist church. His text, "Holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord," is found in Hebrews, 12th chapter, part of the 14th verse.

Low Dockstader was the guest of Joseph B. Miller, Sunday.

Mr Edward Nelson, on Saturday returned to his post of duty as ticket agent at the main station in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Lee place, are rejoicing over the advent of a son, born to them a few days ago.

M. E. G. H. P., Wm. H. Sebring has designated June 30 next, as the time for constituting Trinity Chapter, R. A. M., at Atlantic City, N. J.

The charming elocutionist, Miss Susie Marsh of Westfield, has accepted an invitation to appear at the coming entertainment in Warren Chapel, July 10.

Mr. Henry Lapsley and family of Putnam avenue, will spend the Summer in Massachusetts, having left the city on Tuesday, and expect to be absent until September 1.

John Bishop an employee at the Scott Printing Machine Works, and Wm. Kay of the Potter Press Works, sailed per steamer "Circassia," Tuesday, to spend the summer in Dundee, Scotland.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, arrived home from St. Louis yesterday P. M., where he went as a delegate to attend the National Convention of the Christian Endeavor.

George B. Titsworth, of Madison avenue, who has just returned from a trip to Milwaukee and Chicago in the interest of Charles Potter, Jr., & Co., left Sunday night on another business journey of the same sort.

The remains of Miss Carrie E. Kirkner, who died at Dresden, Germany, on May 25, arrived in this city on Tuesday. The funeral will take place from the Congregational church this afternoon at five o'clock. Interment will be private.

Prof. Cornwell, at one time pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church in this city, but now of Omaha, Neb., occupied the pulpit in the First Baptist church Sunday morning, and preached an eloquent sermon before a large congregation.

Trustee Howard Emerson of the Crescent League, gave a big supper at the City Hotel Saturday evening, to his fellow members of the League, their friends and the ball team. About fifty were present, and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

The Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, of this city, will address the midsummer convention of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, at Asbury Park, Wednesday afternoon. His subject will be: "Mutual Relations of the Church and Sabbath School."

During the absence of the Rev. Mr Richards, who was in Spring Lake, Sunday, the Rev. Dr. Murray of Princeton college, occupied the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church. Dr. Murray is the father of William H. Murray, M. D., of Broadway.

Henry B. Newhall entertained the clerks of his New York establishment, Saturday, at his home on East Seventh street. The warm welcome and true hospitality of Mrs. Newhall, was one of the principal sources of the gratification shared by every one of the guests.

Walter Darby, Edward Patterson and Edward Petrie, of the Class of '90, Plainfield High school, and Alfred Holmes, Class of '89, were examined at the Y. M. C. A., New York, Thursday and Friday of last week, for admittance to the Freshman Class of Princeton College.

Mrs. Enoch Farson, of Philadelphia, daughter of Gen'l and Mrs. James S. Negley, has so much improved in the last few days from the illness recorded in these columns, as to be able to leave her room again. She is at her parent's home on the corner of Union and Plainfield avenues.

Ralph Waldron, aged eighteen years, a nephew of Chas. Case of North Plainfield, died at his home, 52 West Fifty-seventh street, New York, on Saturday night, after a week's illness from pneumonia. The young man spent last Summer in North Plainfield, where he made many warm friends.

Four hundred and seventy-eight cards of admission have already been distributed to those who have sought the privilege of attending the piano recital by the pupils of Mr. Venino, to be given in the Crescent Avenue chapel, Thursday evening at eight o'clock. Ample accommodation, however, can be afforded even a larger audience.

Messrs. Allie Dunn, J. Randolph Dunn, and Willie F. Dunn started Monday for Fairhaven, Washington, where they expect to join the latter's father, Mr Lewis A. Dunn, of the late firm of Dunn Bros who has located in business there. Mr. "Ran" Dunn goes for the benefit of his health, while Mr. Al Dunn is the chaperone of the party.

George C. Chandler, who was born and bred in this city, was graduated from Grammar School, No. 43, New York city, Tuesday, with the highest honors. Besides being awarded the gold medal for general excellence in a class of 60, he received the appointment of a five years' course in the New York College, having passed the examination with great credit. He is the son of Forester Chandler, formerly of Second street, and the nephew of John Chandler.

A Calf Killed by Lightning.

During the heavy thunder shower which prevailed on Saturday morning, a calf belonging to Mr. Thomas Burke of Eighth street, which was tied to a tree in the field near his residence, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

A Warning to Bicyclists.

Captain Grant desires THE PRESS to warn bicycle riders that unless they desist from riding on the sidewalk, he will be obliged to lodge complaints against them. Friday night a lady narrowly escaped being knocked down by an indiscreet bicyclist.

Joyful News.

The Kiernan News Company says the ice corner is bursted. John McDermott, the largest butcher in Washington Market, advises that ice is now offered on the wharf near the market at 30 cents per 100 pounds. The same ice was selling on Monday at 50 cents per 100 pounds.

In Aid of the Fresh Air Fund.

A number of the little girls residing on Craig place, North Plainfield, are arranging for a fair, which will be held on the lawn adjoining Mr. J. B. Cleaver's residence on Somerset street, on the afternoon of July 1. The proceeds will be devoted to the Fresh Air Fund.

The League is Entirely Opposed to Betting.

To the Editor of The Press:—The Plainfield Crescent League desires to have it understood that the League does not countenance betting on any sports held under its supervision.

By order

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Scott & Company Pay Weekly, Too.

Messrs Walter Scott & Co., now pay their employes weekly, instead of bi-monthly, as formerly. The recent endeavor to legislate for weekly payment, called Mr. Scott's attention to the justice of doing so. Four weeks ago he gave the timekeeper orders to make the necessary preparation to pay weekly, commencing last Monday.

John have you seen that woman lately? John in astonishment! What woman? That woman picking grapes for Speer's Wine. Just see her in another column and read about it, the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. The Board of Health in large cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

SACRIFICES OF GILLIS AND WALKER WIN THE GAME.

Pitcher Tierney Never Lost Before, and Manager Perkins Drops His Money on His Crack Team—An Exhibition of Perfect Ball Playing.

The game of ball put up by the Crescent League's team on Saturday afternoon, cannot be excelled by any professional nine of the day; and in some respects Captain Wiegand and his gentlemen players, are the superiors of any others who ever wore a uniform. They move like clockwork; the in and out fielders cover every inch of the ground; not a man lets a chance go by for fear of an error; each is ready to sacrifice himself to win the game; and if a mistake should occur there is no rude fault-finding.

For instance, in Saturday's game Nugent made the Hackett-Carhart's only run through bad judgment on the part of Jones. In the second inning Barry and Abel were thrown out at first by Gregg and Martin. Nugent was hit by a pitched ball and started to steal second. Forgetting that two were out, Jones threw down to Laffery but the latter could not reach the ball and Nugent got his third on the error, and came in on Tierney's little hit. After the inning was over, Captain Wiegand did not turn the air blue, jump on Jones with his spikes, and demand why the deuce and the dickens he made such a play at such a stage. He merely said: "Freddy will you please do me a favor, and not throw down to second when there are two men out?"

Manager Perkins of the Hackett-Carharts, told a PRESS reporter before the game commenced, that he had heard of the Crescents and came out intending to beat them. He had eleven men in uniform on the grounds ready for emergencies, and from these he picked the strongest team he ever had in the field. "Tierney will pitch," said Mr. Perkins, "and he has never lost a game for us." Before play was called, the New York manager had put up all his guarantee in cold cash against an equal amount of Plainfield dollars, that the visitors would win.

It was a beautiful game from start to finish, but the Crescents won without turning a hair. 1,065 enthusiastic people enjoyed it as thoroughly as their sentiments would permit. The visitors present from New York and Rahway, were naturally disappointed at the result, but not one was disappointed in the game as an exhibition of perfect ball playing. The only error of the home team was that of Jones, referred to above. On the visiting team's side, there were only two little ones. Moorehead and Barry let Martin and Laffery reach first by fumbles, but neither got home. In the 4th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th innings, not one of the visitors got as far as first base.

The Crescents runs were made in this way: In the second inning, after the Hackett-Carharts had made their only run, Jones was sent to first on balls, stole second and reached third on McIndoe's hit. Gillis then lifted a high fly to left as a sacrifice and Jones made a successful dash for home the instant the ball was caught.

In the fifth inning Lee made a beautiful drive that gave him two bases, and he reached third on Walker's single. The latter then started for second base with the deliberate intention of sacrificing himself also He ran so slowly that Krause could not resist the temptation of throwing down, expecting that Barry would return the ball at once in time to catch Lee should he start home. When the ball got to second, Walker dropped down in the path five feet from the base and coaxed Barry to walk over and touch him. Meanwhile Lee came home, and the grand stand tottered.

The Hackett-Carharts will play here again on the afternoon of July 5. Next Saturday the celebrated "Mets" of New York, will be the Crescents' opponents. It will be a harder game to win, even, than that of Saturday. The Crescent team will be the same, and McIndoe will play with them for the rest of the season. Michael Gregg, the iceberg, is of course a fixture. He's got a great head as well as a great arm. His record in Saturday's game shows ten assists; and as to caring whether the bases are full behind him, it seems as if he sent men to first on balls sometimes, just for the fun of doubling them up.

It is deserving of mention, that although the Hackett-Carharts are notorious "kickers"—especially Moorehead—and believe it is the proper thing to dispute the home umpire without reason, not a single word of objection was uttered against Mr. Bowman, Saturday. The score was:

The Marriage of Miss Darling and Mr. Lowry.

At 7 o'clock, evening of June 11, at the home of the bride's father, John Darling, on Prospect place, took place the marriage of Elizabeth Darling and Robert Lowry, Jr. The groom's father, the Rev. Dr. Lowry, performed the ceremony; and the Rev. Mr. Lockaley, of Philadelphia, an uncle of the groom, pronounced the benediction.

The bride was becomingly attired in a traveling dress. Only the most intimate friends were present, with the immediate relatives of the couple. The rooms were fragrant with floral decorations. After a bridal supper, Mr and Mrs. Lowry left for New York on the 8:20 train. They will probably include Niagara Falls in their wedding trip.

Almost a Runaway.

Mr. Robert H. Cook and his entire family were seated in a canopy top surrey, driving along Rock View avenue, North Plainfield, one evening last week, when his handsome team of horses became frightened at some children springing from behind a [illegible] which stood by the roadside, just as Mr. Cook turned into Grove street. The animals commenced to back up, but the driver kept them under perfect control until the neck yoke broke, allowing the pole to drop.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Cook and the children had alighted safely on the ground, and after backing around a few times Mr. Cook brought the horses in contact with a telephone pole, and stopped them. Aside from breaking the pole, the damage to the wagon was trifling.

The accident created considerable excitement, but no one was injured.

Men of brains originate, the unprincipled imitate. Counterfeit never has the true ring of the genuine. Wide-awake people refuse to be gulled. They insist on Hires' Root Beer, and are sure to get it.

Prisoner Sentenced.

Fred Clark was arraigned before City Judge Codington at five o'clock yesterday afternoon, on a charge of being intoxicated. "How do you plead, Fred?" said His Honor. "Non vult," said the defendant. "The sentence of the Court is that you be confined in the county jail for a period of sixty days," said the Judge. "I wish you'd make it six months," said the prisoner.

Fined Fifteen Dollars.

John O'Connor, a machinist, employed at the Scott Press Works, insulted his boarding mistress, at the latter's home on West Front street, Thursday night, and Officer Cooney locked him up. Next morning he was given a hearing before Judge Codington, adjudged guilty and fined fifteen dollars.

Since the above was written O'Connor's companion, Jerry Degnan has been arrested by Officer Lynch.

No, Not For a Million Dollars.

"Would Plainfield go back to the old grade crossing system, if she could?" was asked recently of Director Hubbard, of the Board of Freeholders, says the Elizabeth Journal. "Not for a million dollars" came the quick reply. Yet Plainfield has a big embankment and girder bridges, and much the same but a much cheaper elevation of tracks. The fact that there are no grade crossings in Plainfield has greatly helped to build up that beautiful city, and it will do the same for Elizabeth.

Jumped from an Express Train.

Charles Peterson, the informer, who "assisted" ex-Captain Carey in convicting Michael Watson for illegal liquor selling, nearly lost his life by jumping from an express train at Netherwood, on Thursday evening. Peterson has been employed at Netherwood for some time past, and on the above evening he boarded an express train which did not stop there. When the train reached the Netherwood station he jumped from the rear platform and after turning a somersault landed headforemost alongside the track.

Besides receiving a deep scalp wound, Peterson was badly bruised about the body. The injured man was admitted to Muhlenberg Hospital.

We Are Still Open to Conviction.

When ex-President of the Council, Tell A. Beguelin, and Mrs. Beguelin, left for Europe last May, they instructed their resident representative, Judge L. F. Wadsworth, to send the first lot of strawberries that ripened in their gardens, to the editor of THE PRESS. The fruit arrived yesterday, and is the most perfect in all respects that has yet been received.

Still J. Lance Mundy, of Rockfellow's grocery, sends a sample of fruit that is hard to excel, and W. Henry Rogers, of Washingtonville, should be credited with the best quart as regards perfect shape and firmness. However, all the returns are not in—we trust—and the decision as to who has grown the best this year, is reserved.

A Private Musical Society.

A society has been organized in this city, with William R. Chapman, the well-known Conductor of the Musurgia, Rubinstein and Metropolitan Societies of New York, as its Musical Director. This organization supersedes the musicales given at private houses during the past season.

Its rehearsals and concerts will be held in the contemplated new Casino, and will be private in character. The officers are:

President—Rowland Cox.
Vice President—Mason W. Tyler.
Treasurer—H. G. Runkle.
Secretary—William Kaufman.
Executive Com.—Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. M. E. Edgerton, Mrs. V. B. Hart, Mrs. Chas. D. Wadsworth and Messrs Rowland Cox, Mason W. Tyler, H. G. Runkle, Wm. T. Kaufman, Wm. B. Wadsworth, Wm. R. Chapman.

They Want Weekly Payments.

A petition containing the names of 166 of the employees of the Potter Press Works, was presented to Superintendent Brooks, a few days ago, asking that the men be paid weekly instead of twice a month as heretofore. Mr. Potter has been considering the matter of making weekly payments for some time past, and the new system will go into effect on July 1.

All but eight of the employees signed the petition, and Messrs Joseph Brown and Wm. F. Mosher were appointed a committee to present it to Superintendent Brooks.

Mr. Potter endorsed on the petition, as follows:

It gives me great pleasure to comply with the request contained in the within, and hereafter the pay day will be every Friday, commencing July 1.

C. POTTER, JR.

Injured in a Runaway Accident.

Mr. J. Newton Honeyman of North Plainfield, was driving along West Front street, on his way home from Dunellen, about 5:30 o'clock Thursday, and when near the Grant Avenue station his horse became unmanageable and ran away. Mr. Honeyman was thrown from the wagon and dragged fully fifty feet, when he was tossed up against the fence on one side of the street and stunned. He was also slightly cut on the head. The injured man was, however, able to walk to his home on Grove street.

The horse ran at break-neck speed until New street was reached, when the animal and wagon all fell in a heap. The vehicle was badly damaged

One man who was driving in the opposite direction, fearing that the runaway would strike him, pulled his horse to one side of the road and jumped in the gutter. His rig was uninjured.

Runaway on East Fifth Street.

An exciting runaway occurred on East Fifth street, late Friday afternoon, which resulted in throwing a farmer out, and painfully injuring one of his hands. About five o'clock a team of heavy grey horses, attached to a hay rigging, dashed along that thoroughfare at a rapid gait. The owner of the team, whose name could not be ascertained, sat in the wagon and kept the runaway team in the middle of the street until a point was reached just West of Washington street, when the horses collided with a tree and were there captured.

The farmer was thrown violently to the ground, but fortunately escaped with some flesh wounds on one of his hands. Some of the neighbors who were soon on the spot offered to dress the wounds, but the man refused their assistance, and after patching up his harness, started off for home.

Is This What Ails You!

Do you have dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; eyes weak, watery and inflamed; ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; voice changed and nasal twang; breath offensive; smell and taste impaired; is there sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility? If you have all, or any considerable number of these symptoms, you are suffering from Nasal Catarrh. The more complicated your disease has become the greater the number and diversity of symptoms. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood, or more unsuccessfully treated by physicians. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy offer, in good faith, a reward of $500 for a case of this disease which they cannot cure. The Remedy is sold by druggists, at only 50 cents.

INSTALLATION SERVICES.

The Rev. Hobart Clark Formally Installed as Pastor of the First Unitarian Church.

The installation of the Rev. Hobart Clark as pastor of the First Unitarian church in this city, took place in Seminary Hall, Friday night, in the presence of a large congregation. The platform was very prettily decorated with flowers.

The Rev. A. D. Smith of Brooklyn, presided, and pronounced the invocation. A hymn was sung, and the Rev. Henry H. Woude of Newburgh, read the scripture.

The Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., of Boston, preached an eloquent sermon, his text being found in St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, eighth chapter, second verse—"For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

Mrs. J. K. Myers, Miss Alice Holmes and Messrs E. E. Runyon and Andrew Garrett, sang a delightful anthem, "God is a Spirit," accompanied by Miss Jessie Utter on the piano.

The Rev. Merle St. Croix Wright of New York, then delivered the installing prayer, and after another hymn was sung, the Rev. Daniel W. Morehouse of New York, extended the right hand of fellowship, the Rev. W. S. Crowe, D. D., of Newark, delivered the charge to the pastor, and the Rev. H. Price Collier of Brooklyn, delivered the address to the people.

The closing prayer was made by the Rev. James T. Bixby of Yonkers, N. Y. After the congregation joined in singing the doxology, the Rev. Hobart Clark, the newly installed pastor, pronounced the benediction.

THE NEW ACADEMY IN WESTFIELD.

A $25,000 Building From Plans by a Plainfield Architect.

For nearly two years the people of Westfield have been on the rack respecting increased accommodations for the overflow of pupils attending the public schools. Theirs has been the experience generally in neighboring districts. Some opposed any new building; others favored two buildings; some advocated extravagance in cost while others were too illiberal, maintaining that a house good enough for themselves when children, is good enough now. Then the question of location developed a variety of views. Some didn't want a school building near them; some wanted it very near. Others wanted it in this part of town and others in that part.

At last the people of Westfield are at rest and take a long breath in the matter. The site was agreed upon fully a year ago. It is Southeast of the Central Railroad station the highest and most conspicuous from the passing trains of any in the township; probably more so than any on the Central Railroad, between Somerville and Elizabeth. The lot is ample, containing about two acres including the streets of which there are three; one on each side of the plot, except the rear. The building is to be of brick and stone combined. The architect is Mr. Oscar Teal of Plainfield. The mason Aaron B. Clark and the carpenter William Moffett, both of Westfield. The ground is broken. The building will soon be erected and there are pupils enough to fill it.

It is not to take the place of the Public school building now in use, which is comparatively a new building, but it is to take the surplus youth now farmed out in public halls and private buildings. Westfield is growing; the number of children is twice or three times what it was twenty years ago when the building in use was erected, and the trustees would forfeit the district's right to public school moneys, were they not to provide suitable buildings. The new building is a necessity, and Mr. Teal and the trustees propose to make it the most imposing in Union county. The present board consists of five, increased from three, under the law permitting an increase of trustees with increase of children. They are practical, prudent men; men of experience and such as the citizens of the district have confidence in, as managers of the interests committed to them. The present Board is composed of Ludlow V. Clark, James T. Pierson, Ira C. Lambert, Frank B. Pennington and George B. Brown. The building is to cost $25,000.

The Evona Station Robbed.

Burglars broke into the Evona station a few evenings since and carried off a lot of railroad tickets good for transportation between that place and Plainfield. The building was entered by prying open one of the windows on the Front street side, but the robbers left no clew whereby their identity might be established.

The Central Railroad detectives are working on the case.

A Strayed Horse.

About nine o'clock Friday night, four young men who live on West Front street near Grant avenue, found a chestnut colored horse, with three white legs, wandering along that thoroughfare. The animal was foaming, and was without harness or wagon attachments. Blood flowed in profusion from an ugly looking wound on the animal's face, evidently made by coming in contact with a barbed wire fence.

The horse was led into town and cared for at Seguine's livery stable.

A Proper Project.

At a regular communication of Jerusalem Lodge, on Tuesday, a resolution was introduced looking forward to the alliance of all the masonic organizations of the city in the ownership and occupancy of a Masonic Hall. The trustees of the associations including Jerusalem and Anchor Lodges, F. A. M., Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., and Trinity Commandery, K.T., are to decide upon the feasibility of the project. John W. Murray and others spoke in favor of the resolution, and it was unanimously adopted.

"My father, at about the age of fifty, lost all the hair from the top of his head. After one month's trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair began coming, and, in three months, he had a fine growth of hair of the natural color."—P. J. Cullen, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Rheumatism,

BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectually cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Price $1; six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

He Probably Wants Damages.

George Sadler still complains of a stiffness in his right leg, a swelling of his right hand and a continual pricking under his right ear, which he says comes from the electric shock that killed John Chandler's horse. Sadler, who was driving the horse when it fell, seized the bridle to raise the animal. He says he was immediately thrown up in the air and turned completely over.

A Bare Story.

Wm Grattan, private secretary for ex-Councilman John Simpson, tells a PRESS reporter that he recently missed some lambs from the farm and built a bear trap in consequence with an electric attachment of warning.

The other night the bell rang, but it was too dark for bear hunting and Grattan waited until morning. He says "I then found a big grizzly in the trap, and its there now!"

—On account of rain there was no trotting on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, on Saturday afternoon. No rain fell in this city, but at the track, rain fell in torrents.

COMPETITION.

Its the life of business and the only thing that keeps it in a normal condition. We welcome it because we have confidence in the goods we offer. We only want what the word means to be properly understood. Competition is rivalry for first place between two or more parties having equal claims. Now, the truth is, that in the clothing business there is little competition with such goods as we sell. The bulk of Ready-made Clothing, manufactured for sale to the jobbers and passed on from them to the retailers, don't compete with the Clothing we sell at all. There is a good deal of shouting done about it, and its merits are insisted upon most vigorously, but it don't compete. The merchant tailors are the only houses with which our Ready-made Clothing competes, in quality, style and finish; while, of course, it has a marvelous advantage when it comes to price.

We don't claim any monopoly in making such an article as we offer, but we insist that there's art in it. There's no patent in selling as good a suit as we do for the money, all we say is, it isn't done. We'll prove it to you. Select a suit, any price you like, one that is pressed upon your notice as down to "rock bottom," "below cost," or any other term which denotes cheapness. Select such a suit, we say, in some store noted for its advertisement of bargains, and then come and let us show you a suit at the same price, and you'll have proof before your own eyes of what we claim. We don't fear competition; we've no reason to; least of all would be competition from an inferior article.

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnepeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

It appears that the construction of new railroads in the United States during the first four months of 1890 has been about 1,118 miles.

A new megaphone has been placed on the market in England, by which the human voice may be so magnified that it may be heard at a distance of several miles.

New Zealand's trade in fruit with England is constantly increasing in magnitude. A recent steamer from Auckland took 3,000 cases of apples to London.

A process has been invented by means of which photographs can be printed about as fast as a newspaper and without dependence on sun or light. They are said to be of the first quality.

The fruit crop promises to be unusually large in California this year, and the greater part of it will probably be dried, as growers there have learned by experience that dried fruit pays better than canned.

A new industry in Germany is the utilization of the young leaves of the strawberry plant as a beverage. Having been specially dried, they are used instead of Chinese tea, which they closely resemble in taste.

A cargo of salmon left Portland recently to be shipped direct to Russia. The fish are sent in barrels to St. Petersburg, where the salt will be removed and the fish will be canned. This is done to avoid the heavy duty on canned goods.

The United States is without a doubt a nation of coffee drinkers. The imports from South America amount to over 350,000,000 pounds annually, of which 89 per cent. comes from Brazil. The second largest shipper to this country is Venezuela, 11 per cent.

A new electric device has made its appearance in London. This is an appliance for measuring the amount of liquor sold at the bar, and for checking and recording the sales and receipts. For each pennyworth of liquor served a distinct contact is made, and the current which then passes is made to excite an electro-magnet and thus turn a ratchet wheel through one notch. In this way the total amount of liquor served is recorded.

CHAMPIONS AT TENNIS.

Preparing for the Four Great Tournaments of the Season of 1890.

[illegible] in Eastern and Western Doubles—The Battle for Champion Honors and the Cup at Newport—Players Who Will Compete.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

AMATEUR tennis players all over the land are girding up their loins and getting out their blazers and flannels in anticipation of a very lively and interesting season. Indeed, it promises to be the liveliest that has been known since the game was introduced here from England, about half a dozen years ago. There are already twenty odd meetings arranged as fixtures for 1890, but the interest centers in the four great championship tournaments of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association.

Good form is every thing in tennis, and grace is the accompaniment. These characteristics will be seen to perfection in the coming tournaments, for every season shows a remarkable advance in the quality of the playing as well as in the multiplication of tennis clubs. Yet so varying is the standard by which the excellence of one's play at tennis is reckoned, that it would probably be difficult to find a dozen amateurs in the whole country who would agree as to the likeliest winner of the championship for singles or doubles during the coming season.

Henry W. Slocum, Jr., is the present holder of championship honors, having won them in 1888, after the title had been held for seven consecutive years by Richard D. Sears, who two years ago was compelled to abandon the sport in consequence of an accident which incapacitated him for a time. Sears' playing has never been equaled in this country. It is strong, brilliant and remarkably even. Like all the great players, he is cool, and rejects the temptation to be sized up by the bat and smash at ball, even when it seems a safe thing to do. His strong point is accurately calculating how to place the ball to best advantage.

If there is one game above another in which the American girl delights, and which she can indulge without laying herself open to the imputation of being "sissy," it is tennis. In recognition of her fondness for the game, the place of honor in the National Association schedule has been conceded to the ladies, who will compete for the single and double championships for women at the grounds of the Philadelphia Cricket Club from June 3 to 14. This tournament will be followed on June 30 to July 3 by the double championships for men at the Staten Island Club grounds, the double championships of the West at Chicago from July 14 to 19, and the single championship for men at the Newport Casino August 27 to September 6. On the latter dates the playing between the winners of the two double championships for men will also be done. In every instance the matches will begin on a Monday, but the fixtures may be changed to suit the convenience of the clubs.

The tennis rage has taken hold of Americans more emphatically than any other outdoor game for both sexes that is provided in. Indeed, we make a good deal more of it here than they do in England. Besides, winter tennis is becoming very vogue, the enthusiasts being unwilling to run the risk of being beaten through lack of practice. The winter games—they can hardly be called matches—are held in available covered courts, and where there are no such courts the game of hand-ball suffices to keep the player in trim. For the men, the old-fashioned battledore and shuttlecock—really the progenitors of tennis—in the [illegible] keeping their hands in until the real work of the turfed court begins. So it happens that, unlike many other sports that belong to the summer alone, [illegible] does not stagnate in winter. A [illegible] began the [illegible] will come up [illegible] low now, tempered in hand, and in good form and playing as strong a game as though the last tourney had ended only a few days before.

His slyness is said to be not unlike that of [illegible], the famous professional [illegible] player, who has a free movement that most players envy. It is worth remembering too, that the name of Sears [illegible] among the pioneers of the game in the United States. When a tennis set was brought from England by a gentleman of Staten Island five and a half dozen years ago—the racquets light and toylike affairs, and the balls like the rubber ones children play with—Dr. R. Sears and Dr. Dwight were the first to attempt the game and both liked it so much that they soon became experts. Dwight's skill is second only to that of the ex-champion, whose older brother was instrumental in bringing the game into prominence.

Slocum, the champion, is a comparatively new man at the game, having begun as a tennis player in 1884. In that year, however, with Mr. Knapp as partner, he showed himself capable of defeating several good players and gaining a place in the final round where Sears and J. S. Clark defeated them in turn. Slocum again was defeated in 1886 and 1887, in the latter year by a very close and exciting contest in which H. A. Taylor and Slocum played five full sets with Dwight and Sears before the championship was finally decided.

The following are the championship records since 1881, in the Singles for All-Comers, the Doubles, and the Inter-Collegiate tournaments:

Yr.	Players	Match	Where Played
[illegible]	R. D. Sears	Singles—all comers	Newport

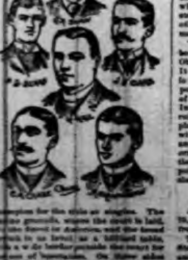
	R. P. Huntington, Jr., Yale; O. S. Campbell & A. E. Wright, Columbia	Singles & Doubles, Inter-collegiate	New Haven

Many of the crack players who contested in last year's tournaments for the championships are entered again this year. With the exception of the Newport tournament all the entries are pretty full. The double championships for men, East and West, promise to fill and to be very successful, while the singles at Newport are sure to bring out the biggest crowd of tennis lovers and the finest playing of the year. Newport makes tennis a business during tournament week. Nobody does any thing else, and all the talk among the fashionables while the playing lasts is of good form, reverse and overhand service, forehand and backhand volleys and other equally technical terms, which, however, are quite intelligible, since every body may be presumed to know the rules of the game.

The Newport tournament is really the climax of the tennis year, and all players strive to get in the best possible condition for it. It is not unlikely that there may be a little human vanity in this, as the tennis court is sure to be surrounded in fine weather by bevies of the prettiest girls imaginable, who take a deep interest in the tactics, and who, besides, are really competent to criticise, since almost all know how to play a capital game. The Newport singles this year will be fought for at the end of the season—the last week in September—which is a little later than usual. The fact that in late years little attention has been paid to other tournaments outside of Newport has stirred up the competing teams to action, and some particularly brilliant work may be expected.

Among the fine players who will be heard from in the various tournaments, Howard A. Taylor, of the New York Athletic Club, one of the rising stars of the tennis court, stands prominent. In the classification for last year, Taylor ranked very high, and it was even predicted that he would win the All-Comers, and make a strong bid for the championship. His defeat by Q. A. Shaw, of Harvard, took everybody by surprise. Shaw kept up the remarkable record, however, and did astonishingly good work, beating the best men at New York and Narragansett Pier, and making so good a showing that many were disposed to accord him second place in the ranking this year. He may give Slocum a strong fight for the championship. Two other famous players, who are sure to be heard from, are O. S. Campbell, who beat Moses, the English player, and scored a line of victories at Narragansett, and W. P. Knapp, who won a victory over Taylor at Newport. C. A. Chase, who has at one time defeated both Shaw and Campbell; R. P. Huntington, Jr., Yale's champion and a thorough expert in a dirt court, but a rather weak player on the turf, yet who has made a fine record as a good, even, consistent player; P. S. Sears, a brother of the famous Richard D. Sears, and who seems to have inherited what lovers of the game call the "tennis streak," like all his family; Valentine G. Hall, the secretary of the New York Athletic Club, a good, all-around, reliable player; Deane Miller, Clarence Hobart, Francis G. Beach, E. N. Beach, J. W. Nichols, Jr., Fred Mansfield, J. Hovey, A. L. Reeves, N. Fielding, George E. Fearing, Jr., C. E. Sands, W. B. Taylor, George A. Hurd, A. E. Wellman, J. A. Ryerson, M. K. Wright, besides the champion and the noted players already named, are among those entered in the All-Comers at the Newport Casino grounds, as competitors for the handsome prize that always accompanies the honor of holding the championship cup.

There are each year from thirty to forty entries in the All-Comers. By a system of elimination the number is reduced until it gets down to one man, who then contests with the present champion for the title at singles. The Casino grounds, where the court is laid, are the finest in America, and the ground is as level as a billiard table. With a wide border outside the court for the use of spectators. On three sides the field is shaded by trees, and with the turf in prime condition there is not a particle of dust to vex the players.



Outside the All-Comers, the two equal features are the Eastern and Western Double championships, the former at Staten Island and the latter at Chicago. Last year the Eastern Doubles could hardly be called a success. The entries were few and the weather unfavorable. The brilliant playing of Slocum, Campbell, Taylor and Valentine G. Hall, the four champions of 1888, alone redeemed the tournament. This year's entries include all four, and many new aspirants for the honors as well. Taylor and Slocum, although they think of retiring from the game this year, have pledged themselves to play, and Hall and Campbell are eager to avenge last year's defeat.

In the Western Doubles at Chicago the Chase brothers will again enter the list. Last year they won a victory over Hall and Carver, two of the finest cracks in the West, scoring in the finals 6-2, 6-1 and 6-2. The Chicago tournament will decide the competitions of the East and West at Newport and the American double championship for 1890.

Not the least interesting feature for the season is the single and double championship for women. There are several tennis clubs composed exclusively of the fair sex and belonging to the U. S. N. L. T. A., a majority of them located in New York and Philadelphia. Last year there were several exciting matches, in which the superior play of Miss [illegible] and Miss Roosevelt was quite marked. In some of the tourneys—notably at Narragansett Pier—there were rallies in which the ball crossed the net more frequently than in the best contests between men. It is generally agreed that in "lobbing" and "tossing," the ladies are the peers of the male players, as these strokes call for delicacy and deftness rather than strength.

According to the best masculine experts the ladies have been hurrying a decision in regarding lawn tennis as a game peculiarly suited to their sex. It goes quite nicely when they play in a mild, easy-going fashion, as one sees it played occasionally. But tennis is very far from being a woman's sport. As now played by amateurs all over the country it demands a degree of muscular exertion and even violence as great as base-ball. Yet a woman's confidence when she sets out to play the game is sublime. She is sure she is going to win; and she swings her drapery, tightens her hat on her particolored tennis cap, sticks her little heels deep into the turf and clutching the racquet, runs up to the net and "smashes" the ball like a little man. She can't make a long stroke, like her masculine partner, but she can smash and volley and do all the difficult things, and do them well, too. All she lacks is the physical strength and endurance that are essential to the game, especially when she has to be on her feet at it for hours on a broiling day.

"They can't play the game at all," said Secretary Hall, of the U. S. N. L. T. A. "The exercise is too violent for them. They play very nicely among themselves, however." Champion Taylor says the same thing, practically. Still the dear creatures keep it up and seem to enjoy it.

GENERAL GLEANINGS.

AUSTIN, TEX., has decided to erect the greatest dam in the United States over the Colorado river. It will cost $1,500,000, and afford 14,636 horse power.

A WIND and sand storm stopped travel on the Atlantic & Pacific railroad in New Mexico a few days ago, sand two to four feet deep lodging on the track.

THOSE who advocate spelling reform in the English language argue that one letter out of every seven used according to the present practice is absolutely useless.

A NEW YORK woman has a kennel and a dog farm, where she raises toy terriers that net $[illegible] a year, and she pays all her expenses with the proceeds of the canine sick ward.

A LIGHTED cigar stump that he was trying to save until after the performance set fire to the clothes of a man in a Newark theater gallery. They promptly put him out.

THE basin of an extinct crater has been turned into a storage reservoir on Honey Lake valley, Nev. It is one and a half miles long by one mile wide and is fed by a canal that taps Susan river.

A COMPOSITOR in the Delhi (N. Y.) Gazette office, recently set up the notice of three golden weddings. He set up the marriage notices of the same couples fifty years ago—a remarkable coincidence.

A NOVEL way of raising money to build a church has been adopted by a congregation in an Iowa town. They borrowed $120,000 and gave life insurance on a number of the members, which is to be applied on the debt as fast as death ensues.

NOT less than fifteen parishes, or one-fourth of the State of Louisiana, is affected by the present flood, and the damage is almost incalculable. In 1882 it is estimated that the loss was $15,000,000. It will probably exceed half that amount this year.

THE roads are not so straight as they might be in Redington township, Me. A man who wanted to drive two yoke of oxen to camp from the other side of Saddleback mountain, only six miles away in a direct line, had to travel fifty-eight miles before he reached the camp.

THEY have big dams in California. The one of Bear Valley, San Bernardino County, is sixty feet high and holds 10,000,000,000 gallons of water. That across the San Diego river is ninety feet high and holds 4,000,000,000 gallons, while one near Merceden is sixty feet high, one mile long and holds 3,500,000,000 gallons.

THE oddest proposition made for a long time is that of a man at Big Sandy Gap, in the wildest part of Kentucky. A railroad is building in that country and one Peter Kidd offers $500 cash for the privilege of covering the first engine and cars that get into that place with a canvas for twenty-four hours and of charging twenty-five cents admission to the mountaineers and their families for entering the tent.

A PITTSBURGH drummer went into a Cleveland shop to talk steam engines to the proprietor. A pretty little woman entered at the same time, and the drummer, supposing it was the proprietor's daughter, stepped aside and allowed her to pass. He was amazed when she opened the conversation by inquiry after the health of his steam gauges, and he nearly had a stroke of apoplexy when she took an order for a lot of steam fixtures. She smiled on the other drummer as she tripped out, and made him wish he was dead.

THE site of a prehistoric village has been discovered on the banks of the Ohio river, near Parkersburg, W. Va. It covers about four acres and the earth is thickly intermixed with fragments of pottery, streaks of ashes and fragments of bones of animals and human beings. In several places are to be seen the ruins of what seem to be ancient fire-places, containing charcoal intermixed with charred nuts of various sorts. In and around these fire-places are found ornaments and implements, such as hatchets, knives, drills, spears and arrow points, and ornaments made of bone and shells.

STRAY STATISTICS.

A PAPER in Canton estimates that 70,000 people die in China every year from fire and flood.

THERE are 2,700 courts in the United States engaged in granting divorces, and one marriage in every twenty-eight is thus annulled.

IN 1888 we paid in pensions $80,288,508.77. In 1889 we paid $87,624,779.11.

The cost of the German army, it may be interesting to note, is for this year estimated at [illegible]. Besides our pensions our army cost [illegible].

MURDER seems to be the least perilous of all the felonious pastimes known to this country. Out of 14,770 murderers who took human life in the six years from 1884 to 1889 only 331 paid the penalty of their crimes by yielding their own lives to the law.

THE population of Ireland continues to decline, and appears to have dropped some 50,000 in numbers during the past year. The lowest point in this present century has now been reached; its zenith was in 1845, when there were 8,250,000. The estimate for to-day is 3,500,000.

IN Massachusetts the birth rate of the native population is 18 per 1,000, while that of the foreign population is more than 34 per 1,000, which is considerably higher than that of any other country. The proportion of deaths among the foreign born, as compared with the natives, is 1 to 3.

THE population of Africa, according to the estimate of Stanley and other travelers, is nearly 253,023,048. Of those no less than 16,000,000 live in the Soudan, and no missionary has ever set foot in this vast region. There are 600 distinct languages in Africa, and 500 have never been reduced to writing.

LAST year the world raised 2,000,000,000 bushels of wheat. The United States grew 490,000,000 bushels; France, 306,000,000; India, 237,000,000; Russia (with Poland), 209,000,000; Portugal, 9,000,000; Denmark, 5,000,000; Spain, 73,000,000; Switzerland, 2,300,000; Germany, 84,000,000; Hungary, 92,000,000; Asia Minor, 37,000,000; Persia, 22,000,000.

THE German court is just moving into a splendid new palace at Potsdam. Emperor Wilhelm has had an electric railway constructed for bringing the dishes from the kitchen to the state dining-room. The reception and ball rooms will be the finest in Europe.

THE revolver caused more than one hundred deaths in England last year, including murders, suicides and accidents—a large increase over the number for 1888. Some of the English newspapers fear that this indicates an approach of cowboy manners.

THE astronomers of the Paris observatory are in trouble over the projected building of a railroad near their establishment. They say that the earth tremblings caused by passing trains will make their observations useless. They will try to have the Government order a change of the route.

A FRENCH millionaire spending the winter at Nice a few weeks ago ordered a coffin of a special pattern and purchased ground in a cemetery, upon which he had a vault built under his personal supervision, with room for three coffins. "I want room enough to be quite at ease," he said to a friend who asked him why he made it so large.

THE Americans who are exploring and excavating in Mesopotamia have every reason so far to be satisfied with the results. At Niffer, the Nipur of the ancients, they have laid bare the temple of Bel—a very fine one—and have found inscribed tablets which date back to about 3,750 B. C., and at Ur, in the great temple library, they have discovered many inscribed tablets, cylinders and bricks of first-rate religious and historical importance.

THE Esquimaux of Greenland can now boast of a newspaper. It is called the Reader, and the editor thereof, one Lars Moeller, sets up and prints the paper. He also designs and engraves the illustrations, which, it may be explained, are not remarkable for excellence. His printing establishment was only a make-shift, but the members of a Danish literary society, having heard of Moeller's difficulties, sent him new type, printing ink, paper and a larger press than he has been using.

THE largest telescope in the world, erected at Ealing, in England, has just been made, single-handed, by Mr. Common, the astronomer. Its whole mass weighs nearly twenty tons. The enormous iron cylinder which forms the tube is twenty feet long and eight feet in diameter, resembling the ordinary boiler of a stationary engine. Inside this is delicately distributed some ten tons of pig iron, the whole instrument going to form the most wonderful machine which the planet possesses. Through Mr. Common's telescope it will be easy to see no fewer than fifty million stars.

THERE was great excitement in Rome when Buffalo Bill accepted the challenge of the Duke di Sermoneta to have mounted by his cowboys any horse that the Duke could produce. Three horses that had run wild on the Duke's estate, because nobody could catch or bridle them, were with much difficulty brought into Rome, and after a great struggle two of the most powerful were lassoed, saddled, bridled and ridden by the cowboys in the presence of 15,000 persons, including Prince Napoleon. The famous horsemen of the Campagna are supposed to be able to ride any thing that has four feet, and that made the triumph of the cowboys especially great.

GENERAL BREVITIES.

IN the New Hebrides fifty years ago there was not a Christian. Now it is said there is not a heathen!

IN spite of the fact that modern actors are spoken of as temperate men, most of them are still partial to a drama too.

THE greatest trial of patience is a stammering barrister examining a stuttering witness in the presence of a deaf judge.

THE experiment of treating typhoid fever by prolonged immersion of the patient in water has been tried with gratifying success.

MRS. GLADSTONE'S extraordinary energy is like that of her husband, and increases with years. She has never taken a more active part in public affairs than since she passed her seventy-fifth birthday.

A MAN named Cassel, a giant above seven feet high and proportionately stout, with an enormous head, has just died in Italy. Before his death he sold his skeleton to the Anatomical Museum at Rome for $2,000.

NINETY-THREE thousand Englishmen, 37,000 Irishmen and 17,000 Scotchmen emigrated to the United States in 1889; 22,000 English, 4,000 Irish and 3,000 Scotch went to Canada; 25,000 English, 3,000 Irish and 3,000 Scotch went to Australia; while to "all other places" went 24,000 English, 2,000 Irish and 1,000 Scotch. The totals for the year show 164,000 English emigrants, 64,000 Irish and 25,000 Scotch.

A CONSIDERABLE sum of the Russian revenue is annually spent in payment for the corpses of wolves. The official estimate is that no less than 170,000 of the creatures are roaming about at large. Last year the inhabitants of the province of Vologda killed 45,000 of the brutes, and in the Casan district 31,000 were killed. The wolves destroyed 312 human beings in the course of the last twelvemonth.

ON November 1, 1887, the aggregate annual capacity of the completed furnaces in the entire country was 10,000,000 net tons, and by November 1, 1889, these figures had grown to 13,185,522 net tons, an increase of 3,177,540 tons in two years. On the first of last November there were twenty-seven new stacks under construction, and on January 1 ten additional furnaces were under way. Since then work has been commenced on not less than fifteen more furnace stacks, the larger part of them in the Southern States.

LITERARY MISCELLANY.

ROBERT BARRETT BROWNING intends to present to Balliol College, Oxford, Eng., some of the manuscripts of his father's poems.

M. G. DU MAURIER is soon to appear as an author. He is engaged in writing a novel, which he will himself illustrate in his well-known and delightful manner.

MRS. MARY J. HOLMES is one of the most indefatigable travelers among women authors. She has recently completed a year's tour of the world and is now going to Alaska.

MR. CROOK, who retired from the managing editorship of the Boston Traveler in consequence of a change in the proprietorship of the paper, has occupied the position for forty years.

THE last issue of the American Newspaper Directory shows that no less than 727 German newspapers are published in the United States and Canada. Of these 91 are issued daily and 380 weekly.

THE memoirs of Louis Kossuth are being revised by M. Ignace Helfy, a Hungarian deputy, as Kossuth confesses that in his forty-one years of exile he has not kept up with the advance of the Hungarian tongue.

THE "Century dictionary" has cost the Century Company more than $800,000. It has taken seven years of time of some of the best experts and specialists in the country, at an annual expense of not very much less than $120,000.

IT is said that Mrs. Humphry Ward has received funds to carry on her new "Toynbee Hall" religious movement for three years. After that the enterprise, which is started upon the theories set forth in "Robert Elsmere," will support itself or fail.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY, whose poems are now so popular, made his first hit by that which he entitled: "When the Frost is on the Punkin." Before that time his short poems commanded only three or four dollars. Now the same work obtains from $25 to $50.

MRS. ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS WARD has established at her summer home at Gloucester a "Fisherman's Reading Room" where the men can enjoy the daily papers and be kept from the saloons. She has also founded a "coffee room" for all the natives of Gloucester.

EDWARD BELLAMY was recently invited to lecture before the Chautauqua Assembly this summer. In his note of acceptance he said: "As for remuneration, I don't want any for talking on this subject (social theories), but as I have not made the fortune out of 'Looking Backward,' which the papers credit me with, I shall have to ask that my expenses be paid."

A MISSISSIPPI newspaper announces that ex-Governor Robert Lowry and Colonel William H. McCardle are engaged in the preparation of "A History of Mississippi, from the Earliest Period of Its Settlement by the French to the Death of Jefferson Davis." It says the latter gentleman has long been engaged in collecting material for such a history, and Governor Lowry, since his retirement from the position of chief magistrate, has had a similar work in contemplation.

SOCIETY SCRAPS.

WATCHES are worn more by women than ever before, and there were never so many varieties in shape and appearance.

PERFUMED ink is a new fad. Not satisfied with scenting her fans, her gowns, her hair, her furniture, her stationery, my lady goes further and perfumes her writing fluid so that her notes go broadcast like a waft from Araby the blest.

AT a recent "copper" wedding, the floral decorations consisted of brown foliage and golden-brown chrysanthemums set in copper stands, the wreaths on the table being tied with brown ribbon, while the cloth was of the richest white damask.

PARISIAN and English belles are said to use false necks made of wax; the sheets are softened in warm water and laid on to the flesh by skillful fingers, so cleverly that detection is almost impossible. All do not use these to hide their bones, but some utilize them as a precaution against cold draughts.

THE floral bracelet is one of the latest "fads" that has sense, beauty and poetry to recommend it. It is made of real flowers—violets or golden rod, preferably—and clasps about the fleshy part of the arm, near the shoulder. Dark, velvety violets blending into the white satin of a lovely arm is surely to be preferred to a broad band of gold thickly crusted with gems.

A FANCY for the Spanish language and literature is reigning in Washington. Classes and reading in Spanish are held frequently and many have made sufficient progress in the language to converse with the many South and Central American delegates who have been at the Capital this winter. Translations and originals of works by Spanish and Spanish-American authors are frequently called for at the book stores.

AN original entertainment, which bids fair to become very popular, is occasionally given in New York society nowadays. Invitations are issued for a play to be given by amateurs at ten o'clock in the evening, thus leaving the time devoted to dinner comparatively undisturbed. London, in order to get rid of hurried dinners in the theatrical season, is to have three or four afternoon theaters, so arranged that all the best plays and actors in turn can be seen at them.

NOT all the fads originate in the East. St. Paul, Minn., has one of its own, and there must be something attractive in it, for it has held its popularity for several months. It consists in cutting out the center of a silver dime, using the rim for a ring, and attaching to it by a little chain the round center, which is adorned by the monogram of the giver. The society young lady, the school-girl and members of the theatrical profession have been caught by this seemingly clumsy arrangement. Traveling men have bought them to send away, and business men have purchased them for gift trifles. Said a jeweler: "I have sold fifteen hundred."

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

From Committee on the Whole:

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Your committee to whom was referred the bids for building county roads, would recommend that the contract for the road through Summit be awarded to Thos. A. Nevins at 30 cents per cubic yard excavation and 65 cents per square yard for macadam; through Westfield township to Messrs Hoffman & Hatfield, 25 cents per cubic yard excavation and 80 cents per square yard telford macadam; through Clark township to B. M. & J. F. Shanley, at 40 cents per cubic yard excavation and 97 cents per square yard telford and macadam; through Rahway to B. M. & J. F. Shanley at 40 cents per cubic yard excavation and 84 cents per square yard telford and macadam; through New Providence to Thos. A. Nevins at 30 cents per cubic yard excavation and 90 cents per square yard macadam and telford, upon the above mentioned contractors signing the contracts and furnishing satisfactory bonds.

WM. T. WEST, Chairman.

GEO. KYTE, Secretary.

On motion of Freeholder Howard adopted unanimously.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder Roll:

Resolved, That the contract for building county road known as Morris and Springfield avenues, through the township of Springfield, be awarded to Thos. A. Nevins, at the rate of 30 cents per cubic yard for all excavation and 81 cents per square yard for all telford and macadam pavements, upon his signing the necessary contracts and giving the required bonds.

Freeholder West moved its adoption.

On roll call adopted unanimously.

The Eternal Will.

There is no thing we can not overcome.
Say not thy evil instinct is inherited,
Or that some trait inborn makes thy whole life forlorn,
And calls down punishment that is not merited.
Back of thy parents and grandparents lies
The great Eternal Will! That, too, is thine
Inheritance:—strong, beautiful, divine;
Sure lever of success for one who tries.
Pry up thy fault with this great lever—Will.
However deeply bedded in propensity,
However firmly set, I tell thee, firmer yet
Is that vast power that comes from Truth's immensity.
Thou art a part of that strange world, I say;
Its forces lie within thee, stronger far
Than all thy mortal sins and frailties are Believe thyself divine, and watch and pray.

There is no noble height thou canst not climb;
All triumphs may be thine in Time's futurity,
If, whatsoe'er thy fault, thou dost not faint or halt,
But lean upon the staff of God's security.
Earth has no claim the soul can not contest.
Know thyself part of the Supernal source,
And naught can stand before thy spirit's force.
The soul's divine inheritance is best.

"Somewhere."

Somewhere, somewhere, in sea or air,
By lake or mount or river,
She patiently doth wait for me;
The thought doth make one shiver.

She may be in a city's streets,
Or by a purling brook,
She may be north, she may be south;
I'll never dare to look.

I may have met her, with her talked,
She may have for me sighed;
Or possibly (I would 't were true),
She may in youth have died.

If not she sits and waits for one
Unknown, who'll share her life;
Somewhere in all this busy world
She waits—my future wife.

Summer's Eve.

Oh! the joy of well-earned leisure,
When days seem made for pleasure,
And the peaceful hush of nature all the weary being fills;
When dear friends go forth together
In the golden August weather,
To the ocean or the moorland, or the everlasting hills.

Some, whose work hath been with rigor,
Gather strength and joy and vigor,
On the breezy mountain summit, free as birds that sing and soar;
Others in the mellow gloaming
Through the harvest fields are roaming,
Or rejoicing in the ripple of the salt tide on the shore.

There is merry childish laughter
Where the wavelets, following after
Scatter in a thousand sparkles round the feet that dance with glee.
There is silence deep and tender
Where, far off, the shadows splendor
Shines an aftermath of glory on the meadows of the sea.

Sweet is rest, our labor ended,
By such joy and peace attended,
When the summer leans to autumn and the light is in the West;
All the fever of endeavor
Seems to pass away forever,
And life's many cares and troubles like the great sea sink to rest.

Enumerate!

The light of morn was breaking fast,
When through the streets of Gotham passed
A youth, who bore this strange device,
Set in a precious ring of ice—
Enumerate!

"Try not the flats," the old man said;
"They'll pour hot water on thy head!"
The young man bounded up the stairs:
"I'll show them there is one who dares
Enumerate!"

"Oh, stay," the ancient maiden said,
"Oh, ask me not why I'm not wed."
The hero smiled—quoth he: "Do you
Not rank in age at forty-two?
"Enumerate!"

At evening, on the dumping-ground,
A young man by a cop was found—
A coal-hod crowned his swollen pate,
And he who ran read on his slate,
"Enumerate!"

The Editor's Woes.

Oh! sad, indeed, is the editor's lot,
It is full of grief and pain,
Each day he is forced to endure enough
To drive most men insane;
With a host of nuisances, beats and bores
He is constantly beset.
From the knave who borrows his pet exchange
To the dude with the cigarette.
There's the crank subscriber who makes a row
When his paper is delayed,
And who never offers the least excuse
When his bill remains unpaid;
And the passion poet with soothing soul,
Who would set the world aflame,
And the bad, bad man with the thirst for gore
Who prates of an injured name.
Yes, this world is far from a bower of peace
To the editor, poor man,
And he finds it hard to exist at all,
No matter how he may plan,
For the one who gives him a kindly word
There's a home beyond the skies,
And abundant entrance into the gates
Of eternal Paradise.
—Frank B. Welch, in Western Journalist.

Fame.

Write thou thy name in stone or hardened brass
As years roll on, in time will come to pass
A day when one thy monument will see,
And ask what none can answer: Who was he?
And yet, perchance, in him who asks, unknown
May bloom a precious seed which thou hadst sown,
That gives him strength to bear his daily part.
And think you, which is best? Ask thou thy heart.

Her Weak Point.

She could figure to a fraction the exact aesthetic action of each prismatic shading down to infinite detail.
Her taste was undisputed and 'twas everywhere reputed that in color combinations she was never known to fail.
She'd expend upon a ribbon all the energy of Gibbon, and to her a simple threading would transform the face of day.
In the art of woman's dressing she was great beyond expressing; but she bought her hub a necktie and he fainted dead away.

An Important Question.

'Tis love that makes us squander money buying bon bons and ice cream;
'Tis love that makes us through life's span all wish to drive a double team.
'Tis love that makes us long to own a cosy cot and plot of ground,
And some enthusiasts declare 'tis love that makes the world go 'round.

'Tis love that makes us all believe a charming mate would be the thing;
'Tis love that turns the young man's fancy girl-ward in the gentle spring.
Ah! what is it that closely draws us heart to heart? 'Tis love, of course!
But what is it makes scores of couples hanker after a divorce?
—Chicago Post.

Worth While.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows by like a song;
But the man worth while is one who will smile
When every thing goes dead wrong.
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with the years,
And the smile that is worth the praises of earth
Is the smile that shines through tears.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in Woman's Journal.

BRIGHT BREVITIES.

SILENCE is golden. Of course it is the other fellow's silence that is meant.

WHEN a short man falls in love with a tall girl, he usually buys a stove-pipe hat.

SUCCESS, in the majority of instances, depends on knowing how long it takes to succeed.

A POOR girl has to be awfully good looking to be pretty, and a rich girl has to be awfully homely to be ugly.

DIGNITY is a good thing; but if you're in the rear of a big crowd and wish to see the procession, don't stand on it. Get on a barrel.

IT is one great cause of trouble in this world that the person who talks is thinking of one thing and the person who listens is thinking of another.

THE spendthrift young man is not unlike a buzz-saw; he scatters a good deal of dust while running around and has nothing but his board to show for it.

BECAUSE a young lady loves a young gentleman is one reason why she should marry him. There may be a hundred reasons why she should not marry him.

TAKE all admonitions thankfully, in what time or place so ever given; but afterward, not being culpable, take a time or place more convenient to let him know it who gave them.

IN nature the valuable and the beautiful usually go hand-in-hand, and if we do not always trace their union it is because our limited experience has not yet fathomed all her secrets.

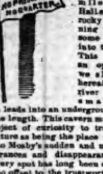
THE GUERILLA'S CAVERN.

Mosby's Underground Retreat in the Shenandoah Valley.

An Unpublished Romance of the War.

The Great Cave on the Shenandoah River Above Hallstown—John Lozier's Story of the Strange Disappearances of the Guerilla Chief and of the Discovery of His Hiding-Place—Grant's Unpublished Order to Sheridan—"Burn the Valley and Leave It in Such a Condition That a Crow Flying Over and Wanting to Live Must Carry His Rations With Him."—The Black Muzzle on the Blue Coat.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]



HERE lies on the right bank of the Shenandoah river, going south ward, about eight miles above Hallstown, a rocky bluff, running back for some distance into the valley. This bluff has an opening as we shall see hereafter on the river through a small cone which leads into an underground cavern of some length. This cavern may become an object of curiosity to travelers in the future as being the place where the clew to Mosby's sudden and mysterious appearances and disappearances about that very spot has long been concealed. It is no offset to the trustworthy source whence the story connected with this rocky cavern comes, that it comes out now for the first time after all these years.

A strange mystery hangs about Mosby. He was the spectre-chief of the Shenandoah. The caves of the valley for which it is celebrated have left their dark, mysterious furtivenesses upon him.

At the breaking out of the war he was about thirty-five years of age. He stood in his stockings about five feet seven, had a wiry, slender form, small hands and feet, black hair, gray eyes, a cuttingly sharp aquiline face, a bold Roman nose and weighed about one hundred and thirty pounds. He was a fine horseman.

In view of the mysteriousness that has always hung about his movements, the following thrilling and trustworthy story, so far certainly as he is concerned, told by the assistant surgeon of the First New York Veteran Cavalry, and an eye witness to nearly all of the facts which he narrates will be intensely interesting. John Lozier, the author of the story, is a son of John Lozier, who constructed the New York viaduct and whose name is cut on the stonework at its mouth.

He himself was a graduate of the Columbia College, an assistant surgeon in the First N. Y. Veteran Cavalry, which was the first cavalry regiment raised for the war. He is an able, upright and truthful man, who has the confidence and respect of all who know him. His statement, if we mistake not, will be valuable in more particulars than one in the make-up of history, inasmuch as it gives for the first time a complete and reliable account of the hiding-place of the guerilla chief as well as the reason for his often strange and sudden disappearance when pursued by Union soldiers. The story as told by Surgeon Lozier is as follows:

"In '64 a band of guerillas to the number of perhaps eight hundred men appeared in the valley of the Shenandoah. They were all of them well mounted, some of them splendidly. They were a mixed company of men. Many of them came out of the valley and operated about their own homes. They were all under the command of Mosby. They carried beside the rebel flag a white flag with a black skull and bones on it. Above this grim coat-of-arms at the top of the flag were the words: "Valley District," giving it a semi-official character. At the bottom were the words, written in two short lines one above the other: "No Prisoners. No Quarter." This flag was a headquarters flag and was frequently seen by our men.

This body of men scouted and swept the valley from Harper's Ferry to Lynchburg, a distance of one hundred and twenty miles. They took no prisoners. They never loaded themselves with that kind of cargo. On one occasion alone, seven men were brought in to me and buried. All these men were shot through the body. The black mark of the muzzle was on the blue coat of every one of them, and the coat was burnt, showing that the gun was put close to the coat when it was fired. I speak of that which I have seen.

This body of men hung about us and harassed us in every way possible. Probably in our campaign with them we lost two or three times as many men as they did. Sometimes Mosby would be heard from at four widely remote places on the same night.

The guerillas were all ages—beardless boys, youths, and some old graybeards. They were of different grades and professions. Some were farmers, some mechanics, some lawyers, some doctors, some working-men. They made their attacks both by day and by night. They were good shots and good horsemen. They carried seven-shooting carbines, a sabre and a brace of pistols.

'At last, after years of annoyance to the Union army, it was determined to put an end to it all. For this purpose, a cavalry force of five regiments, detailed from the regular Union cavalry, consisting of the First New York Veteran Cavalry, the Seventh West Virginia Cavalry, the First New York Lincoln Cavalry, the Twelfth Pennsylvania Cavalry, and the Second New York Veteran Cavalry, was put under command of Brigadier-General Taylor, of Syracuse, with orders to crush out Mosby. This force numbered in the neighborhood of five thousand men. They were well mounted. They, too, as an act of retaliation in some of their skirmishes, hoisted a flag similar to Mosby's, with the same devices upon it. They were called the "Shenandoah Rangers." They were well mounted and armed to the teeth.

This force of cavalry scoured and swept the valley. Sometimes they would sight Mosby, but as soon as they pursued he disappeared on the spot, and as soon as they drew off down the valley he reappeared ready for another brush. He had the help of the valley people. He knew the ground.

Colonel Taylor worked hard at the head of the Rangers. But Mosby was still there, eluding all efforts to find his hiding-place. At last General Grant got tired of the scandal of the Shenandoah valley. It was then that he issued his famous order to Sheridan, here published for the first time. "Burn the valley and leave it in such a condition that a crow flying over and wanting to live must carry his rations with him." This order, said the surgeon, was repeated to me word for word by the surgeon in the Maryland Heights Hospital, who heard Grant give the order to Sheridan. I give it literally, just as it came from his mouth, just as he said it came from the mouth of Grant, word for word. Some people in the South have foolishly supposed that the burning of the valley was Phil. Sheridan's doings. It is utterly without foundation in fact. Sheridan would not have taken upon himself the responsibility of such an act. It was the act of Grant.

Preparations were immediately made to carry out this terrible order. I was one of the burning party. I had met Mosby three times. Once at Snickers gap. Once about twelve miles above Snickers gap, and once near Hallstown, where John Brown was hung.

I know all that took place at that time along the line of march. It was a scene that no man who saw can ever forget. We began at Harper's Ferry and we burnt the valley clean down to Lynchburg. The night before the order from Grant to Sheridan actually reached us, although we were ordered to be ready to begin the burning early next morning, and knew that it was on the way, the boys got on a grand spree. Some whisky had got into camp somehow, and contrary to orders they had got hold of it. That night at midnight they burned Gov. Letcher's fine mansion. It was the first house burned in the valley. There was no one in the house. The servants, negroes, horses and most of the costly furniture had gone, but there were still some things of value left. The people about the place had taken the warning given to them and precipitately fled. They set fire to the stately edifice with torches.

The flames as they rose up to the roof shed a fierce, strange, nocturnal splendor on the tops of the tall palmettos, and threw flying gleams of portent light on the ample lawn. The Shenandoah Rangers, for such we still were, then formed a circle from a part of their number about the fated house, and the "blue devils" danced and shouted and sung in the yellow light, as they took hold of hands, with hoarse wild voices until, at last, the splendid old mansion toppled and crashed down into a mass of charred, unsightly ruins. I took no part in that transaction, thank Heaven! The burning of the valley had begun. For days and days we swept slowly down the trend of that lovely valley, waving with its white Tuscarora flint corn, every stalk eighteen feet high, and every ear twenty-five inches long and twelves inches round. We burned every hut, every cabin, every workingman's house, every splendid manor, every tobacco factory, every shop, every building of any kind from mountain range to mountain range. We burned away the trees, the shrubberies, the beautiful landscape gardens and groves, and left that lovely valley a charred waste of blighted scenes and blackened stumps.

If there was a single thing overlooked by the soldiers on the way down it was burned on the way back. The valley was shrouded in gloom. For weeks a black, heavy pall of smoke hung over it so thick that you could not see the sun through it.

One of the most pathetic natural results of the burning of the valley was the varied sound of the bird-songs in the burnt district. The nests of these birds had all been burned up in the trees and shrubbery where they had built and brooded. Their songs once so happy and cheerful were now notably sad, querulous and dejected. Human beings could not have keened more sorrowfully a wake for the dead. Their broods were burned up. Formerly in the valley when the bugle sounded its different calls as for example: "Boots and saddles," "the reveille," there were birds who in flageolet tones seemed to mock back mirthfully the sound of the sergeant bugler. The Virginia cardinal with his military air, his fierce pointed crest, his aristocratic step and his blood-stained regimentals, a true F. F. V., mocked back the roll-call with measured count. The mocking bird was all about and said a good many things over after the soldiers. The red thrush along the edge of the wood was facetious at every turn. But on the way back after the burning the songs of these birds, such of them as were left or lingered about still looking for their dead, had changed to inexpressible sadness. The notes of one bird in particular whose name I do not know, who formerly imitated very cleverly the silver sounds of the bugle in its joyous calls, now repeated over and over again in a soft summoning tone a strain of minor music which sounded not unlike the "sick call" of the bugle. The birds were as human as the people of the valley in bewailing their loss. These birds hung about the fringes of the mountain sides and the river.

One morning, while I was dressing a wound, a surgeon came to me and said: "If you want to see something you'll never forget, come with me."

I rose and went out of the building with him. Suddenly I stopped as a scene stretched before me that was simply appalling. In a space that spread out over an area of probably eighty or a hundred acres were huddled together in every posture, condition, phase of abject human misery, the refugees from the charred district. They had been burned out of house and home, and in their utter helplessness they had turned their steps toward the North, and sought succor from the very men who had lit their ruins with their own hands. It was an autumn day. A flurry of snow was falling. Soon it fell in sleet and froze as it fell, crusting the hands and faces of the crowd and sealing misery with the coldness of the sepulcher. There, side by side, huddled in indiscriminate promiscuity of condition, were negroes of all ages, from the little black child at its mother's breast to the buxom mulatto or the aged, trembling slave with both hands clasped in prayer. There, seated on the ground, under the open firmament, were young girls who had never washed a handkerchief, and delicate ladies who were the first daughters of the South. They had there all kinds of vehicles, from the mud-spattered old carryall to the elegant drag with its gaunt horses and lank coach-dogs. Some were crying, some were praying, some wailing, some moaning, some sleeping, some staring wildly about as if in the dementia of an ill-starred dream, some sick and some dying, and nothing over them but the roof of the firmament. But all of them were hungry, all were cold, all were homeless.

MOSBY'S UNDERGROUND RETREAT.

And yet there was pride in all that misery, and none moved about so quietly, so resolutely, so defiantly under that leaden sky as those delicate high-born Southern ladies. The Northern soldiers did all they could for them. They lent them their tents. They started cook houses. They spread cots and mattresses on the ground for them to sleep on. They brought them the best fare they could on which they themselves had to subsist, but at best it was poor enough. Raw pork, hard tack and hominy on tin plates. That was the bill of fare. The only courses on that broad table at that banquet of doom were the water courses of the rain. At last these people were all given a free pass on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to go as far as they chose East or West and a few dollars in money and three days rations in a haversack for each. Slowly that vast sad strange crowd thinned out and faded away. But the scenes and the sayings beggar description. One elegant lady on being handed her pass and begged to go as she moved toward the train with her little child clasped in her arms, said: "Go? Where shall I go? I may go to the end of the road, but what then? I have no home, no friends. My home was in the valley. My people are all gone."

But out of the embers of the burnt valley there was to come forth, and that by a rude accident, a romance that should rival the legend of the gnomes. The valley has been burned. The manors have been swept away. The plantations have been desolated. The dwellers in that lonely vale have been ruthlessly and remorselessly driven forth from their ravaged homes. But Mosby has not been found. His cavalry had not capitulated. His hiding place had not been tracked. In short, whether he was concealed in the clouds on Louden Heights, or beneath the dusky gorge of the Louray, or in the canes of the Shenandoah, or in a tunnel under the head of the river, was still just as strange and as strong a mystery as at the beginning of the war. One thing was certain. He was somewhere. Where was he? All sorts of hobgoblins took shape among the soldiers and bewitched the angry air. One man had seen him at night swimming his horse across the river. Another waving his ghastly flag on a towering cliff. Still another vanishing suddenly into thin air at a picket shot or a bugle puff. All these superstitious stories amounted to nothing.

A short distance up the valley there stood a planter's house. It stood alone. It was built of wood, was of generous size and large enough to accommodate many persons. It stood on the edge of a large plantation, in the midst of large grounds, covered with dense shrubbery through which wound paths. This house was for the most part concealed from the view of a person approaching it by large old trees and thick foliage. It was a lonely spot. It stood about two hundred feet from the bank of the Shenandoah river and but a short distance from the river road, and commanded from its upper rooms a wide and lovely view of the water as it went by.

One day not long after the burning of the valley a small inspecting squad of cavalry men of the Union army rode by the charred ruins of this lonely house. The trees were burnt stumps. The spot was a heap of ashes that the wind had fingered. One of this mounted squad happening to ride across a part of the ashy debris was suddenly halted by a singular accident and obliged to dismount. On alighting on the ground he discovered that the hind legs of his horse had sunk through a half charred trap-door covered with ashes. Calling to his comrades he finally succeeded with their assistance in extricating his horse from the trap through which he had broken, when to his amazement he found a wooden staircase winding down into a subterranean opening.

It was such an unusual and unheard-of arrangement in that southern country, and breathed with so cold and suggestive a suspicion upon the little group, that they concluded, after examing the aperture closely, to descend. Taking out their match-boxes they struck a light, and proceeded to explore the mysterious vaults that frowned at them below the trap which they had just lifted.

As they wound down the wooden staircase they found below a rocky strata a cool cavern seventy feet deep, thirty feet wide and about two hundred feet long, having an opening on the Shenandoah under a bluff. This cavern was still partially strewn with straw which had undoubtedly been used as bedding for horses, and was divided off, by slanting poles in some instances swung by ropes from the top of the cavern, into stalls for horses. In several of these stalls rude boxes were placed at their head and stray remnants of hay were discovered, showing plainly that a large number of horses had been quartered there. The cavern was ventilated at intervals by wooden shafts running up to the roots of trees and arranged in such a way as to defy detection. On the walls of this cavern hung large iron rings, showing plainly that the cave had been lit by lanterns. The stable surely could not be that of a private house. There were stalls enough in it to hold easily between two and three hundred horses and more, if crowded.

Following the cavern along, they came at length to the goole or throat of the cave that opens out on the river. This opening was obscured by well-arranged rocks, interlacing vines and shrubbery on its banks. It was narrow and only wide enough for one horseman to enter at a time. The water at the mouth of the cave was about three feet deep. The mystery of Mosby's sudden disappearance was solved. It was at this very spot that he had often been seen suddenly to disappear. Could there be devised a more masterly retreat? An underground stable, out of which at one end a stairway should lead up into a house, which was undoubtedly Mosby's headquarters, where he and his officers drank their healths to those who were looking all about for their horses just over their heads, planned their nightly attacks, slept with their guards posted about them, and laughed, as well they might, at the long joke which they had played upon the whole Northern army. Was there ever any thing like it? Was the sensation that Napoleon flung over the Alps half so foiling a tactic? To fight, to feel, to hang on the outskirts of an enemy, and, after seducing him for miles in weary pursuit, suddenly to disappear, and as suddenly to feed, to sleep, to hear nothing of the sounds of war save muffled footsteps scurrying overhead. What a jocułose tactic! And still what could possibly be better?

Suppose the house is surprised. The staircase opens and the trap in the cellar closes on it tightly. Who would dream of a trap there? But suppose a human ferret or bloodhound should scent the fine line and lift the trap. What of it? The whole file of two hundred horse in an instant could pass out of the other end and swim the river, or rush up on Loudon Heights. Or the riders could leave their horses and drop down the Shenandoah by boat to a place of safety, or better yet, they could stand in the dark of the cavern and pick off all who could possibly come down that staircase one by one, killing all, and losing none. And they could do the same thing at the other end, where only one could enter at a time. What a place in the hot summer was that river, at the very mouth of that cavern, to lead horses to water. How easy of transportation was hay, or vats or corn, or straw, or forage generally. The bales all came down the river in the night by boat, and were quietly towed right in through the mouth of the cave into the cave stable. And best of all, it was a threadless clue.

There were no prints either going out or coming in, for as fast as they were made the tracks of the horses' hoofs were all washed away by three feet of flowing water. And that opening on the river. Would any human being suspect it unless his attention was called to it? Nay, would he suspect it then? For a person passing by it in a boat would think it but a small cave between the rocks, covered with shrubbery and vines looking like many other caves along the river.

From all that I have heard and seen I have very little doubt but that investigation would lead to the discovery of similar cavalry quarters underground on Louden Heights and also in the Louray valley. At both these spots about the mouth of these caves the appearances and disappearances of Mosby's men, were of the same sudden and unaccountable character. It was impossible to follow Mosby up the narrow passes and track him to his rocky lair from the fact that as you gained the top of the height you would have been picked off by the sharpshooters. It was impregnable.

When Mosby finally surrendered it was in the valley where he had been a scout. His own inclination was not to surrender. He did so reluctantly. He surrendered with what remained of his old command, viz., about four hundred men, all dressed in new rebel uniforms. He surrendered under the oath administered to soldiers of the regular army, and passed sullenly away.

MILLER HAGEMAN.

THE LITERARY WORLD.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY'S poems bring him from twenty-five to fifty dollars each.

PRINCE BISMARCK has declined numerous offers from English and American publishers for his memoirs.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES believes in reading many books by proxy, particularly the big, thick volumes printed in small type.

EDMUND GOSSE, the famous English critic, says of Tolstoi's last novel, "Kreutzer Sonata," that it is a book which no sane man should have written: All England professes to be horrified by the book.

LORD TENNYSON has yielded to a request to recite his "Charge of the Light Brigade" and parts of "The Princess" in an Edison Phonograph. His son says the tones of the poet's voice as heard through the tubes were reproduced with startling fidelity.

ALL France is laughing over the following announcement that lately appeared in one of the journals: "M. Ernest Zola, inventor of the spring handcuffs, notifies his customers that he has nothing in common with his namesake, Emil Zola, writer."

LORD COLERIDGE doesn't like the editor of the present day. He thinks the editor doesn't know much. "In former times," he asserts, "knowledge was wider, deeper and more exact, and imparted with much more force, width and power than in the present day."

MR. W. D. HOWELLS said lately to a friend in speaking of Henry James' stories: "I hesitated and debated a long time before I accepted them, because I did not think they would be popular. However, I've never been sorry that I didn't send them back, as I was more than half inclined to do at one time."

MR. GLADSTONE is said to be a confirmed "book-staller." To escape being mobbed when on his excursions "the seediest of coats and hats are usually brought into use." Only a few weeks ago, when so disguised, he spent considerable time in selecting a number of volumes from a stand in New Oxford street, London, without being recognized.

LUDOVIC HALEVY, member of the French Academy and author of many successful books and plays, says that his daughter lamented to him that she had never read a line that he had written, for the parental edict had gone forth to that effect. Moved by her complaints, he set himself to write a story for her especial behoof, and the result was "The Abbe Constantine."

OLIVE LOGAN, who now lives in London, has been chosen a member of a Society of Authors, of which Tennyson is the president and Walter Besant the secretary. This society gave a dinner to Mrs. Burnett when she achieved her triumph in the Fauntleroy litigation. Olive Logan was present and made a little speech, which, it is said, created such a favorable impression that she was elected to membership at the first vacancy.

AUSTIN DOBSON, the poet, was born in Plymouth, England, in 1840, and was intended to be an engineer. At least that is what his parents, not nature, had planned for him. At the age of sixteen, however, he entered the civil service, and soon after began writing. Mr. Dobson's prose writings, chiefly studies of eighteenth century literature, are noteworthy for careful research and a finished style that show the result of having written much polished verse.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

MUCH time is necessary to know people thoroughly.

ANGER makes dull men witty but keeps them poor.

MAN is cold as ice to truth; but hot as fire to falsehood.

MOST people would succeed in small things if they were not troubled with great ambitions.

GOOD fortune seldom comes pure and single, unattended by some troublesome or unexpected circumstance.

IN art, oratory, music, mere loudness or demonstration is not a sign of strength; it is rather proof of weakness.

A POMPOUS man, when he smiles at a jest, takes more credit to himself for his appreciation of the joke than he allows to the wit for uttering it.

THE living get credit for what they might be quite as much as for what they are. Posterity judges a man by the best rather than the average of his attainment.

WHEN we have reached middle life we say of ourselves, if only we had our lives to live over again. The wish is an idle one, but it is left us to make a good use of the years that remain to us. Whether many or few, they may be honorable.

PATRIOTISM.

On Thursday of last week a loyal celebration of [illegible] occurred at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, under the auspices of the Patriotic Order of the Sons of America. It was held as a memorial encampment of the Continental Forces at that spot, under the immediate command of General Washington, from December, 1777 to June 19, 1778, when the army broke camp and resumed active service in the field.

Valley Forge furnishes an important page of history.

The Winter of 1777-8 was bitterly cold and inclement, and the poor soldiers of Independence suffered terribly for want of adequate supplies and from exposure and sickness.

But they faltered not.

It was also the darkest era in the Revolutionary struggle. Military disaster had followed the depleted battalions of Washington, and gloom hung so heavy that the hearts of many sturdy patriots trembled with fear.

But the great commander, God-trusting and hopeful, stood undismayed.

It was at Valley Forge that Washington, unseen as he supposed by mortal eye, in fervent [illegible], on the bended knee of prayer entreated an Almighty power to succor the bleeding cause of Freedom.

What a grand remembrance!

And it was there that a Quaker farmer, strolling through the woods chanced to see the reverent attitude of Washington, and pausing, heard his fervent supplication. Thoughtfully returning home, the farmer remarked to his wife—"American Independence will triumph, for I have witnessed a touching incident, seen the great and good man, George Washington, kneeling on the snowy ground, and with [illegible] fervor asking Heaven for succor and success."

That prediction was fulfilled.

The prayer of Washington was answered.

From the evacuation of Valley Forge substantial victories clustered on Washington and his men, the prospect of Independence brightened, murky clouds rolled away, until finally at Yorktown—

[illegible]

It is well to publicly commemorate events connected with the American Revolution, because thereby the flame of patriotism can be kept from flickering.

To carefully study and celebrate the varied history of the contest which ended in the establishment of our National Independence, from the [illegible] British tea overboard in Boston harbor, to the surrender of Cornwallis on the soil of Virginia, is a duty incumbent upon Americans—[illegible] both old and young.

To honor the memory of those illustrious patriots who, in camp and on field, achieved for us the blessings of civil and religious liberty, is to discharge a debt of gratitude.

It is patriotism.

Rumor says President Harrison does not desire a renomination. He need not worry himself about that. A Democrat will take possession of the office March 4, 1893.

A Corrupt Practices Act, designed to prevent the improper use of money in elections, was defeated by the Republicans of Massachusetts, only three Republican Senators voting with the Democrats in its favor.

The Harrison administration came into power with some seventy million dollars surplus in the treasury. The way a Republican Congress is squandering the public money, right and left, threatens the coming of a vast deficiency. That will prove a fatal rock. No political party can be financially profligate and escape shipwreck. Down she will go.

Secretary Blaine in submitting an official report to Congress on the doings of the recent convention at Washington of delegates from the South American Republics, argued strongly in favor of reciprocity, or, correctly speaking, of free trade with those countries, and expressed no love for the absurd tariff scheme of Mr. McKinley. Can it be that Mr. Blaine has become a tariff reformer? Truth is mighty to convince men of intelligence and lead them from the paths of error.

A Tour of the Plainfield Bicyclers.

It has long been the desire of the members of the Plainfield Bicycle club to arrange for a tour embracing several days. Owing, however, to the holidays coming slowly, the chance has only now presented itself, and three days easy touring around Boston and vicinity has been arranged for.

The party will leave New York on Thursday, July 3 (club meets July 2) by the Fall River Line, foot of Murray street, at 5:30 p. m., and return by same steamer on Sunday, July 6. Those wishing to avail themselves of this tour will kindly notify Captain F. L. C. Martin by June 27, so that he can make the necessary arrangements. The entire cost will be about $25.

The [illegible] Art in [illegible].

Saturday night about 11 o'clock John Pfeifer, the [illegible], a well known house and carpet cleaner, was knocked down on the platform of the Central Railroad passenger station at Westfield, and rolled off the platform with a thud. The assailant was a negro named Jackson, [illegible] pugilist; and the provocation was offensive language used by Pfeifer respecting Jackson. The blow was on the left cheek of Pfeifer and [illegible] the face. Pfeifer [illegible] promptly and went for Jackson, [illegible] and throwing him. Pfeifer [illegible] Tom Casey and Tom Kelly, [illegible] of Erin, were on the spot and [illegible] Pfeifer off, otherwise the darkey would have been pommelled to a finish.

Pfeifer went to the Empire and entered a formal complaint against Jackson, who will probably be sent up for assault and battery. Several persons who witnessed the assault regard it as a gross breach of the peace, and think that, in the interest of law and order, Jackson should be punished to the full extent of the statute. Pfeifer is a light weight, and apparently had no warning of the ugly blow. Pfeifer is a [illegible] and the colored man a [illegible]. Pfeifer was sober, but Jackson [illegible].

"Doctor [illegible] and I are old friends [illegible] fulfilled all the [illegible] of it at my hands," is the [illegible] of a well-known physician.

THE BORROWER'S SHARE.

[illegible]

It is about time the authorities of North Plainfield "got a move on them," as the boys say. The house of ill fame that yet exists and seems to prosper in the Borough, must go. For weeks the proprietor has been allowed to pursue his unholy trade unmolested, [illegible] and to violate every written and unwritten law that protects the morals and position for the good of the people. This immunity has made him bold, and to his other crimes he has now added that of procurer.

In the beginning there was, and is yet, two boarders at the house, but generous patronage induced the proprietor to secure more guests. Monday he went to the employment agency, at the corner of Clinton and Stanton streets, New York, and said he wanted a first-class cook for a wealthy family in Plainfield. Pretty Anna Feld pleased his eye. She is about 25 years of age, handsome in figure, dressed with a great deal of taste, and is engaged to a gentleman of Newark. The man offered her such an easy place with large wages, and so "pictured the advantages of Plainfield as a residence place, that she went to her home at 151 Stanton street, packed up her clothes at once and brought them with her that afternoon when she came to this city and was driven to the North Plainfield resort.

In a very few minutes Anna was convinced of the nature of the house and the kind of position offered her. She demanded to be taken back at once. Recognizing the restraint of the woman, and fearing she might arouse the neighbors or make a complaint herself, the man soon ceased his efforts at persuasion and brought her to Plainfield, where she engaged supper and lodging for the night. The man wrote on the register opposite the number of her room, "Charles Smith and wife, Cooper city," and then left. The hotel employees testify that nobody entered the room but the woman.

By the 5:38 train the next morning, Miss Feld left for New York city, much shocked mentally and physically by the terrible experience she had passed through. With many a shudder she told Officer Conney the story of her falling into the villain's clutches and her fortunate escape. It has all been reported to Capt. Grant, and if the matter was within his jurisdiction something would be done at once. It seems as if evidence of an illegal sale of liquor and the keeping of a disorderly house, might be easily procured. Certainly sufficient for a charge before a Justice, an arrest and a consequent notoriety that would frighten patrons from frequenting the place, and cause its tenants to leave for a cooler neighborhood.

Transfer of Real Estate.

The following transfers have recently been made:

[illegible] of Plainfield, to [illegible], Plainfield, lot on [illegible] street, that city, 30x170 ..... $1

[illegible] and wife of North Plainfield, to [illegible] of Plainfield, land on [illegible] side of [illegible] 2,400

[illegible] and wife of Fanwood, to Warren [illegible] of Fanwood, [illegible] acres of land on road leading from Scotch Plains to Rahway $1,800

Time Table Changes.

The new schedule of the Central railroad, that went into effect Sunday, is published in full on the last page of this issue. The changes of importance to Press readers are: two new afternoon trains to New York, leaving Plainfield at 1:41 and 3:56. The Sunday evening train from this city to New York, is changed from 9:22 to 10:02, and there is added an additional train from New York on Sunday evenings, at 9 o'clock.

The 2:07 p. m. train from Plainfield daily, now carries a through coach for Long Branch, Ocean Grove, etc. The 8:27, 10:05 and 11:20 a. m. trains daily, also connect for these places.

An Outing With the Camera Club.

At a meeting of the Plainfield Camera Club, held June 17, it was decided to hold an "Outing" on Saturday, July 5. It is proposed that the members take a stage from the club house at 9:30 a. m.

The route proposed is through Washington Valley and Warrenville, South and around through the notch at Chimney Rock. Stops will be made en route for any who may wish to make photographs, and lunch will be eaten at Chimney Rock Grove. Members are privileged to invite any of their family or lady and gentleman friends that may be interested in photograph work. The pro rata expense will be light—not over 75 cents.

It is very necessary that the committee should know at an early date just how many to provide for in the way of conveyance, therefore all persons proposing to participate will please notify any of the members of the committee not later than next Saturday. The committee consists of: Messrs Harold Serrell, R. J. Rothell, and O. S. Teal.

For the Base Ball Championship of the State.

The managers of the Crescent League ball team have arranged for games with all the representative clubs of New Jersey so that at the end of the season the record will show who are the State champions. Already New Brunswick's big team has fallen before the Crescents, the N. J. A. C., have confessed they are no match for Plainfield, and Somerville's nine has proved by their talk and walk, they are afraid.

Having thus destroyed all hope that New Brunswick, Bergen Point or Somerville might have had on the State Championship, the Crescents will proceed to also beat out of sight, if they can, other claimants. Next Saturday will witness another game for the championship of New Jersey, on the Crescent League grounds. The visitors will be the best nine the city of Trenton can send. It promises to be a good game.

On July 9, the Newark League team will play here, and a date is being arranged with the Jersey Citys. The close of the season will that show how near the top the Plainfield team ranks in New Jersey.

Fairview Cemetery of Westfield and the New Lodge House.

The Trustees of Fairview Cemetery, through their committee, W. D. Wood, Benjamin F. Ham and Gideon E. Ludlow, gave out the contract for a new lodge House Monday night at a special meeting. J. R. Wilcox, carpenter and builder, has the contract. The contractor takes the old building which he is to move off, in part payment, and is to receive $3,190 in cash besides. Frank T. Lent, C. E., who has his office in Lowe's new block, is the architect.

Mr. Wood in addressing the Board of Trustees respecting the new lodge said: "Fairview Cemetery has never yet undertaken anything that did not result in success. We have built a receiving vault at a large expense; macadamized our drives; improved our parks; planted shade and ornamental trees; graded our front and done many other improvements. They all promote the sale of [illegible] and the prosperity of the Association. Let us have a first class lodge and let every other improvement be first class."

Fairview is the burial place of Cranford as well as Westfield. It is nonsectarian and has the support of every Protestant denomination in the two townships. It has natural advantages equal to any in the country, and the improvements, and those of individuals, as well as those of the trustees, are of a high order.

"CHIEF DOANE'S SON."

A Clever Young Swindler is an Introducer of Himself About the Country, With Success.

Late last Saturday afternoon, Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street, was called to the telephone by Dr. Noah Sanborn, of Bayonne. The doctor asked if she had a son about 20 years of age, and upon being answered in the affirmative stated that he had just given him some money to pay his fare home. Mrs. Doane said it could not be her son as he had money besides a commutation ticket; but the Doctor assured her that it was all right, that the boy had called on him, stated he was out of work and just wanted enough to get to Plainfield. As Mrs. Doane's son would answer the description in many ways, she was much worried and sent at once for her husband, Chief Doane, who solved the mystery immediately.

The night before, young Doane, who was sitting in the library reading, heard a shuffling of feet on the back stoop. He went to the door and a strange man pushed himself into the house with the remark, "I'm all right, young fellow!" Doane did not think so, however, and pushed the intruder out again and locked the door. He then told his mother who going to the door inquired what the man wanted. He answered that he was in a strange place, without anything to eat and wanted a night's lodging. Mrs. Doane told him to go to the front door, which she opened and let him in.

Young Doane was then full of contrition at the inhospitable way in which he had treated the stranger, who he saw was only about his own age. He took one of his father's cards on which was printed, "T. O. Doane, Chief of Fire Department, Plainfield, N. J.," and wrote on the back a note to Police Officer Lalor, who is also Third Assistant Chief, asking him to give the bearer a night's lodging in the station house, and signed it "Theodore Doane, Jr." The stranger who had all the manners of an educated person, took it with profuse thanks and departed. But when Chief Doane came home and heard the story, he immediately said: "You'll hear from that card some way." And they did: first through Dr. Sanborn as told above, and maybe later through others to whom the strange young man is introducing himself as "Chief Doane's son, out of work, and in need of just enough money to get home to Plainfield."

The Above Named Society Resurrected From a Four Years' Sleep and Again Organized for Action—Officers and Trustees Elected and Other Minor Details of the Meeting.

A meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, was held in the Republican Association rooms on East Front street, Monday evening, with President Charles Place in the chair. Secretary and Treasurer Joseph B. Coward also occupied his accustomed seat.

It was nine o'clock when Mayor Place, of North Plainfield, President of the Society called the meeting to order. The attendance was small, probably owing to the several other attractions which were in progress at the same time. James W. Jackson was elected chairman of the meeting, and Joseph B. Coward, Secretary.

The following persons were elected members of the society: Messrs W. F. Williams, A. P. Darby, J. W. Johnson, L. E. Howard, H. M. Stockton, Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, Rev. W. R. Richards, Theo. S. Miller, N. R. Smalley, Dr. J. H. Cooley, H. A. Hegeman, Jr.

Trustees were elected to serve for the ensuing year as follows: Messrs Chas. Place, J. W. Jackson, H. B. Newhall, E. Miller, I. W. Rushmore, H. K. Carroll, J. B. Coward, J. E. Turrill, J. W. Johnson, L. E. Howard.

Mr. Place made a verbal report of the cases in which the Society has been instrumental in bringing about radical changes. He also told of a complaint lodged against a female coal picker, for brutality to her children, and also of the Drake case.

The Secretary was requested to notify the trustees and newly elected members of their election.

The report of the treasurer for the five years ending to-night showed the total receipts to be $4.50; total disbursements, $1.51, leaving a balance of $2.99 on hand.

The thanks of the Society was tendered to President Place and Secretary and Treasurer Coward, after which the meeting adjourned.

OFFICERS ELECTED:

The trustees then met and elected officers as follows:

President—Chas. Place.
Vice President—E. Miller.
Secretary and Treasurer—J. B. Coward.

The Treasurer was requested to ask the members to remit their fees for this year, and after adopting an amendment to the by-laws the meeting adjourned.

North Plainfield's Graduates.

The Class of '90 of the North Plainfield Public School, numbering twenty-one, to be graduated with the usual exercises on Thursday evening, are: Ina Lewis Amerman, Josie Elliott VanArsdale, Grace Johnson Correll, Emily Mary Cathcart, Robert Martin Clark, Lilian Grace Clarke, Harry H. Coddington, Samuel G. Currie, Katie M. Duffy, Charles Edward Hamilton, James P. Ingram, Robinson Ingram, Cora E. Mooney, Everett Lucius Morgan, Lizzie Williams Stafford, John A. Steiner, Ida L. Plainfield Boys Who Will Go to College.

The closing exercises of Mr. Leal's school were held on Friday. Nine boys delivered declamations in a manner very acceptable to the audience. After some announcements of prizes and honors, good-byes were said and books laid away for the Summer.

The following boys enter college this year from the school: To Harvard, Walter J Moore and Eli Long, Jr.; to Yale, C. W. McGee, George S. Ryder, Walter E. Stewart, Walter F. Murray and George F. VanSlyck; to Columbia, Albert Pittis; to Stevens Institute of Technology, Chas. E. Faber; to Trinity, Frederick A. Wright.

Ex-Councilman Squiers Trustee of a $[illegible] Club.

A certificate of incorporation of the Adirondack League Club was filed in the County Clerk's office in New York, Saturday. The trustees named are Henry C. Squiers, of this city, Warner Miller, M. W. Barse, O. L. Snyder, Robert C. Alexander, Mark M. Pomeroy, Warren Higley, A. G. Mills, Henry E. Howland, De Witt C. Le Fevre, and Alexander B. Harper.

The club is organized to purchase and maintain as a hunting and fishing preserve the Blake tract of 100,000 acres, in Hamilton and Herkimer counties. The purchase price is $200,000, which will be raised by 200 membership subscriptions of $1,000 each. The site contains Jock's Transparent Lake and many other famous fishing and deer resorts. It will probably be the largest and most valuable private preserve in this country.

THE TWENTIETH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT.

Eighteen Who Are to be Graduated in the Class of '90, From the High School—Other Particulars of the Occasion.

The twentieth annual commencement of the Plainfield High School, will be held at Music Hall, Thursday evening of this week, at 7:45 o'clock, under the direction of the acting Principal, Lincoln R. Goodrich. The graduating class will consist of eighteen: Bessie E. Blair, Marian M. Buxton, Emma V. Case, Margaret B. Case, Eleanor E. Davis, Minnie Jackson French, Phebe E. Mills, Caroline Fitz Randolph, May Stelle, C. Clara Woltmann, William Wallace Coriell, Walter R. Darby, Edmund Philip Nischwitz, Edward James Patterson, Edward Charles Petrie, Asa F. Randolph, Ernestine Curtis Smith and Alfred Preston White.

Of the above Miss Woltmann, the Misses Case, Miss Mills, Miss Randolph and Messrs Darby, White, Patterson and Petrie will read. The last is the valedictorian, and the subject of his essay is, "Factors in A[illegible] [illegible]." The Class motto is: Gradatim and Perpetua.

On behalf of the Class of '79, Franklin B. Wiley will present the High School with a valuable chronometer clock. The usual prizes will be awarded: for penmanship, by President Kirkner; for mathematics, by Mrs. C. H. Stillman; for English composition, by George H. Babcock; for United States History, by J. R. Probasco; for spelling, by John W. Murray, and for languages by Ernest R. Ackerman. The Rev. John B. VanMeter, D. D., formerly pastor of the M. E. church of this city, and now Professor in the Woman's College, at Baltimore, will deliver the address. Orchestral music, as usual, by the New York Seventh Regt. Band.

The reception in the evening in the High School building, by the classes of '88 and '89 to the class of '90, has already been spoken of in these columns. It is proposed to make the occasion also an alumni reunion. During the evening in the Senior Class room, an exhibition will be made of school work and a display of the entire school system including samples, charts, maps, etc.

"GYPSY CARNIVAL."

A Novel and Attractive Programme Rendered at the Entertainment. A List of Those Who Took Part.

The spacious lawns of Messrs Charles Potter, Jr., and R. M. Titsworth on West Seventh street, were brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, chinese lanterns, etc., on Tuesday, on the occasion of the "Gypsy Carnival," given under the auspices of the Ladies' Society of the Seventh Day Baptist church.

The beauty of the grounds was also enhanced by Japanese decorations. Booths for the serving of iced cream, cake and strawberries, were located at convenient points, and on the whole the entertainment was most creditably arranged, and successfully carried out. The attendance was large, likewise the receipts.

During the evening a programme of scenes in gypsy life was given, introducing solos by Mrs. G. R. Stillman, Robert Gorton and Mr. and Mrs. D. E Titsworth followed by a gypsy chorus by the young people in costume. "The Magic Mirror," an admirable production, was read by Miss Anna Titsworth, in which was presented to W. C. Hubbard, under the influence of the magic Wand of C. H. Dunham, an array of typical maidens, from whom he finally chose a housewife for his companion in life.

The following ladies constituted the general committee: Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, chairman, assisted by Miss Grace Lewis and Miss Mabel Potter, the latter two presiding at the lemonade booth. Mrs. J. D. Titsworth, chairman of the Refreshment Committee, was assisted by Mrs J. F. VanHoesen, Mrs. I. N. VanNickel and Miss Florence Potter.

The tables were presided over by the Misses Mary Lewis, Lulu Lewis, Mabel Manson, Bessie Titsworth, Ernestine Smith, Ida Spicer and Ida Randolph.

The gypsy well was in charge of Mrs. Geo. B. Titsworth, assisted by Miss Ethel Titsworth and Miss Edith Titsworth.

The Dairy Maid—Miss Jessie Utter.
Phonograph in charge of Mr Wiley.
Flowers—Mrs. D. E Titsworth.

A Clerical Family.

The Rev. C. B Mitchell, of this city, was one of the speakers at the Sunday School Convention, in Asbury Park. The Journal of that place says he stated that his father with six of his brothers, and seven brothers of his mother, were ministers.

This is all true, and more. Not only were Mr. Mitchell's father and all his thirteen uncles, ministers, but both his grandfathers were, too, and everyone of the sixteen good Methodists.

Election of Officers.

The members of the Catholic Young Men's Literary Union met in the parochial school, Monday evening, and elected officers as follows:

Spiritual Director—Rev. J. A. Stafford.
President—Thomas Carty.
Vice President—John J. Kenney.
Secretary—J. J. Gallagher.
Financial Secretary—M. Mack.
Treasurer—John Trainor.
Librarian—Daniel Galbraith.
Sergeant-at-Arms—John J. Lynch.
Board of Directors { J. A. McCarthy, Ed. J. Harding, M. J. Winn.

Another Day's Record.

Among the stolen items in the issue of Monday taken from Saturday's PRESS of the week before, were:

The fire in Kenyon's machine shop;
The purchase of $1,000 worth of horses for the Fire Department;
The conference of the order of "Red Cross" by the Sir Knights Templar;
The admission of Alfred Holmes to Princeton College;
The intended annual parade of the Plainfield tandem owners; and
The suit by John Chandler against the Electric Light company for the death of his horse.

Injured in a Runaway Accident.

In a runaway accident on Park avenue near railroad bridge at noon Saturday, L. Roberts of Putnam avenue, was thrown from the wagon, and badly cut about the head. The horse became frightened at a passing locomotive and jumping to one side of the road, the wagon struck the end of a drain pipe throwing Mr. Roberts out. The injured man was taken home in a hack.

The horse, badly cut, came into the Brook farm at Evona, about 12:30 o'clock. It had a part of the harness on but not a remnant of the wagon. It was caught, stabled and its cuts washed.

PROSPERITY TO PLAINFIELD.

Also to Netherwood and Everywhere Else in This Vicinity, Comes With the New County Roads.

Chauncey B. Ripley, through whose efforts, to a great extent, the Telford system of county roads has been put into successful operation in New Jersey, said to a New York Times reporter, that all the roads of the Union County system would be completed this year. The League of American Wheelmen has been putting the improved highways provided by Mr. Ripley and his associates to an exhaustive test, and at the annual convention of the league, held Decoration Day, the wheelmen unanimously extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Ripley for his valuable initiative work in this direction. Speaking of the general subject, in furtherance of which he has expended much time and money, Mr. Ripley said:

"A good deal has been done in the last few weeks in furtherance of the county road system in Union County. The roads designated, it is believed, will all be completed before January next, when, of course, their advantages will be better appreciated. Continuity and uniformity in our roads we found it impossible to accomplish under the old township and road district system. Now we construct continuous roads from each important town, say, Elizabeth, the extreme eastern limit of the county, to Plainfield, the most western; and from Rahway, the most southern town, to Summit, the most northern. This was not practicable under the former system, inasmuch as roads of such extent pass through several townships and many road districts, each having its own set of officers, and these officers are liable to be changed as often as once a year at the annual elections.

"Others of the county roads not yet improved are to be taken in hand. A contract has just been awarded by our Road Board for the improvement of the old Philadelphia and Newark stage road, so called, between Springfield and Plainfield. This road is, in its present condition, one of the most horrible in the county, being well-nigh impassable, and its improvement has been long urged by Freeholder Vanderbeck on behalf of the citizens of the city of Plainfield. A chief benefit is that this Springfield road intersects excellent roads in Essex County.

"Mr. Vanderbeck is a large real estate owner, and has held the offices first of Road Commissioner and then of Chosen Freeholder for Union County for the last twenty or twenty-five years, and so is well qualified to judge. It is his expressed opinion that the increase in value is not only permanent, but that when the system of county roads is fully completed the values will increase far more, and that the counties of New Jersey which are near New York will all avail themselves of our statute for improved county roads.

"Travel of every sort has increased on the county roads. For example, many drive from Plainfield or from Netherwood, or from Fanwood, to Westfield, and take their train there, when the weather is fine, instead of taking it at the place of their own residence. The Hotel Netherwood, it is said by those who know, has never been so well patronized as it is this season, many of the Summer guests having their horses and carriages with them for pleasure driving."

Real Estate Transfer.

George Thatcher and wife of Plainfield, Monday transferred to Alfred E. Pearsall, of Westfield, 118x736 feet of land on Jerusalem road, which runs from Westfield to Scotch Plains, for $4,500.

Conferring the Red Cross Degree.

The degree of Red Cross was conferred upon two candidates at a special conclave of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., on Monday. The regular monthly conclave of this Commandery occurs July 7, when the Temple degree will be conferred.

A Vote of Thanks Tendered Mr. Coddington.

At the meeting of Franklin Council, 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., a vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. W. A. Coddington for his kindness in presenting the flag given by the Council to the Board of Education for use on the Franklin School building, Wednesday morning.

Electric Heat and Power for Plainfield.

By official advertisement in THE PRESS, it will be seen that at a meeting of the stockholders of the Plainfield Electric Light company, it was unanimously resolved to add to its business of the manufacture and furnishing of electric light, the distribution of power and heat also, by electricity or any other means.

To Be Fraternal in Habitation, Also.

At Anchor Lodge last evening, the resolution was unanimously adopted that Jerusalem had already approved, authorizing the trustees of the Lodge to meet with the trustees of all other masonic organizations in this city, and consider the formation of a Masonic Hall Association. If such a plan is arranged, all will share one Hall thereafter.

Entered Into Rest.

At his home on Duer street, North Plainfield, at twenty minutes past one o'clock Wednesday, occurred the death of Raynor Tunison, son of the late George Tunison, aged about twenty-two years. The deceased was a victim of consumption from which he had been suffering for a long time.

Mr Tunison was a member of the Trinity Reformed church. He was also a member of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, members of which society ministered to his wants in his last days. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

The Society Should Uphold Its Representative.

The S. P. C. A., of this city, showed unexpected good judgment in their recent appointment of Dr. H. G. Stephenson as their Veterinary Surgeon, and in their commissioning of him to act at once in all cases of cruelty to animals that come to his notice. In skill, experience and knowledge of his profession he is not excelled in this State, and as an upright, conscientious man, and a sincere church member, he possesses the esteem of all who know him.

Certain members of the Society therefore need not expect that he can be used to carry out their personal spites, nor can he be induced to spare those that he considers guilty merely because they may be of use to such members or hold such members under obligation. Dr Stephen*son has already called attention to the* great cruelty of checking a horse's head so that he stares at the sun until he is blind, suffers intense pain in the neck and is liable to stumble and severely hurt himself.

The Doctor considers the rich as guilty as the poor in any case, and he opened his righteous battle by writing to a *wealthy gentleman on the subject of high-*checking. THE PRESS and the New York Post told of it. Thereupon the News, which is the organ of Mr Carey, the Treasurer of the Society, said: "Mr. Julian Scott, a prominent officer of the Society, desires us to say that the story is false." Yet the "story" is not false; but, on the other hand, as Mr. Scott has had self-respect enough to demand that his name be kept out of the News, he is probably not quoted above, and the "story" still stands without denial.

You can never know till you try, how quickly a dose of Ayer's Pills will cure your sick headache. Your stomach and bowels need cleansing, and these pills will accomplish it more effectually and comfortably than any other medicine you can find.

Another Case of Cruelty to Children.

Complaint was made before Justice Hardy, in North Plainfield, Monday night, against a certain female who was formerly a charge on this city, and who, it is alleged, is in the habit of cruelly beating her two young children.

Its Growth Due to Three Things.

At the service in Trinity Reformed church, on Sunday evening, given under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, the pastor, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, in his report of the St. Louis Convention, stated that the rapid progress made by the Christian Endeavor of late was due to three things; namely: the revival of the covenant idea—the pledge; the revival of consciousness, and the revival of fellowship.

Conduct Unbecoming a Woman.

The conduct of a certain Plainfield avenue woman, as exhibited on Park avenue, Monday evening, was shameful, and the police were obliged to interfere. The woman was intoxicated and had two small children in a baby carriage, which she left standing on the sidewalk, while she persisted in obtaining some beer. Special Officer Hope wheeled the children home, and Officer Conney finally succeeded in getting the woman there.

Annie Rooney Injured.

Miss Annie Rooney, one of the girls recently employed at the carpet factory on South avenue, met with a painful accident while at work there, Monday.

The young woman was weaving carpet when her right hand caught in the shuttles, terribly crushing four of the fingers. Two of the fingers, it is said, were so badly crushed, that it became necessary to amputate them. A physician dressed the wounds.

The Judges of Award.

Those who will decide the winners of the usual prizes for certain lines of school work, this year, are as follows:

English composition—D. J. Yerkes, D. D., J. Evarts Tracy and Mason W. Tyler.

Penmanship, as taught—H. P. Reynolds, H. O. Newman and D E Titsworth.

Mathematics—Wm. M. Stillman.

The fortunate ones will be announced at the High School commencement exercises, Thursday evening, in Music Hall.

To Sue the Electric Light Company.

John Chandler, the contractor and builder of East Third street, is about to bring suit against the Plainfield Electric Light Company, to recover the value of his trotting horse "Rambo," whose death was caused by coming in contact with a "live wire," on Crescent avenue, while the animal was on the way home from the race track, a few weeks ago. Mr. Chandler says the company made him an offer which he refused, and since then the company has done nothing further in the matter.

Election of Officers.

At a regular meeting of Noah Dove Encampment, No. 28, I. O. O. F., held on Thursday evening, the following officers were elected:

C. P.—William L. Jamison.
H. P.—Frank P. Storr.
S. W.—John H. Williams.
R. S.—Lewis E. Stockford.
J. W.—Joseph Kingston.

At a regular convention of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., held on Friday, the following were elected to fill the various offices for the ensuing term:

Chancellor Commander—Lewis DeCamp.
Vice Chancellor—M. L. Sarick.
Prelate—C. Jones.
Master of Exchequer—R. R. Force.
Master-at-arms—Thomas Gement.
Trustee, 18 months—D. N. Force.

Grand Vice Chancellor Ulrich and staff will install the officers elect early in July.

Borough Council Meeting.

The Borough Council met in special session, Monday night, to consider certain matter pertaining to street work. Mayor Place presided, and all the members were present. Mr. Hegeman from the Street Committee submitted a report of the work done on Grove street, together with a financial statement of the cost for the same. The report was filed.

H. A. McGee sent in a communication requesting that his name be withdrawn from the Willow avenue petition. It was filed, and thus the petition dies.

Emily street, from Somerset to Grove, and Mercer avenue from Grove street, West, were ordered macadamized.

A resolution by Mr. Hegeman, with reference to the purchase of stone, was adopted, after which Council adjourned.

Complimented By Their Grand Officers.

Wetumpka Lodge, 3101, Knights of Honor, met in their rooms, Thursday evening, and enjoyed one of the most successful meetings that the Lodge has had. The Grand Officers were present and assisted in the initiation of seven candidates. Six applications were laid over for initiation, July 3, and twelve new applications were received.

The Grand Officers complimented the Lodge upon its flourishing condition as to membership and finances. The delegation consisted of Grand Dictator Hawthorn, Grand Vice Dictator Jones and Grand Reporter Mayhew.

P. D., CJ Feytel, presented Wetumpka with an elegant frame for the charter of the Lodge. P. D., F. P. Haffner, also presented the Lodge with an elegant spread eagle and stand of colors for the decoration of its charter. Wetumpka has a handsome balance in the treasury and is in a flourishing financial condition.

$2,000 Worth of Scenery for Music Hall.

Upon authority of the Board of Directors, Stage Manager Mattox has just purchased a large assortment of new scenery for Music Hall. It was originally built and painted for Jacobs' theatre, Newark, but as that has been torn down Mr. Mattox was able to secure the lot at a bargain.

A great many set pieces, such as the Hall has long needed, are included in the purchase—in fact, everything of the sort from flower pots and rocks, to statues and a full size railroad locomotive. In the new scenery are three street sets, a gothic church, and a large number of interiors and exteriors particularly artistic and rich in color. A rocky mountain pass with waterfall, is one of many handsome specimens of scene painting that have been secured for next season. An exhibition of the new scenery by gaslight, will be arranged in a few days for the inspection of the Directors.

"What Is Home Without a Housekeeper."

Is the degraded view taken by a gruff old bachelor, of the holy office of wife and mother. And yet how many mothers and wives there are who are simply "housekeepers," household drudges, whose life is worked out while disease is let in, during the ceaseless round of washing and scrubbing and dusting and baking and cooking. The same clothes and floors and furniture and dishes are gone over and over until the heart is sick and the body is broken with worry and disease. Amid this toil nervousness begins, bad digestion, sick headache and a host of complaints follow on. For all such take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the only remedy sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction or money will be refunded.

The children's health must not be neglected. [illegible] cold in the head and [illegible] catarrh and lung affections. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is easily applied into the nostrils. It also cures catarrh, the worst cases yielding to it.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became a Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

It is dangerous to tamper with irritating liquids and exciting snuffs. Use Ely's Cream Balm which is safe and pleasant, and is easily applied. It cures the worst cases of catarrh, cold in the head and hay fever, giving relief from the first application. Price 50 cents.

Transfer of Real Estate.

James A. Powell and wife of Brooklyn, yesterday transferred to Charles N. Flanders of Scotch Plains, two tracts of land in Westfield Township, on road leading from Scotch Plains to Rahway, for $1,500.

A Rare Treat for Boys.

Vincent Rockwell, Charles [illegible], Arthur Vail, Allie Laing and Harry Wells, have already decided to go with the Y. M. C. A. boys camp at Lake Wawayanda, July 8 to 23. Although Plainfield has already more than the number of delegates to which it was entitled, it is probable that one or two more would be received in case their application is forwarded at once.

A Desperate Dog Fight.

A dog fight took place Monday night at the corner of Grant avenue and Second street between a bull dog and a black retriever which lasted fully half an hour and until some of the residents in the neighborhood interfered. The black dog won the battle owing to its superior strength thus keeping the bull dog on the ground all the time.

Changes in Borough Realty.

Within the past few days real estate has changed hands in North Plainfield as follows:

Administrator of George Townley, deceased, to Bryan E. Cain, property in North Plainfield, $550.

Ann and Samuel Hedden to Daniel C. Adams, property in North Plainfield, $250.

Wm. G[illegible] to Ernest C. Kleb, property in North Plainfield, $2,850.

Isaac Scribner et ux to Edward P. Gavin, property in North Plainfield, $450.

Now for a W. C. T. U. Building.

The fine corner lot with 50 feet front on Park avenue and 175 feet in depth on Sixth street, has been purchased by the W. C. T. U. of this city.

The lot is a part of the Murray-Compton property, and is on the North corner of Park avenue and Sixth street. A building especially designed as a home for the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and for its purposes, will be begun on the location within six months.

Captain Wm. Hand Honored.

Captain William Hand, C. H. Rugg, Albert Runyon, John Goodman and T. O. Doane, were Plainfield's veterans who were present at the reunion of the Second New Jersey Brigade, at Newark, June 18. Mayor Haynes made the speech of welcome, which was responded to by Gen'l Rusling. Gov. Abbett, Gen'l Sickels, Gen'l Carr, Gen'l Grubb and Col. Sewell were among the distinguished guests present.

Capt Hand was elected one of the Vice Presidents of the Association.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

Between
Mary M. Green, Pet., and George Green, Def't. } On Petition for Divorce.

The Petitioner having filed her Petition in the above cause, and process of citation having been issued and returned according to law, and it appearing by affidavit that the defendant, George Green, resides out of the State of New Jersey, and that process could not be served upon him:

It is, on this 23d day of May one thousand eight hundred and ninety, on motion of Nelson Runyon, of counsel with the Petitioner ordered that the said absent defendant do appear and answer the Petitioner's petition, on or before the 24th day of July, next, or that, in default thereof such decree be made against him as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just; and it is further ordered, that the notice of this order, prescribed by the rules of this Court, shall, within twenty days hereafter, be served on the said absent defendant, by actual service upon said defendant, personally, by delivery of a copy thereof to him, or, in default of such service, that said notice be published within the said twenty days in THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, a newspaper printed in the County where the parties resided at the time of the desertion complained of, in this State, and continued therein for four weeks successively, at least once in every week, and that a copy thereof be mailed, within the same time, to the said absent defendant, directed to his post office address, if the same can be ascertained.

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE

Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

ADOPTED IN HOSPITALS AS THE BEST FOR INVALIDS.

Speer's Port Grape Wine
FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hang until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that effect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Socialite) Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medical purposes.
It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

furnished by each company commandant to the inspecting officer muster rolls in triplicate of the company, which rolls shall have endorsed thereon a certificate of the commanding officer of the average present at all company drills and parades throughout the year, which muster rolls shall then be examined by the inspecting officer and by him certified.

3. And be it enacted, That the governor and commander-in-chief is hereby authorized to confer upon such officers of this state as shall have faithfully served as commissioned officers in the active militia and national guard for a period of twenty years and who [illegible] a brevet rank of not more than one grade higher than the highest rank held by them during their term of service; provided, that the governor shall nominate the same to the senate, and the rank shall be conferred by and with the advice and consent of the senate.

4. And be it enacted, That the quartermaster-general is hereby authorized to issue to each commissioned officer who does not bear arms a rifle for use in rifle practice, and providing that said officer or non-commissioned officer shall give proper and sufficient bonds therefor.

5. And be it enacted, That the quartermaster-general is hereby authorized to enlist, from time to time, for the purpose of performing service as clerks, mechanics, teamsters and laborers in the quartermaster-general's department, for such term of service as he may deem proper, not exceeding twenty-five men, who shall be furnished with a fatigue uniform and to be paid when on duty as the quartermaster-general may direct, approved by the governor.

6. And be it enacted, That the fifteenth section and the sixteenth section of the supplement to the act to which this is a supplement, which was approved March fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, which reads as follows:

"15. And be it enacted, That the governor and commander-in-chief be and is hereby authorized to appoint and commission at his discretion, as in his judgment the public service may require, one assistant quartermaster-general, with the rank of colonel of cavalry, and two deputy quartermasters, with the rank of major of cavalry."

"16. And be it enacted, That in addition to their duties in the field it shall be the duty of the assistant quartermaster general and deputy quartermasters whenever directed by the quartermaster general, to purchase quartermaster and commissary stores and articles requisite for the national guard when on active service and generally to procure and provide means for the transportation for the troops, their stores, artillery and camp equipage," be and the same are hereby repealed, and the officers now holding commissions under these acts are hereby placed on the retired list.

7. And be it enacted, That the governor and commander-in-chief is hereby authorized to appoint and commission at his discretion as in his judgment the public service may require, three deputy quartermaster-generals, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel; and it shall be the duty of the deputy quartermaster-generals to perform such military duties as may be required of them by law and by the quartermaster-general.

8. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 15, 1890.

CHAPTER CXCVI.

An act relative to deposits of securities by certain corporations.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all deposits of securities now required or permitted by law to be made with the comptroller or the treasurer of this state by insurance, banking, trust, guarantee, safe deposit and indemnity corporations shall hereafter be made with the secretary of state; provided, that in other respects the obligations of such corporations in regard to deposits shall in no wise be affected.

2. And be it enacted, That the deposits hitherto made by any such corporation with the comptroller or the state treasurer, and remaining in their possession, shall be by them delivered to the secretary of state within ten days after the approval of this act.

3. And be it enacted, That the secretary of state shall be invested with all the powers and duties relative to such deposits now conferred by law upon the comptroller and the state treasurer.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 15, 1890.

CHAPTER CXCVII.

An act to provide for the payment of representatives of this state to the national prison reform congress of the United States.

Whereas, The governors of this state have appointed certain persons to represent the state of New Jersey at the annual sessions of the national prison reform congress of the United States each year for three years last past; and whereas, there has been no provision made for payment for their services or return to them of their expenses in attending conventions in different parts of the United States;

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That persons heretofore or hereafter being designated to represent the state of New Jersey in the national prison reform congress conventions by the governors of this state shall be paid their reasonable expenses and such further compensation, not exceeding five dollars a day, for such time actually going to, attending upon and returning from the said national prison reform congress.

2. And be it enacted, That the comptroller of this state shall pay all such moneys on the order of the governor in the premises, from the prison incidental funds.

3. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 22, 1890.

CHAPTER CXCVIII.

A further supplement to the act entitled "An act relative to sales of lands under a public statute or by virtue of any judicial proceeding" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no sale of lands heretofore made by any executor or executors, administrator or administrators under the said act mentioned in the title of this supplemental act, and now confirmed or unconfirmed by the proper court or courts, shall be invalidated or held void by reason of an adjournment of said sale for more than one week, not having been advertised in one or two newspapers in which the notice of such sale was originally advertised, but all such sales shall be as valid and effectual in law as though such adjournment had been regularly advertised in both said newspapers publishing the notice of such sale originally, and any court or courts to which the report of any such sale has been, or may be made is hereby authorized to confirm any such sale heretofore made the same as though the adjournment thereof had been regularly advertised in the two newspapers publishing the original notice of sale; provided, said adjournment so failed to be advertised was not for a longer period than two weeks, and such sale has in all other respects been made in accordance with law.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 22, 1890.

CHAPTER CXCIX.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act to complete the geological survey of this state" approved March thirtieth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the annual appropriation of eight thousand dollars per annum for the completion of the geological survey of this state, made in the supplement to this act, which was approved May second, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, be further continued for five years.

2. And be it enacted, That whereas, the office of state geologist formerly held by George H. Cook, under this act, is now vacant, said office shall henceforth, from time to time, be filled by the appointment thereto of a competent person by the board of managers of the geological survey, who shall hold office during the pleasure of the board, such appointment to be subject to the approval of the governor; and the person so appointed state geologist, and his assistants, shall have the same authority and perform the same duties as if he had been named and appointed in this act, subject at all times to the direction of the board.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 12, 1890.

CHAPTER CC.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to authorize cities in this state located on or near the ocean, and embracing within their limits or jurisdiction any beach or ocean front, to lay out and open streets and drives, and construct public walks along and upon the beach or ocean front, to grade and otherwise improve the same, to provide the money necessary therefor, and to regulate the use thereof,' approved April fourth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine," which said amendatory act was passed April second, one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the title of the said act passed April second, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, to which this act is a supplement be and the same hereby is amended so to read as follows: "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to authorize cities in this state located on or near the ocean, and embracing within their limits or jurisdiction any beach or ocean front, to lay out and open streets and drives, and construct public walks along and upon the beach or ocean front, to grade and otherwise improve the same, to provide the money necessary therefor, and to regulate the use thereof,' approved April sixth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine."

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Approved May 12, 1890.

CHAPTER CCI.

An act concerning mills and mill dams.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any person owning a water mill, which has been used as a public grist mill, saw mill or manufactory for the period of twenty years or upwards, desiring to raise the height of the dam used for working said mill for the more effective working of the same, and the raising of the said dam would cause an overflow or damage to the lands of another, and compensation for such damages cannot be agreed upon by the parties interested, he or they may raise said dam to a height not exceeding one foot, provided, the raising thereof will only overflow marsh land which is not cultivated; provided, compensation is first made to the person or persons so damaged thereby in the manner hereinafter provided.

2. And be it enacted, That the person or persons proposing to raise such dam, may apply to one of the justices of the supreme court of this state by petition setting out the title of the petitioner or petitioners to said water mill and dam, the use of such mill as public mill aforesaid for the said period, the height to which the said dam is proposed to be raised, and the said description of the lands which would be overflowed or damaged thereby; and the said justice being satisfied of the truth of the facts contained in said petition, after reasonable notice to all persons interested, shall appoint, under his hand and seal, three disinterested, impartial and judicious freeholders, residents of the county in which such damages arise, commissioners to determine in relation to the matters set forth in said petition, and assess the damages, upon such notice to be given to the person interested as shall be directed by justice making such appointment, to be expressed therein, not less than ten days.

3. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said commissioners, having first taken and subscribed an oath or affirmation before some person duly authorized to administer an oath, faithfully and impartially to examine the matter in question and to make a true report according to the best of their skill and understanding, to meet at the time and place appointed to hear the parties and view the premises, and if they shall be of the opinion that the said mill is a public mill and of use and benefit to the people of the state, and that the raising of the said dam to the height proposed is necessary for the use or more effective working of the said mill, then they shall estimate the damages to be paid by the party proposing to raise the height of said dam, and shall make report in writing under the hands and seals of said commissioners or any two of them, which report, together with the petition and appointment, shall, within ten days, be filed in the clerk's office of the county in which said damages may arise, to remain of record therein; and the payment or tender of the amount so awarded shall vest in the said person or persons so owning such water mill and dam the right to raise and maintain the said dam to the height proposed; and the said justice of the supreme court shall, upon the application of either party, and on reasonable notice to the other, tax and allow all costs, fees and expenses as he shall think just, to be paid by the said person or persons proposing to raise such dam; provided always, that either party may appeal from the decision of the said commissioners to the next circuit court in the county wherein such damages would arise.

4. And be it enacted, That every appeal from the decision of the commissioners, appointed under the preceding section shall be made in writing and in form of a petition to said court and filed with the clerk of said circuit court, and notice in writing of such appeal shall be given to the opposite party within ten days after the filing thereof, which proceeding shall vest in the said circuit court, full power to hear and adjudge the same, and to direct a proper issue for the trial of said controversy to be formed between the said parties and to order a jury to be struck and a view of the premises to be had, and the said issue to be tried at the next term of said court to be holden in said county upon like notices and in like manner as other issues in the said court are tried; and it shall be the duty of the said jury to determine whether the said mill is of use and benefit to the people of this state, and that the raising of said dam to the height proposed is necessary for the effective working of said mill for which said dam is designed, and if they shall so determine then they shall assess the damages to be paid by the party so raising or proposing to raise such dam; and the said court shall render judgment upon the verdict of such jury, and if damages are assessed shall render judgment for such damages with seventy-five per centum thereof to be added thereto, and said court may award costs to either party at its discretion; provided, however, if the jury shall be applied for by the owner of the land so damaged or proposed to be damaged and shall assess a less sum than was awarded by the commissioners, then the costs shall be paid by the said applicant or applicants, and either deducted out of the sum awarded or execution issued therefor as the court may direct.

5. And be it enacted, That no person or persons shall derive any right to raise said dam until he has paid or tendered to the person or persons likely to be damaged thereby the amount of such adverse award or judgment.

6. And be it enacted, That the provisions of this act shall in no way affect any mill of other persons on which a mill dam has been lawfully erected and used, nor the right of any owner of such mill or mill site, unless the right to maintain on such last mentioned site shall have been lost or defeated by abandonment or otherwise; neither shall they affect the right of any town, township, borough or city in any highway or bridge which such town, township or borough or city may by law be liable to keep in repair, nor shall said provisions be applicable to any navigable waters in this state, nor in any way interfere with any right or privilege heretofore granted to any person or corporations by any act of the legislature of this state; this act shall not take away the right of any person injured by the raising of said dam to sue the party raising said dam or maintaining it or maintain it thus raised for any damage suffered thereby.

7. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed May 12, 1890.

CHAPTER XI.

An Act relative to assessments for streets or roads in this state where no statutory provision exists for a constitutional or lawful assessment of the costs and expenses thereof.

1. And be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That where any improvement of any streets or roads has been heretofore or shall hereafter be made in this state, and no statutory provision or authority exists for making a constitutional or lawful assessment of the cost and expenses thereof, the commissioners, persons, assessors or other tribunal authorized to make any such assessment, by whatever name they may be called, after first ascertaining the costs and expenses thereof, shall, in all such cases, assess the said costs and expenses upon the land and real estate benefited by such improvement, and in proportion to the benefits thereby received, in making which said assessment, the same shall be made and assessed upon the several lots or parcels of land benefited by such improvement, in proportion to the benefit actually received by each one of said lots or parcels of land, and no lot or parcel shall be assessed more than it is benefited and the expenses, if any, of such costs and expenses shall be assessed upon the municipality wherein such improvement shall lie; provided, however, that if said improvement, or any part thereof, shall be within or run into two or more municipalities, that then such excess, if any, of such costs and expenses, shall be assessed upon the municipalities within or into which said improvement or any part thereof shall lie or run, in the proportion that the total of the assessment of benefits on the owners of land in each of said municipalities bears to the sum of the total assessment of benefits on owners of land in all such municipalities, and shall be paid out of moneys raised by general tax for that purpose; and provided further, that if any portion of the costs and expenses of any such improvement has already been raised and paid by any such municipality or municipalities by general taxation, under any provision of law, the amount or amounts so raised and paid shall not be included in said costs and expenses assessed under and by virtue of this act.

2. And be it enacted, That the said commissioners, persons or assessors making said assessment shall, before proceeding to the execution of their duties take and subscribe an oath faithfully to perform their duties in the matter.

3. And be it enacted, That where two or more streets or roads, or parts thereof, have been or shall be constructed or improved together as one improvement, such improvements shall be included in the provisions of this act.

4. And be it enacted, That the term municipalities shall be taken and construed under this act to include any city or cities, town or towns, township or townships, and all other municipal corporations whatsoever.

5. And be it enacted, That all acts inconsistent with this act be repealed, and that this act shall be deemed and taken to be a public act, and shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 4, 1890.

CHAPTER XII.

An act to amend the act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of courts of law," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section nineteen of the act to which this is amendatory, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

19. And be it enacted, That all bills, bonds and other writing, whether sealed or not, containing any agreement for the payment of money, and all contracts for the sale and conveyance of any real estate, and all judgments and decrees recovered in any of the courts of this state or in any other state or territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia, and all other choses in action arising on contracts shall be assignable at law, and the assignee or assignees may sue thereon in his, her or their own name, but in such suit there shall be allowed all just set-offs, discounts and defences not only against the plaintiff, but also against the assignor or assignors before notice of such assignment shall be given to the defendant.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 4, 1890.

CHAPTER XIII.

A supplement to an act entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act for the punishment of crimes,' approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four," which said supplement was approved March third, anno domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one of the act to which this is a supplement be amended so as to read as follows: "That it shall be unlawful to expose to public view the body of any person who shall have suffered the infliction of the death penalty, either in this state or in any part of the United States, for the crime of murder after such body shall have been delivered from the custody of the sheriff, and it shall be unlawful to have any public funeral or gathering in connection with the burial of the body of any such offender; provided, however, that nothing in this contained shall prevent relatives within the second degree and the minister or ministers attending the execution from being present and viewing the body.

Approved March 4th, 1890.

CHAPTER XIV.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act regulating proceedings in criminal cases [Revision]," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That upon the trial of any indictment in any court of this State, for any crime or misdemeanor, it shall be lawful to take a general exception to the charge of the court to the jury, without specifying any particular ground or grounds for such exception, and without specifying what portions of said charge are excepted to, and it shall be the duty of the judge to settle a bill of such exception, and to sign and seal the same, to the end that the same may be returned with a writ of error to the court having cognizance thereof, and to the end that speedy justice may be done.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful where such general exception has been taken, to assign any error or errors of law upon any portion of such charge excepted to, provided, however, that for every misdirection on matters of evidence, a special exception thereto shall be taken at the time of the trial, in order to assign any error or errors of law thereon.

3. And be it enacted, That if, upon the hearing of the cause upon a writ of error, it shall appear to the court that any error of law has been committed in any part of the charge so excepted to, to the prejudice or injury of any defendant, it shall be the duty of the court of cognizance thereof to reverse judgment.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 4, 1890.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act entitled 'An act for the better enforcement in Maurice river cove and Delaware bay of the act entitled "An act for the better preservation of clams and oysters," approved April fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six,' and of the supplements thereto.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the captains and owners of all vessels having a license to lawfully engage in the catching, planting and growing of oysters in Maurice river cove and Delaware bay, provided said captains and owners have been residents of the state of New Jersey for one year, are hereby authorized to meet on the third Monday in March in each and every year at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the town of Port Norris, in the county of Cumberland, and continue in session until the hour of three in the afternoon, and no longer, and there organize by the election, by ballot, of three of their number as judges of election, and one of their number as secretary, who shall keep a true record of the proceedings of said meetings; and when so organized, the said captains and owners of said licensed vessels shall proceed to elect, by ballot, five of their number to be designated as the executive committee of the Maurice river cove and Delaware bay oyster association, who shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected, and said executive committee shall be invested with all the powers and duties now held by the existing committee of said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay oyster association; said executive committee shall also have power, by ballot, to elect a special officer from time to time, who shall hold said office during the pleasure of said executive committee, and no longer, and fix the amount per ton of the tax to be assessed and levied each year upon all vessels licensed to engage in catching, planting and growing oysters in said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay; said executive committee shall have power to divide the oyster grounds in said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay into as many districts as may be proper for the better security and protection of the oyster interest in said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay, and patrol the same by steam or sail vessels, as in the judgment of said executive committee may be deemed best.

2. And be it enacted, That if complaint shall be made to said executive committee of said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay oyster association that any captain, commander or owner of any boat or vessel [illegible]

[illegible]

... same jurisdiction, be subject to a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court; one-half of said fine to be paid to the state school fund, and one-half to the collector of the oyster fund of the said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay oyster association, for the use of said association.

5. And be it enacted, That each captain and commander of any boat or vessel legally licensed to catch, plant and grow oysters in Maurice river cove and Delaware bay, shall be required to place the number of his boat or vessel in the middle of the mainsail, one-third of the way from the head thereof, also in the middle of the jib, one-third of the way from the head thereof, said number to be painted in black numerals, eighteen inches long, four inches wide, said number to be on the starboard side of mainsail and port side of jib; any captain or commander of any such boat or vessel neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of this section, after being notified by the special officer, shall, upon being reported to the executive committee of said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay oyster association, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in any court of competent jurisdiction, be subject to a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court, one-half of said fine to be paid to the state school fund and one-half to the collector of the oyster fund of said Maurice river cove and Delaware bay oyster association, for the use of said association.

6. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and the same are hereby repealed; provided, however, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to repeal any part or parts of "An act entitled 'An act for the better enforcement of Maurice river cove and Delaware bay of the act entitled 'An act for the preservation of clams and oysters,'" approved April fourteenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, and the supplements thereto, save and except the part or parts of said several acts which are in conflict with and inconsistent with the provisions of this act.

7. And be it enacted, That this act shall be a public act, and take effect immediately.

Passed March 14, 1890.

CHAPTER LIII.

An Act to provide for the building of school-houses in cities of second class in this state where land has been dedicated for that purpose.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever in any city of the second class in this state land has been donated or dedicated by the owner of the fee thereof to such city for the purpose of erecting thereon public school buildings, the common council, board of aldermen or other body having the control of the building of such schools shall have power to erect upon the lands so dedicated a building for school purposes not to exceed in cost the sum of one hundred thousand dollars.

2. And be it enacted, That for the purpose of defraying the cost and expense of the erection of said school buildings, it shall be lawful for the common council, board of aldermen or other governing body of such city having control of the finances of said city to cause to be issued, under the hand of the mayor and the seal of the common council of said city, coupon or registered bonds to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, payable in not less than twenty years from the date of issue thereof, bearing interest at a rate not to exceed four per centum per annum, pledging the faith and credit of said city for the payment thereof, with interest, which bond shall be sold by said city to the highest bidder, after published proposals to that effect in one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

3. And be it enacted, That the proceeds realized from the sale of said bonds shall be used for the payment of the construction and furnishing of such public school building, and for no other purpose, and that the said common council, board of aldermen or other governing body of said city shall provide by ordinance for the payment and redemption of such bonds and interest by causing to be inserted in the tax levy of each year such per centum on the gross value of real estate in said city as they may deem expedient for the assessor of said city to assess, to be applied to a sinking fund, which shall be created for the purpose of meeting and retiring the said bonds as they shall fall due.

4. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall go into effect immediately.

Approved March 18, 1890.

CHAPTER LX.

A supplement to an act entitled "An act to provide for the organization of the New Jersey home for disabled soldiers," approved April fourth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in addition to the appropriation now authorized by law for the support of the New Jersey home for disabled soldiers, the further sum of three thousand dollars is hereby appropriated for the purchase of additional grounds in Fairmount cemetery and the cemetery of the holy sepulchre for the interment of deceased soldiers.

2. And be it enacted, That said sum shall be expended under the direction of the board of managers of said home, and the state treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to pay the same, for the purpose aforesaid, to the treasurer of said home, on the warrant of the comptroller of the treasury, out of any moneys in the treasury of this state not otherwise appropriated.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 21, 1890.

CHAPTER LXIII.

An Act relative to fire escapes.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all buildings now or hereafter erected in which twenty or more persons live or congregate or are employed, temporarily or otherwise, above the first or ground floor thereof, shall have one or more, as the proper authority shall direct, external wrought iron fire escapes, of such dimensions and character and subject to such regulation and construction as the said proper authority shall designate.

2. And be it enacted, That in all incorporated municipalities the board of aldermen, city council or borough commissioners shall provide for the enforcement of the provisions of this act by ordinance.

3. And be it enacted, That in all sections outside of incorporated municipalities township committees shall have power to enforce the provisions of this act.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 24, 1890.

CHAPTER LXII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize the incorporation of rural cemetery associations and regulate cemeteries," approved April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for any cemetery association incorporated under the act to which this is a supplement, to change the name of such association and adopt a new name.

2. And be it enacted, That any such change shall be adopted only by a two-thirds vote of the lot owners of such association present at any regular meeting, ten days' notice of such proposed change having been duly published in a newspaper printed and published in the city or county in which such cemetery is situate or by notice duly served on each lot owner, at least five days before such proposed change, and when so adopted, a certified statement of such change of name, signed by the president and attested by the secretary, under the seal of the association, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county wherein such cemetery is situated; and upon such filing, the name of such association shall be changed as stated in said certificate; and the said change shall have the same force and effect as if the altered provision had been contained in the original certificate of incorporation; but no change in the name of such association shall in anywise affect or alter its rights and privileges or liabilities, but such association shall be entitled to have, receive and hold, under its new name, any property which it formerly held or which may be hereafter given or bequeathed to it under its original name.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 24, 1890.

Removing Warts with Electricity.

Now that electricity is so generally employed for the removal of warts and facial imperfections, the following description in Medical Review of the method employed by Dr. Patrack, of Oppeln, is of interest: He first thoroughly moistens the wart with a warm solution of salt. Both needles are then thrust through it just above the surface of the skin and the current turned on, one element after another being added until pain is felt. Five cells are sufficient. While most cases two sittings of five minutes each are sufficient to destroy the growth, which gradually dries up and falls away, leaving a surface at first slightly reddened, but which later assumes the appearance of normal skin.

Senators' Tickets.

The bane of the average senator's life is the besieging of his friends and constituents for tickets of admission to the senate gallery when anything of great interest is going on upon the floor. In later days, on great occasions, the senators have transferred the responsibility to the sergeant-at-arms. About twenty years ago the whole duty devolved upon them. Good natured men were made miserable by the demands upon them, and it is told of big, burly Ben Wade that at the impeachment of Andrew Johnson all Ohio demanded tickets to the chamber.

He distributed his tickets with a lavish hand, but they gave out sooner than his constituents. He managed to make excuses to all but one, an old army chaplain, who had come from the northern corner of the state just to be present at the impeachment.

"My tickets are all gone," said Senator Wade, "but perhaps I can serve you in some other way."

"There is nothing else I want," sighed the chaplain. "I have heard that you are a generous man, but this is the first favor I have asked after serving my country for three years, and besides, I have come clear from Ohio to be present at the impeachment of Andrew Johnson."

The old senator looked him over with a merry twinkle in his eye, noticing especially the clerical cut of his coat, and then, writing something on a slip of paper, said:

"If that doorkeeper is a Christian he cannot resist that plea."

After he got out of sight the Ohioan looked at the paper, and on it were these words:

"For God's sake let this man in. Ben Wade."

Whether it was an imprecation or an appeal he could not tell, but he wisely decided to consider it the latter, and passed into the gallery under cover of the doorkeeper's surprise at the novel ticket of admission.—Boston Budget.

Caught in a Snake's Coil.

William Hill, a young man who lives with Mr. Ramseur, at Arant, Union county, N. C., had an experience which he will be likely to remember for some time. While walking through an old field Mr. Hill was confronted by a large snake of the coach whip variety. The snake was within a few feet of Mr. Hill, with head erect three or four feet from the ground.

Giving vent to a keen whistle, it sprang at the young man, and before Mr. Hill could resist it entwined itself around his body and arms. Hill could not get his knife; but managing to get one hand partially loose he grasped the snake and began tugging away for dear life. Fortunately, his dog was with him, and seeing the peril of his master came to his relief. Hill, with the assistance of the dog, managed to free himself from the too affectionate embrace of his snakeship, which then ran up a cedar tree a short distance away.

Hill gathered some stones, and, going up to within ten feet of the tree, was preparing to dislodge the snake with the arguments used by a certain old gentleman on the small boy in his apple tree, but the snake did not wait for Mr. Hill to renew the battle. Springing from the tree, it made a second attack upon him, but as it came Mr. Hill threw up his arm and warded it off. Before it recovered itself the dog again attacked it, and this time succeeded in breaking the back of the snake. Mr. Hill then dispatched it, and measuring it found the snake to be between seven and eight feet long.—Richmond Times.

Why He Held On.

Workmen were hoisting stone next door to Frankie's house, where a new building was going up, the motive power being a donkey engine. The signal for hoisting was given by the sound of a whistle, and the man to whom fell the duty of blowing this stood out of sight of the engineer.

One day Frankie and a small friend were standing as close to the rope as they were allowed to come when the whistler was called away for a moment. The man who made the stone fast went for a drink, and the two boys crept up to the tackle.

Unluckily the other boy spied the whistle lying on a timber, and just as Frankie had seized the rope his friend gave a shrill blast.

The engine inside its shed began to puff, and, with a squeal, up went Frank into the air. The workmen came running, shouting to the engineer to reverse the machine and to the boy not to let go. The lad was up to the second story before he could be stopped, but here a carpenter managed to seize him and draw him unhurt into a window.

"You did well to hold on, little fellow," he said, as he got the boy into safety.

"Oh, I had to," Frankie answered; "mother told me not to fall into the mud with my new clothes."—Youth's Companion.

Medicinal Uses of Coffee.

Nearly two score years ago a claim was made that green or unroasted berries had a great value in liver and kidney troubles. By one physician they have been used very extensively, and he is quite enthusiastic over them in that class of diseases. He prefers a mixture of two parts Mocha with one part Martinique and Isle de Bourbon coffee. He puts about three drams of this in a tumbler of cold water, and lets it stand and infuse over night. The next morning, after straining, the infusion is taken on an empty stomach the first thing after getting up. This physician cites many cases of kidney and liver colic, diabetes, nervous headache, etc., which, although rebellious to all other treatment for years, soon yielded to the green coffee infusion. This remedy is a very simple one and certainly worth a trial. Another use of coffee medicinally is in nausea and retching. For that purpose a strong infusion is made of the berries which have been ground and roasted; and it is sipped while very hot. This oftentimes acts exceedingly well; and rather better if a strong mustard plaster is applied to the pit of the stomach at the same time.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Haste and Speed.

"Do you know," remarked the keeper at the Zoo, "that animals some days do not move from one position for hours at a time?"

"Oh, that doesn't surprise me. I have witnessed slower things than that. You ought to see a gas office clerk when he is busy reading the paper and the man paying a bill is anxious to get away."—Philadelphia Times.

Capt. Shaw, chief of the London fire brigade, has published statistics of fires in theatres throughout the world in 1889. He says that fifteen theatres were destroyed, nineteen persons killed, ninety-one badly wounded, and goes on to prove by figures that by entering a theatre a person improves his chances of an untimely end.

A. T. Abernethy, professor of modern languages in Rutherford college, North Carolina, is only 18 years old. He is probably the youngest teacher in the country to bear the title of professor.

Francis Murphy to Marry.

Francis Murphy, known all over the United States as a lecturer on temperance and kindred topics, and who has been a widower for a score of years, will marry early in the fall. While conducting a series of meetings at Omaha, Neb., recently he became acquainted with Mrs. Rebecca Fisher, the president of the Council Bluffs Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and admiration for her intelligence, good looks and zeal soon ripened into affection which was heartily reciprocated. Mrs. Fisher is 35 years old. After the wedding the lecturer and his wife will make their home in Omaha.

MRS. REBECCA FISHER.

Why We Don't Eat Horse Flesh.

The prejudice against the eating of horse flesh among English speaking peoples has a religious origin. Horse eating was practiced as a sacrifice to Odin. The early missionaries who Christianized England prohibited horse eating by their Anglo-Saxon converts. The prejudice thus created soon became ingrained, and entwined itself with a prejudice in favor of the horse [illegible] by the Normans' love for equine [illegible]

[illegible]

The [illegible] The Press is passing through another "iced cream" season. Errors of English are as liable to escape our attention as anyone's [illegible]. Yet there would be no more excuse for us if we persisted wilfully in saying "ice cream," than if we said "ice coffee," or "ice cake."

Home Wedding.

A very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of the bride's parents on Duer street, North Plainfield, at four o'clock afternoon of June [illegible], when Miss A. Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. [illegible] was united in marriage to Mr. William A. Large of Trenton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. Armstrong of New Brooklyn, assisted by the Rev. A. R. Dills of this city, in the presence of about seventy-five of the relatives and near friends of the bride and groom.

The usual wedding tea followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Large took passage on the [illegible] o'clock train to spend their honeymoon in the West. Upon their return a reception will be tendered them at their new home in Trenton. The gifts were numerous and elegant.

$1,000 More to be Spent on Hope Chapel.

A congregational meeting was held after the prayer meeting in the Crescent Avenue church, June 18, to consider the subject of enlarging Hope chapel. Charles Place stated that the trustees had been requested by the Session to call such a meeting, and he then desired Mr. Squires, Superintendent of Hope chapel, to present the urgency of the case.

Mr. Squires stated that the chapel now held 220 chairs and a few [illegible] seats, and the attendance last Sunday was 235. There is room for only 17 classes, which gives an average of 14 to a class. The work is progressing rapidly, and the members are assisting in raising the building fund. A room to hold 75 people could be added for six or eight hundred dollars. Mr. Lowell presented a resolution authorizing the trustees to make needed additions, the expense not to exceed one thousand dollars, which resolution was adopted.

[illegible]

In the Union County Court of Special Sessions, held at Elizabeth, June 19, Charles Ramsberger and Bernard Egel were placed on trial for larceny. The case has excited much interest in this city where the parties all reside. The complaining witness was Mr. A. L. Cadmus, the tailor, and he alleges that grain and flour were taken out in bags and packages from his mills by Egel in excess of orders, and that Ramsberger, the miller, was in league with the driver and that the flour and grain was sold and the proceeds pocketed. Mr. R. V. Lindabury, Mr. Joseph C. Garrison and Hon. Foster M. Voorhees are counsel for the defendants.

The jury in the above case went out next afternoon, and after deliberating for ten minutes returned a verdict of not guilty. Both Egel and Ramsberger were discharged.

"Yes; I shall break the engagement," she said, [illegible] "it is really too [illegible] to marry [illegible] with him; he's as [illegible] as a post, and talks like he had a [illegible] of mush. Besides the way he hawks and spits is disgusting." "Don't break the engagement for that; tell him to take Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It will cure him completely." "Well, I'll tell him. I do hate to break it off, for in all other respects he's quite too charming." [illegible] cured his catarrh.

Alfred Holmes, a High School graduate of '90, has successfully and unconditionally passed his examination for Princeton College.

Miss Nellie Dunning, of New York city, has returned after a week's visit with Mr and Mrs John H. Jackson, at their home on Duer street.

Louis, the four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David [illegible] of Pearl street, North Plainfield, died on Thursday night from cholera infantum.

George H. Babcock and wife of Eighth street, attended the conference of the Seventh Day Baptist church, held at Westerly, R. I., last week.

Mr. W. L. Patten of East Ninth street, has leased a cottage at North Long Branch, where he will remove his family the latter part of this week.

Mrs. Lizzie Wilson of Somerset street, who has been absent in England for the past two months visiting her parents, has returned to her home in this city.

Mrs. C. H. Gill of West Fourth street, has a curiosity in the shape of a mammoth cactus plant, which has on it fully one hundred flowers in full bloom.

Willie Jeffery, of Grand View avenue, fell from a wild cherry tree, Saturday, and suffered a slight concussion of the brain. Dr. Hedges attended him, and today he is as well as ever.

Mrs. Marshall, widow of the late Daniel J. Marshall, was taken seriously ill from a hemorrhage last Saturday, but her many friends will be glad to learn that she is better today.

At the commencement exercises in Rutgers' College, June 18, Mr. Wm. C. Hubbard of this city was one of the students who received a certificate of work awarded those not candidates for a degree.

Dr. Edward Rushmore left New York on Monday in company with a party of New York and Philadelphia physicians, by boat to attend the annual convention of the International Hahnemannian Association, at Watch Hill, R. I.

Senator Miller has disposed of his homestead on Elm street, Westfield, together with his brick house at the corner of Elm street and Kimball avenue, to a New York party. The Senator now makes his home in New York city.

Charles Johnson, a brother of Benjamin Johnson, who is the porter in the City Pharmacy, died at his home in Philadelphia, on June 18, aged 51 years. The funeral took place at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon with Masonic honors.

Virginia, the eight-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Davis of East Fifth street, died Sunday afternoon of cholera infantum. It is the fourth child these parents have lost; and they have the deep sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Miss Gussie and Miss Minnie Murray will accompany their brother, President Wm. D. Murray, of the Y. M. C. A., on a ten weeks' trip to Europe. They will sail Saturday of this week, and among other places of interest will visit the Land of the Midnight Sun.

The remains of the late Albert [illegible], formerly of this city, who died at Houston, Texas, in November, 1888, arrived in this city on Friday, and Saturday were interred in Evergreen cemetery. During the past year and a half the body has been in a vault at Houston.

The funeral of the late Albert Vander[illegible], who died on Tuesday, took place from his late home on Elm street, Friday afternoon at two o'clock. The Rev. W. R. Richards officiated, assisted by the Rev Dr. K. P. Ketcham. Interment was made in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield.

As already stated in these columns, the marriage of Edwin H. Lewis, teacher of the High School senior class, and son of the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, to Miss Taylor, will take place Monday the 30th inst. In the Fall, Mr Lewis will assume the duties of the new position that he has recently accepted—Professor of Latin in the University at Alfred Center, N. Y.

The New York Sun says: "Marion Ackerman of the Plainfield Bicycle Club rode from Plainfield to Westfield and return—a distance of twelve miles—in thirty-six minutes. This is the best time made by any of the Plainfield boys." J. Hervey Doane, however, rode there in fifteen minutes, the other day, and says he would have ridden back in less time but he used up the horse he was racing against, and had to wait for the animal.

Among the valuable features already secured for George Thatcher's Minstrels, none has proven so satisfactory on trial nor given such promise of great draft, as Master John Parr, a boy-soprano of phenomenal voice. Master Parr was in Plainfield the other day, and those who were favored with a chance to hear him are sincerely enthusiastic. His register is remarkable in extent, while his tones are all pure and full. He is just fourteen years of age.

Lawrence Myers of East Front street, received word Monday that his daughter, Lucy, was failing fast from consumption. He left that evening with his brother, ex-Councilman J. K. Myers, for Colorado Springs where she is with her mother. There is but little probability that he will reach his destination before her death. Mr. Myers bought a house at Colorado Springs, some months ago, and has since lived there with his wife and daughter for the latter's health.

Frank W. Moore, for so long a resident of this city and one of its most esteemed and genial citizens, has accepted the position of Gen'l Manager for the Magnetic Iron Ore company, at Benson Mines, St. Lawrence county, N. Y. He will leave for there Thursday. The company is already building their new manager a handsome residence, to which his wife, formerly Miss Minnie Bird of this city, will soon follow him. For the past three years Mr. and Mrs. Moore have lived at Rotterdam, where he has with great success acted as Superintendent of the sale of American oil in bulk, for well known firms of New York, Bremen and Holland.

Louis M. Stover of East Ninth street, is enjoying a brief sojourn at Barnegat.

Ex-Councilman W. R. Potts and family of this city, will spend the Summer at Pomfret Centre, Conn.

Ex-Governor Green and family will occupy their cottage at Perth Amboy during the Summer, beginning on July 1.

Mr. S. C. Peck, Sr., the father of Plainfield's only "Come to Peck's," is visiting his son. He celebrated his 82d birthday Tuesday.

Miss Clara Dunn, of Park avenue, has gone for the Summer Assembly at Chautauqua where she will remain until the first of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Allen of West Sixth street are the happy parents of a boy baby, whose age will be recorded from Sunday last.

David W. Pond, of The Pond Machine Tool Co., has just returned from a business trip that resulted in the securing of further contracts for the Works that will aggregate in amount several tens of thousands of dollars.

Among the Plainfielders registered at Asbury Park are Mrs. S. J. Conkling at the "Bristol," and Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Lewis at the "Lenox." James A. Taylor and family are registered at the "El Dorado," Ocean Grove.

The Rev. Dr. John VanMeter, of Baltimore, who as first stated exclusively in The Press will address the High school graduates at Music Hall, Thursday evening, will be the guest while here of James W. Jackson of Central avenue.

Wm. P. Burr a well-known and respected resident of Burlington, died very suddenly while on a visit to his son, T. S. Burr, of LaGrande avenue, this city, Tuesday morning. The deceased was [illegible] years of age, and heart failure is thought to have caused his death.

Mr. L. E. Hickok, of the Pope M'f'g company of Boston, the manufacturers of the celebrated Columbia Bicycles, was the guest Monday of Captain Frank L. C. Martin. He expressed himself very well satisfied with the outlook, and bestowed the usual praise upon the roads in Plainfield.

The High School Class of '90 were the guests of Miss Minnie Jackson French, one of their number, at her home on Craig place, Tuesday afternoon and evening. The coming Commencement and its arrangements were talked over and a tempting supper served. Miss French proved herself a perfect young hostess.

It is much to the credit of the pupils of the High school, that all who have this year taken entrance examinations for college, have passed them successfully and without condition. Of these, Alfred Holmes, Edward C. [illegible], Edward J. Patterson and Walter R. Darby, will enter Princeton college. Edmund F. Nischwitz goes to Rutgers, and Miss Caroline F. Randolph to Wellesley.

A telegram was received in this city, early on Tuesday, announcing the death at Denver, Colorado, at 9 o'clock Monday evening, of Harrold, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Zeagler, the latter formerly Miss Carrie W. Laing of this city. Death resulted from cholera infantum. The funeral took place from the house, No. 1737 Vine street, Capitol Hill, Denver, Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock.

The last sad funeral rites following the death of the late Mrs. Cornelia Pearsall, widow of the late James A. Morris, who died on Sunday morning, took place from the residence of her son-in-law, Robert C. Dingee, No. 25 East Fifth street, at half-past 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, in the presence of many of the relatives and near friends of the family. The Rev. E. M. Rodman officiated. The remains were taken to Greenwood for interment.

The American Potters' Journal published at Trenton, contains in its issue of June 14, a [illegible] account of a presentation to Manager Wm. Tams, by the employees of the Greenwood Pottery. The occasion was also for the purpose of an expression of good wishes towards their employer upon his recent marriage to Councilman Moffett's daughter of this city. The men presented a handsome piece of statuary and a gold headed cane, with a speech of praise and esteem. The ladies of the wareroom showed their admiration in a floral tribute.

Charles Bullman has just returned from the Choco, Republic of Colombia, via Isthmus of Panama, and is at his home on Third place. During his absence he penetrated into parts of country never before visited by white men, and discovered unworked mines rich in gold and other ores. He was sent as a scientific explorer and expert by a syndicate of capitalists who have secured large grants and mining privileges from the native kings and queens. Mr. Bullman himself owns a half-interest in one of the richest of these mines.

Among the passengers by steamer "Teutonic" at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, for Europe, were the Rev. Dr. Ketcham, of this city, and the youngest two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Yates. They expect to be back by August 27, and Dr. Ketcham has promised to preach to his people again on the last Sunday of that month. Secretary Blaine has furnished the party with letters of introduction to all the foreign diplomatic corps, and Governor Abbett has sent letters to Minister Lincoln and others. Dr. Ketcham and the Misses Yates will visit London, Paris, Rome, Switzerland and all the most interesting features en route, including Vesuvius.

A DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY.

Holy Cross Church Celebrates by Introducing Its New Organ.

The church of the Holy Cross Sunday celebrated its twenty-first anniversary and the second anniversary of its male vested choir. The occasion was also that of the first use of the new grand organ in the service of the church. The people of the church are to be greatly congratulated on the possession of the new instrument, built by Messrs Lobagh & Kemp of New York, which exceeded all expectations and will easily take first place among Plainfield's organs for richness and sweetness of tone, as well as for size. The musical services, both morning and afternoon, were admirably rendered by the choir, and Mr. Edward N. Neilson of Elizabeth who presided at the organ, was considered the most accomplished and pleasing player who has yet been heard in the church. In the morning the Rev. T. Logan Murphy preached a powerful sermon, and the collections taken during the day amount to about $100, which will be devoted to choir expenses.

The Size of It.

It has naturally become the general opinion of the people of this city—an opinion shared even by some of the people of Somerville—that the West End ball team of that place is afraid to play the Crescent League team of this city.

That's about the size of it; and all claims on the part of Somerville's papers, that they won't play because The Press "talks about them," deceive nobody.

Captured a Young Tarantula.

Harry Connett, one of Station Agent J. A. Haynes' assistants at the freight house, last week captured a young tarantula, while unloading bananas from a freight car. The reptile was found clinging to a bunch of bananas and was placed in a box by Adam Bock. Its bite sometimes produces a trifling effect about equal to the sting of a wasp, and is popularly supposed to be cured by music. The tarantula is found in large numbers in Italy.

A PLEA FOR THE SICK TEACHER.

School Trustee Probasco Doesn't Believe in Their Forfeiture of One Cent of Salary, and Carries His Point.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Education, on Monday, there were present Trustees Kirkner, Murray and Probasco, acting Principal Goodrich, and acting Clerk Clark. The meeting opened harmoniously, with all in full accord as to the appointing of S. Lena Buse as a teacher in the 3d grade, grammar school; the opening after the long vacation again on September 8, and the stationing of the janitors as special policemen at the Music Hall doors, Thursday evening, to prevent the entrance of anyone during the reading of an essay. Mr. Goodrich's experience so far as it would bear on this last, most desirable, provision, was that the janitors would not be of much use in such capacity. The public will hope he is wrong. The amount of tuition received for the last quarter was reported as $467, making a total for the year of about $1,[illegible].

Then the question of auditing the last pay roll of the term came up and the meeting was more interesting. Each month there is deducted from each teacher's pay, the days she has been absent. At the end of the term pay for five days of such absence if from sickness, is allowed. There were but a few teachers who last year exceeded this five day's grace, and only one was an extreme case. Miss Colony was very sick in September for a few days, and her doctor advised her not to attempt teaching again during the term. She would not give up, however, came back in October, and the result was she broke down entirely and was sick during the entire month of November. Her total absence was 36 days. During her absence and that of all the other teachers, substitutes are paid to take their places.

Mr. Murray moved, as has been the custom, that all the absentees be paid in full so far as the five days allowance would cover; and that all absent days in excess be also paid the teacher in full less the amount that had been paid her substitute.

Mr. Probasco thereupon shattered all rule and precedent by an unheard of, and unexpected protest. "I don't think that's right! No teacher ought to lose her salary for being sick." In vain Mr. Murray explained how experience had shown that the absence of regular teachers was very detrimental to the progress of the scholars and the standing of the school. The making of the rule had been forced upon the Board, and its good effect had been thoroughly proven.

Mr. Kirkner's nineteen years connection with school affairs enabled him also to speak understandingly, but Mr. Probasco after listening courteously and attentively, only said: "You can't change my views! We would not treat our employees so, and school teachers are the poorest paid of all employees." Mr. Kirkner said, "Of course as individuals we can do as we please, and allow our generosity to be controlled by our sympathy; but as public servants in this case we can't do otherwise than in accordance with the rule that has been established and is understood. If it was known that all loss from absence would be remitted, we would be compelled to keep floating teachers on regular duty and full pay to supply the places of the absent."

Mr. Probasco said that the requirement of a physician's certificate would overcome all that. Mr. Goodrich—to whose duties as acting Principal has been added the task of preparing the Senior Class for graduation, and whose head and hands are so full he dare not be sick a minute—justly remarked, "It is hard enough for a teacher to be sick, and to have doctor's bills besides her living still to pay, without losing her salary besides." Then Mr. Murray withdrew his motion, and it was ordered that the teachers be paid in full for all days absent because of sickness. One of the teachers who staid away a day to go to a wedding, and another who was summoned to Court a day, will lose pay for those days.

A letter from Professor Tyler of Amherst College, father of M. W. Tyler of this city, and acting President in the absence of Prof. Seelye, was read, highly recommending Edwin S. Hunt, an Amherst senior, for the vacancy in the High School corps caused by the resignation of Edwin H. Lewis. Mr. Goodrich was instructed to send for Mr Hunt to meet the Board in this city next Friday evening.

OBITUARY.

REV. N. EVERETT SMITH.

The Rev. N. Everett Smith, for many years pastor of the Congregational church (now Trinity Reformed) in this city, died at the home of his daughter Laura, Mrs. Will Cameron, No. 65 Downing street, Brooklyn, morning of June 18, from bronchial pneumonia and partial paralysis, after a week's illness.

He was born at Jamaica, L. I., in 18[illegible]. He was educated at Rutgers College and studied for the ministry in that institution. His first pastorate was at the Dutch Reformed church at Brookville, L. I. He remained there six years and then became pastor of the Middle Reformed church of Brooklyn. After a pastorate of eighteen years he resigned, and becoming a member of the Congregational Church became pastor of the Congregational church in this city. After ten years at the church here he was called to the pastorate of the State Street Congregational church, Brooklyn, and continued in the pastorate until the disbandment of the congregation three years ago.

Since then he has had no regular charge, but has preached occasionally in the Congregational church at Lake Grove, L. I. He leaves a wife and three daughters.

A Hamburg Fig.

There is no longer need to force children to take castor oil for sickness. A HAMBURG FIG, which is like preserved fruit, will be taken by them with relish. 25 cents. Dose, one fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

MR. VENINO'S PUPILS.

They Give a Remarkably Fine Recital in the Presence of a Large Audience.

Several hundred of Plainfield's most musical people gathered on Thursday in the Crescent Avenue chapel upon the occasion of the piano recital of the pupils of Mr. A. Venino. The exhibition was a thoroughly enjoyable one, for although the qualifications of the pupils are necessarily varied, each played only what she was able to perform well, and in no case was the execution such as would be painful to the most severe critic. Mr. Venino's success as a teacher exists partly in his building only on a firm foundation, and in the playing of each pupil could be traced the shadow, more or less heavy, of the fine execution of the master.

The opening selection was an overture for two pianos, Goldmark's Sakuntala, rendered by Misses Margaret L. Tracy, Bessie E. Titsworth, Sadiee M. Wills and Kittie C. Manning. There was probably some embarrassment, in facing for the first so large an audience, which slightly affected the beginning of the selection, but it soon wore away, and the rest was rendered in fine style. A romance, Schumann, and a serenade, Jensen, were charming selections charmingly played by Miss Margaret Tracy. Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 14, No. 2, was delightfully rendered by Miss Bessie E. Titsworth. Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2, possibly received the most applause as it is an especial pet with all music lovers, and, while being extremely difficult, it was finely rendered by Miss Caroline B. Hart and Mr. Venino. Miss Lillian A. Force and Miss Mabel A. Maxson, who played Leschetizky's Les Deux Alouettes and Seeling's Loreley, respectively, gave great pleasure, showing considerable talent. The applause they received was most appreciative and sincere.

The performance of a Sonata of Mozart by Miss Alice Holmes and Mr Venino, deserves especial mention. Seated at two pianos several feet apart, they played as one, and in the fugue passages one could only distinguish between the two instruments by watching the players. Miss Holmes' manner at the piano is also very pleasing. Miss Marion S. Dumont's rendition of Chaminade's Air de Ballet might be compared to Mr. Venino's performance of the same in the same room, without discredit to the latter. Miss Emily Sandford also gave pleasure with a Sonata of Beethoven, Op. 78. The Meistersinger of Nurnberg, by Misses Marion S. Dumont, Lillian A. Force, Maude Van Boskerck and Mabel A. Maxson, was well executed. It was distinctively Wagnerian, which, as you know, is "a great deal better than it sounds."

Ushers, three and four deep, were kept running with baskets and bouquets of flowers through the evening. The pianos used were the Steinway Baby Grand, recently purchased by Mr. Venino, and the new Steinway Grand belonging to the Chapel.

Taken generally or specifically, above evening's recital showed commendable results never before accomplished by any instructor of music in this city.

Death of Mrs. Cornelia P. Morris.

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. C. Dingee, on East Fifth street, early Sunday morning occurred the death of Mrs Cornelia Pearsall, widow of the late John A. Morris, in the 69th year of her age. Mrs. Morris had been an invalid for a long time, and her death was therefore expected.

Mrs. Morris was possessed of many good traits for which she will long be remembered. During the late war her devotion to the wounded soldiers and sailors was noticeable, and she was at all times possessed of a kind and loving disposition. Her friends were legion.

A New Church Organized.

The Emmanuel Baptist Mission of which the Rev. J. W. Mitchell is pastor, met Tuesday evening, the 17th instant and organized themselves into a regular Baptist church. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell was chosen moderator. The articles of faith as set forth in Hiscox manuel were read and adopted and the church covenant was read. After which it was Resolved, That we now declare ourselves a regular Baptist church to be know as the Emmanuel Baptist Church of Christ.

Mr. Mitchell was chosen as the pastor. The following were elected: Trustees—Arthur Wyckoff, Theo. Rounds, Robert Randolph, Alfred Atkins and W. H. Connett. Church Clerk—Charles Vandervoer. Financial Secretary—James Connett.

The Seventh-day Baptist Church.

The work of removing the Seventh-day Baptist Church building to its new location at Madison avenue, is necessarily slow, but it is progressing favorably. The old structure, although apparently new looking, was dedicated twenty-three years ago last March. It was originally intended to build a church that would cost about $16,000, but when the edifice was completed the aggregate cost figured up to about $34,000. The lot was purchased for $1,700, but it could not be bought today for $8,000.

The old church was erected just after the close of the war, when everything, including labor and material, was high; much of the lumber used in the construction of the building costing seven cents a foot.

As soon as the old church is placed upon its new foundation, the congregation will again worship in it, and until the new church is completed. The old building will then be either rented or sold.

The auditorium in the new edifice will not be so large as the one in which the congregation have previously met for worship, but it will be so arranged that the adjoining Sunday school room can be opened up and made a part of the main auditorium. When completed the new church will be free from debt.

Carrie E. Kirkner's Funeral.

There were solemn and impressive ceremonies enacted at the Congregational church, at five o'clock Thursday afternoon, when the funeral of the late Miss Carrie E. Kirkner whose remains were brought on from Dresden, Germany, where she died on May 25, took place in the presence of a large circle of the relatives and friends of the deceased. The Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the pastor, officiated and he was assisted by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, who also made the opening prayer and pronounced the benediction.

The remarks of the Rev. Mr. Goodrich were touching and sympathetic, and at times there were few dry eyes among the mourners. The Rev. Mr. Goodrich also read the Scriptures.

Dr. Lewis in his remarks alluded to his recent European tour with Mrs. Lewis, during which he met Miss Kirkner and her party in London on the eve of his sailing for home. He spoke in eulogy of Miss Kirkner whom he characterized as a model young Christian, just merging into womanhood.

A quartette choir consisting of Mrs. J. K. Myers, Miss Alice Holmes and Messrs E. E. Runyon and Alfred Holmes rendered beautiful and appropriate music. The casket containing the remains was literally banked with choice flowers. It was hermetically sealed and the body was not therefore exposed to view.

The remains were taken to Flushing, L. I., Friday for interment.

A FATAL RACE.

Many Homers Lost, But "Baby McKee" Arrives in Safety.

About 500 homing pigeons were liberated Thursday to compete for records and prizes in the third of the concourse races from 400 miles. The birds flew to this city, Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Keyport, N. J.; Peekskill, N. Y., and Providence; the liberating points being Lexington, N. C., Rocky Mount, Va., Bedford City, Va., and Warrentown, Va. All, with the exception of the birds at Rocky Mount were liberated at 6 A. M. The atmospheric conditions were fair and the wind from the West or Northwest. The birds at Rocky Mount which included the Plainfield entries, were started at 5:30, wind variable and weather clear.

All day long the birds were watched for, but none returned to this city until the next morning. At five o'clock A. M., yesterday, a bird of James Ingram's came in, followed during the morning by birds of Charles Faber, Hervey Doane and "Baby McKee" of The Press news service. The fly was probably one of the most disastrous ever recorded. Wind and everything else were against the birds, and possibly 300 of them are lost. But few are reported home in Philadelphia, New York and Newark, and the Plainfield owners all have birds missing. Dr. Johnson, of Keyport, who had a bird home at 6:09 P. M., of Thursday, wins the race, but loses the special prize of $50 because he neglected to mark one of his birds "special," and that was the one that got home.

HYMENEAL.

MARTIN—SUTPHEN.

At New Brunswick, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, occurred the marriage of Gilbert S. Martin, a member of The Press composing staff, and Miss Augusta M. Sutphen of North Plainfield. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. M. V. McDuffie, pastor of the Remsen Avenue Baptist church, at the home of Mr. H. A. Kibbe, manager of the New Brunswick Home News, 23 John street. The bride was attired in a handsome traveling dress, the groom wore a conventional suit of black. Miss Alice V. Sutphen, a sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Chester B. Dennis was the best man. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will reside in North Plainfield.

Stop That!

Mrs. John Barrett while walking along the sidewalk on East Front street, on Saturday, narrowly escaped being knocked down by a young man on a bicycle.

A Small Fire.

The roof on Kenyon's machine shop was discovered to be on fire about 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning, by some street laborers who were working near by. The flames were extinguished with a few pails of water.

A Scurrilous Charge.

The Democrat of Somerville adds insult to injury. Not satisfied with calling this city "Pinchgut," and its people "toughs," it further displays its vile temper by saying that it "believes that the news voices the sentiments of the best people of this city."

She Was Passionately Fond of Cod Fish.

The wife of a well-known Plainfield avenue resident went into Shafer's grocery store on Liberty street, Friday evening to make some purchases, and while there she pocketed half of a cod fish. Officer Laine subsequently recovered the fish from a closet in the woman's kitchen. No complaint was lodged against her on account of the respectability of her family.

Verdict Against Ex-Captain Carey.

After two adjournments the case of J. B. Miller & Bro., against Tunis J. Carey to recover a balance of $25, alleged to be due on a note, came up before Justice Nash, Thursday afternoon, when Carey's counsel again asked for another adjournment, which the justice refused. Judgment was rendered in favor of the complainants for the full amount of the claim, together with interest and costs.

Counsel for the defence thereupon gave notice of an appeal.

John have you seen that woman lately? John in astonishment! What woman? That woman picking grapes for Speer's Wine. Just see her in another column and read about it, the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. —The auction sale of the $600 first mortgage bond on the Sussex Railroad company, bearing seven per cent. and payable in 1903, which Walter L. Hetfield, executor of the late Amy L. Moore, advertised to take place at Laing's Hall, on Thursday, was adjourned over indefinitely.

—Mr. C. B. Clifton of this city, last week, paid ten dollars into the borough treasury, for violating the health ordinance by depositing decayed vegetable matter within the borough limits.

SAVED.—A fine family of children were all afflicted with scrofula. Two died early; the rest would soon have followed, but for the timely and persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which built them up into a healthy and vigorous manhood.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

Why We All Laugh.

In calling attention to the enterprise of The Press in publishing a picture of Plainfield's soldiers monument and a description of it, the news says:

> As an extra precaution he (Gen'l Negley) took the design away with him from the post room, where the meeting was held. He has doubtless been deceived into loaning it to some dishonorable person who has made surreptitious use of it in the only publication office in this locality where honor seems unknown.

Col. Mason W. Tyler, Chairman of the committee of design, gave permission for the publication of the design in The Press, and Gen'l Negley not only gave the picture to The Press, but wrote the legend of it for publication in these columns.

COMPETITION.

Its the life of business and the only thing that keeps it in a normal condition. We welcome it because we have confidence in the goods we offer. We only want what the word means to be properly understood. Competition is rivalry for first place between two or more parties having equal claims. Now, the truth is, that in the clothing business there is little competition with such goods as we sell. The bulk of Ready-made Clothing, manufactured for sale to the jobbers and passed on from them to the retailers, don't compete with the Clothing we sell at all. There is a good deal of shouting done about it, and its merits are insisted upon most vigorously, but it don't compete. The merchant tailors are the only houses with which our Ready-made Clothing competes, in quality, style and finish; while, of course, it has a marvelous advantage when it comes to price.

We don't claim any monopoly in making such an article as we offer, but we insist that there's art in it. There's no patent in selling as good a suit as we do for the money, all we say is, it isn't done. We'll prove it to you. Select a suit, any price you like, one that is pressed upon your notice as down to "rock bottom," "below cost," or any other term which denotes cheapness. Select such a suit, we say, in some store noted for its advertisement of bargains, and then come and let us show you a suit at the same price, and you'll have proof before your own eyes of what we claim. We don't fear competition; we've no reason to; least of all would be competition from an inferior article.

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reason it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake, and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. YACHTSMEN'S COLLEGE.

Where Wealthy Amateurs Learn the Navigator's Art.

Admiral Patterson's Rich Pupils—The Ex-Commander of the Haytien Navy Who Turns Out Expert Navigators in a Month.

[Copyright, 1890.]

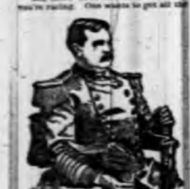
"Navigate my own yacht? Of course I do."

"And dispense with a sailing master?" I asked further.

"Oh, well, the fact is that none of us have sailing masters, but I don't think there is a man in the club owning a single or double-sticker who isn't capable of taking her anywhere just as handily as any old professional," replied my friend, who is a well-known member of the New York Yacht Club.

"But in races?" I persisted.

"Ah, there now; it's different when you're racing. One wants to get all the good points out of his yacht he can, and there's where the sailing-master comes in useful. But in cruising and pleasuring about American waters, and even farther, a yachtsman's navigation ought to stand him in good stead. He must be a certificated man, of course."



ADMIRAL PATTERSON.

"By a Government navigation board? Why, that would take years of study."

"Quite unnecessary!" exclaimed the clubman, laughing. "How could a busy man spare the time? He simply acquires his experience on board his own or his friends' yachts by taking a course at the Admiral's, and he comes out in a few weeks with a diploma, a warranted navigator, able to sail his boat around the globe. If he is disposed to be particular about knowing every thing he may even take a few extra lessons, and he needn't lose a day from his business while he is studying, either."

How my [illegible] as old Marryat would have exclaimed, but here was a revelation. Able skippers, full of the ancient lore of the sea, turned out to order in a few weeks! All the art of Vasco de Gama, Captain Kidd, Paul Jones and Farragut concentrated and taught in a twinkling while you wait.

With a little inquiry I found the Admiral's. On an upper floor in a very modest-looking brick building in Burling slip, is the nautical college where a considerable [illegible], hard-fisted and bow-legged sailor-men and wealthy amateurs are taught sea mathematics and the theory of navigation. It isn't a very pretentious college, this—merely a plain, snug main room, fitted up with desks on two sides; the walls hung with charts and covered with book-shelves, and the evidences of marine studies lying about in the form of sextants and quadrants, and various instruments that would puzzle a lands-man to put to use. Here, for years past, the Admiral has trod the boarded floor as proudly as many another commander might tread his own quarter-deck, and ushered his crew of students how to shape courses and distances, make dead reckoning, take an observation or strike the meridian altitude from the fire-escape, with the Brooklyn bridge cables as the horizon.

But the Admiral commands there no longer. He has not gone aloft, like Tom Bowling, but he has surrendered his log and speaking trumpet to his first officer, Captain Richard J. Bennington, who now steers the college craft with a hand scarcely less skillful than that of his predecessor. Admiral Howard Patterson, the retired commander, is a sea-dog with a rather remarkable history. Originally occupying a humble position in the United States navy, his smart eye soon won him a pair of epaulettes. By and by the ambitious American went to Hayti, and the news soon came from Port au Prince that Howard Patterson had been appointed Admiral of the navy of the dusky little Republic. It was the Haytien man-of-war, the Dessalines, that gave so much annoyance to an American trading vessel a few years ago, until a sharp reminder from an American warship brought President Legitime to his knees, and compelled him to make his coffee-colored captains and marines salute the Stars and Stripes.

CAPT. BENNINGTON.

When the Admiral returned to New York he devoted his energies to the school at Burling Slip. Years before there had been a school of navigation established by an old character named [illegible], on the east side of town. A very dubious affair it was when he opened it shortly after the close of the civil war. He was a practical navigator, however, and a really fine mathematician, though very eccentric. It lingered awhile under his management, and then, when [illegible] had made his last entry in the log-book and weighed anchor for a better shore, the school passed over to the command of Mrs. Downlow, a smart widow and the first woman in America, if not in the world, to teach navigation. She taught her pupils how to make a dead reckoning, to take the morning and afternoon sights and to calculate the meridian altitude as skillfully as the most scientific old salt of naval academy graduates. There are many shipmasters sailing from American ports who still remember the kindly-faced, affable woman captain of the college in [illegible] street.

At that time American yachting was still in its babyhood. Our single-stickers had scrambled the English yachts once or twice; but, while the British yacht owners were to a man splendid navigators, the Americans had to depend upon the skill of sailing masters exclusively. Since then the relative positions have changed, and there is now hardly a yacht owner in New York, Providence, Boston or San Francisco, who is not able to command his own yacht in person. The English cracks, like Earl Dunraven and Mr. Bell, who lately have been hesitating about accepting the America cup challenge, are now obliged to admit, however unwillingly, that while the gentleman yachtsman of the tight little island is like Ralph Rackstraw, "a sailor born," the Yankee yachtsman, too, has an ocean heritage and a very much sharper keel.

To this result the Admiral's school has very greatly contributed. The old commander of the Haytien navy could not give experience to his pupils; that they were supposed to supply themselves, and indeed almost all of the amateurs who came to him were men who spent a considerable portion of every summer on their boats. But he taught them the higher branches of sea-craft, made good marine mathematicians of the pleasure-loving millionaires, and grew capable commanders to the half hundred magnificent yachts which, till then, had been pretty and expensive toys, whether floating idly at anchor, or winning cups under the handling of professional sailing masters at Newport, Nahant, Nantucket, New York, Martha's Vineyard or Marblehead.

Not all of the rich men who follow yachting as a pastime go to the Burling Slip school, however. At their offices or their homes they are instructed by the Admiral or Captain Bennington. There are three courses, any or all of which may be taken by the yachtsmen. The first is that for navigators of the first grade, and covers the simpler problems of seamanship, shaping courses, dead reckoning, calculating ship's position, latitude and longitude and the variation and deviation of the compass. The second grade varies from the first only in being more thorough and comprehensive in the important problems. The third includes an extra course with lunar and stellar problems, magnetism and the nautical tables.

The Admiral is a large man, with a frank, open face and a ruddy complexion. His successor, Captain Bennington, is an Englishman who has sailed the globe, carried British troops to Egypt during the war there, taken stores through the Suez Canal while the Soudanese war was raging; Italian troops through to Massowah to fight the Abyssinians and British troops from Rangoon to Mandalay on a flotilla up the Irrawaddy. Although only thirty years old, he has spent sixteen at sea, and during that time has been twice shipwrecked and once burned out in midocean. The Captain comes of military stock, his father having been a member of the famous 11th Hussars, the heroes of the brilliant but ill-fated charge of the "Light Brigade" in the Crimea. Bennington is a well knit man of medium height, bearded and bronzed from long exposure to the sea breeze.

The smartest pupil who ever came to the little college on Burling Slip is old Commodore Gerry—"Fur-cap," as the boys call him. Like students in other branches, there are wide differences among the yachtsmen, but there are no duffards. The very fact that a man loves the sea seems to banish the possibility of dullness. With the exception of one amateur, who dropped in the middle of the course, there have been no failures.

One hears a good deal about the wonderful skill some ladies possess in handling a yacht; but with the sole exception of Mrs. Brownlow there is not on record the case of a single woman who ever studied navigation as a science. Yet it is known that a few ladies, the wives of rich yacht owners, have acquired remarkable skill and a very complete knowledge of the principles of yachting from their husbands. Mrs. Willie K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Iselin, Mrs. George Gould, Mrs. Commodore Gerry and Mrs. E. D. Morgan are among the few thus qualified, and their accomplishment is as much of a pleasure as it is a surprise to their friends. They are practical navigators, and they have learned from their husbands and from personal observation all they know about it. At the college women are ungallantly set down as being in the way on board yacht, and the captain declares he wouldn't think of giving them lessons; "they are too fussy." It seems unfair, as well as ungallant, to make such an assertion, in view of the fact that the navigator's art has been reduced to such simple terms that it only takes a month to acquire it, and that "no knowledge of mathematics is necessary." This is the declaration of the Burling Slip college itself, and would seem to furnish to the fair sex an invitation to a new and adventurous field where they can compete with man.

Who knows whether the next generation may not see a race of hardy women navigators arise who, with brown mast-headed and with horrid men for a working crew, will sweep the seas?

POINTS OF INFORMATION.

It takes about three seconds for a message to go from one end of the Atlantic cable to the other.

A horse walking at a smart pace strikes the ground with a force equal to a ton every time he puts down his forefoot.

Of the four generally used points only the period (.) dates earlier than the fifteenth century. The colon (:) is said to have been first introduced about 1485, the comma (,) some thirty-five years later, and the semi-colon (;) about 1570.

Ambergris, from which many perfumes are made, and which is sometimes used to flavor wine, is merely the morbid secretion of the liver of a sick spermaceti whale. It is a fatty, waxy substance, disagreeable to sight or touch, but even in the crude state exhaling a pleasant odor.

Vikings is a name given to the piratical Northmen who infested the coasts of the British Islands and other localities in the eighth, ninth and tenth centuries. The word is derived from the Scandinavian vik, a bay, and these men were so called because their ships put off, not like kings' ships, from the harbor, but from the bay.

The training of carrier pigeons begins as soon as they are strong enough to fly. The young birds are taken in a covered basket to a place about half a mile from their home, and set free. Those who do not go home are considered worthless; those which do so at once are tried again, the distance being increased each time, until it is found that they will go back, no matter how far they may be carried. The messages conveyed by these birds are usually written or photographed on very thin paper, and tied around the leg or one of the tail-feathers in such a manner that they do not impede the flight of the birds.

The name William was not at first given to children; it was a name conferred upon a man as a reward of merit. When the ancient Germans fought with the Romans, the Germans were armed only with light weapons, swords, spears, shields, etc., and if a German killed on the field a well-armed Roman, wearing a gilded helmet, the helmet was set on the head of the brave German who had slain its owner, who ever after was known as Gildhelm, or, as we would say, Golden Helmet. Among the Franks, the name was Guild-helme, and with the French, Guilleaume, afterward Guillaume, and with the Latin-speaking nations, Gulielmus. Finally, the French Guillaume became English William.

EDUCATIONAL EXTRACTS.

There are about 15,000 students in the schools of science in this country.

In 1860 America had more colleges in proportion to the population than she has now.

Japan gets from New York every year 50,000 American school-books for its public schools.

The American College and Educational Society refuses to aid men who use tobacco in any form.

The Indian training school at Carlisle, Penn., has now enrolled 728 scholars. At the recent commencement there were eight graduates.

It is proposed in Chicago to engage a matron for every school building in the city, whose duty it shall be to look after the physical well being of the pupils.

The senate of the Toronto University, Canada, has received a gift of $2,500 from the American Association for the advancement of science and for the encouragement of the study of physics.

In Hayti, public elementary education is free, the country being divided into fourteen inspector's districts. There are 400 National schools, several private schools, and five public lyceums.

There were 22,700 white and 12,004 colored children enrolled in the public schools in the city of Washington for the year 1889. There were 225 colored and 450 white teachers, and the total cost of instruction was $487,455.32.

A new school law has gone into operation in Manitoba which has the effect of abolishing all separate schools, or at least of withholding State aid from such schools. The new law establishes a public school system very similar to that of the United States.

In Paris there are five professional schools for girls. The course of instruction embraces modern languages, domestic economy, industrial designing, cutting and fitting garments, and accounts. Each school is equipped with a kitchen, and work-shops for making corsets, feathers and other staple articles of trade. Girls are admitted at fourteen and remain for three or four years.

Here are some interesting opinions from Mr. Gladstone: "The three handsomest men of their time were the late Duke of Hamilton, Sidney Herbert and Cardinal Manning; the three most naturally eloquent speakers of their day, the Duke of Argyll, the late Lord Elgin and Bishop Wilberforce. Lord Beaconsfield was the most interesting political character of this century, not excepting Mr. Pitt."

The Duke of Orleans has plenty of nerve. His family has an idea that while he is in prison he ought to be completing his education, and so the other day they sent one of the most serious members of the Orleans party to see him. The young Duke listened awhile to the old gentleman's talk about constitutional law, the Egyptian debt, etc.; then, suddenly slapping him on the back, he said: "I say, old fellow, let's have a game of cards."

BITS ABOUT FLOWERS.

Balsams can be used for decorative purposes if grown in pots in light, rich soil.

For lice on the rose bush use white hellebore, and use the same for the currant worm.

Pinks should be supported by stakes to preserve their bloom in perfection and unsoiled.

Thunbergias are very pretty and easily grown annuals and are worthy a place in every garden.

Antirrhinums will bloom all the finer, if no seeds are allowed to form during the summer. This really applies to most flowering plants. Always remove the fading bloom.

For cut flowers, or corsage bouquets the amateur should have geraniums, gladioli, lilies and tuberoses. All of these stay fresh for a long time after being picked even without water.

Bulbs when done flowering may be lifted as soon as the leaves begin to wither. Place them in clumps in a shady place, with a little soil over their lower parts to insure perfect ripening.

Phlox and plants of similar growth should be pinned down early in the season to make them cover the ground. Pins can be made from wire by cutting in suitable length and bending in hairpin shape.

Slips of oleander and other hard-wooded plants may be rooted in the simplest way by settling close together in a low vessel nearly full of a puddle of sand. This is to be put in a light, warm place, and the sand kept very wet.

Roses should by all means receive clean culture. The surface of the bed must never be allowed to become grassy, nor to bake nor otherwise get hard. Every week or two during the growing season, or after every rain, the ground should be stirred with hoe and rake, and not a sign of weeds nor grass be allowed.

Insects are the dread of the rose grower. Let it be borne in mind that it is the under-fed and otherwise neglected plants that invite the largest number of pests. Prevention in the way of a thoroughly prepared and cleanly tilled soil, fertility, watering, pruning, etc. should therefore be the first resort against their attacks, and thus nearly all trouble will be cut off.

The hybrid perpetual class of hardy roses give the best general satisfaction to the careful cultivator. They are not in reality perpetual bloomers, but derive their name from the fact of their being hybrids between the hardy summer-flowering species and the perpetual bloomers. Many of them throw off a few flowers at intervals through the summer, with a fair second crop in the autumn.

From committee on discharge of prisoners.

To the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union.

Gentlemen—Your committee on discharge of prisoners beg leave to report that they held the proper meetings during the year for the purpose of releasing prisoners from the jail whenever the same was necessary, and in each case where the warden has recommended an allowance for good behavior the same has been allowed.

Discharged 250.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE WRIGHT,
GEORGE KYTE,
FRANK KLEINHANS,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Briant received and ordered filed unanimously.

From committee on publication.

To the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union.

Gentlemen—Your committee on publication would respectfully report that there has been expended during the past year the sum $2,018.84, this includes the printing of the county collector's report and the minutes of the board.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM J. THOMPSON,
JOHN J. DONAHUE,
GEORGE KYTE,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Houston received and ordered filed unanimously.

From committee to settle with sheriff:

To the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee to settle with the sheriff beg leave to report that they have audited bills to the amount of $13,953.14.

Of the above amount the sheriff has paid the county collector the sum of $1,108.89 as prosecutor's fees.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE KYTE,
CHARLES D. WHALEY,
JOHN J. DONAHUE,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Briant received and ordered filed unanimously.

From committee on jail inspection:

To the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen—In accordance with the rules governing the board of freeholders, the committee on jail inspection herewith submit their annual report for the fiscal year ending May 1, 1890.

Accompanying this report is a carefully compiled statement by the warden, giving in detail the receipts, expenditures, number of commitments, costs per day of each prisoner, etc. This report shows the disbursements for all purposes, including salaries, provisions, clothing, medical attendance, miscellaneous supplies, tools, etc., to have been $4,914.13.

The number of prisoners in confinement at the beginning of the year was 37; committed during the year, 756; discharged, 746; and leaving in custody at the present time, 67. The average number in custody each day during the year was 51; and the average daily cost of each prisoner, including salaries and medical attendance, was 26.4 cents.

During the year the prisoners have been required to clean and care for the county buildings, and other incidental work that the committee and warden deemed necessary; together with firing and attending steam heating boiler, cooking and preparing food for the prisoners, receiving and storing away coal, etc. All this work carefully estimated would cost the county at least $2,000, and is properly an offset against the expenditures; reducing the cost per day to the very low sum of 15.6 cents per day.

All of which is very gratifying to your committee and is certainly an evidence of careful management in the administration of the county jail.

Your committee would also report that at their last meeting they reappointed Dr. J. O. Pinneo jail physician for the ensuing year, at the usual compensation.

To the warden, matron and assistant much credit is due for the very satisfactory condition of the jail and its surroundings. For cleanliness, neatness and discipline, we believe your county jail will compare favorably with any similar institution in the State.

A. VANDERBEEK,
WM. T. WEST,
BRADFORD JONES,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Roll received and ordered filed unanimously.

From committee on legal questions:

To the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen—The committee on legal questions would respectfully report that there are no cases existing against the county at the present time.

All that were in the year just past have been satisfactorily settled.

Very respectfully,
A. VANDERBEEK,
J. MARTIN ROLL,
J. J. DONAHUE,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Howard received and ordered filed unanimously.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Freeholder West:

Whereas, It appearing that this board have assumed control and adopted as a "county road" a certain road, known as Westfield avenue, leading from Bayway to Broad street, in the city of Elizabeth, at a meeting of the board held April 17, 1890, for the purpose of improving and maintaining the same under the provisions of an act entitled "An act to enable boards of chosen freeholders to acquire, improve and maintain public roads," approved March 19, 1889; therefore be it

Resolved, That the following description be adopted as an accurate description of the aforesaid road for the purpose of having the same recorded in the office of the county clerk as directed and required by the aforesaid act:

Beginning in the centre line of Westfield avenue where the same is intersected by the centre line of Bayway in the city of Elizabeth; thence running northeasterly along said Westfield avenue, the various causes thereof to a point where the centre line of said Westfield avenue intersects the southwesterly side of Broad street in said city of Elizabeth; and be it further

Resolved, That said road be laid down, marked and designated as a county road leading from Bayway to Broad street, in the city of Elizabeth, on the map entitled "Map of Union county, showing the roads designated as county roads," and adopted by this board as the map required under the provisions of the aforesaid act; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, certified by the clerk of this board, be filed in the county clerk's office.

Freeholder Kleinhans moved its adoption.

On roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder West:

Resolved, That bonds to the amount of $150,000, to be known as county road bonds, and bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent., be issued in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act to enable boards of chosen freeholders to acquire, improve and maintain public roads," and an amendment thereto, approved March 18, 1890.

Such bonds to be dated July 1, 1890, and sold in such manner and at such time as may hereafter be determined, and the proceeds thereof to be used for macadamizing and improving certain roads adopted by this board and known as county roads.

Freeholder Briant moved its adoption.

On roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Van Saun:

Resolved, That the thanks of this board are due and hereby tendered to the Director, J. F. Hubbard, for the skillful and efficient manner in which he has managed the intricate duties devolving upon him by virtue of his office, for the close and devoted attention he has given to all matters he has been called upon to perform, for the uniform courtesy he has shown the members as presiding officer, for his sound and impartial rulings, and for the unselfish motives shown by him in furthering the interest and welfare of the county, and that our associations with him have been exceedingly pleasant and agreeable during the whole period he has been connected with this board, and will be long remembered and tenderly cherished by us.

On motion of Freeholder Kleinhans adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Roll.

Resolved, That in giving the parting hand to the retiring members we desire to express to them our regards that the pleasant associations of the past two years must be broken, and also to record our appreciation of their faithful services in behalf of the county.

On motion of Freeholder Kyte adopted unanimously.

Freeholder West moved to adjourn sine die. Which was carried.

The Director declared the board adjourned sine die.

CHAS. E. REED, Clerk.

The Honeymoon.

When the clover's in its prime,
There's the sweetest marriage-time.
They the longest honeymoon
Have who marry now in June;
When the earth's most wooed and won,
And the summer's just begun;
When the daylight loves to stay,
And steals half the night away;
And the moonbeams shine so deep
That there seems no time for sleep;
When the air throbs with the gush
Of the silver-throated thrush,
And the soil has felt the thrill,
And bursts into bloom at will,
Imitating every shade
That the skies have ever made;
When the perfume, songs and light,
Earth's fulfillment of her plight,
Steal into the human heart,
Making all the love chords start
Into harmonies so sweet
That there seemeth no retreat
But to sing and blossom, too,
Just as birds and flowers do.
—Mary A. Mason, in Harper's Weekly.

She Might as Well.

Too diffident he was to kiss
The maiden by his side,
Although he loved the winsome miss
And sought her for his bride.

Said he, as in the twilight's gray
They wandered up and down,
"An anti-kissing club, they say,
Has just been formed in town."

"Do you intend to join?" she sighed,
And, as her lashes fell
O'er cheeks with crimson blushes dyed,
Replied: "I might as well."
—Boston Courier.

Summer Yearnings.

O for a wild, weird narrative
To make our blood run cold;
And O for a nice cool million
Of dollars all in gold,
And O for a cow that will give ice cream,
And O for a dish and spoon,
And O for the time when the frost collects
On the whiskers of the moon.

O for an ice-berg cold and deep
Wherein to crawl and hide;
And O for a glacier high and long
On which to take a ride.
And O for the sound of the skaters' shoes
As they ring in merry rhyme,
And O and O for an iceman who
Will sell us ice on time.
—Chicago Post.

What Does It Matter?

Wealth and glory, place and power,
What are they worth to me or you?
For the lease of life runs out in an hour,
And death stands ready to claim his due;
Sounding honors or heaps of gold,
What are they all when all is told?

A pain or a pleasure, a smile or a tear—
What does it matter what we claim?
For we step from the cradle into the bier,
And a careless world goes on the same;
Hours of gladness or hours of sorrow,
What does it matter to us to-morrow?

Truth of love or vow of friend—
Tender caresses or cruel sneers—
What do they matter to us in the end?
For the brief day dies and the long night nears;
Passionate kisses or tears of gall,
The grave will open and cover them all.

Homeless vagrant or honored guest,
Poor and humble, or rich and great—
All are racked with the world's unrest,
All must meet with the common fate;
Life from childhood till we are old,
What is it all when all is told?
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

The Fatal "No."

Black-eyed Alice was so stately,
Of such queenly presence she,
That each night when she sedately
Gave her finger tips to me,
Chilled by such a haughty bearing
I essayed no greater daring.

Even my looks I long dissembled
Fearing that too bold they were
And my voice that somehow trembled
As I parted late from her—
As I said: "Good-night," and after
Cursed her good-night's careless laughter.

But alas for stately Alice
And the seeming haughty bearing,
For the black eyes' tender malice
Stung me once to sudden daring.
Dear black eyes! that then [illegible] her,
As I trembled there beside her.

Suddenly her bearing altered
And a gracious smile possessed her,
While the little "No" she faltered
Conscious of my wish confessed her,
Ah, that "No!" Could I resist her?
When she faltered "No," I kissed her.
—George Horton, in Texas Siftings.

A Mood.

Streaks of white o'er a ground of blue;
Sparkling waves of a green gold hue;
And shadows shifting dreamily.
Glints of light on a sea-bird's wing;
The kiss of the sun on every thing;
And breezes stirring sleepily.

Flashes of sails on the seas far rim;
Dashes of foam on the sky's blue brim;
And lines of smoke blown lazily.
Quiver of life over tired eyes;
Then the melting together of seas and skies;
Hush; and dreams of eternity.
—Robert Adger Bowen, in Youth's Companion.

The Inner Life.

We know there is a life within the life
Of each who, toiling, treads the conquered way;
Even a fiercer strife behind the strife
That each is seen to wage from day to day.

We find ourselves contending with a world
In which ambition rules and pride holds sway;
We drink and scoff, like others, are possessed
With zeal to grasp the baubles as we may.

So we are judged to be alike as base
As he who sells for pottage all he hath—
Who yields not only love and joy and truth,
But yields for this his soul's immortal worth.

He then serves before the heartless judge,
Brave heart that hath with unseen valor fought;
Strive not to hold against the world a grudge,
And sell the sunshine of thy life for naught.

The world can never know thee as thou art,
Much less with truth can judge thee as it ought;
But if thou hast with courage done thy part,
For thee there's nothing further to be sought.

'Tis well for us to toil and strive to win
All that our health and comfort may require;
But let the angel still within us reign,
That he may aid the world to something higher.

Then let the inner life be full and free—
Let mind rule with the scepter of its might,
Let heart and soul with aspiration turn
Toward all that's great in nature, grand in thought.

Then to the world in judgment true or false,

The Difference.

THE GROWLER.

I do not like to be a man,
I'd hate to be a woman;
I do not like this Nature's plan,
I'm sorry I am human.
I'd hate like time to be a beast,
Despise the fish's lot;
In fact, I'd care not in the least,
If I were not.

THE HAPPY MAN.

I'm really glad I'm what I am,
Though I should never grow;
If I'd been born a silent clam,
A noisy beast or fowl;
Life suits me to a very T,

I simply overflow with glee,
[illegible]—I am.

THE cathedral at Cologne is one of the most imposing gothic structures in Europe. The original architect is unknown. The length is 511 feet and the breadth 231 feet.

THE cathedral in Mexico, begun in 1573, completed in 1667, is built in an irregular mixture of the gothic and Italian styles. It is 500 feet in length and 420 in breadth.

ST. PAUL'S cathedral in London is the fifth in size of Europe's great churches. Its length is 500 feet, the transept is 250 feet long, and the west front is 180 wide. The dome is 365 feet from the ground, and it is 145 feet in diameter.

THE cathedral of Notre Dame in Montreal is 255 feet long and 135 feet broad, and is capable of seating 10,000 persons. It has two towers, each 220 feet high, one of which contains a chime of bells and the other a single bell, the Gros Bourdon, weighing 29,400 pounds.

THE cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris stands upon the spot once occupied by a Roman temple. The length is 390 feet, width of transept, 144 feet; height of western towers, 224 feet; width of front, 128 feet, and length of nave to transept is 198 feet. The cathedral covers 64,108 square feet.

THE building of St. Peter's occupied 176 years. The length of the interior is 613½ feet; of transept from wall to wall, 446½ feet; height of nave, 152½ feet; of side aisles, 47 feet; width of nave, 77.56 feet; of side aisles, 33½ feet. The height of the dome from the pavement to the top of the cross is 448 feet.

WASHINGTON WIDOWS.

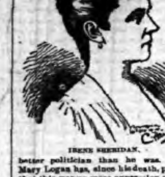
Hundreds of Them of All Degrees of Wealth and Beauty.

Their Influence in Social and Political Affairs—Globe-Trotting Widows and Widows Who are Fixtures in a Government Office.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

"Beware of vidders." If you look all through the papers you will not find this expression, which is so commonly supposed to have been uttered by the elder Weller. It would nevertheless have been good advice to give to so susceptible a young man as Samivel, for it is an unquestionable adage that, in matters pertaining to the heart, men are apt to approve the judgment of those other men who have gone before them.

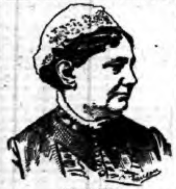
When General John A. Logan was alive, men used to say his wife was a better politician than he was. Mrs. Mary Logan has, since his death, proved that this was no more expression of gallantry. She is to-day one of the shrewdest politicians in Washington. Calumet Place, as her attractive home on Columbia Heights is called, is a sort of political executive mansion, and she, the central figure there, commands wires which many an aspirant for even Presidential honors would be glad to control. Mrs. Logan's interest in social and political affairs has abated no jot since her husband's death, and the effective diplomacy which she once exerted in his interest is now, it is said, turned in favor of his old friend, General Russell A. Alger.



IRENE SHERIDAN.

Mrs. Irene Sheridan has almost utterly withdrawn from the world. Within the walls of her really beautiful home on Rhode Island avenue she lives in quiet, unostentatious grief for her loved husband and in beautiful motherly devotion to her four dutiful children. About the elegant apartments, on the walls, in the niches, everywhere, are reminders of the lamented soldier to whom her life was so completely given. Portraits, busts, souvenirs of the gallant Phil, his equipments and relics of the war, are here in profusion, and the youthful-looking mother surrounded by children whose tender affections center upon her completes an ideal picture of a departed soldier's home. Mary, the eldest of the children, is a bright, pretty girl of fourteen; Louise and Irene, the twin daughters, are dainty mites of twelve, and little Phil is a delicate-looking lad of nine. There is throughout the household a delightful air of graceful refinement, one of the results of diligent care on the part of this exemplary mother. Should Mrs. Sheridan ever quit the seclusion into which her profound grief has thrown her, she will find herself the center of a very wide circle of sincere admirers.

A few doors from Mrs. Sheridan's home is the Rhode Island home of Mrs.



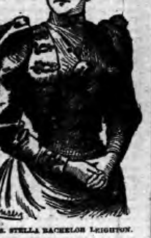
MRS. WAITE.

Waite, widow of the late Chief Justice—a sweet-faced matron whose quiet manner and sorrow-face befit the somber gown and cap she wears. Mrs. Waite's household consists of her daughter, Mary, and one or more of the late Chief Justice's relatives, who are pretty constantly visitors here. The widow is very fond of children, and at almost any hour of the day when she is at home one may hear the clatter of boyish feet and the merry laughter of little folk who have come in from all the neighborhood to romp through her halls and over her house in unrestrained glee. Chief-Justice Waite left but little fortune. Insurance to the extent of five thousand dollars and a house on I street constituted his entire estate. Had it not been for the action of his associates in the legal profession the family must have radically altered the mode of life. The members of the bar contributed thirty-five thousand dollars, which, being wisely invested, forms the fund on which the family lives, though Mrs. Waite has eked this out by renting the I street property for twenty-four hundred dollars a year and hiring the Rhode Island avenue house for twelve hundred dollars. Although she has never returned to the society from which she retired at the time of her husband's death, she still lives close enough to the current to maintain her interest in people and events, and is by no means lost sight of by official and diplomatic circles.

"Who is the most popular widow in Washington society?" I put this question to Miss Louise Covert, a keen and brilliant young society editor who knows the social conditions of Washington like a book.

"Stella Bachelor Leighton," she answered without hesitation.

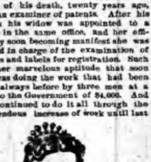
Mrs. Leighton, lately of Pasadena, Cal., was an Ohio girl, her ancestors having settled in that State in an early day. They were the Defours, a family famous for brave men and beautiful women. He was a member of this family who introduced grape culture into Ohio. Stella was the daughter of Mr. F. Y. Bachelor. She was born in Cincinnati, and, in that city of notably beautiful women, became one of the most noted. When little more than a school girl she became the wife of Mr. Joseph Leighton, who soon afterward removed to Minneapolis, Minn., and made his name a synonym of financial success throughout the Northwest. Seven years ago, Mr. Leighton's health being impaired, they removed to Pasadena, where they built a magnificent house. Here two boys were born to them and from this point they traveled extensively, spending much time in China, Japan and Europe. But the search for health was vain and after five years of anxious care for her invalid husband Mrs. Leighton, two years ago, became a widow with a splendid fortune. She is still a very young-looking woman—almost girlish, one might say, as is apt to be the case with golden-haired blondes. She now lives on Massachusetts avenue. Her widowed mother, also a very youthful-looking woman, lives with her and devotes herself to the two boys and the home cares. Mrs. Leighton is one of the busiest ladies in Washington, for in addition to the constant demands made upon her by society she spends every available moment in charity work. About this she is both discriminating and unostentatious. She goes about personally in search of poor families whose unmerited distress she relieves in such a manner as will not injure the pride of such as have pride or to encourage indolence in such as have it not. She is among the foremost contributors to the organized charities, but the greater part of her good work she accomplishes by personal and independent effort.



MRS. STELLA BACHELOR LEIGHTON.

Among the literary widows, plentiful in Washington, none is held in higher esteem than Mrs. Florence Huntley, the widow of Stanley Huntley, who wrote the "Spoopendyke Papers." To this brilliant woman and her literary work I recently devoted a long letter which had so wide a circulation that at this time it would be but repetition to write at length of her. But an article about Washington widows would fall very far short of completeness were this lady's name left from it.

Mrs. Etta S. Chapman, the widow of Charles Chapman, once a well-known musician of New Haven, Conn., is a wonderful woman. She is an expert in the Patent Office, occupying, as I am credibly informed, the only desk of the kind in the world. Her husband at the time of his death, twenty years ago, was an examiner of patents. After his death his widow was appointed to a place in the same office, and her efficiency soon becoming manifest she was placed in charge of the examination of marks and labels for registration. Such was her marvelous aptitude that soon she was doing the work that had been done always before by three men at a cost to the Government of $4,000. And she continued to do it all through the tremendous increase of work until last April, when an assistant was given to her. In 1884 she had to search 8,000 copies whenever an application was made. This was deemed an extraordinary task for anyone person. But during the last year she has had to search 18,000 copies, and until less than three months ago she did it alone.



MRS. ETTA CHAPMAN.

WILLIS B. HAWKINS.

IN THE CHAIR.

Reed's Favorites for Chairmen in Committee of the Whole.

Judge Payson's Courtesy—Allen, of Michigan, and O'Donnell, of the Same State are Clever—Henderson an Ornament to the Chair.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

The other day Speaker Reed called Watch-dog Holman to the chair. It was the first time that a Democrat had occupied the Speaker's seat since the 4th of March, 1889. Mr. Carlisle rarely, if ever, extended this courtesy to a Republican. Democratic Speakers pro tempore occasionally did so, however. Julius Cæsar Burrows was thus honored in the last session of Congress, and he honored the chair.

The Speaker always selects the chairman of the committee of the whole. Mr. Carlisle had his favorites, and Speaker Reed seems to have his. In the Fiftieth Congress the prominent chairmen in committee of the whole were Hon. Benton McMillin, of Tennessee, James H. Blount and Charles Frederick Crisp, of Georgia, and Alexander Monroe Dockery, of Missouri. In this Congress the favorites thus far are Judge Payson, of Illinois, Julius Cæsar Burrows, General Charles H. Grosvenor and Hon. Edward P. Allen, of Michigan. Ben Butterworth, Hon. Thomas J. Henderson, Hon. Bishop W. Perkins, of Kansas, and others have also occupied the chair.

It seems to be an unwritten law that no ex-Speaker shall be called to the chair. Samuel J. Randall never presided in committee of the whole in the Fiftieth Congress, nor has General Nathaniel P. Banks filled the chair in this Congress. Roger Q. Mills never wields the gavel. It is understood that he does not fancy the honor. Major McKinley is never called to the chair. As the leader of his party his place is upon the floor.

Judge Lewis E. Payson was chosen to preside in committee of the whole during the debate on the McKinley bill. He is a man of commanding presence and of unfailing courtesy. He gained the confidence of the House at the outset, and had very little difficulty in maintaining order. The judge has a florid face fringed with whiskers tinged with gray, and resembles a presiding elder. He was born in Providence, R. I., and is nearly fifty years old. He was once judge of a county court, and is now serving his fifth term in Congress. It is no easy matter to preside in committee of the whole. Points of order are frequently made involving delicate questions of parliamentary law. The judge listens patiently while such points are being discussed, and decides them with commendable promptness. He has the rules of the House and precedents ever at command, and gives his reasons for his decisions concisely and clearly. While the tariff bill was under consideration he was taken sick, and General Grosvenor took his place as chairman of the committee of the whole on the state of the Union.

The General is an aggressive man upon the floor.

When in the chair he loses this aggressiveness. If any thing, he is disposed to be too fair. This involves him into difficulties, and accounts for much of the confusion that prevailed during the discussion of the McKinley bill. The General was presiding when the Bayne-Bynum episode occurred. If he had been a little sterner and quicker the trouble would probably have been avoided. The General has thick white hair and a flowing snowy beard. When the House is in an uproar he beats a soft tattoo with his gavel and pleads for order. At one time he began to state a question, and absent-mindedly kept up the tattoo while he was speaking. This made it impossible to hear what he said. The members looked at him in some astonishment, and finally burst into laughter. The General in turn regarded the House in astonishment. He was evidently unaware of the cause of the merriment. He then stopped the tattoo and plead with the House to come to order. He distributes his recognitions impartially and is a general favorite.

GENERAL GROSVENOR IN THE CHAIR.

One of the finest of presiding officers is Hon. Julius Cæsar Burrows. During Mr. Reed's absence, owing to the death of his mother, Mr. Burrows was unanimously elected Speaker pro tem. He looks every inch a Speaker. He presides with the utmost dignity and with charming courtesy. He thoroughly understands the rules of the House and general parliamentary law, and has no difficulty in preserving order. His decisions are prompt and clear. He seems to take particular delight in quoting Democratic precedents for his rulings. This disarms opposition and gives him a clear field. He can state a question or elucidate a knotty point of parliamentary law as clearly as any man in the House. Burrows has blue eyes, straight brown hair and well-trimmed whiskers. He is the chairman of the committee on levees and improvements of the Mississippi river, and is second on the ways and means committee.

Mr. Allen, of Michigan, is another interesting presiding officer. He was chairman of the committee of the whole during the consideration of the Southern claims bill some weeks ago. The bill came up in the morning hour. This gave two days for its consideration. A point of order arose as to certain of the claims. It was asserted that they were not properly in the bill. Allen allowed the discussion of the point of order to occupy the most of the time allotted for the consideration of the bill. His action aroused Mr. Enloe, of Tennessee, who is a member of the committee on war claims. He became indignant because the chairman of the committee of the whole allowed the debate to continue instead of rendering a decision. Finally, he arose one night and gave notice that he would oppose all pension claims unless a decision upon the point of order was promptly made, and a fair show given to the bill. The matter was finally compromised, and Enloe was satisfied. Mr. Allen comes from Ypsilanti. He is a lawyer, fifty years old, and is serving his second term.

An exceedingly clever presiding officer is Hon. James O'Donnell, of Michigan. His face is the personification of good nature. Business moves slowly but firmly when he holds the gavel, and he gives universal satisfaction. O'Donnel is a printer, and the editor of the Jackson Citizen. He is an especial favorite with the new members, who secure recognition without difficulty while he is in the chair. This is his third term in Congress. O'Donnell is chairman of the committee on education.

Ben Butterworth is another man of business. The same ability and versatility that distinguish him upon the floor of the House are apparent when he takes the gavel. He does business expeditiously, and gets more fun out of it than Thomas B. Reed himself. His eyes twinkle as he elucidates a point of order, and his gavel dances at the least sign of confusion. Ben is an ever-flowing well of information and intellectual delight. If a member can't understand a question after Butterworth has explained it, he may as well shut up his desk and travel homewards. The General is also the handsomest of all the presiding officers. He has the form of an Apollo Belvidere; is as witty and versatile as John Van Buren, and as imperious in his rulings as Henry Clay. The House will lose its brightest ornament when Ben goes to Chicago to practice law.

The man for business is Bishop W. Perkins, of Kansas. There is no nonsense about him. When he takes the chair the legislative machinery begins to move. In expediting business he resembles the late Sunset Cox, who was a veritable steam engine. He keeps the House confined to the point at issue and drives bills through with a firm hand. He will do more work as chairman of the committee or as Speaker pro tempore in a given time than any other man in the House, and do it to the satisfaction of those upon the floor. Perkins is chairman of the committee on Indian affairs.

The Hon. Thomas J. Henderson, of Illinois, is another gentleman who makes a fine appearance at the Speaker's desk. He is now serving his sixteenth year in the Congress of the United States. There is nothing showy about him. He is neither witty nor sarcastic, but he is a telling speaker. He goes to his work as a farmer goes to his plow, and turns his furrow with the utmost regularity. He is a plain, matter-of-fact Congressman with plenty of horse-sense. Mr. Henderson is chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors, and engineered the river and harbor bill through the House a week or two ago.

Of course these are not the only gentlemen who appear in the Speaker's chair. Henry Cabot Lodge occasionally spends fifteen or twenty minutes there, and makes a very favorable impression. He has an intellectual face, a charming voice and a graceful manner. Then, Governor Dingley, of Maine, at times swings the gavel for a few minutes. Amos, John H. Moffit, of Franklin County, N. Y., takes a turn at the wheel. He is cool and practical and never loses his head. James Schoolcraft Sherman and Milton de Lano are two New Yorkers who also grace the chair once in awhile. Hon. James J. Belden never appeared there but once. It was after the House adjourned. He brought the gavel down with great dignity and called the pages to order. A page three feet high moved that the House go into committee of the whole on the state of the Union for the consideration of a bill increasing the salaries of the employes of the House. Belden put the question with the most profound gravity, and it was carried. Thereupon, the genial Congressman called the smallest page on the floor to the chair, retired to his seat and enjoyed the fun for an hour or more.

Then a tow-headed page moved that the committee rise and report the bill favorably to the House. The motion was carried and Mr. Belden again resumed the chair. The three-foot page descended the steps and appeared at the bar. He reported the proceedings of the committee with precision and dispatch. Thereupon, the previous question was ordered, the bill received its third reading and was put upon its final passage. It was carried. The little page gravely moved to reconsider it and lay that motion upon the table. "There being no objection," said Belden, "it is so ordered." Young Dean Halford, a nephew of Whistling Elijah, then moved that the House adjourn. This was carried, and Mr. Belden gave the desk a parting whack, and received the congratulations of the pages.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

The glorious Fourth of July is again at hand.

What means the day?

Some few may flippantly assert that its observance is [illegible] a sentiment of exultation over something that occurred in the long ago, when [illegible] and circumstances were widely different from those of the present generation.

Such, if made, is idle declamation.

The Fourth of July has a meaning, deep and abiding, and growing in value as the years roll by. It, too, presents sentiment, not fancy tinged, but real and instructive. It is patriotism, the love of country, the noblest attribute of loyal Americanism.

At a recent celebration of a Revolutionary incident within our own County of Union, the orator of the occasion, among other patriotic and well delivered observations, said—

"To recall the deeds of the forefathers is to arouse a sense of nobility in the children. Just as no man is safe who forgets the simple joys and tender affections of his childhood, no nation is safe which forgets to honor the pure principles and the exalted heroism by the power of which it passed from infancy to manhood."

These few truthful words graphically portray the meaning of our National anniversary, and the duty of citizenship to perpetuate its observance with increasing ardor and interest.

To remember the heroism, both moral and military, of those illustrious patriots who laid the foundations of the American Republic, amid great perils and privations, and at the same time to duly appreciate the priceless privileges and blessings such achieved nationality conferred upon us, the countrymen of Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Hancock, Adams and Patrick Henry, is the purpose of the glorious day of July [illegible] the one hundred and fifteenth anniversary of the birth of American Independence.

Let us, therefore, rally with patriotic unity and might, and for the time being setting aside all political prejudices and differences, give grateful thanks to Almighty God for the rich harvest garnered from seed sown by the valiant Sons of Liberty over a hundred years ago.

A BRAVE, BOLD MAN.

A grand man is Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York. Brilliant in intellect, profound as a student, morally brave, and full of patriotic fire, he openly [illegible], and devoid of fear or favor, denounces the corrupt system of political action now so [illegible] prevalent throughout this country.

We are sadly in need of more Bishop Potters.

Men whom no human power or [illegible] can swerve from the advocacy of right.

An address delivered by him last week before the Harvard Phi Beta Kappa Society afforded another opportunity to [illegible] well doings and relegate the principles of truth, as applicable to public affairs.

He discharged that loyal duty in a masterly manner and his words were [illegible] to the echo.

The [illegible] with venal politicians, [illegible] are lamentably [illegible].

It is time to change the record.

Would we had more influential Bishop Potters to sound the warning note, and arouse the people to a knowledge of the fact that the preservation of political virtue is a thousand fold more essential to their safety and well being than [illegible] partisan power.

The iniquitous Federal Election Bill passed the House of Representatives, Wednesday, by a vote of 155 to 149. This bill is intended to take away from the people of the States the control of elections and to let partisan agents, backed by Federal bayonets, determine in what way the elections shall result. Thus do the Republican managers seek to thwart the will of the people.

Throughout the [illegible] his bosom friend, the editor of the [illegible], waked him up and told him what THE PRESS told the people months ago. Consequently under [illegible] head lines, Monday's issue amid great [illegible] appeared in the second story office, [illegible] the old, old story that "the post office must be removed."

The Seaside trip of the Plainfield Bicycle Club has been postponed, and there will be a run instead on Friday, the Fourth. Starting from the club house at 4.30 in the morning, the members and all who will join them, will go to Red Bank and Asbury Park, returning by Monday. The expense of the entire trip will be about six dollars.

Real Estate at Auction.

By order of Walter L. Hetfield, executor of the estate of the late Antoine De Rael, auctioneer J. N. C. Marsh Monday offered for sale the hotel property at Scotch Plains known as the Bellevue Hotel, together with thirty-six building lots on Bartle and Front avenues. There was a large number of bidders present, but the bidding was not very spirited. The hotel property was bought by Frederick Condo, proprietor of the Westfield Hotel, for $6,000. Mr. Condo also bought the lot adjoining on Mountain street, for $725.50.

Thirty-two of the thirty-six building lots offered for sale, were disposed of at sums ranging from $60 to $225. The total sale amounted to $10,007.50.

THE VOICE OF THE VESTRY.

Social and Church Items of Interest Occurring Among the Methodists.

(From the Rev. Mr. Abbott's "Voice.")

Mrs. Lucy Mosley has gone to the mountains for the Summer.

Mr. Geo. H. Burgess has been enjoying a much needed rest at Lake Luzerne.

The Epworth League officers for the coming year are: President—Charles B. Mitchell; 1st Vice President—G. M. Stackhouse; 2d Vice President—Emma McGee; 3d Vice President—Frank Osterlind; Secretary—J. Frank Martin; Treasurer—Ida Anglemann.

Mr. S. E. Birdsall has gone to his mines in Colorado for the Summer. His elder daughter accompanied him.

Mr. Henry B. Hatfield, son of Dr. Hatfield of Chicago, makes his home with his relative, Mr. A. A. Taft, 143 West Front street.

Mrs. Geo. C. Mahon, who with her family are now occupying a cottage at Asbury Park, is very much improved in health.

Mr. Rob. Davis was compelled to return home from Bordentown Military Institute before the close of the term, owing to ill health.

The crayon sketches, which were used by the pastor in his talks to the Juniors' Class, and which were especially prepared for him by the gifted artist, Mrs. Anna M. Griffin, will be seen in the chapel for several days.

Dr. Hurlbut has left the city for the Summer, having gone to the various Chautauqua assemblies, of which he has charge. He will join his family at Chautauqua in August, who leave for that delightful resort early in July.

Mr. Clifford McGee will enter Yale College in the Fall, and Mr. Chas. C. Hurlbut will enter Wesleyan University at the same time. We will greatly miss these young men from our church work, in which they have been actively engaged.

One of the most beautiful residences in the city is going up on Rock View avenue, at the head of Washington avenue. It will be a Methodist home, planned by Architect Teale, built by Builder Pangborn, and owned and occupied by Mr. John Weir and family.

The pastor's vacation will be in August.

Mrs. Theodore French has returned from a long sojourn in the far South.

Architect Teale is at work on plans for our two chapels. No one doubts that the work will be well done.

All our people, and many more, will be glad to learn that Dr. Tuttle is to occupy our pulpit one Sunday in August.

Mr. Samuel Mitchell rendered most efficient service in the choir last Sunday. The pastor knew he was there without looking.

Mrs. Chas. B. Mitchell has gone for a few days to Asbury Park, to be with her sick brother, Mr. Wm. F. Ault, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The subscriptions for the Evona and North Plainfield chapels are coming in. Let every member of the church take hope much in both these enterprises.

EXCLUSIVE NEWS.

Change of Post Office Location.

At last Plainfield is to have a postoffice building suitable for the accommodation of increasing mail service and the accommodation of the people without offending [illegible] sight and smells. As known by us, and told in THE PRESS four months ago, negotiations have been in progress between the Post Office Department and certain owners of desirable sites for the postoffice in anticipation of the removal of the office from its present location, in consequence of the opening of a saloon for the sale of spirituous liquors in the basement of the postoffice building, which is in direct violation of the rules of the Postoffice Department.

As is the case with a great many other matters in connection with postal affairs, it takes time to arrange matters, and Uncle Sam takes his own time to arrange them. At last, however, affairs have come to a focus regarding the location of the postoffice for the next five years. On Monday last Postmaster Pope received an official notice from the Postmaster General to notify the lessee of the building, Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts, that the lease of her building for use as a postoffice would be cancelled October 1, 1890. Said lease would have expired May 1, 1891. Subsequently negotiations were completed with Mr. Wm. R. Clarkson for his handsome three-story building, No. 17 East Front street, three doors above the present location for a lease of the same for five years from October 1, 1890, for the first floor and basement, at an annual rental of $1,300, the lessor to fit up the same in a suitable manner to accommodate all mail service necessary, which includes all fixtures, boxes, furniture, etc. As the Government will then control the basement, there need be no more fear of a liquor establishment in the building. The site is a most desirable one.

Possession of the new quarters will be given September 1, 1890, when the necessary fixtures will be placed therein, to be ready for occupancy October 1, as one of the model postoffices in the State.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY.

Dr. J. T. Fritts Thrown Out and Badly Injured—His Driver, Frank Douglas, Has a Thrilling Experience, But Finally Gets the Animal Under Control.

In a runaway accident on East Second street, Tuesday afternoon about four o'clock, Dr. J. T. Fritts was thrown out, dragged about fifty feet, and seriously injured about the body and legs. The Doctor and his hired man were seated in a covered cart, driving along Second street, and when in front of the Crescent League bowling alleys, the animal, a spirited bay, began to plunge and kick. The dashboard and flooring of the cart were broken off, and the Doctor was thrown under the horse's feet, striking on the hard roadbed below, one of the wheels on the cart passing directly over his body.

Dr. Fritts was assisted to a seat on the stepping stone in front of the side entrance to the City Hotel, until a carriage could be summoned to take him home. An examination of his injuries disclosed an ugly-looking flesh wound on the right knee, together with many bruises about the body and legs. Fortunately no bones were broken excepting a thumb.

Meanwhile the horse ran at breakneck speed along West Second street, with Frank Douglas, the Doctor's hired man, still in the cart, but with no control whatever over the animal. Douglas managed, however, to get hold of the lines which dropped on the shafts when the Doctor was thrown out, and by superhuman strength managed to bring the animal under control soon after passing Liberty street. Those who witnessed the runaway from the start say that they expected to see both the Doctor and his man seriously if not fatally injured.

To Be Paid Weekly.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company have issued orders that their employees are in the future to receive their salary weekly. This decision is hailed with delight by all the attaches of the system. This new order goes into effect to-day.

Trying to Make a Model Borough.

Justice Hardy has notified the proprietors of the shops on Somerset street, opposite "Lovers' Dell," where soft drinks, cigars, etc., are sold on Sunday, that they must close their places of business on that day. Mayor Fiske is in earnest about enforcing the borough laws.

NETHERWOOD NOTES.

SOME WHO ARE THERE, AND WHAT IS DOING.

Distinguished People Who Are Attracted by Our Suburb's Charms—The Hotel Overflowing—A Grand Hop Friday—Gossip and Facts of Interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Waddell, and Joseph Waddell, daughter and son, have closed their apartments at 123rd street and Seventh avenue, New York, and rented a Summer home on LaGrande avenue, Netherwood, for the season. Mrs. Waddell's Sunday teas, served in the true English style, have been society features of New York city for the past Winter.

Hotel Netherwood was never so full on June 29 since its erection, as it was on Sunday. 200 was the total of people accommodated within its walls. Not even a place to put a cot over the Fourth of July, is now unengaged.

Captain Barff, the genial and gallant executive officer of the "City of Chester," was the guest of George Taylor at dinner at the Netherwood, Sunday. Mr. Taylor's family had crossed the ocean under the care of Capt. Barff on his last trip, and the former on Sunday seized the opportunity to express his appreciation of the latter's kindness and favor in that royal, generous manner the few who are favored with his friendship know so well.

The music at the Hotel this season has never been equalled. It consists of a selected string quartette from Greenop's philharmonic society of Brooklyn. All the performers are brothers—that is, two are brothers and so are the other two—which may be one of many reasons for their perfect balance and sympathy.

Of the recent guests are W. R. Chichester, M. D., and Mrs. Chichester, of New York. The latter, who is still a bride, is remembered by a large circle of friends and admirers as Miss Mamie Horton, who has whistled so often in public before swell audiences of New York and other large cities, for sweet charity's sake. She is the only woman who ever equalled in all and excelled in some particulars, the World-renowned Alice Shaw. By the bye, these two charming artists are half sisters.

There will be a full dress hop at the Hotel Friday night, admittance to which will be by invitation and card. Proprietor Miller will make the affair the grandest of its kind ever consummated within the walls of The Netherwood. Mrs. Miller's exertions as hostess will assure the gratification of everybody, although if her recent accident should confine her to her room that evening, the complete satisfaction of all will be alloyed by her absence.

It is undeniably the fact that no one record can bear the amount of general and particular attention at the Hotel, as is enjoyed at present by Mr. Wachita, recently of Bolivia, a guest of Ira Canfield, Jr. Though the statement may seem to be incited by a reporter's envy, it is the usual thing to find not only the eyes of all the ladies on Mr. Wachita, and the tongues of many singing his praises, but the arms of some of the loveliest of lovely women clasp his neck and the younger girls "dare" to kiss him. "Wachita"—which is Spanish for orphan—is, however, only an 18-months-old Alpaca kid, presented to Mr. Canfield by one of the rulers of the South American republic. It is the oldest of its kind in captivity, and an affectionate pet with the finest pair of intelligent eyes any animal ever possessed. But the men are rather jealous of the affection lavished by the women on Wachita, and as one of the saloons on to-day's menu is "Goulash of Antelope," maybe the orphan is no more.

POINT LACE AND WHITE ROSE BUDS.

The Delightful Wedding Ceremony and Reception, of Miss Taylor and Prof. Lewis.

At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James M. Taylor, 137 Park avenue, took place Monday evening at 6 o'clock, a quiet, artistic and charming wedding. The contracting parties were Elizabeth Loxley Taylor and Edwin Herbert Lewis. The officiating clergymen were the Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., father of the groom.

The bride's gown was rich faille heavily trimmed with old point lace. She carried a bouquet of white rose buds. She was given away by her mother. The maid of honor was Miss Pauline Fish, the nine-year-old daughter of Ferdinand Fish, of New York, and a niece of the bride. She looked a bewitching fairy in white.

The bridesmaids were Miss Bessie Fish and Miss Annie Fish, who are also daughters of Ferdinand Fish. The best man was Prof. David I. Greene, of Alfred University. The ushers were Lincoln B. Goodrich and Wm. C. Hubbard, of this city, Charles Lawrence, of Philadelphia, and Captain E. Howard Russell, of Kingston, Ontario.

Miss Utter was the pianist. The presents were many and costly, numbering gifts from the far West, and from foreign friends in many countries of Europe. The wedding supper was elegant—served by Clark of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will spend the Summer at the sea shore in Rhode Island, and then go to Alfred, New York, where Mr. Lewis has accepted the position of Professor of Latin, in the University. The bride's mother and sister will reside with them there.

An Accident at Westfield.

Charles Cox, a fifteen-year-old boy, was thrown from his bicycle on Broad street, Westfield, about 8 o'clock Sunday evening and in falling he frightened a horse belonging to Jonas S. Miller. The young man abandoned his wheel and made a heroic effort to capture the horse. The animal kicked him on the right leg, laying open the flesh on the calf for fully five inches. Dr. Cooper dressed the wound.

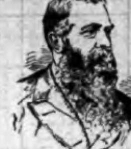
A SECT WHICH RADIATES FROM HERE.

Plainfield's Seventh Day Baptists and Their Pastor.

The following, picture and all, from the New York Sun of Tuesday. THE PRESS with satisfaction republishes in full because it is deservingly creditable to the people and the pastor it treats of, as well as to the young High School graduate who wrote it—Walter N. Chamberlin:



ABRAM HERBERT LEWIS, D. D.

The Seventh Day Baptist Church of Christ has a membership of about 9,000 in this country and an influence over 40,000 persons. Two centres of its influence are at Alfred Centre, N. Y., where is the church seminary and university, and at Plainfield, N. J., where is a vigorous congregation, from which has radiated two other churches—one in New York city, another at Daytona, Fla. Plainfield is also the home of Dr. A. H. Lewis, one of the best known divines in the church. Dr. Lewis' congregation is getting ready to put up a new church building of stone. It will cost $35,000, and will occupy the site of the old wooden building, which has been moved, steeple and all, at the rate of a few inches a day, to a lot forty feet in the rear. The new building will be on a plan peculiar to Seventh Day churches, every room on the ground floor, and with no galleries or choir loft.

The Plainfield church has fifty-two years of life behind it. The parent church is the New Market Seventh Day church, originally known as the Piscataway church, and the oldest church of its order still in existence. One of the members a long time ago of the regular Baptist church of Piscataway was Hezekiah Bonham. He lost faith in Sunday as a Sabbath, and challenged a deacon who reproached him for working on Sunday to prove it was the real Sabbath of the Bible. The deacon and several other members wrestled with him, and the result was that they also withdrew with him to form a Seventh Day church. This was in 1705 and the New Market church organization is therefore 185 years old. When the New Market church had passed the century mark by thirty-three years it had 200 members. Fifty-six of them, living in Plainfield, three miles away, organized the Plainfield church. Their house of worship was in Central avenue. In 1867 a new church was built at the corner of Central avenue and Fifth street. This is the house now being moved. About a half of the original members are still living. Eleven are still members of the church, four of whom are representatives of the Randolph family, two each of the Titsworth, Alberti and Dunn families, and one of the Tingley family. The Randolphs, Titsworths, Dunns and Dunhams have furnished the largest numbers on the church roll, and they furnished a half of those who left the church for the war. There are now 183 members, nearly all intermarried and living a social life of their own to a great extent. The families show no tendency to separate and scatter. The sons and daughters are sent to Alfred University. Grocers and butchers of their own faith furnish provisions, and tailors and dressmakers who are Seventh Day Baptists clothe them. Their belief in the seventh day as the true Sabbath closes to them a good many opportunities in business life, but their tradesmen have a monopoly of the Sunday trade of the town in newspapers, stationery, cigars and provisions, and as their Sabbath ends at sunset they catch the Saturday night trade also.

Two of the men in the congregation who have prospered are Charles Potter, Jr., and George H. Babcock. One is the inventor and manufacturer of a printing press and the other of a boiler. Mr. Potter's big factory in the town is sometimes run on Sunday, but never on Saturday. Two other wealthy members of the congregation are Capt. J. Frank Hubbard and Elias R. Pope. Both are conspicuous in county politics, Capt. Hubbard having just rounded his sixteenth year as a member of the Board of Freeholders and Mr. Pope is now serving another term as Postmaster of Plainfield. A former Mayor of the town was a Seventh Day Baptist and Seventh Day Baptists hold places of honor as lawyers and doctors in the town, which has about 15,000 inhabitants.

Dr. A. H. Lewis has been pastor of the church since 1880. He has written "A Critical History of Sabbath and Sunday in the Christian Church," and "A Critical History of Sunday Legislation." He edits the Outlook, the church organ, has written tracts and books in advocacy of the seventh day, and is besides a theological and historical professor at Alfred University. He is a tall, broad-shouldered man, the product of six generations of soldiers and preachers, beginning with Nathaniel Greene of Revolutionary fame. He is combative in argument, but personally a gentle and kindly man, and greatly liked in the town. Dr. Lewis believes the decline of Sunday as the Sabbath is due to the pagan origin of the day. Holidayism has always been a feature of the day, he says, and there can be no true and holy Sabbath until Saturday, the Sabbath of the Bible, is substituted for our Sunday, and the old division of the day, from sunset to sunset, adopted. They are not exclusive as a sect, joining heartily with other churches in revivals and temperance work.

John have you seen that woman lately? John is absent-minded! What woman?
That woman picking grapes for Speer's Wine. Just see her in another column and read about it, the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. The Boards of Health in large cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

Three Excursions to Ocean Grove in Eight Days.

The Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue church will have an excursion on Wednesday, July 16, to Asbury Park. The Methodists will go to the same place on the 18th, and the Baptists on the 11th.

Good Fishing in Newark Bay.

Reports from Newark bay are to the effect that the weak fish are now biting finely at the Central Railroad bridge. "Uncle Steve" Ryder, at the Bay View Boat House, on the Bergen Point side of the bridge, has first-class boats to let for fishermen, with bait, refreshments, etc.

Handsome Monument in Evergreen Cemetery.

Lebbeus Manning, the West Front street monument builder, has just completed a handsome monument in Evergreen cemetery for the family of the late Manning Stelle. The monument cost about $600, and is considered one of the most attractive in the cemetery. Mr. Manning has several other large monuments under way for Plainfield parties.

PLAINFIELD'S GREAT GROWTH IN TEN YEARS.

The Completed Census Shows an Increased Population of 40 Per Cent.

When the people of Plainfield read in Wednesday's PRESS—and it will be recorded nowhere else—that the completed census of the city shows an increase of forty per cent., in ten years, they will be as pleased as they will be astounded.

Through the efforts of THE PRESS reporters, a compilation of the returns of the several enumerators has been secured, and the approximate total of the inhabitants of this city foots up in round numbers 11,350. Ten years ago the total was in actual figures, 8,126. The difference, about 3,224 or over, shows an unprecedented growth most flattering to Plainfield.

ADJOURNED AGAIN.

While the Committee Dallies Public Zeal Dies.

There was an unusually large attendance of the Soldiers Monument committee Friday night, but nothing was accomplished. There were present: Chairman M. W. Tyler, Secretary N. Runyon and L. V. Randolph, C. W. McCutchen, J. S. Negley, L. W. Serrell, R. S. Cox, G. W. Moore, J. E. Tracy, S. A. Ginna, J. E. Stewart and E. J. Olsen. Alex. Gilbert, of the Hillside Cemetery Association, was present during the early part of the meeting, but left after it was fully understood that the Cemetery site for the monument had been given up.

The design as published in THE PRESS, was explained by Gen'l Negley, and undoubtedly met the approval of all. But when Mr. Randolph moved that "this committee express its favorable opinion of and satisfaction with the design," one member objected. He said he could not vote for the approval of any design because he was not competent to judge. He wanted to wait until he asked somebody how to vote. Gen'l Negley—entirely innocent of irony—immediately suggested that the member be added to the sub-committee on design, and later in the evening on motion of Mr. Randolph, it was so done.

The resolution to express a favorable opinion of the design, also provided that it still remain in the hands of the committee for modification, improvement, or such other changes as may be thought desirable, and that meanwhile the public be asked to contribute $17,500 for the erection of such a monument. But as the one member objected, the resolution was unfortunately tabled.

Six months ago $20,000 for the purpose could have been raised easier than $10,000 can now. Public zeal dies as the committee dallies. The people's interest in the scheme would have been buried had not THE PRESS last week, with its picture of the beautiful design, roused the community to a belief that something was being done.

Estimates ranging from $13,250 to $16,975, have been received for the erection of the monument according to plans and specifications that require, among other safeguards, the modelling of the figures in clay first, their submission to the committee and alteration as they see fit, then to be remodelled in plaster and approved before being placed in the sculptor's hands. The question of site remains undecided officially, until the question of design is settled. But it is understood that for such a monument as THE PRESS published, the committee can have any site they choose. The Cemetery site, however is not under consideration, and that being understood the Association is already offering lots for sale on the plot it had promised to donate if the monument was erected in its grounds.

The monument committee has adjourned until July 10.

Miss Bulkley Pays the Costs, However.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—From your account of the last meeting of the Board of Education, it would seem as if the Board were scrupulously exact in adjusting salaries of teachers, who, from one cause or another, happened to be off duty for a few days during the term. But the principal, who has been enjoying a foreign tour for the past year, has, I believe, been allowed a salary for the full year, although no service has been rendered.

Upon what principle, or according to what rule does the Board deduct a few dollars from one teacher's salary for attending a wedding, and from another's for attending court upon a subpœna; and then pay over $1,000 to one who hasn't been within several thousand miles of the school house for a year?

It may be they acted as public servants in the former cases, and as individuals, moved by sympathy, in the latter. Perhaps they will explain it so that we can all understand it.

OBJECTOR.

[Maybe THE PRESS can explain it without waiting another issue for the Board's answer. Miss Bulkley was given a leave of absence with full salary, but it was stipulated that she should pay the cost of all such additional teachers engaged because of her absence, that the Board might deem necessary and who would meet with their approval. She has done so; and as the public school work has been carried on during her absence fully as well and thoroughly as during any other year, and as the results have been even better than during some other years—all without one cent of additional cost to the city—even "Objector" will agree that his objection is not so sound a one, now.—ED.]

Plainfield Shamed by Netherwood's Example.

A large plot of ground bounded by La Grande, Woodland and Belvidere avenues, has been set apart by the owners for a public park that the residents of Netherwood will lay out and fit up in a manner that will put to shame the people of Plainfield whose "Park" the Councils of this and past years, have permitted to exist as a public disgrace. Oh that the city proper was represented by a Councilman Spangenberg!

Councilor-Elect Martin.

At the regular meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., held in their hall, on Thursday evening, the following officers for the ensuing term were elected:

Councilor—Gilbert S. Martin.
Vice Councilor—Charles V. Stephens.
Rec. Secretary 1 year—Walter N. Marsh.
Asst. Rec. Secretary—David S. Dunavan.
Fin. Secretary 1 year—Peter R. Dennis.
Treasurer 1 year—Edward Slauson.
Conductor—Charles S. Greer.
Warden—Elias R. Pope, Jr.
Inside Sentinel—Samuel R. Brand.
Outside Sentinel—John V. Brokaw.
Trustee 18 months—Charles R. Baker.

During the heated term the human system requires a gentle, cooling stimulant. What a blessing then to be able to make five gallons of delicious temperance drink from a 25 cent package of Hires' Root Beer.

THE BOROUGH GRADUATES

THE SEVENTH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT.

The Graduating Class Numbering Twenty-one Pupils, Presented an Entertaining Programme Before a Large Audience at Warren Mission Chapel, Last Evening—The Essays, Declamations and Other Minor Details.

CLOSING scenes of the school year were enacted in the North Plainfield Public School, during Thursday, and at evening the seventh annual commencement exercises took place in Warren Mission chapel. The weather, unlike that on similar occasions in former years was pleasant out of doors, but inside the building the atmosphere was at times almost stifling, and fans were found to be a source of real comfort and pleasure.

In previous years, the announced time for opening the doors has been half-past seven o'clock, and a large number of eager spectators were always in waiting for an opportunity to get into the chapel and secure the best seats. All this was changed this year, and when the front doors were thrown open soon after seven o'clock, there were less than three dozen persons waiting for admission which was by ticket. The building soon filled up, however, and when the time arrived for beginning the exercises there was not a vacant seat in the house and many were obliged to endure the hardship of standing throughout the proceedings, notwithstanding the fact that the ushers exerted themselves to find seats for all who came.

The platform make up was about the same as last year, some 200 of the younger pupils of the school occupying raised seats in the rear of the stage proper. The floral decorations were exceedingly modest, consisting principally of a stand of choice lilies. At the close of the exercises the platform resembled a veritable Eden, being liberally banked with baskets and bouquets of choice cut flowers, ferns, etc., gifts of relatives and friends of the graduates. In all twenty-one young people were graduated, and of this number nine were young men.

Principal Ross presided with his usual dignity and the members of the Board of Education, Dr. H. K. Carroll, James McGee, and E. L. Bonney occupied prominent seats on the platform. Miss Carrie D. Randolph was the accompanist. The graduates marched in and took seats on the left of the platform.

The exercises began with music, "Praise ye the Father," by the school, followed by a declamation, "The Duty of Christian Citizenship," by Master John A. Steiner. The young man delivered his declamation in a clear and distinct tone. It dwelt on the responsibility of Christians at the polls, and ended by stating that the man who deserts the righteous party must go down.

The next number on the programme was an admirably written and well delivered essay on "The Old Lane," by Miss Josie E. VanArsdale. It was published in THE PRESS in full.

"Bay Billy," was the subject of Master James P. Ingram's declamation, in which he alluded to the Battle of Fredricksburg, "Bay Billy" being a favorite horse in the Twenty-second Brigade.

The school sang "The Song of the Sea," after which Miss Emily M. Cathcart, recited "The Legend of the Organ-Builder," a pathetic tale, in which the young organ builder had learned to love, wedded, deserted and finally died, and was buried with his wife.

Master Harry H. Coddington, humorously told in his recitation, "How Girls go Fishing," which elicited loud applause.

The school sang "Nursery Rhymes," a medley, and the second part of the programme was inaugurated by a declamation by Robert M. Clark, entitled "Daniel Periton's Ride." This young man is deserving of special credit. His oratorical ability was unquestioned, and his gestures were good. He told of the perilous ride "Dan" Periton had "down the valley of death" to warn the people of Johnstown of their impending danger, and how the rider had saddled his "bay" and gone to see what danger there was of the dam made of shale and clay, giving away. The young man also told how brave "Dan" Periton was overtaken by a volume of water, seventy feet high, sweeping down upon him through the Conemaugh Valley and carrying everything before it until the granite bridge was reached. In short his declamation was one of the most interesting and most creditably rendered during the evening.

Miss Grace J. Carroll, delivered the next essay on "The Unruly Member," which THE PRESS published in full.

"The Children's Cherry Feast" was the title of a recitation by Miss Mina L. Amerman, the young lady displaying in its rendition fine elocutionary powers. The school sang airs from Erminie, accompanied on the violin by Irving S. Whiting, one of the graduates, after which Miss Lizzie M. Whitlock recited, "The Jackdaw of Rheims" to the entire satisfaction of all.

"Keenan's Charge," was the subject of the closing declamation by Charles E. Hazeltine. It was both ably and forcibly rendered, and brought forth loud applause.

PRESENTING THE DIPLOMAS.

Dr. H. K. Carroll then delivered a few congratulatory remarks to the graduates, whom he said had gone through a ten year's course with credit to themselves, and satisfaction to their teachers. The motto, "Higher yet and higher," he considered was the proper one for every day life. In conclusion the Doctor said: "I take pleasure in presenting you with these well-earned diplomas."

The diplomas were then awarded to the graduates and Dr. Carroll said: "You now go out from under our discipline, but we hope to have a stronger tie in the interest you will take in the school."

The school sang "Wake! Wake!" thus bringing to a close the seventh annual commencement exercises of the North Plainfield Public School.

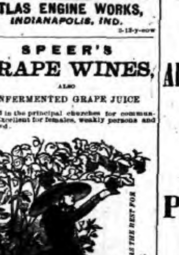
SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES,
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE

Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.



ADOPTED IN HOSPITALS AS THE BEST FOR INVALIDS.

Speer's Port Grape Wine
FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex. It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice
Is the juice of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural fresh sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation, and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Socials) Claret
Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, specially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medical purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

CITY DEPARTMENT

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

I. A. DEMAREST, - - - City Editor.

—Skating again at the Crescent, Friday and Saturday evenings.

—Mr. A. Tre[illegible] announces a special Summer term of [illegible] instructions.

—The third annual ball of the Union Star Club will be held in Mt. Bethel Hall, at Mt. Bethel, on July 4.

—Everybody will take a skate Friday and Saturday evenings, at The Crescent, and listen to the music of the band.

—Ex-Captain of Police Carey's three months' suspension expired on Monday, but he did not report for active duty, Tuesday.

—Money has been appropriated for the purchase of a [illegible] library for the use of the teachers of the Crescent Avenue Sunday school.

—Mr. Patrick Sheridan has been appointed by Vice Chancellor VanFleet, receiver of the estate of Wm. Moore, deceased, pending litigation among the heirs.

—Barnes gives just as much iced cream and charges no more than last year, although the price of ice advances. His crushed strawberry is now the favorite of the town.

—There will be no fireworks at the Netherwood, nor ball match at the La Grande avenue grounds Fourth of July evening, so everybody will be skating at The Crescent.

—The fat men and the lawyers of this city will play a match game of ball on the second Friday in July. The aggregate weight of the "plump" men is said to be about 1,300 pounds.

—The printed [illegible] of a West Fourth street restaurant, offers "ice cream with cake, 10 cents." Also for sale "tea biskits, rools and large loves of bread at New York prices."

—There were several exciting contests on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, on Saturday afternoon, which attracted a large number of spectators to the track.

—The graduating class of the Plainfield High School, Thursday, presented to each of the members of the Junior Class a cake of yeast, [illegible] up in ribbons, representing the class colors.

—There was a bicycle race against time to Westfield and back on Thursday, in which it is said Master Ackerman broke previous records by making the trip there in 13 minutes, and back in 14.

—A kerosene lamp was upset in the cobbler's shop, in what is known as the "Blue Front" building on Park avenue, early on Saturday evening, but the lamp was thrown into the street, before setting fire to anything.

—Prof. T. R. Hassell, teacher of music in the public schools, has left for Bailey's Island on the coast of Maine. He and his interesting family of children will remain at the above mentioned place during the entire Summer.

—The evening service in the First Presbyterian church, Sunday, was very largely attended. A special service of song was rendered by the choir, and the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis preached by request on "Sacred Music."

—In appreciation of his past services the teachers in the Bryant school building on Friday, presented Janitor Hope, a handsome etching entitled "Calling the Ferryman." Mr. Hope kindly thanked the teachers for their generous gift.

—It is reported that some unknown person entered Robert Simpson's stable on Washington avenue, Saturday night, harnessed a horse and spent the night driving around the country, returning the animal to the stable before morning.

—There have been five special deputy sheriffs appointed in Westfield to look after Mount Ararat during the Fourth, and see that her gas [illegible] doesn't catch fire and blow her up. They are: Isaac Sealy, Esq., Woodruff, Wm. Gilby, Cy Wilcox and Charles [illegible].

Overcome by the Heat.

An unknown woman was overcome by the heat on the sidewalk on West Seventh street, Monday afternoon. She was taken to the hospital in a carriage for treatment, and later in the day she started for New York.

Election of Officers.

At a regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., Monday evening, the following officers were elected, and the same will be installed at a subsequent meeting of the lodge:

N. G.—Joseph F. Mo[illegible]
V. G.—Chas. W. Bay[illegible]
R. S.—Lewis R. Black[illegible]
Treasurer—D. B. Weaver.

The Ladies' Room to be Called "Plainfield."

The Rev. Mr. Mil[illegible]'s Visitor says: "The Women's Home Missionary Society of our church is the first auxiliary to give one hundred dollars towards furnishing a room in the new Albuquerque School, New Mexico, and hence the ladies have the right to give the name to any room in the building. They have selected the [illegible]-room, and it is to be named after our beautiful city."

Notice of Warning to the Public.

Fire Marshall, T. O. Doane, has issued an official notice to the public in general, that the placing of fire crackers, rockets and torpedoes, or other inflammable or explosive substances upon any sidewalk, or in front of any store or other building contiguous to any street is dangerous to life and property. All persons are therefore warned that such danger must not be incurred within the city limits.

Any person or persons who shall act in disregard of the marshall's notice will be prosecuted.

A Suit For False Imprisonment.

Charles Ramsberger and Borne Egel, the two men who were indicted by the last Grand Jury, tried and acquitted of the charge of grand larceny from Abram L. Cadmus, owner and proprietor of the commercial mills in this city, are about bringing suit for damages against Mr. Cadmus in the sum of two thousand dollars each, for false imprisonment.

Ramsberger has engaged Counsellor Voorhees of Elizabeth, to act for him in his suit, and Egel has secured the services of Messrs Lindabury and Marcellus.

In conversation with a Times reporter Monday night, Ramsberger stated that overtures had been made to him indirectly, offering to settle the matter for $200, which amount, he says, he would not accept.

[illegible]

Why do you think she [illegible] like this? Simply because some of her family have died from [illegible] of the blood, and they see [illegible] of the same habit in her. [illegible] of the Lungs, commonly called consumption, is a terrible disease, and it is no wonder that they dread it. But it can be conquered. The poison [illegible] out of the blood. The taint may be eliminated from the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has saved thousands of persons who were supposed to find early graves because "there was consumption in the family." "Golden Medical Discovery" is warranted to remove all blood-taints from whatever cause arising. It cures all scrofulous, skin and scalp diseases, or money paid for it will be refunded.

PERSONALS.

W. T. Broadway and family have taken possession of their new home, No. 29 La Grande avenue.

Capt. and Mrs. Gamble says the Morristown Banner, have rented their house and gone to Plainfield.

Miss Stella Parkins of New York city is the guest of Miss Ida L. Vermeule of Chatham street, North Plainfield.

The family of Charles Lyman of Rockview avenue, Washington Park, North Plainfield, will summer at Asbury Park.

James W. Whitfield, formerly of this city, but late of Tacoma, Washington Territory, is visiting among friends here.

A fourteen pound boy came to gladden the household of Mr. and Mrs. John Curran of Arlington avenue, on Saturday morning.

J. Frank Matthews, his sister Miss Eleanor Matthews, and Miss Sarah G. Kenny, have left for Pine Bush in the Catskills.

Miss Jennie E. Tabor, a teacher in the Irving School, has started for Dover Plains, N. Y., where she will spend her Summer vacation.

Mr and Mrs. F. H. Martin and family have rented a cottage on Rock Street, Asbury Park, and leave their Fifth street home today for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sandford returned from their wedding trip on Saturday, and have taken up their residence in Washington Park, North Plainfield.

The Misses Bertha E. and Estelle Stokes of Philadelphia, are visiting the family of G. W. Force, at their home on West Second street, this city.

Ruth, the six-months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Totten of Frazee's Alley, died Sunday night after a two days' illness from cholera infantum.

The Rev. Dr. Kennedy of Philadelphia was the celebrant of the 10:45 o'clock mass Sunday morning in St. Mary's church, and also officiated at vespers.

Mrs. Charles Sandford and the Misses Sandford of Washington Park, North Plainfield, started Monday for Watch Hill, R. I., where they will spend the Summer.

John F. Wiechers of Grant Avenue and Eighth street, entertained about twenty-five of his near friends and acquaintances at a dinner party Sunday, furnished by Mazzetti, of New York city.

Charles F. Fowlison has returned from Philadelphia, where he is the Secretary of the North Western Branch of the School for Christian Workers. Mr. Fowlison will spend his vacation with his parents in North Plainfield.

State Senator Miller of Union county, has removed with his family to Fifth avenue, New York, having disposed of his Westfield property. In his removal that town loses a valued citizen, and the county a faithful representative.

Friday was the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the Rev. and Mrs W. E. Honeyman of North Plainfield. On account of the recent deaths of some of Mrs. Honeyman's relatives, the anniversary was celebrated in a quiet way.

Capt. George M. Phillips was taken suddenly ill in John H. VanWinkle's law office, Thursday, and it was found necessary to remove him to his home on West Front street in a carriage. Heart trouble is given as the cause of his illness.

The Rev. Mr. Kimball, the celebrated Debt Raiser, visited Park Avenue Baptist church, unexpectedly Sunday, and in the morning raised half its debt of $12,000. To this sum contributed, $1,000 was added in the evening, making $6,500 in all.

The Scranton Truth records the marriage last week of Sylvester T. Roselle and Miss Lydia M. Sloat, which proved quite a social event. Miss Sloat has many warm friends in this city, who extend their congratulations on the happy occasion.

Fred C. Knowland of this city has been appointed General Manager of the Croton Valley Railway company, and has had charge of that company's property since May 1. This line will form a part of the shortest possible line to Boston and the New England States.

The Bound Brook Chronicle is responsible for the following: "The Rev. J. B. Cleaver of Plainfield preached in the Congregational church Sunday evening. He has recently purchased the King place near Harris' lane for $7,000. We welcome him as a fellow townsman."

At Grace Episcopal church on Saturday evening, took place the marriage of Robert Peel and Miss Agnes Campbell Mylie both of this city, the Rev. E. M. Rodman officiating. A reception followed at the residence of the groom's brother, William Peel, at Netherwood.

Mrs. Austin Sturtevant of Liberty street, accompanied by her daughter, and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Muirhied, started afternoon June 25 on a three weeks' pleasure trip to Boston, Quincy, Brockton, Plymouth, Pilgrim's Rock, and Providence, R. I. Plymouth is the birthplace of Mr. Sturtevant. They will also visit Daniel Webster's tomb.

The death occurred early on Monday, at her home in North Plainfield, of Kittie Conger, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm A. Conger. She was just past seven years of age, and died of diphtheritic-croup. Mr. Conger was formerly of the firm of C. Schepflin & Co., and is now connected with a large boot and shoe establishment at Savannah.

Wm. Parkhurst of Clifton Springs, N. Y., an inspector in the Internal Revenue service, is visiting the family of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Mattison of Somerset street, North Plainfield. Mr. Parkhurst is a nephew of Dr. Mattison, and it has been about twelve years since he last visited Plainfield. He was both surprised and gratified at the growth and beauty of the place.

The pupils of Miss Florence Randolph gave a musicale at her house, on Saturday afternoon, that was thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed by those present. The pupils all showed more or less ability, but especial mention is deserving Miss Lola Pollion and Miss Ella Saybert—Miss Pollion playing a composition of her own. At the close of the programme, pupils and friends were served with refreshments.

Miss Hattie E. Shreve has passed with high credit the preliminary examinations for entrance into Bryn Mawr College, at Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. As the examinations are very severe, and no certificates are received from any institution except Harvard University, much credit is due, not only to Miss Shreve, but to her teachers, Mrs Sadler and Miss [illegible], whose good and faithful work has helped to secure this result.

Counsellor Richard V[illegible] Lindabury will make another trip to Europe in a few days. He is now the guest of Mr. and Mrs Palmer Stillman, who are occupying the Chase residence in the Notch for the Summer. The most aristocratic turnout—including driver, swell cart, English harness and all—that appears on the Plainfield streets, is the one in which Mr. Lindabury took himself home from the station evenings, accompanied usually by a very handsome young woman.

Ex-Councilman Christopher M. Goddard, formerly of this city, but now Electrical Inspector for the New England Insurance exchange, with office at 55 Kilby street, Boston, has returned to this city for the purpose of removing his family to Boston, the latter part of this week. Mr. Goddard's territory consists of the whole of the New England States, excepting Boston, and he has already completed his work in forty-seven towns, in the remarkably short space of twenty days. By his removal from the city, Plainfield will lose an honored and respected resident.

Mr. A. O Conant and family of Broadway, are at Pepperill, Mass.

The mother of Wm. A. Coddington of this city, is lying dangerously ill at her home in Bound Brook.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matthews of Grove street, will go to the Hotel Kaaterskill, Saturday, for the Summer.

Late advices from Colorado Springs are to that the condition of Lawrence Wyers' daughter is slightly improved.

Mary E., the five-months-old daughter of Martin and Kate Whalen, of Brook avenue, died Tuesday of cholera infantum.

The family of W. E. Lowe of Park avenue, have gone to Lake Placid for two months, where he will join them in a few days.

Miss Helen Huntsman, of Providence, R. I., is visiting her brother, Robert F. Huntsman, of the Central New Jersey Times staff.

Mrs. Wm. B. Ostrom has gone to Philadelphia for a few days, after which she will spend the Summer at the home of her son in Detroit.

The Bloomsbury correspondent of the Clinton Democrat says: "Miss Maggie Able of Plainfield, spent last week with her parents here."

Hattie, the two-year and seven months old twin daughter of Mrs. Stella M. Jackson, died at her home on West Fourth street Tuesday afternoon.

The youngest son of Street Commissioner Robert A. Mosher, is recovering from the injuries he received by falling from a chair a few days ago.

C. E. Bose, Principal of the North Plainfield public schools, and Mrs. Bose, leave today for their usual vacation home at Smyrna, Chenango county, N. Y.

Charles E. Condit, the six-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Condit of West Third street, died about four o'clock Monday morning, after a short illness.

Joseph D. Case has leased his house on Church street to a New York family for the Summer, and with his mother, Mrs. Harriet N. Case, will leave for Saratoga on Monday.

Jas. Middleditch, of Plainfield, N. J., says the Asbury Park Journal, one of the proprietors of the electric railroad from this city to Spring Lake, is with his wife and sister at the Atlantic.

Miss Sarah Carson, of North Plainfield, sailed for Europe on the "Brittanic" Wednesday. She will accompany her brother, Brook Carson, of Jersey City, and be absent several months.

At her home in Scotch Plains, Monday, occurred the death of Mrs Ellen McKown, aged sixty-two years. The funeral will take place from the residence of her son, Alfred, on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Minnie McMurray, sister of James McMurray of this city, will read the Declaration of Independence at the Westfield celebration Friday, and Prof. Austin of Rutgers College, will deliver the oration of the day.

Among the passengers on the S. S Furnessia that sailed for Europe on Saturday were Mrs. James McInnes and Mrs. Alexander McInnes, both of this city, who have gone to Glasgow, Scotland, on their Summer vacation.

Chauncey Pennington, son of Station Agent Pennington of Westfield, has been lying dangerously ill with congestion of the brain for some time, but all will be glad to learn that he is better today although not yet out of danger.

Henry Meyer, the six-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meyer, died of inflammation of the bowels, Tuesday, at their home on West Fourth street. The funeral will take place at Hope Chapel this afternoon at two o'clock.

Harry L. Maxson, son of the late ex-Mayor Maxson and a graduate of the High School, class of '88, was graduated at Alfred Centre, on Thursday with high honors. He took a two years' course and received the degree of Ph. B.

Miss Emma Bellemere, who has been enjoying a short visit at the home of her parents here, returned yesterday to Buffalo, where she still occupies the position of one of the assistant secretaries in the C. L. S. C. general offices.

Miss H. Carrie Case and sister, Mrs. W. R. Mosher, left Plainfield Tuesday for a sojourn in Orange county, New York. The former intends to remain in Orange county for the Summer, until about September 1, and it is hoped by her many friends that she will return home much benefitted in health.

Emmet I. Case, a student of the Colgate Theological College, at Hamilton, N. Y., at the recent commencement exercises of the college, carried off high honors. He was awarded second prize for his highly meritorious oration. Mr. Case has a number of friends in this city and the borough, who will be pleased to learn of his success.

Daniel W. Littell, of North avenue, has returned home after a three weeks trip to Denver, Colorado, where he went as one of the New York delegates to the National Association of Master Plumbers, held at Denver, recently. During his absence Mr. Littell visited many prominent points of interest, including Pike's Peak, Manitou, Colorado Springs, and the "garden of the gods." He brought home with him many curiosities in the shape of crystals, minerals, etc., some of which were gathered from the summit of Pike's Peak.

Beware of the Youthful but Wily Match Vender.

A lady residing in the vicinity of East Seventh street and Crescent avenue, was called to her door by a little match peddler the other day. She said she did not want any, and turned away after shutting the door, to attend a summons in another part of the house. When she came back to the hall she met the boy coming down the stairs.

He explained that he thought there was another family upstairs that might want some matches, and left. Shortly after the lady discovered that about twenty-five dollars she had left in a bureau drawer, was gone. The police were notified but the boy had escaped, as although Officers Grant, Lynch and others have taken every match boy within their reach to the lady, she says none of them is the guilty one.

Noisome and Noisy.

Residents on Manning avenue are annoyed by certain colored families living on Race street, whose belongings are properly a matter for investigation by the Board of Health officers.

In addition to odors, and "the pestilence that stalketh at noonday," these dusky tenants keep dogs that disturb the peace and quiet of at least ten families; but more annoying than the dogs is the ribald language and the songs of the strong-lunged occupants, that is kept up until after midnight during pleasant evenings.

This condition has become so unbearable that the heads of the disturbed families assembled and went as a delegation of the whole, to submit their grievance to his Honor, Mayor Place, and were listened to by him.

There is no class of our people who are more ambitious to acquire and hold every right that belongs to citizenship than the colored folks; but there is one lesson they must learn, and that is that with the rights they seek there are also responsibilities.

"I Don't Want Relief, But Cure."

Is the exclamation of thousands suffering from catarrh. To all such we say: Catarrh can be cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It has been done in thousands of cases; why not in yours? Your danger is in delay. Enclose a stamp to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., for pamphlet on this disease.

GRADUATES GALORE.

ONE OF THE LARGEST OF SENIOR CLASSES, BRING CREDIT TO THE TWENTIETH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT.

The Scholars and Their Subjects—The Valedictory—Mr. Wiley's Speech For the Class of '79—The Awards and the Winners.

SOME of the new scenery formed a beautiful garden set with vases of flowers and statuary, Thursday night, in Music Hall, upon the occasion of the twentieth annual commencement of the High School. The stage was adorned besides with the white frocked graduates in the centre, set off by, at their right and left in black coats and white ties, President Jacob Kirkner, Secretary John W. Murray and John B. Probasco of the Board of Education, Principal L. B. Goodrich, the Revs. D. J. Yerkes, C. B. Mitchell and J. B. Van Meter, ex-Trustee L. F. Wadsworth, Franklin B. Wiley and the young men graduates.

The weather was remarkably cool for a commencement date, and the orchestral music was delightful. There were flowers galore for not only those with appointments but all the graduates of both sexes as well. The alumni were kept busy sorting and tendering the fragrant offerings. The class, whose motto is Graduatim ad Perpetua, is one of the largest ever graduated and a great credit to Principal Goodrich and teacher Edwin H. Lewis. The graduates of 1890, and their subjects, are:

A Scottish Hero	Bessie E. Blair
The Mystic Seven	Marian M. Buxton
The Pleasures of Science	Emma V. Case
Cicero at Home	Margaret R. Case
Ideal Cities	William Wallace Coriell
Emancipators	Walter R. Darby
The Three Fates	Eleanor E. Davis
Co-operative Housekeeping.	—Minnie Jackson French
Before the Revolution	Phebe E. Mills
The Influence of Geography on Greek History,	—Edmund Philip Nischwitz
Property and Poverty	Edward James Patterson
Factors in American Character,	—Edward Charles Petrie
Per ad Astra	Asa F. Randolph
The Sky	Caroline Fitz Randolph
The Nobility of Humility	Ernestine Curtis Smith
The Journal of a Spring Month	May Stelle
Toussaint L'Ouverture	Alfred Preston White
The Iron Chancellor	C. Clara Woltman

President Kirkner announced the programme and introduced as the first essayist, Miss C. Clara Woltman, whose subject was "The Iron Chancellor." She told of the rise, progress and retirement of Count Bismarck, whose will, she said, was the most powerful factor in the history of Europe.

Walter R. Darby told of "Emancipators." He included discoverers and inventors, all leaders of thought and action, and Luther who had released the World from the thraldom of speech, as well as the abolishers of slavery.

Emma V. Case, in a very prettily made gown, explained "The Pleasures of Science" found during High School study. In the stars, dies, chemicals, buttercups, physics and mathematics, was concealed enjoyment.

Phebe E. Mills told of dress and architecture "Before the Revolution," and pictured the old powdered beaux in the minuet, and the spacious halls with carved balustrades and open fire place that were the reception rooms of those days.

Alfred Preston White, a colored graduate of intelligent face and dignified bearing, spoke well and sincerely in admiration of that statesman, soldier and martyr—"Toussant L'Ouverture."

Caroline Fitz Randolph's subject, "The Sky," was one of the most originally and intellectually treated of all. Her delivery, also, was appropriate and impressive. The close of her essay was an especially realistic picture of the beautiful and wierd effects of the clouds—at times gentle, awful, capricious or divine.

Edward James Patterson, in his address on "Property and Poverty," opened with a plea for capital as the developer and benefiter of labor, and closed by wiping out with a breath, the theories of Henry George and Edward Bellamy. He said that shorter hours had brought harder work, and increased wages had brought higher rents; and that invention was both a blessing and a curse.

Margaret R. Case, in a pleasing way, described "Cicero at Home." How he left his conceit behind him in the Senate, and enjoyed his villa and domestic life. Edward Charles Petrie closed the list with "Factors in American Character." He said:

MR. PETRIE'S ESSAY AND VALEDICTORY.

"What is an American?" an English traveler asked some years ago; and answered in the same breath: "A more or less successfully disguised Englishman." An American present remarked "Very much disguised." "I must disagree with you," responded the Briton, "the less disguised he is the nearer he comes to the English prototype; the better he is satisfied with himself."

But the present American does not wish to imitate British manners and customs, neither is he satisfied with being known as an Englishman; on the other hand he delights in declaring himself an American, an entirely different personage from an Englishman. We know that at the close of the war for independence, men of English descent predominated. Nothing speaks better for the services they rendered our country than this fact, for they were the men who obtained our freedom, established the republic, and placed it on so firm a foundation. No doubt the English race-type yet prevails and has furnished some of the most valuable and essential characteristics of our race; but the constant changes, caused not only by the new environment, but by the mixture of alien blood as well, almost completely disguise the original English type of the American. We have had many great men in our brief history whose lives are marked illustrations of our national character. Of these men, those who have lived in the last half century are better examples of the new race-type than the heroes and patriots of the Revolution.

Lincoln with his wisdom, fearlessness, reliance in God, and judicious management of the government during the most critical period of its history, stands in the front ranks of modern patriots. Who has been more noted for his pluck, energy and determination combined than Grant? His famous despatch: "I will fight it out on this line if it takes all Summer," shows of itself the nature of the man. His grit was marvellous. Whatever he determined to do and once fixed his mind upon, nothing on earth could make him relinquish; and of final victory he was always sure.

Whom shall we mention for his perseverance and progression? What statesman of later times has risen to prominence amid greater hardships and with the prospect of a more gloomy future than James A. Garfield? There is no need of mentioning how he, step by step, rose to one of the most honored positions in the World. Every one remembers Phil Sheridan, with his fire and dash; and Sherman, too, the sole surviving leader of that great struggle in which he displayed his remarkable pluck, doggedness and skill as a commander. What one man stands before the World today in whom there is more prominently displayed the characteristics which, combining, form the noblest type of the American? Is it not Chauncey Depew?

But of these men, who would think of Lincoln as an Englishman, Grant as a Scotchman, or Sheridan as an Irishman? For though they had foreign blood in their veins, to us they are Americans. As men of various countries, representing the best blood of the European nations, have commingled in the United States, they have become more closely acquainted with one another and have become united in bonds of friendship. The American of today is like a composite photograph, developed from many transplanted nationalities; and it is the hope and expectation of the United States that the longer each of these nationalities mingle here the more closely allied will they become, for the unity of her people is the nation's surest support. It is clear that such a nation, combining French polish, Irish sagacity and wit, German capacity for business, Scotch honesty, energy and determination, and English wisdom, politeness and stability, would far eclipse any nation that has ever appeared on the face of the earth.

VALEDICTORY.

But it is also manifest that one of the greatest factors in the future of our country is her school system, and you, the citizens of Plainfield, have manifested your appreciation of this fact by providing for the youth of our city a free and [illegible] valuable education.

We have welcomed you to many of our entertainments and have received from you many additions and gifts. Although you may represent various nationalities, as proof that you desire the rising generation shall always have before it the emblem of liberty and shall become patriotic citizens, you have caused the American flag unfurled above each of our school buildings.

We can hardly forbear saying something here which is not the less spontaneous and sincere than it is unexpected by our acting Principal. This is that we appreciate deeply the worthy manner in which the vacancy caused by the absence of our Principal has been filled during the past year.

In bidding you farewell, the Class of '90 wish to thank you heartily for the interest you have shown in the cause of public education, and trust that it will continue with increasing measure.

Gentlemen of the Board of Education—You have probably become so accustomed to seeing class after graduate that "commencement day" has become an old story to you; but, since it is new to us, we wish to express our appreciation of your wise selection of teachers, to whose instruction we owe so much, and our gratitude for the many advantages you have procured for our school. You represent the American character with your sound judgment, sagacity and determination, and we know that you will not rest satisfied until you render our system of public schools the equal of any in the land.

* * * * * * *

It is hardly necessary for me to address my classmates, because we know one another so well. We have studied together for years. To-night we are standing at one of the mile stones in our lives. The road has been difficult at times, but we have surmounted the obstacles and have at last reached this, the goal of our youthful ambitions.

We have had advantages of which our struggling forefathers never dreamed and of which even our parents felt the direst need. We are now reaping the results of their experience and earnest, tireless labor. It is not a night of sorrow to us, but it is a time of deep responsibility. It has been said that the youth of today constitute the nation of to-morrow. It is for us, then, to see to it that the future manhood and womanhood of our land shall justify the hopes and expectations of today; that, as we go on in life, we shall not be unknown quantities, but powerful factors in forming our national character.

EDWARD CHARLES PETRIE.

Franklin B. Wiley, of the Class of '79, then spoke as follows:

FRANKLIN B. WILEY'S SPEECH.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Board of Education, Fellow Graduates, Ladies and Gentlemen:—The class of '79, desiring to commemorate in durable form the tenth anniversary of its graduation and at the same time to give permanent assurance of its profound interest in its Alma Mater, decided at the decennial reunion held last Autumn to present to the High School a memento which should be at once suitable, serviceable, and suggestive. With the class motto, "Time—Our Estate," in mind, no difficulty was experienced in making a selection which we believe most admirably combines all of these qualities in the one gift. But in offering our gift for your approval and acceptance our satisfaction is not without its alloy of regret. We miss those of our classmates who, having made their homes far away in New England or in the cities of the great Northwest, or who, seeking fortune at the Pacific's Golden Gate or beneath the shadows of the Southern palms, have found the distances which separate them from their Alma Mater too vast to traverse even when summoned by her; we miss the two who "Have tired, and laid them down where darkened shadows fall;—

Dear as her loving voice may be, they cannot hear its call;"

Most of all we miss him who was with us, though not of us, whose encouraging hand pressure yet lingers in our palm and whose inspiring tones are still sounding in our ears; the courtly gentleman, the accomplished scholar, the able principal—John P. Gross.

Our purpose to-night, however, is not that of indulging in unavailing regret, but of presenting a gift to Alma Mater which we hope will for many years to come daily impress upon all her future students, both upon those who teach and those who learn, the old, familiar, often-conned, yet frequently forgotten lesson of the preciousness of time. In the World's dawn, time like life, was considered of such little account that man noted its flight only by the passage of the sun across the sky and the shifting positions of the stars. As ages fled and man emerged from the savage state, a vague idea of the value of time began to haunt the human mind and the primitive dial was invented. With advancing civilization a clearer comprehension of the surpassing importance of time took root in the minds of men and grew and bore fruit as the years went by producing the hour-glass, the device of the burning candles, and the clumsy clepsydra; and then, after a long interval, the clock, the watch, and finally the chronometer, which most vividly illustrates the modern understanding of the value of time by accurately measuring the fifth part of a second.

It was this modern understanding of the value of time which led the class of '79 to adopt as its motto, "Time—Our Estate," and it is the modern development of the means by which time is measured that to-night enables us to give enduring expression to that motto in the clock now hanging in Assembly Hall, of which, Mr. President and Gentlemen, on behalf of the Class of '79, I ask your acceptance. To all who shall hereafter gather each morning in Assembly Hall, may this clock bring home the great lesson that short as life is, it may be made shorter still by the careless waste of time. As you look upon the motto emblazoned on the glass behind which the pendulum is ever swinging, ceaseless as the the passage of time itself, let every swing of that pendulum mean life as well as time; as you listen to the slow and stately ticking of the timepiece, telling out the fleeting seconds and marking off the flying hours, remember that of all your opportunities, time is one of the most important. "Do not squander time," said Benjamin Franklin, "for that is the stuff of which life is made." "What have we to do with time," asks Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, "but to fill it up with labor." "At the battle of Montebello," said Napoleon, "I ordered Kellerman to attack with 800 horse, and with these he separated the 6,000 Hungarian grenadiers before the very eyes of the Austrian cavalry. This cavalry was half a league off, and required a quarter of an hour to arrive on the field of action; and I have observed," adds the great conqueror, "that it is always these quarters of an hour that decide the fate of a battle," including we may add, the battle of life. Then with the words of these famous men in your ears and their stimulating example before you, "Let actions spring from resolves, until o'er your deeds make an [illegible] of "Time—Your Estate."

President Kirkner in reply expressed the appreciation of all and the thanks of the Board. "The clock," he said, "is one that, even though the Board has a reputation in some quarters of being very extravagant, we would never have felt we could afford to purchase."

The fortunate prize winners were then called to the stage by Trustee Probasco, and honored as follows:

PRESENTATION OF REWARDS.

For Penmanship—offered by Mr. J. Kirkner—For best Penmanship, Cabinet edition of Longfellow's Poems, Household edition of Whittier's Poems. Prize—Hattie I. King and Clyde Burnett; Honorable Mention—Ada L. Wagner, William Nelson and Lillian D. Garretson. For Greatest Improvement—A gold pen. Prize—Wesley Ulrich; honorable mention—Henry L. Finch, George K. Clark and Maggie Kelley.

For Mathematics—The late Dr. C. H. Stillman. Prize offered by Mrs. C H. Stillman. First prize—fifteen dollars in gold—Edward C. Petrie. Second prize—ten dollars in gold—Caroline Fitz Randolph.

For English Composition—Offered by Mr. G. W. Babcock—First prize—Irving's complete works, bound in calf—Edith L. Gilbert. Second prize—Irving's complete works, bound in cloth—Fred. A. Doholl. Honorable mention—Lula Patten.

For United States History—Offered by Dr. J. B. Probasco—A subscription certificate to Stanley's Darkest Africa—Prize—Emma V. Fish. Honorable mention—Phebe D Lovell, Mary H. Miller, Mabel W. Mitchell, Grace A. Palmer, Harry E. Boice, Robert R. Carpenter and Ellery C. Leonard.

For Spelling—Offered by Mr. J. W. Murray—Fireside edition of Hawthorne's complete works—Prize—Emma V. Fish. Honorable mention—Helen Hasbrouck and Edward McCarthy.

For Languages—Offered by Mr. Ernest R. Ackerman for Latin, to each—A copy of Hawthorne's Marble Faun with illustrations—Divided between Hannah L. Larkin, Grace H. Petrie. Honorable mention to Edith L. Gilbert and Helen T. French. For Greek—Greek Life and Thought, Social Life in Greece and a Greek Lexicon (Liddell and Scott edition)—Walter R. Darby.

The exercises closed with the presentation of diplomas, which ceremony, was, however, postponed until late because of a very long address by the Rev. Dr. John B. VanMeter, of the Woman's College, Baltimore.

The classes of '88 and '89 tendered a reception from eleven to one o'clock, to the graduates and all their friends, in Assembly Hall. The affair was even more enjoyable than usual.

The testimony in the Hyde-French case, closed before Vice Chancellor Bird, June 26. About 110 witnesses have been examined. The matter will be argued in the Fall, and a decision may be expected in a year.

Broke Her Arm.

Ella, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Higgins of West Second street, while playing near a cherry tree on Liberty street on Tuesday last week, slipped and fell, breaking her right arm at the wrist. Dr. Simpson attended to the injury.

Bitten By a Snake.

Willie Klap, twelve years of age, who was running about bare-footed yesterday, stepped on a copperhead snake, and it bit him. Dr Westcott of Scotch Plains, is attending the boy at his home just back of Washingtonville. His leg is badly swollen, but there is hope of his recovery.

Another Inhuman Mother.

Jane Lascalle was arrested by Special Marshal Coddington in North Plainfield, Monday, for cruelty to her two children. The woman was given a hearing, that afternoon. Justice Hardy committed her to the county jail for 30 days, and the S. P. C. C., sent her little ones to the Children's Home.

His Name Not in the Directory.

The following letter received by Police Captain Grant recently from the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, will explain itself:

Boston, June 16, 1890.

To the Town Authorities, Plainfield, N. J.,

GENTLEMEN:—We write to ask if Otto Hartman of your town is a reputable man, and would furnish a proper home for his sister and a daughter 14 years of age.

A prompt answer will oblige us very much.

Yours Truly,
FRANK B. FAY,
General Agent.

Another American Industry Needing Protection.

(From the Morristown Banner.)

A cargo of pauper ice from Sweden has arrived in New York. Ice pays no tariff tax. Here is a daring blow at a great American industry, which employs more men than the tin plate industry ever will, if it gets established.

It is in order for the ice companies to appeal at once to Washington to clap a prohibitory tariff tax on Swedish ice. We are paying three prices for ice now, but of course that doesn't matter when a great American industry is to be "protected."

Clarke—Gardner.

The wedding of Walter Irving Clarke and Miss Adaline Louise Gardner, both of Plainfield, occurred on Thursday in the First Presbyterian church of Asbury Park. The ceremony, which was a very pretty one, was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Chandler, pastor of the church. The bride wore a dress of gray faille, trimmed with crepe de chine. Her hat was of crepe de chine, adorned with white birds. She carried a bouquet of water lilies.

The marriage was attended by only immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride and groom boarded an early afternoon train for a short wedding trip.

Got Her Pension Money at Last.

Mrs. Mary E. Moran of Harmony street, North Plainfield, on June 24 received a check for $1,205.47, the amount of back pension money due her since the death of her husband in December, 1879. The pension was granted to her some time since, but the money did not arrive until Tuesday.

Mrs. Moran's husband was wounded in the left temple during the war, and it was on this account that she made application for a pension.

Those who were instrumental in securing the pension are Mr. M. J. McCarthy of this city and his lawyer, Henry D. Phillips of Trenton.

Fell From the Second Story.

A German carpenter named Ritter, who resides on West Third street near Spooner avenue, met with a painful accident, while at work on a new building near his home, about dusk, June 23. The man was standing on a ladder working at one of the windows in the second story, when the ladder broke, precipitating him to the ground below, and seriously injuring one of his lower limbs at the ankle.

The unfortunate man was found by his wife afterward, lying unconscious on the ground where he had fallen. He was carried to his home and Dr. M. B. Long was summoned to attend him. To-day the patient's condition is reported as improved.

Saturday's Races.

The racing card at the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association on Saturday, consisted of three hotly contested events, as follows:

First race between John Hays' "Andy" and C. C. Brower's bay mare "Asla." "Andy" won two straight heats in 2.48½ and 2.45.

The next race was the most exciting one of the day, between O. T. Waring's "Copeland," driven by Peter Osborn, and A. C. Vail's "Frank S.," driven by his trainer, Owen Moaks. "Copeland" trotted well, winning both heats. Time 2.46 and 2.33.

The concluding race was between John Osborn's "Colonel" and Mr. Coriell's "Somerville Boy." The former horse won the single heat in 2 57.

On Saturday next there will be some new horses in the field and some exciting races may be looked for.

—The thermometer June 25, at three o'clock, registered 94 degrees in front of Stelle's drug store. One hundred degrees is blood heat.

Until the blood is cleansed of impurities, it is useless to attempt the cure of any disease. Rheumatism, which is traceable to an acid in the blood, has been cured, in numerous cases, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, external treatment being of no avail.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

It is reported that Laura Robinson and Wm. McQuay, the colored elopers from this city, have been heard from, and that a letter has been received by the girl's mother, in which Laura requests to be taken home again.

Closed for the Summer.

Friends' First-day school closed Sunday for the usual two months Summer recess. It will reopen September 7. The scholars and teachers will enjoy a festival on the spacious grounds of the Peace street Meeting House, Tuesday afternoon of next week, July 8, from 3:30 to 6 o'clock.

The Ceiling Fell on Her.

Susan Johnson, the janitress at the railroad station, had a narrow escape from serious injury June 25. While cleaning the ladies' toilet room, a large patch of the ceiling fell and striking her on the head rendered her unconscious. Mrs. Haynes, wife of Station Agent Haynes, promptly offered remedies and assistance to the sufferer, who received but slight cuts and bruises.

COMPETITION.

Its the life of business and the only thing that keeps it in a normal condition. We welcome it because we have confidence in the goods we offer. We only want what the word means to be properly understood. Competition is rivalry for first place between two or more parties having equal claims. Now, the truth is, that in the clothing business there is little competition with such goods as we sell. The bulk of Ready-made Clothing, manufactured for sale to the jobbers and passed on from them to the retailers, don't compete with the Clothing we sell at all. There is a good deal of shouting done about it, and its merits are insisted upon most vigorously, but it don't compete The merchant tailors are the only houses with which our Ready-made Clothing competes, in quality, style and finish; while, of course, it has a marvelous advantage when it comes to price.

We don't claim any monopoly in making such an article as we offer, but we insist that there's art in it. There's no patent in selling as good a suit as we do for the money, all we say is, it isn't done. We'll prove it to you. Select a suit, any price you like, one that is pressed upon your notice as down to "rock bottom," "below cost," or any other term which denotes cheapness. Select such a suit, we say, in some store noted for its advertisement of bargains, and then come and let us show you a suit at the same price, and you'll have proof before your own eyes of what we claim. We don't fear competition; we've no reason to; least of all would be competition from an inferior article.

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnipeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dream of the home-seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. Write to F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn., for maps, books and guides. If you want a free farm in a lovely land, write for the "Great Reservation," read it and resolve to grasp the golden chance.

The Negro Parson's Investment and Its Unexpected Result.

A Book for Colored People Who Can Not Read—[illegible]

[Copyright, 1890.]

Knock-Kneed Williams, who some time ago took the premium for darkness of complexion at a fair held in a fun-loving neighborhood, was sitting in front of his cabin, leaning back against the [illegible] when a briskly walking man carrying a load of something strapped on his back, came up and putting down his load, said:

"This is Mr. Williams, I presume."

"Well, Mr. Williams, I have called on business that I think will result greatly to your advantage."

eyes. Night came and he lighted a lamp. Sometimes he would shake his head doubtfully, and then, scrambling as though he would force himself to read, he would gaze at the blurred letters. He went to bed late and arose early at morning, and seized the book. Late in the afternoon he came in from the cotton patch where he had been trying to work, but he could scarcely see the young plants. All he saw were lines of letters that seemed to kick and tumble over each other.

Several days afterward, the showed agent, while over in another neighborhood, came upon an old negro that sat on a log.

"How far is it to the ferry?" the agent asked.

"It's er good ways, sah. What you got dar on yo' back?"

"Books, and, by the way, I might do some business with you."

"I dunno, fur I kain't read."

"Oh, we can fix that. These books are self-teachers, and all you'd have to do would be to look at one of them, and it would teach you how to read."

"Well, yere, I what's one dem books, den."

The agent put down his books, some twenty in all, and, with a suddenness that was astonishing in so old a man, the negro snatched them up, and, leaping across the road, snatched off a handful of grizzly whiskers, revealing the features of Knock-Kneed Williams.

A committee is now investigating at Ravenna the precise locality where the urn containing the bones of Dante was in 1320. Previously the same committee discovered in a convent a painting by Giotto containing a portrait of Dante, the only really authentic portrait of him known. It is soon to be reproduced, and will change the accepted notion of Dante's looks decidedly.

STATISTICAL SLIPS.

According to recent figures the people of this country are longer lived than those of Europe. In this country eighteen persons out of every 1,000 die each year. In England the average is twenty, and in Germany twenty-six.

The population of Ireland continues to decline, and appears to have dropped some 30,000 in number during the past year. The lowest point of this present century has now been reached. Its zenith was in 1845, when there were 8,250,000. The estimate for to-day is 4,500,000.

Some statistician has figured out that for the annual nourishment of 15,000,000 cows and 12,000,000 horses there are needed 30,000,000 tons of hay, 90,000,000 bushels of cornmeal, the same of oatmeal, 275,000,000 bushels of oats, 2,000,000 bushels of bran and 26,000,000 bushels of corn at a cost of $450,000,000.

The chief of the London fire brigade has published statistics of fires in theaters throughout the world in 1889. He says that 15 theaters were destroyed, 19 persons killed, 91 badly wounded, and goes on to prove by figures that by entering a theater a person improves his chances of an untimely end.

It appears from carefully prepared statistics that when the proportion of unemployed increases the marriage rate declines, and vice versa. According to the figures furnished by the unions, it is found that the fluctuations in the amount of employment in a few trades are a close index of the fluctuations in the marriage rate of the whole country.

Germany took the lead as the country of syndicates in 1889. Ninety-two are known to have been formed there, while the United States had 58, Austria, 38, Great Britain 31, France 6, Russia 7, Belgium 8, Italy 2, Sweden 4 and Denmark 1. In addition, eleven international trusts were formed to control copper, zinc, nitrates, rails, mirror glass, sugar, dynamite, and hotels. A great many other syndicates and trusts were undoubtedly formed, but their existence was not formally recorded.

The cost of the tobacco habit has always been a favorite theme of statistical reformers. The Price Current is one of the latest to come forward with some figures on the subject. It says that the tobacco annually consumed in the United States amounts to 310,000,000 pounds. Of this, 70,000,000 pounds are used for cigars; 225,000,000 pounds for chewing and smoking tobacco; 6,000,000 pounds for cigarettes; 5,000,000 pounds for snuff, and 4,000,000 pounds in cigars are imported. That is an average consumption of 5 pounds for every person who uses tobacco.

A recent article in the Forum says that, assuming the population to be now 65,000,000, with the area in cereals producing average crops and current consumption 15 per cent. greater per capita than in the five years ending in 1874, present supplies are in excess of population as follows: Corn for 3,500,000 people, wheat for 14,000,000, cattle for 4,000,000 and swine for 11,000,000. Should population continue to increase as heretofore and should production not increase more than now seems probable, home requirements will absorb all food products before the end of this century.

For the decade of 1879-89 the duel statistics of Italy record for the entire Kingdom 2,759 duels, most of them military. The hotter the weather the more duels, while in very cold winter spells the figures tapered off. Thus, seven-eighths of the whole number took place in summer and one-eighth in winter. Only fifty deaths resulted out of all these duels, 90 of which were fought with the sword, 2,489 with the saber and the rest with the pistol. Ordinary quarrels produced 750; press and political discussions, 1,223; love, 182; religious questions, 28. Most of the duels took place at Naples and the fewest at Venice.

It is proposed to use the spectroscope to determine whether cesspools, stables, etc., drain into neighboring wells. The Royal Botanic Society has received for its museum a specimen of the double cocoanut, known also as coco de mer. For hundreds of years the origin of these nuts was a mystery, for they were never seen except when they were washed up by the sea. They were supposed to have wonderful powers in the way of curing disease, and were the subject of other superstitions until the place where they grew was at last discovered to be the Seychelles, a small group of islands in the Indian Ocean. Formerly they were worth their weight in gold, and they are rare now.

The Kaiser's latest reform is in naval uniforms. The new book of regulations says that an Admiral may, when at sea, wear an oilskin sou'wester and coat, but his shirt front must be perfectly plain and devoid of tucks or frills; and the distance between the rows of gold lace on his sleeves must be 3/32 of an inch.

The discoveries made by Stanley show that the Nile is the longest river in the world, being at least 4,100 miles in length. Were the Mississippi regarded merely as a tributary to the Missouri, as some geographers contend, the latter stream would surpass the African water-course, having a length of 4,300 miles. The Amazon is estimated at 3,600 miles and is second in size of the great rivers of the world.

The Museum of Antiquities at Gottingen has made a remarkable addition to its treasures. It consists of nothing less than the battered door of the university prison on which is cut in bold characters the name of "Bismarck." There are factories for icemaking, ropemaking, and there is also a company which has a large establishment for supplying bricks and cement."

A most ghastly form of swindling has been devised in Germany. To families who lost relatives in the war of 1870 have been sent circulars stating that the missing soldiers in reality were not dead, but were detained as prisoners at Algiers by the French Government. The circulars begged for money to assist in their escape, giving mysterious hints that it was necessary to keep all this a secret lest plans which had been perfected for the deliverance of the prisoners be discovered of the French and thwarted. It is needless to add that an investigation has revealed the entire absence of any foundation for this beyond the desire of certain scoundrels to make money at whatever cost.

The total imports for the eleven months of the fiscal year ended with May amounted to $131,258,567, compared with $120,915,144, an increase of $6,344,423, or nearly 7 per cent.

Normandy butter is losing its footing in our markets. Between 1882 and 1887 the annual export to England fell off by nearly 32,000,000 francs. That the cause of this decline is the fraudulent adulteration of the article is admitted by a syndicate of butter merchants of Northern France, who have recently issued an appeal to their countrymen to endeavor to divert this disaster to the trade. The fraudulent admixture of oleomargarine is said to be extensively practiced at Caen, notwithstanding special laws lately enacted on the subject. The syndicate referred to propose that the butter-makers shall be compelled to impart to the fatty substances used as substitutes for butter some coloring matter, so that its presence may at once be apparent to the eye.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act relative to the publication of the laws of this state in the newspapers,' approved May sixth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven," approved May sixteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in case there are any newspapers published in this state devoted to the exclusive interests of any particular fraternal organization or society having an aggregate membership of not less than twelve thousand in this state, the governor, comptroller and secretary of state, or a majority of them, shall select and designate at least one, and not more than two, such fraternal or society newspapers to publish the laws of this state; provided, however, that the newspapers so to be selected and designated shall have been published continuously for at least three years prior to such selection and designation.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXV.

A further supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting executions" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section twenty-four of the act to which this is a supplement be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

24. And be it enacted, That the judgment creditor, before he shall be granted such order, shall present to said judge a petition, verified by the oath of such creditor, his agent or attorney, in which he shall state the amount due on said execution, the return made thereon by the officer to whom it was issued, and his belief that said judgment debtor hath property or money, or things in action due to him, or held in trust for him, where the trust has been created by or the fund held in trust has proceeded from himself over and above such property as is or may be reserved by law, to an amount exceeding fifty dollars, on presentation whereof said order shall be made; and the said judge shall further, on allegation in said petition, or in one supplementary thereto, and proof by the oath of the party, or any other person, of facts and circumstances, showing that any person owes the said debtor otherwise than for his labor or personal services, or the labor or personal services of any member or members of his family, or holds money or property in possession or action in trust for him, or for his use as aforesaid, make order forbidding the payment of such debt, or the transfer of said property or money by or to the said debtor, or any third person, until further order to be by him made; affidavits verifying said petitions may be taken before any officer authorized by law to administer oaths; and if any person, in any affidavit or examination taken under this act, shall wilfully and corruptly swear falsely, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXVI.

An Act to validate sales and conveyances heretofore made by administrators or executors for the payment of debts.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no sale of land heretofore made by any executor or administrator by virtue of an order of the orphans' court, for the sale of lands for payment of debts of a decedent, shall be invalidated by reason of the omission of the order of sale to recite the amount of the deficiency necessary to be made; but every sale heretofore made by virtue of an order of the orphans' court for payment of debts, shall be deemed valid and effectual notwithstanding such omission; and every conveyance made in pursuance thereof shall be deemed and taken to convey the same title and estate that would have been conveyed if the order of sale had recited the amount of the deficiency; provided, the said sale shall have been confirmed by the court making the order.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXVII.

An act to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a system of public instruction" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section twenty-four of said act as amended by the act of April fourth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, be further amended so as to read as follows:

24. And be it enacted, That he shall examine and license teachers, fix the boundaries of school districts, divide or unite any district or districts, whether organized and incorporated under general or special laws, form new districts; provided, that any district organized under a special act of the legislature shall not be divided while there are outstanding any bonds or other obligations for the payment of money issued by such district under the provisions of its special act of incorporation, provide for graded schools, and discharge other duties of general supervision and superintendence over the public schools of the county in accordance with the regulations prescribed from time to time by the state board of education; that such incorporated city or town shall hereafter constitute but one school district for all school purposes, and such consolidated district shall hold all the property and be liable for all the lawful debts of the district so consolidated; provided, that when any county superintendent shall neglect or refuse to form a new school district, or change the boundaries of any existing school district, when petitioned in writing so to do, appeal may be made to the state superintendent of public instruction, who shall have the power to form such new school district, or to change the boundaries as aforesaid, if, in his judgment, such new district or change in boundaries is necessary.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXVIII.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act constituting courts for the trial of small causes" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted, by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the seventieth section of the act of which this is amendatory be amended to read as follows:

70. And be it enacted, That any time hereafter in docketing any judgment from a court for the trial of small causes, it shall only be necessary to file with the clerk of the court of common pleas a statement signed by the justice of the peace who held the said small cause court under his hand and seal, which statement shall only be required to contain the name of the justice of the peace before whom judgment was obtained, the names of the parties, the amount and date of judgment, and the date of issue and return of execution, if any; it shall not be necessary before obtaining from the justice of the peace the statement for docketing, that execution on the judgment shall issue out of and be returned unsatisfied into the court where judgment was rendered; said statement may be made and taken at any time after judgment in the court for trial of small causes, and be of the same force and effect as if execution had been issued and returned as now required by law; provided, that an affidavit of the plaintiff or his attorney shall be filed with the clerk of the court of common pleas with said statement, setting forth that the said judgment about to be docketed is bona fide and is still due and unpaid, in whole or part; and the fee of the clerk of the court of common pleas for filing said statement shall be one dollar, and the justice of the peace, for issuing statement, shall be fifty cents.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXIX.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to incorporate fire districts heretofore established or which may hereafter be established in townships under the provisions of the act entitled 'An act to provide means for protection against fires in townships,' approved March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine," which said act to incorporate was approved February twenty-third, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section three of the act to which this is a supplement be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

2. And be it enacted, That the said board of directors or fire commissioners shall certify the amount of money voted at the annual district meeting to the assessor of the township in which said district is situate, which said assessor shall assess said money on the inhabitants of said district and their estates and taxable property therein in the same manner as township taxes are assessed, and said money shall be assessed, levied and collected at the time and in the manner that other township taxes are assessed, levied and collected; and it shall be the duty of the collector of the township in which said [illegible]

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXX.

An act to authorize incorporated townships to [illegible] for public improvements.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, [illegible]

4. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the board of township committee or other governing body of said township, and such board of township committee or other governing body of said township is hereby authorized and empowered, by resolution, to fix and determine annually, on or before the second Tuesday in May in each year, how much money is necessary to be raised by taxation to pay the interest on such bonds and the principal of such bonds as fall due within one year from the time of adopting such resolution, and to order such sum to be assessed and collected for the purpose aforesaid, a copy of which resolution shall be served by the township clerk on the township assessor of such township, and thereupon the sum so ordered to be raised shall be assessed upon all the ratable and taxable property in such township, and collected in the same manner and at the same time that other township taxes are assessed and collected; and the money so raised shall be applied to the payment of such principal and interest falling due on said bonds, and to no other purpose.

5. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts, whether general, public, local or special, inconsistent with this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

6. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXXII.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of courts of law" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one hundred and fifty-five of an act entitled "An act to regulate the practice of courts of law" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, be amended so as to read as follows:

155. And be it enacted, That after an action in law heretofore or hereafter commenced is at issue, either party may serve upon the opposite party, whether such party be a natural person or body corporate, written interrogatories upon any matter material to the issue, and the same shall be answered in writing, under oath, and the answer served upon the party proposing the interrogatories in fifteen days after their service, and the answer shall be strictly responsive to the interrogatories proposed, and in the case of a body corporate, it shall be under the oath of such of the officers, agents or employees of the corporation as have personal knowledge of the facts or custody of the books, records or papers of said corporation, a discovery of which is sought; and the court may by an attachment for contempt, a suppression of the defense, a stay of the proceedings, or otherwise, compel an answer thereto, and such answer shall be evidence in the action offered as such by the party proposing the interrogatories, but not otherwise; provided, however, that the court may, upon good cause shown and upon two days' notice to the other party, order any of said interrogatories to be stricken out, or amended, or new ones to be added, or give further time for answering the same, or order the answer to be amended.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXXIII.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to incorporate benevolent and charitable associations" (Revision), approved April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any assemblage of merchants or other society of business men associated together for lawful mutual aid and protection may become incorporated under the act to which this is a supplement, and with the same powers as are in said act set forth and provided.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 1.

Joint Resolution relative to the taxation of property.

1. Be it resolved by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That there be appointed a committee of six persons to take into consideration the taxation of property, and prepare and report to the next legislature a bill for that purpose; that two members of the house be appointed by the speaker thereof, and two members of the senate by the president thereof, as members of such committee, that the governor be and he is hereby authorized to appoint as members of such committee two persons, not belonging to the same political party, who shall be paid out of the treasury such compensation for their services as the governor and comptroller shall deem proper; and that such committee shall have power to sit during vacation and employ necessary clerical assistance and legal counsel not exceeding two in number, who shall belong to different political parties, to be paid for upon approval of the governor and comptroller.

2. And be it enacted, That this resolution shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXXIV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to provide for the organization of the New Jersey home for disabled soldiers," approved April fourth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That from and after the passage of this act the annual salary of the chaplain of the New Jersey home for disabled soldiers shall be one thousand dollars per annum, payable monthly, in the manner now provided by law, and that the amount thereof shall be in addition to the appropriation made for the said institution under existing laws.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXXV.

A Supplement to an act entitled "An act to incorporate benevolent and charitable associations" (Revision), approved April ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any assemblage of merchants or other society of business men associated together for lawful mutual aid and protection may become incorporated under the act to which this is a supplement, and with the same powers as are in said act set forth and provided.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

CHAPTER CXXXVII.

An Act concerning the disbursement of school money for the payment of teachers' salaries.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter it shall be lawful for the collector of any town or township school district or districts in counties of the third and fourth class, with the advice and consent of the county collector, to disburse and pay out for the salaries of teachers in the public schools any money received and collected by him for state school tax, pending settlement by him with the county collector of and for the amount due from the town or township to the county collector, and the amount due and coming through the hands of the county collector to the school district or districts as the apportionment of state school money, other than the state appropriation; provided, that the amount of such disbursement shall not exceed seventy-five per centum of the amount of said apportionment of state school money; and all such payments so made, on presentation of warrants legally and regularly issued by the board of school trustees, shall be considered and credited as partial payments of the state school tax from the town or township to the county collector, and the warrants so paid shall be placed in his hands and retained by said county collector until final settlement be made by him with said township collector for the state school tax and state school apportionment for that current year, when the said warrants shall be returned, as part payment to the amount of their face value, of the apportionment of state school money due the town, township or school district or districts.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 7, 1890.

"11. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any person who shall have served seven years as a member of any fire company organized under the act to which this is a supplement, shall be thereafter exempt from serving in the militia in the time of peace, or as a juror, in which latter case he shall not be entitled to such exemption unless he shall have filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which he shall reside, a certificate of such service made by the presiding officer of such company;" be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

11. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That any person who heretofore has served, or hereafter shall have served as a member of any fire company or companies organized under the act to which this is a supplement, for a period of seven years, or for separate periods (not consecutive), amounting in the aggregate to seven years, shall be thereafter exempt from serving in the militia in the time of peace or as a juror, in which the latter case he shall not be entitled to such exemption, unless he shall have filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which he shall reside a certificate or certificates of such service made by the presiding officer of such company or companies.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall be a public act and shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 26, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXVI.

An Act to provide additional accommodations for the state normal school.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the state board of education be and they are hereby authorized to erect upon the grounds of the state normal school a suitable building, of such size as the said board may deem proper, for providing additional class-rooms, rooms for instruction in manual training and for such other purposes as in the opinion of the said board may be necessary to increase the accommodations and facilities of the school; and the said board are hereby authorized to procure for the said building such furniture and apparatus as in their judgment may be necessary and requisite for the above-named purposes.

2. And be it enacted, That the erection and furnishing of the said building shall be done by contract or otherwise, as the said board shall deem for the best interest of the state, and the said board shall have power to employ architects, superintendents and mechanics, to advertise for proposals, to make a contract or contracts for the whole of any part of said work, and to incur all necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of this act; and for these purposes the sum of forty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated from the income of the state school fund, the same to be paid by the treasurer of the state, on a warrant of the comptroller, from time to time as payments shall become due, said payments to be made upon proper vouchers approved and duly certified by the said board or such officers thereof as they may designate for that purpose.

3. And be it enacted, That the said board shall make to the legislature at its next session, and at each succeeding session until the said building is completed, a full and detailed report of their proceedings and expenditures under this act.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 26, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXVII.

An Act to provide for drainage and sewerage in townships.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the township committee in any township in this state to provide for, obtain and cause to be constructed a system of sewerage or of drainage, or of both.

2. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the township committee of such township to cause to be made surveys, plans and estimates by competent engineers and mechanics sufficient to determine a practicable and efficient system of sewerage and drainage for such township, including the disposition of house sewage and waste.

3. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the township committee of such township, whenever in their judgment the public good demands it, by ordinance to cause sewers and drains to be constructed in any part of such township, and if necessary, to take and appropriate, for the purpose of constructing such drains and sewers, any lands and real estate upon making compensation to the owner or [illegible]

[illegible] this act, or any of them, it shall be lawful for the township committee to apply to a justice of the supreme court, sitting at the circuit in which said township is situate, for the appointment of three commissioners, who shall be residents and freeholders in the county in which such township is situate, and whose duty it shall be to assess the costs and expenses of any such improvement and public works upon the several lots and parcels of land and real estate benefited by such improvements, in proportion to the benefits thereby received by each of such lots or parcels of land and real estate, and no lot or parcel shall be assessed for more than it is benefited; provided, that if the total cost and expense of an improvement exceed the aggregate amount of assessable benefits, then only so much of said cost and expense as equals the aggregate amount of such benefits shall be so assessed, and the remainder of such cost and expense shall be borne by the township as provided by this act.

10. And be it enacted, That for the purpose of paying such portion of the costs and expenses of the improvements and public works, and of the proceedings in relation thereto, as mentioned in this act, as shall be assessed against the township at large, it shall be lawful for the township committee to borrow money from time to time, and to secure the payment of the same by issuing the corporate bonds of the inhabitants of such township, payable at such times as said committee may determine, which bonds, when issued by resolution of the township committee and under the township seal, shall be valid obligations of such municipal corporation according to their tenor; provided, however, that said bonds shall bear interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, shall be sold for not less than their par or face value; and provided, also, that in no case shall bonds be issued to an amount which shall cause the entire corporate indebtedness of such township, for all purposes, to exceed at any time ten per centum of the assessed valuation of property in said township as shown on the duplicate of assessment.

11. And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the legal voters in such township, at their annual meeting, to vote, grant and raise such sum or sums of money, from year to year, to be expended by the township committee, under the provisions of this act, as a majority of said legal voters shall determine.

12. And be it enacted, That for the purpose of paying the interest and principal of the bonds to be issued under the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of the township committee, each year, to issue a warrant to the assessor of such township, directing him to assess upon the property subject to taxation in said township, a sum equal to the amount of principal and interest which will fall due during the then current fiscal year; and all money so by warrant directed to be assessed, as well as any money voted and granted by the legal voters, as herein provided, shall be assessed, levied and collected by the same persons, in the same manner, at the same times and under the like fees, fines and penalties as the money raised by taxation in said township for other township and for county purposes.

13. And be it enacted, That the township committee may, by resolution, provide that any assessment for any sewer or sewers to be built or constructed under and by virtue of the provisions of this act need not be paid in one payment, but that the same may be paid in equal annual installments; provided, that no installment is less than one-fifth of the whole amount of the assessment on such piece or parcel of land assessed.

14. And be it enacted, That the township committee of any township may, by resolution, submit the question of the acceptance or rejection of this act to the voters of said township at any town or charter election to be held therein, whereof at least one week's notice shall be given by public advertisement in a daily newspaper circulating in such township; and if a majority of those who shall vote for the acceptance or rejection thereof shall be in favor of the acceptance of this act, then this act shall go into effect immediately, and the grant of power herein made to such township shall be taken to be accepted by such township; and such township shall be bound by the terms of this act; persons entitled to vote at any charter or township election where this question is submitted to them shall express their assent to or rejection of this act by depositing their ballots in a box provided for depositing ballots at such election in such township; and those who are in favor of the acceptance of this act and the grant of powers therein contained shall each deposit a ballot containing the words "act of one thousand eight hundred and ninety to provide for drainage and sewerage in townships accepted," written or printed thereon, and those who are opposed shall each deposit a ballot with the words "Act of one thousand eight hundred and ninety to provide for drainage and [illegible]

A Further Supplement to [illegible]

[illegible]

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no sale of land heretofore made shall be invalidated by reason of the omission to publish the advertisement of such sale in two newspapers published in the county in which said lands are situate, in the manner required by the acts to which this is a further supplement, but that any purchaser or purchasers of land at such sale, who shall have complied with the conditions of such sale, shall be entitled to have a deed for the land so purchased, notwithstanding the sale was advertised in but one newspaper of the county in which the land was situated; provided, however, that when the sale has been made by direction of any court of competent jurisdiction, an order confirming such sale shall first be made by said court, or a judge thereof, upon it appearing to the satisfaction of said court or judge that the land has been sold for a fair price, and that it is proper in such case to make the order; and a deed or deeds so given shall operate to transfer the title to the purchaser or purchasers as fully as if the sale had been advertised in two newspapers of the county where the land is situate, in the manner and as is required by the acts to which this is a further supplement.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 26, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXI.

An Act to provide for the condemnation of lands under water, leased or conveyed by the riparian commissioners, when the same are required to be used for a public road bridge and draw.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That when the board of chosen freeholders in any county in this state shall be authorized by law to build and construct, or to cause to be built and constructed, a public road bridge across any of the navigable waters in this state, and in the construction of the said bridge or any draw in said bridge, and in the operation of the said draw it is necessary to take, use or occupy lands under water which may have been heretofore conveyed or leased by the riparian commissioners of this state to any person or persons, or in respect to which any person or persons may own any right, privilege or franchise by virtue of such grant or lease, it shall be lawful for said board of chosen freeholders, in case it cannot agree with the owner or owners or other persons interested in any such lands as to the amount of compensation to be paid therefor, to apply to any justice of the supreme court of this state, who, upon such application and upon two weeks' previous notice, served personally, or by leaving at the dwelling-house or usual place of abode of such owner or owners, or in case of absence from the state or legal disability published in a newspaper published nearest the lands in question, may appoint three disinterested commissioners resident of the county in which said lands are situated, to assess and ascertain the value of the lands so proposed to be taken, used and occupied, and the damages to be done to any lands by the occupation and maintenance of such works and by the operation of said draw, which commissioners shall appoint a time and place at which they shall meet to execute the duties of their appointment, and shall cause two weeks' notice thereof to be given to the parties interested therein, either by personal service or by publication in a newspaper published in the county where such lands may be, at which time and place the said commissioners shall meet and view the premises and hear the parties interested, and take evidence, if any be offered, and for that purpose shall have power to administer oaths or affirmations; and the said board shall make and exhibit to the said commissioners, at their meeting aforesaid, for the use of the parties interested, a statement and description in writing, or by drawings or maps, or both, of the lands by them sought to be taken as aforesaid, and of the use and occupation upon any lands by them sought to be made; and the said commissioners shall thereupon ascertain and assess the value and damages as aforesaid, and shall execute under their hands and seals, or the hands and seals of a majority of them, and award to the said owner or owners of the lands, rights, privileges and franchises so sought by said board of chosen freeholders in the statement and description aforesaid, stating therein the amount of damages and compensation thereafter by them assessed in favor of such owner or owners, which award shall be by them acknowledged and filed in the county clerk's office, and by him recorded in the registry of deeds.

2. And be it enacted, That before taking possession of any such lands or entering thereon for the purpose of the use or occupation thereof, said board shall pay or tender to such owner or owners, or in case of absence from the state or legal disability, shall deposit with the clerk of the circuit court of said county the amount of damages so awarded, and the award of said commissioners and the payment or tender or deposit as aforesaid of such damages shall vest in said board of chosen freeholders the lands, rights, privileges and franchises by them sought, described and set forth in said statement and description, in all respects the same as if the same had been conveyed to said board by the said owner or owners under their hands and seals.

3. And be it enacted, That if either party feel aggrieved by said assessment and award, such party may appeal to the next or second term of the circuit court of said county, by petition and notice thereof served upon the opposite party two weeks prior to such term, or published a like space in a newspaper published nearest the lands in question, which petition and notice so served or published shall vest in said court full power to hear and determine said appeal, and if required they shall award a venire for a jury to come before them, who shall hear and finally determine the issue under the direction of the court, as in other trials by jury; and it shall be the duty of the said jury to assess the damages to the said lands as above mentioned, and the value of such as shall be absolutely taken; and said court shall have power to order a struck jury, a jury of view, or both, to try any such appeal; and the right of said board to appeal from and dispute the correctness of any award shall not be waived or taken away by the paying or tendering the amount of the award and taking possession of the land or exercising the rights covered by such award; and the right of any owner of any such lands or rights in like manner to appeal shall not be waived or lost by the acceptance of the amount so awarded, when tendered, and upon the final determination of any such appeal the said court shall render such judgment in favor of the one party and against the other as the right and justice of the case shall require, and shall award to the party substantially succeeding and prevailing in said appeal, his, her or their costs of said appeal against the opposite party, and shall have power to enforce the judgment so rendered by execution, as other judgments are enforced, and also by summary proceedings and attachments for non-payment thereof.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 27, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXII.

An Act concerning the election of school trustees and boards of education in cities of the third class.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That in any incorporated town or city of the third class which is divided into wards so called, and where now it is provided and required by law that school trustees shall be elected in and for such wards, and where such school trustees so elected do now constitute and are known by name in law as the board of education of such town or city, and where the number of such school trustees does not exceed four, it shall hereafter be lawful to elect, and there shall be elected at the next annual charter election of such town or city, eight school trustees who may and shall be voted for by the people at large, regardless of wards; and four of such school trustees shall be elected for a period or term of one year, and four shall be elected for a period or term of two years, and in each and every year annually thereafter there shall be elected four school trustees for a period or term of two years, and such school trustees so elected as herein provided, shall be known as the board of education of such town or city and be a body politic and corporate in fact and in name, to perform all the duties required and to have and to exercise all the rights, power and privileges heretofore granted and provided by law, to and for the board of education of such town or city, and that the four persons who shall receive the highest number of votes for the term of two years shall be declared elected and shall hold office for the term of two years, and the four persons who shall receive the highest number of votes for the term of one year shall be declared elected and shall hold office for the term of one year only; and that in event of any vacancy occurring by reason of the death, resignation or removal from the town or city of any member, such vacancy shall be filled by a special election to be called by the common council or other governing body of such town or city, of which election at least ten days' notice shall be given in the usual manner prescribed for the annual or charter election in such town or city.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Passed March 27, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXIII.

An Act to authorize turnpike companies to straighten portions of their roads.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever any alteration shall be made of any portion of any public road in this state by vacating such portion and relaying it in another place in order to straighten the same, and there shall have been constructed on such portion so vacated any portion of any turnpike road of any company organized by virtue of any special or general act of incorporation, such company shall have the same rights in the portion of said public road so relaid as it had in the portion thereof vacated, and may construct and maintain such portion of their said turnpike upon the said portion of said public road so relaid in such other place, in order to straighten such portion of such turnpike; provided, that the making of any such alteration shall be deemed and taken as an abandonment of that portion of said turnpike so constructed upon said portion of said public road so vacated as aforesaid.

2. And be it enacted, That any such turnpike company shall have all the rights, privileges and franchises and be subject to the same duties with respect to the portion of their said turnpike so constructed upon the said portion of said public road relaid as if the same had been a portion of their original turnpike.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 27th, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXIV.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the purchase of turnpike and macadamized toll roads," approved June nineteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That section one of the act entitled "An act to provide for the purchase of turnpike and macadamized toll roads," approved June nineteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, be and the same is hereby amended so that the same shall read as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever an application in writing, as hereinafter specified, shall be presented to the justice of the supreme court holding the circuit court of any county in this state wherein any turnpike or macadamized toll road is wholly or partially located asking for the condemnation and purchase of such road or part thereof, and the improvement thereof for free public use, such justice may, if he deem it a proper case, upon such notice to the board of chosen freeholders of said county and to the corporation owning, leasing or operating such road, as he may direct, appoint three commissioners from the counties adjoining such circuit, not more than two from the same county; the said application shall be made by at least ten freeholders owning lands along or through which said road, or part thereof, runs; the said commissioners, when appointed, shall take an oath or affirmation faithfully and fairly to perform their duties, and shall thereupon proceed to estimate and determine the fair and just value of the said road, or part thereof, to be taken, and of the franchise of the corporation owning, leasing or operating the same, having first given ten days' notice of the time and place when and where they will meet to hear any representations in behalf of said corporation, of the board of chosen freeholders of such county, or of said ten applying freeholders, in relation to the matter; such notice shall be served upon the president or other chief officer of such corporation and also upon the director or clerk of the board of chosen freeholders, and shall be published in one newspaper published in such county at least one week prior to the time of such meeting; such meeting may be adjourned from time to time at the discretion of the commissioners, provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to turnpikes or macadamized toll roads over three miles in length.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 28, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXV.

A Further Supplement to "An act relative to sales of land under a public statute or by virtue of any judicial proceedings" [Revision], approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and the several supplements thereto.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That no sale of land heretofore made shall be invalidated by reason of the sale thereof having been advertised by hand-bills and in the newspapers, required by law, for eleven o'clock in the forenoon, instead of between the hours of twelve and five o'clock in the afternoon, when the sale was actually made between said last-named hours, but that any purchaser of lands at such shall be entitled to have a deed for the lands so purchased by him or her, notwithstanding the sale was advertised to be held at eleven o'clock in the forenoon; provided, the law has been in all other respects fully complied with; and provided, further, that when the sale has been made by direction of the court of chancery of the state of New Jersey, an order confirming such sale shall be made by said court, and shall be granted when the said court shall be satisfied that the land has been sold for a fair price, and between the hours of twelve and five o'clock in the afternoon, as required by the statutes, and a deed so given shall operate to transfer the title of the land to the purchaser as fully as if the sale had been duly advertised as required by law.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXVI.

An Act for the support of the state industrial school for girls.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be the duty of the trustees of the state industrial school for girls to make and submit a report to the governor of the state, at the expiration of every three months, dating from the first day of January, anno domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety, showing the average number of girls maintained in the school during such period, which said report shall be duly certified by the president and attested by the secretary of the board; and, in order to support the said school, and to make the necessary repairs thereto, the treasurer of this state shall pay out of the moneys now in the treasury, appropriated heretofore for the support of said school, to the treasurer of the said board of trustees, such a sum as shall be considered necessary by the trustees, and approved by the governor of this state, for the maintenance of said school for the succeeding three months; and after such appropriation shall have been exhausted, then it shall be the duty of the treasurer of the state to pay, out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the treasurer of the said board of trustees of the state industrial school for girls, such a sum as shall be considered necessary by the trustees thereof, and approved by the governor of this state, for the maintenance of said school, and for necessary repairs to the property thereof, for the succeeding three months; such sum not to exceed the maximum sum of forty-five dollars for each girl maintained in said school, which said sum shall be based on the average number of inmates for the last preceding quarter, and to be paid upon the warrant of the comptroller.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXVII.

A Further Supplement to an act entitled "An act respecting the court of chancery," approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the provisions of the fourth section of the act entitled "An act concerning proceedings on bonds and mortgages given for the same indebtedness and the foreclosure and sale of mortgaged premises thereunder," approved March twelfth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty, which section is in these words:

4. And be it enacted, That in all foreclosure proceedings hereafter commenced, the sheriff or other officer who may be directed to sell any mortgaged premises shall, after making such sale, report the same within five days thereafter to the court out of which an execution or order to sell is issued, stating the name of the purchaser or purchasers and the price obtained, and if the said court, or judge thereof, shall approve of such sale, they shall confirm the same as valid, effectual in law, and shall, by rule of court allowed in open court, or by a judge thereof at chambers, direct the said sheriff or other officer to execute good and sufficient conveyance in law to the purchaser or purchasers for the mortgaged premises sold; provided, that no sale of mortgaged premises shall be confirmed by the court or further proceedings had until the court or such judge is satisfied by evidence that the property has been sold at the highest and best price the same would then bring in cash, and such evidence may be in form of affidavits, shall apply to and govern all sales of land or any interest therein made under and by virtue of any decree or order of the court of chancery, subject, however, to such rules and orders in respect thereto as the said court may at any time make.

2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXVIII.

An Act empowering executors and trustees under certain circumstances, to sell or mortgage real estate.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That whenever, by any last will or testament, lands and real estate are devised to, or whenever, by any deed, lands are conveyed to or held by any executor or executors, trustee or trustees, in trust for any person or persons for life, or until the happening of some event in such will or deed named, and said lands so devised or conveyed shall, at the time of taking effect of such devise or conveyance, be encumbered with any mortgage or charged with the payment of any legacy or subject to any judgment, tax or assessment, or shall thereafter become chargeable with or subject to any judgment, tax or assessment, for the payment of which mortgage, legacy, judgment, tax or assessment, and interest thereon, no adequate provision be made in such will, or afforded by the estate of the testator or provided for in such deed, except out of the income from said lands and real estate, and the same have been sold for such tax or assessment by virtue of any laws of this state, or shall be liable to be sold for such tax or assessment by virtue of any laws of this state, or shall be liable to be sold or taken, pay, satisfy and discharge such mortgage, legacy, judgment, tax or assessment, or interest thereon, whereby the interest of the cestui que trusts, or of the owners or owner of the particular estate, or of the estate in remainder or reversion in said lands may be injured or impaired, it shall be lawful for the court of chancery, upon application made to it by petition by the executors or executor, trustees or trustee, named in said will or deed, or the survivors or survivor of them, or any duly appointed person standing and acting in their place, or by any cestui que trust, or by any one of the owners aforesaid, and upon the consideration of the circumstances of the case and notice to all the parties in interest, to order and decree said executors or executor, trustees or trustee, or the survivors or survivor of them, or any duly appointed person standing and acting in their place, to sell and convey or mortgage said lands or a part thereof, whichever, under the circumstances of the case, shall appear to said court to be most beneficial to the parties in interest, for the purpose of raising money to pay, satisfy and discharge said mortgage, legacy, judgment, tax or assessment and interest thereon, together with the costs and expenses attending said sale or the procurement of said mortgage loan; and whenever such decree shall be made, the said executors or executor, trustees or trustee, or the survivors or survivor of them, or duly appointed person standing and acting in their place, may sell and convey or mortgage said lands or such part thereof as may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid, for such price, or in such an amount as said court shall in and by said decree direct; and such sale or mortgage of said lands shall be free, clear and discharged of any interest of cestui que trusts and of said owners therein, and the surplus arising therefrom, in case of a sale, after paying said mortgage, legacy, judgment, tax or assessment and accrued interest thereon, together with the costs and expenses attending said sale, shall be held by said executors or executor, trustees or trustee, subject to the provisions of said will or deed relating to said lands, in such manner as the chancellor shall direct.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1890.

CHAPTER LXXXIX.

An act to authorize police service in townships.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That it shall be lawful for the township committee of any township in this state to appoint one or more suitable persons resident therein to be police officers of such township, and to fix and determine the amount to be expended for such police officer or officers, whose duty it shall be upon view to apprehend and arrest all persons committing breaches of the peace in said township or violating any ordinance of such township, and any and all disorderly persons, and to bring said persons before any justice of the peace in said township, according to law.

2. And be it enacted, That such police officer or officers shall be appointed and discharged or displaced as such township committee shall, from time to time, and in each case determine, and shall receive such pay and compensation for their services respectively as shall be fixed and agreed upon by said township committee.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 31, 1890.

Why, Mary, how your baby cries!
Yes, he has colic again.
Why don't you give him Dr. Taylor's Soothing Syrup?
Is that good?
Yes, for Flatus, Colic, Cough, &c., it is excellent for either young or old. Of the many kinds of medicines I have used in my family I have found none to equal it.
Thank you, Jane, I will try it. Margaret Ann, go as soon as you can to either REYNOLDS' or SHAW'S Drug Store, and get a bottle of Dr. Taylor's Soothing Syrup.

STAMMERING CURED.

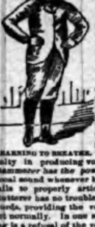
Suggestions That Will Take the Place of a School.

Main Points for Self-Help—The Principal of a School for Stammerers Furnishes Details of the System of Teaching—Defects in Speech Corrected.

According to the census of 1880, out of the entire population of the United States there were 250,000 men, women and children who stammered in their speech.

Years ago this defect in the action of the vocal organs was thought to be irremediable. Of late years those physicians who devote their talents to the cure of diseases of the mind and the nervous system have discovered that it can be cured and that it is simply a nervous habit that can be overcome by training.

The New York Herald gives its readers all of the details of one of the best known of these systems of training, so that any one who is afflicted with this distressing habit may be able, by following the exercises shown in the illustrations and the advice which accompanies them, to overcome his vocal defect without the necessity of putting himself under the care of a professional trainer.



LEARNING TO BREATHE.

It seems odd to the vocal specialist that there should be such dense ignorance among those persons who speak with perfect ease regarding the difference between stammering and stuttering. Nine persons out of ten believe that the terms are synonymous. Yet there is a vast amount of difference between them. Stammering is an affection of the articulating organs. A stutterer has difficulty in producing vocal sound. The stammerer has the power of producing vocal sound whenever he wishes, but he fails to properly articulate words. A stutterer has no trouble in articulating words, providing the vocalizing organs act normally. In one sentence, stuttering is a refusal of the voice with perfect organs of speech, but stammering is a defective articulation caused by habit or imperfect organs of speech.

The first exercise of this method is in simple calisthenics—an outward, forward and downward movement of the arms. This develops the muscles of the chest and upper part of the body, but is of even greater importance in giving the will of the pupil a stronger command over his muscles. If he can command the movement of these at will he is in better trim to attempt control over the refractory ones which cause the defect in his speech.

After this exercise has been repeated several times the pupil inhales a deep breath, goes through the movement once and then exhales with as much evenness of force as possible. The next exercise is designed to give flexibility to the respiratory muscles and strengthen and aid in the control of the diaphragm. The pupil draws in a long breath, places his hands upon his sides, with his arms akimbo, and then gently sways his body to the right, left, forward and backward.

Another exercise renders the muscles of the throat and neck more flexible. The pupil slowly bends his head from side to side, forward and backward.

Besides these simple movements there are many more that are used in obstinate cases. Health lifts, rope and weight chest expanders and various movements such as placing the palms of the hands upon the wall and slowly letting the chest come in contact with the wall and then pushing it back into an upright position.

After these have been finished the pupil takes his first respiratory exercise. This consists in placing the hands upon the sides of the abdomen, as is shown in the first illustration earlier in the article. This posture is designed chiefly to fix the pupil's close attention upon the absolute necessity of breathing slowly, strongly and evenly from the diaphragm.

As is shown in the accompanying illustration the learner places his finger and thumb upon the sides of his throat, so that he can feel the vibration of the vocal chords and the action of the larynx, and by this means correct any tendency toward unevenness which may exist.

After sounding the vowels the pupil is taught to affix the various consonants to each sound, as a—ab, e—eb, o—ob, etc.

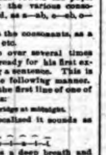
Then he prefixes the consonants, as a—ba, e—be, o—bo, etc.

These are gone over several times until the pupil is ready for his first exercise in vocalizing a sentence. This is accomplished in the following manner. Take for example the first line of one of Longfellow's poems:

I stood on the bridge at midnight.

When this is vocalized it sounds as follows:

I-oo-e-e-e-i-i-i.



FEELING THE VOICE.

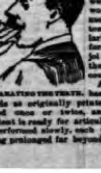
The pupil inhales a deep breath and exhales it slowly. This is repeated half a dozen times, gradually increasing the length of the respiration.

The majority of persons, whether stammerers or not, are in the habit of breathing incorrectly, using the chest more than it should be used, and the second illustration shows one of the methods used in this system to prevent this defect. The pupil places his hand upon his chest to call his attention and rivet it upon a too great chest inflation. While his hands are in this position he inhales and exhales as he was taught to do in the foregoing exercise.

In the first vocalizing exercise the pupil places his hands on the sides of his abdomen, breathes, and, instead of whispering the long vowel sounds, he speaks them at first, dropping the voice in pitch toward the end of the sound. Next he holds the pitch to the end. After the long come the short vowel sounds.

These same exercises are gone over again with the hands upon the chest.

Now the pupil tries a new position, the value of which is important. He feels his voice with his fingers.



SEPARATING THE TEETH.

These are the vowel sounds that are used in the foregoing line, and they should be spoken as though they were one long word. All words used in sentences are similarly treated before they are joined with their proper consonants.

After this has been done, the words as originally printed are whispered once or twice, and then the student is ready for articulation. This is performed slowly, each vowel sound being prolonged far beyond its customary length, and a breath is taken between the words at first. Before the lesson is over, the class are frequently able to read and speak, so that, beyond their deliberation, a stranger would not notice any thing disagreeable in their speech.

The above illustration shows one of the best methods in use to prevent a too great expenditure of muscular force, which the stammerer is apt to put forth in speaking. The pupil places two fingers between his teeth and articulates in that position. If the force is too great, his teeth impress that fact very forcibly upon his fingers.

In the last illustration the artist shows how another exhibition of a too great nervous force may be avoided. The pupil holds the sides of his face so that he may feel the movements of his muscles. It might be well for him to hold his hands in a similar position upon the face of some one who speaks normally at first, so that he may contrast the normal muscular action with the nervous movements of his own muscles.

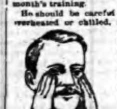
At the Herald's request Prof. Bryant gave me a few points in the way of advice that will prove of inestimable value to such of the Herald's readers as this article chiefly appeals to. They comprise the advice which he uses oftenest in his class-room, and they correct faults which the pupil finds most difficult to rid himself of in his efforts to acquire a normal habit of speech.

The professor's advice is as follows:

The correct application of these exercises will relieve the physical part of the defect and will give the pupil confidence, a quality which he has heretofore never possessed, and he must use every means in his power outside of these exercises to increase his stock of confidence and self-reliance.

To this end he must take the best possible care of his health by keeping good hours, eating nourishing food and only at regular intervals, observing habits of cleanliness, abstaining from the use of tobacco, especially cigarettes, and of all intoxicating drinks or any thing that is likely to excite or deplete the nervous system.

A game of football or two or three hours of violent athletic exercise have been known to undo the benefits of a month's training.



FEELING THE VOCAL MUSCLES.

He should be careful not to become overheated or chilled, as these states have a bad influence upon the control of the nervous force necessary for the proper action of the muscles.

In speaking he should continually listen to the sound of his own voice. As the well regulated and modulated voice of a friend will give confidence and assurance to a hearer, so will the correctly produced tones of the person who has heretofore spoken in a nervous, spasmodic manner give him self-confidence.

While speaking or reading do not give way to any nervous habits of the hands, feet, eyes or any other party of the body, such as wringing or twisting the hands or fingers, fumbling a watch chain, picking at clothing, moving the feet, shrugging the shoulders, shutting or winking the eyes, etc.

Look the hearer squarely in the face and talk directly at him.

Do not avoid any difficult words. Say what you originally intended to say in the way you originally intended to say it. Keep up your pluck and patience, and say the words if it takes an hour to get through them.

For those who have time the exercises should be practiced two hours a day. Of course one hour is better than no practice, but that is the least time that can be used with profit to the learner.

With practice and patience a pupil should be able to overcome his defective speech in a period varying from six weeks to three months.

These are the three things which embody all that these exercises are designed to teach. These three things must borne in mind, not only in the study, but constantly throughout the day. They are:

1. Deep and full, but gentle breathing.
2. Firm and easy vocalization.
3. Wide and free articulation.

These points contain all that is necessary to make perfect speech.

GAMY FELLOWS.

They Are the Black Bass Members of the Finny Tribe.

How, When and Where These Inhabitants of Aqua Pura May Be Caught—The Best Kind of Bait to Use and Some Big Catches.

THE bass is a very peculiar fish, and is conceded to be as gamy as any that swims. I am of the opinion that it is the gamiest fish that is hooked." The speaker, James Slocum, proprietor of the Star Island House, is entitled to speak with authority when dwelling on the subject of fish, says the Detroit Free Press. For twelve years he has caught and studied them in that famous fishing grounds, the St. Clair Flats, and has a very comprehensive knowledge of the habits and peculiarities of the fish hooked in those waters. The law in regard to bass fishing reads that they "may be caught at any time, but only with hook and line." The above may be somewhat misleading to ambitious anglers. It should have read that "bass may be fished for at any time." Catching them is an entirely different matter. The angler, however, who is not willing to expend time and trouble in hauling in black bass is not deserving of a bite.

"What time in the spring do the bass begin biting?" was asked of Mr. Slocum.

"The time varies. Heavy catches of bass have been known as early as May 15, but this is unusual. The condition of the water controls the movements of the fish. The early bass fishing is done on the Canadian side of the Flats, in and around the channels known as Johnson's and the Say Carte. In the early spring the ice cold water of the northern lakes comes pouring down the main channel of the Flats, which is altogether too frigid for the comfort of the bass. The Johnson and Say Carte channels, being small, escape this icy outpour, and, as the surrounding water keeps warm, the bass crowd over there and remain until the water in the main channel begins to warm up, when they come out."

BIG MOUTH BASS.

"Are there any marked differences in bass?"

"In a general way they are divided into two classes called big and small mouth bass, and no one should jump to the conclusion that the big mouth variety are the best biters. On the contrary the bass with the small mouth is the fish that the angler delights in. That is the fish that runs away with all your line and tests the capacity of your rod. The big mouth bass lacks the fighting qualities of his cousin, and bears about the same resemblance to him that a perch does to a trout. The big mouth bass is usually found in inland lakes, while the small mouthed fighters seek the cooler and deeper streams. He is fond of currents and eddies, and seems to delight in lying close against a bluff bank, where he will seize unsuspecting minnows that come his way."

"As to the bait for bass fishing?"

"The bait principally used is called the chub, but in reality it is only the young black sucker, which can be found in great quantities in the rivers. The genuine black head chub, which is caught only in inland lakes, is the best bait. Take one about two and one-half inches in length, continually wiggling, and it will tempt the palate of the most blase bass. The crawfish is also good bait, but only for riley water, as the bass, for some inexplicable reason, will not touch the craw in clear water. The small green frog is also a very tempting bait. A singular thing about bass is that they never bite after a long run of clear water. I suppose the reason is that they can see the minnows, and put in all their time chasing schools of bait minus hook attachment. An experienced fisherman always waits until there has been a heavy wind, which riles the water, and just as soon as it begins to clear he casts his bait, and is pretty sure of a heavy catch."

SMALL MOUTH BASS.

"Is there any rule to be followed as to tackle?"

"No, that is largely a matter of taste. An angler usually requires about one hundred and fifty feet of sea-grass line, and the sneckbend hook is held in great favor. As to the rod, that is also to a large extent a matter of taste. I consider a New Orleans white cane, well-wound, as good as any, and such a one can be bought for two dollars. Of course many fishermen prefer the expensive split bamboo and take great pride in the highly-ornamented rods. Generally speaking, the quality desirable in a fishing rod is great flexibility combined with strength."

"Has the direction of the wind any influence on the desire of fish to bite?"

"I don't think so. As a matter of fact, I have caught fish without reference to the wind."

"Then you don't believe in the old verse which says:

'Wind from the north, no fisherman goes forth;
Wind from the south blows bait in fish's mouth;
Wind from the east and you'll catch the least;
Wind from the west for fishing's the best.'"

"Not at all. There is, however, a good deal in the matter of locality. There are certain places where bass can be caught, and nowhere else. They seem to congregate in certain spots, and you can thrash the water in some other locality as much as you like without result. Another peculiar thing I have noticed is that the bass likes a variety of food. I have started fishing with chub, caught a few and then ceased to hook any.

"A resort to crawfish has aroused the dormant appetites of the bass, but only temporarily. I have then tried frogs and been successful for a time only, when here I wound up the day's sport by putting worms on my hook and caught bass with them.

"Sometimes a bass is in a coquettish mood. I have known them to take the minnow partly in their mouths and run off, without making any attempt to swallow it, and not having any desire to feed. Just as soon as the fisherman began to reel the bass let go. For some reason, however, whenever a bass bites a craw you may be certain you have him hooked. The fish seems to try to swallow the craw whole.

"Casting is a very material part of fishing. A successful angler should be able to cast at least sixty to seventy-five feet, and thus in shoal water work a large territory. In deep water, with a current to help you, casting is not so necessary."

"What has been your experience in the matter of large bass?"

"The largest bass ever taken at the Flats was the one represented in that oil-painting there," and he pointed, to the picture on the wall over the office counter. "It was captured by B. B. Barney, of Toledo, in the old channel some four years ago. It weighed seven and one-half pounds and measured twenty-three inches in length.

"Mr. Barney took it home to Toledo and kept it alive in a pond for two years, when, one day, a fellow came along and fished it out, to the rage and disgust of the owner.

ty well on September 20, 1887. He came home after a day's fishing with 42 bass, 9 pike and 11 perch.

"Muskallonge fishing is also exciting sport. They are taken by means of trolling entirely, and are hooked mostly in Baltimore bay and the streams running out of the north channel. They run in weight from ten to forty pounds, and when one of the big fellows is hooked he will jump four or five feet out of the water.

"There is no question," said Mr. Slocum, "that the unlawful and almost universal netting in Lake Erie has hurt bass fishing both there and in Northern waters, and some means should be found to stop the practice."

THE SPANISH CRAZE.

Gay Paris Copies Castilian Customs and Fads.

Seductiveness of Petticoated Dancers—How the Supple Features of the Languorous South Have Become All the Rage.

It is not easy to explain, says the Paris correspondent of the New York Morning Journal, the Spanish craze which has possessed Paris for the last few months, and which seems now to have received a substantial check by the interference of authorities in the bull-fights in the Rue Pergolese.

A few years ago the Parisians would have scorned to borrow their pleasures or fashions from the lands beyond the Pyrenees. They pretended to detest the Spaniards, whom they called vain and cruel and disposed to alliance with their enemies, the Germans.

But opinions, especially in the fashionable world, have changed much since then. The Exposition of 1889 brought out many Spanish peculiarities, and made them popular. It became the fashion for the aristocracy to visit halls in which the beautiful dancers of Seville and Madrid aired their skill and their ankles.

Paris discovered that a dancer in long petticoats was twice as seductive, as coquettish, as bewitching as a ballet dancer in her ungainly, stiff and starched skirts.

Carmencitas, Doloreses and Concepcions, from the bailes of the sun-swept and languorous South, became the rage.

The fashionable circuses were not slow to recognize the new predilection for trained pyrean novelties, and they introduced mules and muleteers, knife-throwers of Albacete, and athletes dressed in the silk jackets, the embroidered breeches and tasseled hats of the toreadore. But they did not dare to introduce the bull-fight, against which Paris had always felt a strong repulsion.

The Amazons at the hippodrome blossomed out with Spanish names, and the equilibristes learned the voluptuous dances of the Sevillanas, throwing a rose at the partner they preferred, breaking a sugar egg over his head, etc.

The gorgeous combinations of yellow and black in which Spanish women delight appeared in the evening costumes of the lorettes; and here and there a Parisian lady of quality wore the mantilla and manipulated the fan like a true Madrilena.

Then began the fashion of inviting some one of the Spanish women dancers in vogue to appear at a private entertainment, exactly as for years it has been the thing to engage Sarah Bernhardt, Coquelin, Jeanne Granier Vauthier, Lassalle or Richard, for parlor performances between the frozen punch and the supper.

The innovation was so startling that all the ladies straightway called it delicious. A long and broad table was brought in and placed directly in front of that awful semicircle of dowagers, which at a French reception is so conspicuous. Around it were grouped the young ladies and their mammas, and back of them row after row of young officers, old academicians, bald-headed Senators, hirsute artists, smart young literary men and a multitude of dandies, many of them in scarlet coats, colored waistcoats and silk knee-breeches and pumps. Then—flash!

Suddenly appeared on the table, to ascend which she had been gallantly helped by a score of eager hands, the Dolores or Carmencita of the hour, a radiant being in gaudy toilet, with her blue-black hair plastered down over her olive-colored brow and a miraculous fan in one of her slender hands.

Then awoke a slumbrous music of guitars, which made one think of the moonlight over the white roofs of Seville, and of the graceful ladies promenading in Las Delicias, and of the tinkling sound of the water in the fountains of the patios, and the Dolores or Carmencita began to dance; the dowagers, at first horrified, began to admire, the gentlemen to applaud, and all to feel the strange, inexpressible charm of this wild, Arabic, Celtic, sensuous "poetry of motion."

Paris found that it liked this better than the purely gypsy dances, and so Dolores or Carmencita and their tables on which they have swayed to and fro for the delectation of the aristocracy have made the grand rounds of the capital since the beginning of the season, and I am told that the fashion has also been followed in numerous great houses in New York.

ALABAMA CLAY-EATERS.

A Queer Community Found Among the Rugged Hills of Marion County.

A correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch writes from Birmingham, in Alabama: "Among the rugged hills of Marion County, in the extreme northwestern portion of Alabama, live about 200 white families whose principal food is white clay. When Western Alabama was first settled by the whites, 1830-35, their ancestors came from the hills of North Georgia and South Carolina. The clay eaten by them is a pale white in color, very soft and is found in large quantities in various portions of Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama. Recently it has been largely used in the adulteration of baking powders, cream of tartar and even flour. It has just a faint taste of magnesia, and is by no means unpleasant even to a novice. When first taken from the bank or bed of the stream where it is found it has an oily appearance, but this disappears when it is dry. The clay-eaters roll it into little balls, which can be carried in the pocket, and when they are ready to eat it, water is poured over it until it is wet and soft again. It is never eaten dry, for in that state it is easily broken into a very fine powder or dust, which would fill the throat and lungs.

"The home of the clay-eater is a log hut, containing only one room, and no matter how large his family may be, they all eat and sleep in the same room. Around the cabin there is a little clearing, where a patch of corn and one of potatoes are cultivated, and most of them have a small garden, where they raise a few beans and cabbage. A few of them own horses, but the majority have only oxen for the farm-work. They sometimes raise fair crops of corn, as the soil is very fertile, and little cultivation is needed. There is no market for the corn except at the nearest illicit distillery, where it is converted into 'mountain dew' or moonshine whisky. Hogs are owned by a few of them, but they are small and of inferior breed. For meat they depend on killing wild game, deer, turkeys and squirrels, which are found in large numbers among the hills.

"It is twenty miles from the hills where the clay-eaters live to the nearest country town, and almost twice that distance to the nearest railroad. Very few of them ever saw a train, and they know absolutely nothing of modern inventions, such as sewing-machines and cooking stoves. None of them can read or write, and there is no such thing as a school-house in their settlement. Fifteen miles from the neighborhood of the clay-eater there is a country store, where they barter eggs, chickens, moonshine whisky, deer and coon-skins for coffee, powder and shot.

"The clay-eaters have some peculiar customs and superstitions. They have signs for every thing, and almost worship the moon. The average clay-eaters has a mortal dread of an owl. As soon as the hoot of an owl is heard, a chair is overturned. If the hooting ceases, it is a sign that the threatening danger has been warded off; but if it continues, there is weeping and wailing. In every fire-place will be found a piece of flint rock. This is supposed to keep foxes and owls from catching the chickens. If they start on a journey, no matter where, and a rabbit is seen to cross their path, the journey is at once abandoned, because a rabbit never runs directly across a man's path except to warn him of death. Like the negroes of the South, they are all firm believers in the magic power of the left hind foot of the graveyard rabbit. To sweep trash outdoors would sweep some one out of the family."

OUR GOLDEN GIRLS.

Over Forty-Four Million American Dollars Captured By Poor Noblemen.

The immense sum of $44,175,000 has gone to Europe during the last few years with several American girls as an incumbrance to trade for titles. In the main this dowry of beauty and fortune purchase poor specimens of men. If they were in Chicago they couldn't earn a living shoveling smoke out of the city. Yet they have what all the world of snobs love—a title. Most of them have vices, and debts, and other things equally as undesirable. But a title covers a multitude of sins.

The American girl is a beauty. She is a conversationalist. She has plenty of dash and spirit, and gives those blase noblemen more pleasure in an hour than they ever had in their lives before. And she is rich—that is, all who marry noblemen are. So he marries her, goes to Heaven, and gets the earth.

Here is a list of them:

Lady Vernon Harcourt	$200,000
Countess Von Linden	1,000,000
Marquise de Mores	5,000,000
Lady Hesketh	3,000,000
Mrs. Henry Howard	500,000
Duchess of Marlborough	7,000,000
Lady Wolsey	2,000,000
Baroness Seydlitz	1,500,000
Mrs. Arthur Paget	400,000
Mrs. Maule Ramsey	1,000,000
Princess de Sagy Montbeillard	2,000,000
Mrs. Smith Barry	400,000
Mrs. Hughes Hallett	20,000
Duchess de la Rivera	3,000,000
Lady Vernon	1,000,000
Duchess de Glucksberg	2,000,000
Princess Colonna	5,000,000
Duchess de Dino	5,000,000

Lady Aylmar	200,000
Mrs. John Adair	200,000
Marchioness of Anglesey	300,000
Marchioness Salvaterra	100,000
Total	$44,175,000

The immensity of this sum that has gone, or is going, from our shores is so huge that it staggers people who have ever considered the subject, and, large though it is, this vast sum does not represent the half of the dowries of fair American women who have married foreigners.—Chicago Tribune.

FREAKS TELL THE TRUTH.

The Census Enumerator in a Bowery (N. Y.) Dime Museum.

One of the census enumerators entered a dime museum on the Bowery the other day, says the New York Journal. He explained to the proprietor that he was taking the census, and that the dime museum came in his district. The museum owner gave him permission to question the "living curiosities."

He began with the Circassian beauty.

"Where were you born?"

"I was born in New York," said the Circassian beauty. "In the 'Ate ward."

"Where were your parents born?"

"Me father and mother were born in Germany."

"What is your name?"

"Mary Ann Higgins," said the beautiful Circassian.

"Are you white, black, mulatto, quadroon, octoroon, Chinese, Japanese or Indian?"

"I'm green."

"Single, married, widowed or divorced?"

"Divorced and married again."

"What is your trade or occupation?"

"I'm a Circassian beauty by trade."

"Are you able to speak English?"

"Dat's de only language I speak. See?"

The enumerator walked over to the haughty "Zulu Prince."

"Where were you born?" he asked.

"In ole Virginny, sah," said the Zulu Prince, smiling.

"Where were your parents born?"

"Dey was bawn in Norf Carliny."

"Where do you live?"

"In Thompson street, sah."

"Are you white, black, mulatto, quadroon, Chinese, Japanese or Indian?"

"I dunno. I specs I's Zulu."

"What is your name?"

"Pompey Linkum Fields."

"What is your profession or occupation?"

"I'm a Zulu Prince."

"Are you able to speak English?"

"I can understand English."

The "Australian giant" said he was born in New Jersey. His parents were born in Vermont.

"Are you single, married or divorced?"

"Well, I've been married four or five times in the museum to draw a crowd, but I believe the marriages were not regular."

The double-headed girl puzzled the census enumerator greatly. He didn't know whether to put her down as one person or two persons. She gave two sets of answers to most of the questions. One head said she was twenty-four, but the other head denied it and said she was only eighteen.

"Where were you born?"

"In the Congo Republic," said the first head.

"In Ireland," said the second head.

The Texas cowboy said he was born in Boston and had always lived there.

[illegible] AND [illegible].

Governor Hill of New York is a [illegible] who [illegible] to [illegible]. Every declaration of his, whether verbal or written, strikes a political nail squarely on the head. At the unveiling of the Hendricks monument in Indiana the other day, he made a brilliant address, and therein exposed to public view the partisan [illegible] committed by the present Republican Congress. We extract from his sayings as follows:

"Let us see what the Republican party has done in Congress.

In the first place, for the period of three months the majority prevented the adoption of any rules for the guidance of the House of Representatives, [illegible] that by [illegible] the majority might be [illegible] in their efforts to [illegible] their representatives in the [illegible] of contested [illegible].

Such a course had never before been pursued since the organization of the Government.

Acting without rules, the House proceeded to consider election cases.

An autocratic Speaker refused to recognize Democratic Representatives [illegible] quick succession Democrat after Democrat was ousted from his seat and their places given to Republicans.

Less than a quorum voted and less than a majority was arbitrarily declared [illegible] for the [illegible] of the [illegible].

There was no pretense of fairness.

There was no consideration of the cases upon their merits.

There was little or no discussion [illegible].

A protest even was scarcely permitted.

The Republicans needed the [illegible] by their opponents, and they [illegible].

It was [illegible], plain and simple.

The Speaker refused to recognize any appeals from his decisions.

Such proceedings are not only a disgrace to our American Congress, but opposed to American institutions.

It remains to be seen whether the [illegible] and conservative electors of this country will sustain the majority in their reckless course.

I do not believe they will.

It has been my observation that such political crimes only react upon their authors.

No political party can long [illegible] whose success is based upon fraud, perjury and usurpation.

The day of retribution [illegible] surely comes.

Justice [illegible] with a leaden [illegible] strikes with an iron hand."

If you don't, the pauper [illegible] of England, Europe and India will [illegible] your industry, [illegible] thousand million hungry [illegible] comparable to those wicked Democrats. THE CITY FATHERS TRANSACT CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS.

Many Petitions Sent In—The Water Board, through Engineer Hering, Reports Progress—The Liquor License Applications Again Sent Back For Correction, With Protests Against Granting the Same—Many Other Matters Considered.

The July meeting of the City Council was held Monday night, with President Moffett in the chair; all the members being present, excepting Mr. [illegible]. After the minutes were read, the following petitions and communications were sent in: First from the Clerk's Association inviting Council to attend their meeting in Music Hall, to-night. Filed.

From Woodland avenue residents, asking for two lights between [illegible] avenue and Broadway. Referred with power.

A communication from the Assessor with reference to the apportionment of taxes on a part of the estate of the late D. Martine, was referred to the Finance Committee.

A communication from the Ducker Portable House Co., was referred to the Committee on Police, Salaries and Elections.

These additions and alterations were asked for, and in each instance the petition was referred with power.

Rowland Cox, for a frame addition, 20x20 feet, one story frame, at No. 20 West Seventh street; Geo. H. Babcock to remove house at No. 21 West Fourth street to a lot at No. 71 on the same street. The same petitioner asked for permission to remove another house on that thoroughfare, so as to make room for improvements.

Martin Roth asked the privilege, in a communication, to extend his shop on Exchange alley, eastward, four feet.

James Hatfield asked for permission to build a wagon shed at 66 East Front street, and Theo. [illegible] asked for the privilege of extending his back stoop.

Several peddlers, cartmen and hack applications for licenses went through the usual channel, and they were subsequently reported upon favorably and granted.

H. Liefke and others living on or owning property abutting on Exchange alley, communicated to Council to the effect that they would like to have the alley cut down to the proper grade. Referred.

The Board of Fire Engineers, through Chief Doane recommended for confirmation James Laughlin as a member of Zephyr Hook and Ladder company, and Robert Eick, as a member of No. 2 Engine company. They were confirmed.

The monthly reports of the collector and treasurer were sent to the Finance Committee. The former showed the total receipts to be $[illegible]. The report of the treasurer, showed a balance of a little over $[illegible].

A report was received from the Directors of the public library, showing the disbursements for the year to be $[illegible], leaving a balance on hand of $[illegible]. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

CLAIMS.

Sundry claims for work on the streets, amounting to [illegible] together with the usual batch of poor claims were presented and referred to the proper committees. Additional bills presented were as follows: J H Wilson, $[illegible]; Jos Kingston, [illegible]; [illegible] Road Machine Co., [illegible]; [illegible] Harness Co., [illegible]; J P Laire & Co., [illegible]; E Jones, [illegible]; A D Thompson, 1,050; J T Vail, [illegible]; Rudolph Hering, [illegible].

Fire Department—T O Doane, $[illegible]; Jones & Co., [illegible]; Geo Fraser, 5; Abram Freeman, 5; Geo Mott, Jr., 3 60; Plainfield Gas Light Co., [illegible]; D A Woodhouse M'f'g Co., 4; M J Shaw, [illegible]; John Albert, 5; Geo Fraser, 20; Abram Freeman, 10; W L Force & Bro., 11; C H Hogg, [illegible]; Geo [illegible], [illegible]; M J McCarthy, [illegible]; Chas W Smith, 9; M [illegible], [illegible]; I [illegible], [illegible]; F E Randolph, [illegible]; Wm T Newman, 7 50; N Myers, 7 50; Chas F [illegible], [illegible]; John Albert, 4; J E Waters, [illegible]; F B Pine, [illegible].

Miscellaneous—A Titsworth, $[illegible]; John Johnson [illegible]; J P Coward, [illegible]; J H Doane, [illegible]; W L Hetfield, 6; Electric Light Co., [illegible]; M C Bird, [illegible]; Jos E [illegible], [illegible]; Job Male, [illegible]; Times Printing & Publishing Co., [illegible]; W L Force & Bro., [illegible]; F W Nash, [illegible]; W V Moody, [illegible].

Police—Geo W Grant, $[illegible]; T McCue, [illegible]; E E Hope, [illegible]; J Conroy, 60; Chas Glenn, 60; P J Flanagan, 60; P Lynch, 60; F Kiely, [illegible]; W N [illegible], [illegible]; W E Martin, [illegible]; W [illegible], agt., [illegible]; W M Stillman, [illegible]; E A [illegible], [illegible].

The Water Board, through Chief Engineer Hering, submitted report, No. 1, in which it was stated that the wells which are to furnish Plainfield's water supply are completed. Plans and specifications, the report also stated, have been approved for the erection of the pumping station, the distribution of pipes, and for the laying out of twenty-five miles of pipe, together with the location of [illegible] hydrants. One-half of the time allotted for the completion of the works, the report went on to say, had expired, but the company hoped to be able to fulfill the contract within the time specified. The report went to the Water Board.

Mr. Dunham, of the Auditing Committee, submitted a lengthy report, stating that "Battle Row," has been leased for the city's poor. The building has been put in good repair, and will accommodate sixteen families. This action on the part of the Alms Committee will save the city about $[illegible] a year. Mr. Dunham presented a list of the families which the city is now supporting in various localities, who now refuse to occupy quarters in "Battle Row." For their maintenance the city pays $[illegible] per month, and the total cost for the whole of "Battle Row" is only $[illegible] a month. A resolution offered by that gentleman to the effect that no rent be hereafter paid for persons or families who refuse to accept shelter offered by the city was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Hetfield presented report of Committee on Fire and Buildings, on the [illegible] of Chas. Hand to purchase his building on West Second street. That if the city purchased the building, certain alterations would have to be made at a cost of $[illegible], and if the city could purchase the same for $[illegible], with all alterations made there would be a great saving to the city, as the bonds could be floated at 4 per cent, thereof making an expense to the city of $[illegible] per annum, where now it was paying $1,000 per annum for rents with very poor accommodations. The rentals from the building outside what would be necessary for the city's use would be $[illegible], leaving a balance in favor of the city of $[illegible], and eleven offices for city officials, city court room, common council chamber and city jail free of rent. The committee submitted plans and specifications for the necessary alterations, and recommended the purchase for $[illegible] including all alterations. Report received and placed on file.

The Press is correctly informed that Mr. Hand will accept the $[illegible] including alterations.

Mr Hetfield, from the Fire and Building Committee, sent in two sealed bids for the alteration and improvement of Gazelle engine house. They were as follows: Brokaw & Kean, $[illegible]; Pearson & Gayle, $[illegible]. The bids were filed.

Rule [illegible] was suspended so as to allow Mr. Hetfield to present a communication from East Third street property-owners, asking to have that thoroughfare macadamized from Peace to Richmond street, said property-owners agreeing to pay $[illegible] toward the total cost of the work. Referred to the Street Committee with power.

Mr. Smith also presented a petition from East Sixth street residents, asking that that thoroughfare be macadamized to the width of sixteen feet, property-owners along the line agreeing to pay fifteen cents a running foot. Referred to Street Committee.

Upon motion of Mr. Rushmore, John Hickey was paid $[illegible] the amount due him, and awarded by a commission in 1878, for moving back his fence at the time Plainfield avenue was widened.

Mr. Johnston, from the License Committee, reported back as conforming with the city ordinance, the liquor license applications of Michael F. Watson, Augustus H. Krohne and Matthew Kilpatrick. All of these were sent back for correction, Charles H. Hand withdrawing his signature from Watson's license, M. Messerschmidt withdrawing his from Krohne's and Daniel Hibbetts and Martin Galbraith requesting their names stricken from Kilpatrick's application. There were also several remonstrances sent in against granting the licenses. One petition was received, signed by Thos. Burk, Chas. Westphal and others favoring the granting of Watson's license, but as he fell short of signers, the application was refused, and as above stated, it was sent back for correction.

Councilman Smith introduced a resolution which prevailed, authorizing the Street Committee and the Corporation Counsel to draft an ordinance relative to the introduction of a street railway system, and to present the same at the next meeting of the Council.

NEW BUSINESS.

Under the above heading Councilman Spangenberg offered a resolution which prevailed, authorizing the Corporation Counsel to take the necessary legal steps and to proceed against ex-Captain [illegible] J. Carey for the collection of the balance of the $[illegible] appropriated for detective work in ferreting out illegal sellers. Carey has made no return for the work and has ignored the request of the Council asking for a report.

Upon resolution adopted, the Mayor and Corporation Counsel were authorized and empowered to confer with the officials of other cities with reference to the new election law.

Mr. Smith introduced an ordinance establishing the salary of the Street Commissioner at $[illegible] per annum. It was read twice, adopted, and ordered engrossed and advertised.

The same gentleman introduced an ordinance to regulate the use of bicycles and tricycles on the public streets. Read twice, adopted and ordered engrossed and advertised.

Upon motion of Mr. Smith a commission of three was elected to assess the damages and benefits resulting from the opening of Elm place. The following were elected: Messrs. Jeremiah Manning, E. C. Mulford and J. A. Hubbard.

Mr. Hetfield offered a resolution that the Fire and Building Committee advertise for bids for a suitable fire alarm system. The resolution was adopted.

Upon resolution adopted the Clerk was authorized to procure the necessary tax book and duplicate for the collection of taxes for 1890. The treasurer was also directed to borrow $3,000 from the City Bank to meet the expenses incurred in the general fund.

The curbing ordinance, and the ordinance changing the grade on Belvidere avenue, were called up amended and adopted on the second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised.

The Auditing Committee at first refused to sign A. D. Thompson's bill for $1,050, claiming that the committee appointed to purchase horses had exceeded the appropriation by $50. Whereupon an extra appropriation of $50 was added to the original appropriation and the bill went through.

Upon motion of Mr Smith, the Corporation Counsel was requested to proceed with the enforcement of the sidewalk ordinance.

The Auditing Committee reported on the claims sent in during the evening, and the Council adjourned for two weeks.

A DASTARDLY DEED.

One of Westfield's Prominent Residents Receives an Infernal Machine Through the Postoffice—The Sender of the Dangerous Package Evidently a Dynamiter.

A dastardly attempt was made on Saturday evening to do bodily injury to John M. C. Marsh, one of the most popular and influential residents of Westfield, the story of which is as follows:

Mr. Marsh was on his way home, late on Saturday afternoon, when he was informed that a package addressed to him was lying in the postoffice. He procured the package which was neatly wrapped in heavy brown paper, and hastened home. It was postmarked New York, had on one of the old issue postage stamps of the ten-cent denomination, and was addressed to "J. M. C. Marsh, Westfield, New Jersey."

Arriving at his office, Mr. Marsh carefully unwrapped the package and was surprised to find a neatly finished box about the shape of and less than twice the size of a domino box with a sliding cover. The box was smoothly sandpapered, and upon close examination it was found that the bottom had been glued on. Aside from this, however, the package appeared to be nothing more than an ordinary box.

Mr. Marsh became suspicious, and taking his penknife split open the cover, gently lifting one-half of the cover from the box. In the box, laying side by side, were two dynamite cartridges, made to resemble two large fire-crackers, the same being held in position by a net work of copper wire. A fuse led from each cartridge to the further end of the box, where each encircled a parlor match held upright in such a manner that the head of the match just came in contact with a strip of sandpaper, fastened on the under side of the cover. The whole thing was so arranged and no doubt intended, that should Mr. Marsh have drawn the cover from the box the sandpaper would light the matches from which the fuse would ignite, and result in a terrible explosion and perhaps loss of life.

The infernal machine was taken to Dr. Bayard's office where a more careful examination was made. The box and its contents were thoroughly soaked in water and the two fuses were separated from the cartridges, thus averting any possible chance for an explosion.

The postoffice officials have been notified and an investigation will begin at once. Meanwhile, Mr. Marsh will keep the infernal machine in his possession.

Mr. Marsh's life has been threatened by a jail bird who he was instrumental in sending to the State Prison in 1878, for ten years. Since the convict's release he has boasted he would "fix that Marsh." The latter knows of no other enemy he may have.

The Great Races in Westfield on the Glorious Fourth.

The census taker, (who by the way is Y. M. C. A. Marsh) has not yet made his returns, informing the public what the present population of Westfield is; but nobody who was present to witness the races, estimates the crowd assembled in Park street, July 4, at less than 2,000. The course is about a half-mile stretch, and the walks, the fences, and the parks, were all black with spectators. Did they congregate by reason of the notice given in The Press, to see Johnny Marsh and his polished beauties, and the committee referred to, or to see the races only? For all three reasons, doubtless!

"Cy" Wilson took the cup. No one says it was not justly won. The [illegible] of Robert Woodruff, Jr., was missed in the race. The track was as good as the weather permitted, but somewhat heavy.

A FATAL RUNAWAY.

Thrilling Adventure of Mrs. Kate M. Overbaugh and Her Daughter and Grandchildren, While Descending the Mountain From Washington Rock Sunday.

In a runaway accident, Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Kate M. Overbaugh, her daughter, Mrs. Amos P. Gray and two children of the latter were all thrown from a wagon and more or less seriously injured.

The party had one of Andrew R. Huff's horses and were returning from a pleasure trip to Washington Rock. They were driving down a steep incline on what is known as the Rock road, when the harness broke, causing the horse to run away, down the mountain side. All the occupants of the vehicle were thrown out, Mrs. Overbaugh landing in a heap of stones, receiving injuries which may yet prove fatal. Both of her lower limbs were injured. The left ankle was dislocated and the knee-pan laid open, her collar bone was fractured and there was also a compound fracture of the right leg, besides some injuries to the spine.

Mrs Gray, her daughter, was less unfortunate. She, however, received some bad cuts on the forehead besides being badly bruised about the body and lower limbs. Bertie, Mrs. Gray's two-year-old son, had a leg broken, and Mary, a three-year-old daughter, escaped with only a nose-bleed. Mrs. Gray, dazed and almost overcome by shock made her way to Thos. H. Taylor's residence some distance from where the accident occurred, and notified him of the mishap. That gentleman procured a mattress and conveyed the wounded to this city, taking Mrs. Overbaugh to the hospital, and Mrs. Grey and her children to their home on West Second street.

At the hospital, Drs. Long, Hedges, Carman and Boone, labored for several hours with the unfortunate woman, resetting the broken bones and sewing up the flesh wounds.

Death of an Old Resident.

James C. Lyon, an old resident of Scotch Plains died on Monday, after a short illness, in the 80th year of his age. Mr. Lyon was the oldest member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., of this city.

A Small Fire.

Sparks from a tinner's furnace set fire to the awning in front of E. P. Thorn's liquor establishment, No. 17 Park avenue, on Monday. By its timely discovery and a liberal dash of water the flames were extinguished without any alarm.

Another Chance for the Trophy.

The next shoot for the silver trophy, offered by E. A. Campbell, at his club house on Park avenue, will take place July 16. The terms are 20 blue rocks, 18 yards rise, shooter having highest score twice to become owner. Councilman Smith won the trophy July 4, and it is now on exhibition at The Press office.

The Contest of Mrs. Burlingham's Will.

The Burlingham will case has been set down for July 16, inst. The will, it is said, is being contested on purely technical grounds. Cross & Noe of Elizabeth, and J. B. Coward of Plainfield, represent the contestants. The executors are represented by Wm. M. Stillman and Craig A. Marsh. The latter also represents the Muhlenberg Hospital, to which institution the will leaves a legacy of $3,500.

Funeral of George Lackner.

The members of Wetumpka Lodge, No. 3,401, K. of H., turned out Sunday to pay the last sad respects to one of their social members, the late George Lackner, of West Front street.

He had a history known only to a few. Born of distinguished parentage in Hungary, he was banished from his country during the Kossuth troubles, for political causes and his property confiscated. Seeking a refuge in this land of freedom he has lived an humble and industrious life for years, respected by all who knew him.

One Baptist Church Helps Another.

Mr. Kimball, as announced, was present at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday morning, and made another successful appeal for subscriptions towards wiping out the church debt. $1,700 more was raised, which in addition to the $8,500 exclusively reported in The Press, another $1,000 in sight and $1 000 subscribed at the First Baptist church in the evening, brings the total within reach of the full amount of debt—$15,000.

The evening's subscription by the mother church, evidenced a most commendable spirit all around. Dr Yerkes said he would rather $1 000 should be donated towards the Park Avenue Baptist's debt, than added to his salary. The choir gave $50, and C W McCutchen, $500. A thousand dollars was thus raised in no time.

A Candy Store Robbed.

The confectionery store owned by Miss Sarah Ann Hall, situated on Somerset street directly over Green Brook, was entered Sunday evening and robbed of about five dollars worth of candy, pies and soda water. The place was entered by unlocking the back door.

Suspicion was at once fastened on three boys named Cornelius Splann, Edward Prentis and Charles Bertram, whose ages range from fourteen to sixteen years. The former two were subsequently arrested by Officer Glenn, and Special Marshal Geo. Becker of North Plainfield captured Bertram. Two of the boys proved to be part of the gang who raided a banana wagon in the rear of French's mill a few evenings since. The youthful prisoners were locked up, and Monday were arraigned before Justice Hardy in Warren Engine house. They were committed to the County Jail that afternoon.

A Suit for the Death of "[illegible]" Horse.

John Chandler's counsel E. V. Lindabury, on Saturday served Craig A. Marsh of counsel for Plainfield Electric Light company, with the summons and declaration in the suit exclusively told of in The Press, for $3,000, the value of Mr. Chandler's horse which was recently killed by an electric shock on coming in contact with the electric light wire on Crescent Avenue. Jackson & Codington are attorneys of the Electric Light company, but the company have also retained Mr. Marsh, probably because the latter was counsel for the successful party in the case brought by Thomas B. Brooks against the same company.

The present case is attracting widespread notice. Expert Wheeler of New York city, has been engaged by Mr. Chandler to testify. He recently examined the company's wires in the vicinity of Crescent avenue and elsewhere. It is safe to say that with the counsel engaged in the case, both sides will be presented for all they are worth.

THE HACKETTS BEATEN AGAIN.

They Forfeit a Game They Could Not Win and Lose Their Guarantee and Expenses Besides.

Just as the Crescent League's team and the Hackett-Carharts were coming down the home stretch in their second game on Saturday last, the former came up neck and neck at so hot a pace that the latter lost heart, saw the game was gone again and quit the race like cowards.

The result proved without room for question or dispute, the supremacy of the Crescents over all other semi-professional ball teams in the State at least. The N. J. A. C., since it has been considered the finest in New Jersey, but as a member of it said to a Press reporter Thursday: "If the Hacketts should defeat us a second time to-morrow, and the Crescents should defeat them a second time Saturday, everybody must admit the latter is the best club in the State."

That is just what happened. 1,500 people saw the game Saturday, and all but about seven colored rooters who had a total of $3.16 bet against the Crescents, and a few disagreeable people who are always against home institutions, were disgusted at the action of the visiting team. Up to the eighth inning the game continued smoothly enough for three reasons: One was because, as has happened lately, all the close decisions were against the Crescents and they have accepted their hard luck like gentlemen; another was because, as Manager Perkins told Mr. Bowman himself at the close of the previous game here, he was never treated so fairly by an umpire before; and the last but not least reason was, the score stood four to nothing in favor of the Hacketts when the Crescents took their eighth inning.

The stock in trade of such teams as the Hackett-Carharts is their record. They had lost one game to the Crescents and could not afford to lose another. They did not arrive until the last train possible, because Manager Perkins stayed in New York until the last minute getting together the best men to be found. "Tierney the Terror" was put in the box for the visitors, and he was expected to keep up such a speed that the Crescents would never see the ball. And they did not see it, either, for seven anxious innings. A small hit by Walker in the third, and a little larger one by McIndoe in the seventh, after twice striking out, were all the Crescents had to their credit when the Hacketts finished their eighth inning, whereas every man of the latter had had a hit including a three-bagger and two two-baggers.

The game was not yet lost, however. Capt. Wiegand stood up in front of his men as their eighth inning opened with a score of 4 to 0 against them, and said, "Now see here boys! Lets commence all over. I've seen worse games than this won, and we can do it. That Tierney can't pitch anything but a straight swift one, and an out-shoot. You Gillis mustn't get up on a horse after those high ones. Now play ball everybody!"

Billy Lee was first at the bat and got his base on another of Barry's fumbles. Gillis followed with a safe one. Martin hit another beauty and Lee came home. Joe Laffbery followed with one of his old timers for two bases, and Gillis and Martin scored. The score then stood 4 to 3, with one man out and Laffbery on second. The excitement was so great that all stopped playing for a moment until the umpire could be heard. In that moment Moorehead and Kraus saw that Tierney was gone. He trembled like a leaf, his pace had killed him and all control of the ball was lost. Wiegand went to the bat and sacrificed himself so that Laffbery could reach third.

Then occurred an opportunity for Moorehead and the others to carry out their plan to stop the game by a wrangle, and either give Tierney time to recover himself, or rattle the Crescents out of victory. Wiegand who was declared out at first did not hear the decision, and had not left the base. This the Hacketts claimed was the cause of Tierney's making a deliberate balk which he afterwards acknowledged himself. Tierney's balk was followed by an immediate delivery of the ball to Kraus, and according to the indisputable rules, Umpire Bowman told Jones, who was at the bat to take his base, and Laffbery came home from third, according to the rule which says: "Of course when the batsman is given a base on a balk, every runner takes a base also." This made the score 4 to 4, with Jones on first, McIndoe at the bat and the band playing "Over the Garden Wall."

Sure defeat thus staring them in the face, the visiting nine all marched in and surrounded the umpire. Then Jones taking advantage of the absence of everybody, stole to second. The umpire called time, and Kraus threw the ball down to second and caught Jones off the base. The Hacketts' manager could not do anything with his men, and did not know what he wanted himself. The visiting players all wanted something different. Some demanded that Jones come back to the bat, and others demanded he be allowed the balk but declared out on second. Bowman stated his decision as given above, took out his watch and compared it with the scorers, and notified the Hacketts to play ball. After waiting much longer than is required by the rules, the game was declared in favor of the Crescents by the score of 9 to 0. The Plainfield managers of course refused to pay Mr. Perkins the $45 he was to receive for a game, and he was out about $15 besides for car fares and incidental expenses, not to mention little side issues like bets.

The Hackett-Carhart's action of Saturday, is nothing unusual with them. They did the same thing, it is reported, in Newburgh and Morristown. Yesterday they played their regular Sunday game under the name of the "Senators," and Barry, the second baseman and captain—who made most of the errors and his share of the trouble here—became so abusive that the umpire withdrew from the game.

Saturday's score was:

THE CLERKS' MEETING.

A Public Demonstration in Favor of the Early Closing Movement—The Attendance Small but the Enthusiasm Great.

Pursuant to an announcement a mass meeting was held in Music Hall, Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Clerks' Early Closing Association, but owing either to the extreme heat or a lack of interest in the matter, the attendance was small.

Previous to the meeting the clerks made a short street parade, preceded by the Plainfield Cornet Band, and arriving at the hall the musicians took seats in the orchestra, discoursing popular airs during the evening. President Jeremiah Moore called the meeting to order, and Wm. A. Coddington acted as chairman of the meeting. The latter stated the object of the meeting, which he said was to advocate the early closing movement.

The first speaker announced was the Rev. Dr D J. Yerkes, who spoke on the line of general principles. He was followed by the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, who ably and forcibly illustrated both sides of the question. He also told of the three classes who are directly interested in the early closing movement, namely: the store keepers, the clerks and the buyers. He contended that no resolutions which might be passed or no public demonstration could coerce the store keepers into closing their places of business. Again, he said, the merchants are conducting their business in accordance with the contract which the clerks voluntarily enter into when they engage. Mr. Mitchell also spoke of the temptations which the saloons hold out to the clerks during their leisure moments. He nevertheless hailed the early closing movement, and considered that both the merchants and the clerks need more rest.

The Rev Father Freeman of North Plainfield, expressed himself as with heart and soul in sympathy with the movement. He said if the merchants wanted to keep open at night they should put on two gangs of clerks.

The Rev. Dr. A H. Lewis spoke in favor of making eight hours constitute a day's work, and the Rev. A. K Dilts thought that the best way out of the difficulty is to create a public sentiment and educate the people into making their purchases in the day time. If keeping away from the merchants who persist in keeping open at night is boycotting, it is in the interest of humanity and is therefore morally right.

The Revs. W. R. Richards, W. E. Honeyman and C. L. Goodrich all spoke in favor of early closing, and the Rev. E. M. Rodman thought that a little sound advice to the merchants would be listened to with "my tale of woe." He favored first making eight hours constitute a day's work, and then to advocate five working days in a week.

The Rev. C. Schenck was introduced as the last speaker. He considered that with the proper amount of enthusiasm success would at last be attained.

A unanimous vote was taken in favor of early closing, a vote of thanks was tendered the speakers, and the meeting adjourned.

FESTAL FANWOOD FOLKS.

Pyrotechnics in Plenty and a Feast of Music on Quality Hill.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather on the evening of the "Fourth," the display of fireworks which was anticipated upon "Quality Hill" at Fanwood, was postponed until Saturday, upon which evening almost the entire population assembled at the homes of Col. Charles K. Moore and Abner P. Downer to witness a display which was unparalleled in the annals of our suburban sister.

The material for the display was generously furnished by the Colonel, and the exhibition was under the control of Henry Kyte, who was ably assisted by Messrs. Todd and Downer.

The exhibition lasted over two hours and was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by the many present. The guest of the evening was Mrs. Thos Ewing, for whose particular benefit the exhibition was given. Mrs. Ewing, although 72 years of age, walked from "Maple Knoll" to "Frog Villa," accompanied by her son, "The Baron," and of course occupied the seat of honor at the right of the "Colonel."

After the pyrotechnical display, a grand musicale was given by Mrs. Moore, assisted by the talented young musician, Miss Plumb of Plainfield. Among the other artistes were the Misses Kyte, Bates and Hamlin, the Hon. Geo. Kyte and Baron Ewing. In the meantime a progressive euchre party was being held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abner P. Downer.

As is usual at all entertainments given by the Colonel, the mascots, Miss Madeline Robinson and Master James Moore, II. were on hand, which insured the success of the entire entertainment.

Intense Heat.

Tuesday's heat was something terrible yet no cases of sun-stroke have been reported. At two o'clock in the afternoon the thermometer registered 102 degrees in the shade, at 6 o'clock it had only dropped to 96, and at 8 P. M the mercury registered 88 degrees.

Bitten by a Snake.

Charles Cashen, a resident of North Plainfield, while at work in a stone quarry just Northwest from Scotch Plains, on Tuesday afternoon, was bitten on the left arm by a huge snake of the mountain pilot species. The man was loading stone on a wagon, when the snake sprang at him, biting his arm near the wrist. The arm was soon swollen to immense proportions, and the pain was intense.

Cashen was brought to this city in a carriage and Dr E. W. Hedges dressed the wound. Today the patient is much better, although his arm is yet terribly swollen and inflamed. The reptile, which measured about four feet in length, was killed.

The Jury Found Him Not Guilty.

The adjourned case of the City vs. James Day, on a charge of interfering with the police in the discharge of their duty, came up before City Judge Codington and a jury in the City Court room, Tuesday, the case occupying the greater part of the day. Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh conducted the prosecution and Hon. John T. Dunn of Elizabeth, represented the defence. Some half dozen witnesses testified for the defendant, while the only witnesses for the city were the two officers, Glenn and Kelly. After the testimony was all taken, counsel summed up, and the case was given to the jury late in the afternoon. After a two hours deliberation a verdict of not guilty was rendered.

A WAITER DROWNED AT NETHERWOOD.

The Man Jumps into a Sixteen Foot Clay Pit, and Being Unable to Swim Sinks Within Sight of His Companions.

Joseph Weiss, aged twenty-two years, one of the main waiters at the Netherwood Hotel, was drowned in a pool of water at Jimmerson's brick yard near the hotel about five o'clock Monday afternoon. The man in company with some of the other waiters, went in bathing. He jumped from the bank into the pool, and being unable to swim, sank in one of the deep holes within sight of his companions. The body was subsequently recovered and taken to A. M. Runyon & Son's undertaking rooms, from whence it was taken to New York on Tuesday.

Weiss was a Hungarian by birth, single, and had been employed at the hotel for about six weeks. He was considered one of the best waiters in the main dining hall.

Lawn Party.

The scholars of the Friends' First-day school were tendered a lawn party on the lawn adjoining the meeting house at Peace and Third streets, Tuesday afternoon, which was thoroughly enjoyed by those present. During the afternoon refreshments were served, and Editor A. M. Powell delivered an address.

The New Voting Machinery.

Already there is a discussion as to the probable expense incurred in providing the necessary election machinery under the new law. It is necessary to fit up polling booths, and the increased cost to each county will range between $2,000 and $10,000, according to size and population. It is also thought doubtful if the glass ballot boxes, which all the counties were required by law to provide themselves with a few years ago, will answer the purpose any longer, as the official envelopes, in which the ballots are to be enclosed, will not, it is stated, go through the machinery at the mouth.

A Good Old Mason's Cherished Hope.

He will live to see it, is what we long ago assured him.—Royal Craftsman.

Brother Morse's active mind and still steady fingers have also become infused with his interest in the scheme, as is proven by original and artistic architectural designs in the pharmacy of High Priest Miller, drawn by Brother Morse merely to set forth for his own satisfaction his own idea of a Masonic Temple for the joint occupancy of Arch Masons, Chapter members and Knights Templar.

UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE

Used in the principal churches for communion. Excellent for females, weakly persons and the aged.

ADOPTED IN HOSPITALS AS THE BEST FOR INVALIDS.

Speer's Port Grape Wine
FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS Celebrated Wine is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hang until they shrink and become partly raisined before gathering. Its invaluable

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect a WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice

Is the juice of the Oporto Grape, preserved in its natural fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation and electricity, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits, and will keep in any climate.

Speer's (Socialite) Claret

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry

Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy

IS A PURE distillation of the grape, and stands unrivalled in this country for medicinal purposes. It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

See that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.

CITY DEPARTMENT.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE, THE COUNTY AND THE CITY, AND HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION OF ANY PAPER PUBLISHED IN THE COUNTY OF UNION.

L. A. DEM[illegible]T, - - - City Editor.

—The fat [illegible] and the lawyers, play ball on Friday afternoon.

—It seems [illegible] that Plainfield will have an [illegible] fire alarm.

—Liveryman [illegible] lost a valuable horse from [illegible] on Sunday.

—The County Board of Assessors will meet at the Court house on Monday, July 21.

—John N[illegible] is the first of the [illegible] letter carriers who will enjoy a fifteen days' vacation.

—Ground has been broken already for the pumping station of the Water Works company of Plainfield.

—Patrick [illegible] of this city, arrested in the borough for Saturday for disorderly conduct, was fined five dollars by Justice Hardy.

—The firemen had a comparatively easy day on July 4. Not an alarm of fire was sounded during the 24 hours the firemen remained on duty.

—During the thunder shower on Friday a large tree on West Fourth street, near Grant avenue, was struck by lightning and split in two.

—Mr. E. P. [illegible] has purchased of E. A. Campbell, a valuable young horse, which for speed and beauty has but few equals in this section.

—A young son of Henry M. Demarest of Park avenue, had one of his hands badly burned by the premature discharge of a large fire cracker on the Fourth.

—A bolt of lightning ran in on the shafting of the Pond Machine Tool Works on Thursday afternoon, and visibly affected those of the employees of the works.

—Geo. H. B[illegible]k of Eighth street, has recently purchased a pair of handsome black horses. The team is well matched and they present a fine appearance on the street.

—It is understood that a complaint is to be lodged against one of the main witnesses in the [illegible] case, Tuesday, for robbing a hen roost on the Boulevard, recently.

—Eugene [illegible], the North Plainfield bottler, was arrested Monday night, for selling beer on his premises. He furnished $200 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

—The beautiful portrait of Gen. Winfield Scott, which was recently presented to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city, is on exhibition at [illegible] drug store for a few days.

—John Buck, arrested by Special Officer Hope on Thursday for stealing rides on coal trains, was given a hearing before Judge Codington the same night, adjudged guilty and fined five dollars.

—During the heavy thunder shower Friday afternoon, a bolt of lightning passed directly through Elias Mosher's residence on East Fourth street, but fortunately no one was injured.

—There are almost enough people at Washington Rock every Sunday afternoon to make a hotel pay at that point. If the Crescent Rink were only up at the Rock somebody might be getting rich.

—The New York World is now [illegible] from [illegible] one of the most [illegible] [illegible] accounts for the snake story and other inaccurate articles which have appeared in The World lately.

—Wm. E. Kirk of this city, representing the Milliken Bros., has been awarded by a joint committee of Somerset and Hunterdon county free holders, the contract for building a $2,000 bridge at Three Bridges.

—Nothing so far has been done towards the beginning of the Y. M. C. A., building, the picture of which was first published exclusively in these columns. Estimates for its construction have not yet been received.

—Peter Grimes, a youth, was arrested in Elizabeth on Saturday, for begging from house to house. As Grimes is wanted in this city for some petty offense, the Judge thought it would be safest to commit him for thirty days.

—Application has been made in the Somerset County Courts for a rule to show cause why Wm. E. Jones and Eliza Allen of North Plainfield should not be relieved of the duties of executor under the will of James L. Spencer, deceased.

—The young man named Beekman, who had been missing from his home on Grant avenue, a short time since, with a horse and cart belonging to his father, has been heard from. He is stopping with his grandfather near Spotswood, N. J.

At a meeting of the Grocers' Protective Association, held last week, with President George W. Rockafellow in the chair, it was decided to hold the annual grocers' picnic at Boynton Beach on Labor Day—the first Monday in September.

—A woman by the name of H. C. Gootz, who attended one of the churches in this city Sunday night, was unable to find her way home after church and was obliged to stop over night at a hotel, where she registered and was assigned a room.

—In Trinity Reformed church, Sunday evening, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck delivered a very interesting "National" sermon to a large and attentive audience. He presented facts and figures bearing on the emigration of foreigners to the United States, that were, to many of his hearers, simply astounding.

—Charles Smith, the lessee of the Middlesex Gun Club grounds, gave an entertainment there Tuesday to a number of his friends, who indulged in shooting at live birds and inanimate targets. There was much rivalry among the contestants, but physic finally triumphed over flesh. It was a good all around entertainment.

—Messrs. Jeremiah Manning, J. A. Hubbard and E. C. Mulford, the commissioners appointed at the Council meeting on Monday evening, to assess the damages and benefits resulting from the proposed extension of [illegible] East to New street, will meet for that purpose within a few days, and report at the next regular meeting of the Council.

An Obstreperous Family.

There is a "cote" on West Fourth street, near Park avenue, which should be weeded out by the police, and the occupants ordered to leave the city. The place is occupied by [illegible] Snyder, an old man, and his family, and the members of the family are continually at variance with the neighbors. Monday morning Snyder threw a bucket of water over one of his neighbor's children, and this led to a terrible tongue battle between the two families, attracting a large number of spectators.

The old man is very abusive with his tongue, and one family has already moved from the neighborhood on account of the frequent brawls and disturbances created by this one individual. The neighbors are loud in denouncing the place as a nuisance, and the matter should be attended to without further delay.

Since the above was written Snyder has been served with a warrant of arrest, charged with violating the second and third sections of the peace and moral ordinance, and his hearing is set down for this afternoon.

CAREY IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

He is Called Upon to Show Cause Why He Should Not be Removed From the Police Force.

The Police Board held a regular meeting Tuesday night for the transaction of such business as might come before it. All the members were present except Mayor Main, as follows: President Roberts, Secretary Hetfield, and Councilmen Moffett and Spangenberg. The following communication was received:

To the President and Members of the Police Board:

GENTLEMEN:—Inasmuch as ex-Captain of Police Tunis J. Carey's three months suspension has expired, and as he has not yet reported for active service, I deem it my duty under the Police board rules and regulations, to report the matter to your honorable body.

Signed, GEO. W. GRANT,
Captain of Police.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., July 3, 1890.

By a unanimous vote of the Board, the Secretary was instructed to "notify policeman Carey to appear at the next meeting of the Board to be held at the office of Councilman Hetfield, next Saturday evening, at eight o'clock, and show cause, if he has any, why he should not be removed from the police force of the City of Plainfield for failure to perform duty."

Lightning Tears the Roof Only.

During the evening of July 4, a bolt of lightning entered the top of the chimney on the kitchen extension at A. C. Vail's residence, West Eighth street. A large piece was torn out of the side of the roof, and the inmates very much frightened. No one, however, was even stunned.

Stole Their Sunday Dinner.

Some time during Saturday night some mean thief entered Jas. Hanrahan's residence on East Third street, by bursting open a cellar door, and stole about four dollars worth of meat, all the meat the family had in the house for their Sunday dinner. The thief left no clue whereby his identity might be established.

Johnny Marsh Proof Against Dynamite.

A correspondent writes: "You can't catch old birds with chaff, coax a grey rat into a trap, nor, it seems, fire off Johnny Marsh with an infernal machine. Who is it that wants to blow him up? The box is post-marked New York city. Mr. Marsh has not been blown up as late as 2 P. M today

Board of Education Meeting.

The above board met in the Franklin school building, in regular session, Monday night, and awarded the contracts for furnishing the schools with coal as follows: High and Franklin school buildings to A. D. Cook & Bro.; Washington school to Hetfield Bros.; Irving school to Kline & Staats, and the Bryant school to John Johnston.

The coal is to be furnished at the uniform price of five dollars a ton.

He Cut Her With the Axe.

Annie Stiles, 12 years of age, daughter of Israel Stiles, was cut in the head Monday night with an axe that slipped out of the hands of Fred Westphal, 18 years of age. The latter was breaking up barrels, about 7:30 o'clock, in the rear of Westphal's grocery on Liberty street.

Fortunately the head of the axe struck the girl and she was only slightly injured. Dr. Simpson dressed the wound, and pronounced it a most miraculous escape.

Fat vs. Lean.

On Friday of this week one of the most interesting base ball games of the season will take place on the Crescent League ball grounds, between a team composed of fat men whose aggregate weight is 1981 pounds, and the lawyers of this city. Following is a list of the fat men, together with their individual weight and the positions they will occupy:

	Pounds
Kelley, 1b	230
Bowman, p	201
Ross, ss	250
McMahon, c	234
Caddin, 3b	200
Smith, 2b	205
Evans, lf	200
Wilbur, cf	218
Miller, rf	197

"Ed" Marble, the minstrel, will umpire the game.

Choked in Broad Daylight.

Mrs. Louis A. Miller who resides on Woodland avenue, was choked by a highwayman on Broadway, Monday afternoon, and the fellow escaped, leaving his victim almost prostrated through fear. Mrs. Miller's husband is a hard working and industrious man, and is employed as foreman in Rice & Loomis' coal and lumber yard on Peace street. He was first acquainted with the facts in the case when his wife sent him a note some time afterward telling him of what had happened.

To a PRESS reporter Tuesday Mr. Miller said that the man who attacked his wife was a fellow named Perrine, who was but recently liberated from State Prison after serving out a ten years' sentence for a robbery committed in this city in 1880. Mrs. Miller was Perrine's wife at the time of his arrest, but during his incarceration she married Miller, with whom she has since been living.

To Play off the Tie.

The concluding and deciding game of the series of three between the Acmes of New York and the Crescents, will be played next Saturday. On April 19 the Acmes won by a score of 7 to 2; but on June 7 the Crescents shut them out by a score of 3 to 0.

Last Saturday the Acmes defeated the Rahways by a score of 10 to 5, and next Saturday they propose to beat the Crescents just the same. Their manager writes that he is saving a crack pitcher for the game. The Crescents, however, intend to win the game themselves. It will be an opportunity to show the Rahways where they stand. One of the papers of that city said last week:

> The Plainfields are afraid to include the Rahways in their list, having declined to make any date for a game. As the Rahways have defeated some of the clubs that have beaten the Plainfields, it would appear that the fear by the latter is well founded.

So Plainfield's reputation depends a great deal on next Saturday's game.

What a Dunce.

I suffered with fever, but head and foul breath,
With stomach disordered—was sick unto death.
I knew it a week—surely I was a dunce—
Then I took a few "Pellets"—they cured me at once.

What a dunce, indeed, to neglect such a remedy and suffer a week, when quick relief could have been found in Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

THE POLICEMAN & HIS "$15,000 BUILDING."

But Then Carey Only Paid $500 For It, and Agrees to Give it Back if He Can't Pay More.

We take advantage of a day after a holiday, to explain the true inwardness of the following which appeared in ex-Policeman Carey's organ, the News, June 26:

WE ALL CONGRATULATE HIM.

Ex-Chief Carey yesterday purchased the Dunlap building, corner West Front and Grove streets, of Mr. Abram Dunlap.

The building is 40 feet front, by 87 feet deep, and 3-ar stories high, with cellar, is built of pressed brick, and is estimated to be worth $15,000.

Mr. Carey's friends are taking care of him in great shape.

The total selling price of the building was $14,500, which considering the fact that it has been tenantless for years and possibly will be for years to come, unless Mr. Carey himself starts a junk shop therein, is a big price.

But then Carey only paid $500 cash, and he and his wife gave a mortgage for the balance, $14,000. They furthermore agree that if Carey at any time within two years from the date of the mortgage, shall allow the interest on the mortgage to remain due and unpaid for sixty days or more after the same falls due, or if he shall fail within two years and sixty days after the date of the mortgage to make payment of two thousand dollars on account of the principal, then Tunis J. Carey and wife will hand back the building to Mr. Dunlap free and clear from encumbrances, upon said Dunlap surrendering *the bond and mortgage and repaying any*thing that may have been paid on account of the principal.

Whose Homer is This?

A carrier pigeon, No. 14427, stopped at the farm house of Mrs. Mariah Vaghte, Pleasant Plains, N. J., about two weeks ago. The bird is a dun and appears to be a young one. It has become very tame and the family are already much attached to it.

A Raid on a Banana Wagon.

Three boys ranging in age from eight to eleven years raided a banana wagon in the rear of French's mill, last week, and carried off about four dollars worth of fruit. Captain Grant located the boys this morning, and as they promised to pay for the bananas before Monday, they were allowed their liberty.

Stealing Fowls by the Wholesale.

Chicken thieving has been carried on of late in the Fourth Ward to an alarming extent. Within the past few weeks one man's flock of chickens has been reduced from 45 to 17. Raids are made periodically by a gang of hoodlums, who after stealing the chickens go off into the woods and broil them.

Only Out a Few Hours.

Charles Williams was released from the County Jail on Saturday after serving out a sixty day's sentence for disorderly conduct. He was immediately arrested again on a charge of larceny, waived an examination before Justice Nash, and was again committed to await the action of the Grand Jury.

A New Building on Park Avenue.

Monday, Doane's jewelry store was removed across the way, and the low two-story buildings that have stood for so many years at Nos. 9 and 11 Park avenue, will be torn down to make room for a handsome brick double store with offices and apartments above, that City Clerk Coward intends erecting on the spot.

In Memory of the Dead.

There having been no preparation made to protect the Boroughites from the special danger of fire on the Fourth, a number of the citizens over the brook seemed to believe that there was no life left in the North Plainfield fire committee. Therefore they secretly made their way into Warren Engine company's house, and respectfully draped the steamer in morning.

Dislocated His Shoulder Blade.

Charles Harris, a resident of North Plainfield, was thrown from a wagon at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, about eight o'clock Friday night, and striking on the roadbed, dislocated his right shoulder blade. The injured man was taken to Dr. Jenkins' office where his injury was attended to, and later he was driven home in a carriage.

Nearly Drowned at Boynton Beach.

A party of young people from this city spent Friday picnicing at Boynton Beach, and during the day they all went out for a row on the bay. When the boat reached a point where the water was about 16 feet deep, it is alleged that the young men in charge deliberately upset the boat throwing the occupants out into the water.

None of the girls who were in the party could swim, and some of them narrowly escaped drowning

The Match Peddler Arrested.

The wily match peddler and thief who robbed a lady on Second place of $25, a few days ago, as told exclusively in THE PRESS, has been arrested and sent to the Reform School. The precocious youth was found sitting in the Erie depot at Jersey City, morning of July 2, counting over a large roll of money, and the police placed him under arrest. The lady referred to heard of the arrest, went to Jersey City, that day, and identified the young scamp.

It was subsequently ascertained that the fellow had stolen one hundred in a similar manner from a house in Paterson.

While There's Life There's Hope.

A communication has been received from the Secretary of the West End base ball association of Somerville, to the Plainfield Crescent League, expressing regret that the former had no open dates until September and therefore could not arrange a series of games with the Crescent nine.

Both the Plainfield and Somerville people will regret exceedingly if such proves to be the case, as all would rather see the West Ends and Crescents pitted against one another, than any other match in the World. Harkins and Williams, Conklin, Carbonell and Bergen would receive an ovation here, as they are justly admired for their good playing and professional decency.

Changes in Realty.

On Thursday the following changes were made in real estate in this city and vicinity, deeds for which were recorded with the Clerk of the County:

Sarah A. B. Green, widow, of Plainfield, to Josephine A. Huff, of Plainfield, land on Southeast side of Park avenue, Plainfield, 69x200 feet, $800.

Elsie C. Dunham and husband, of Plainfield, to Ellen Miller, widow, of Plainfield, land on Fifth street, Plainfield, 40x50 feet, $780.

William P. Lynch, of New York, to James T. F. Randolph, of Brooklyn, land in Westfield township, near Jerusalem road, 200x150 feet, $4,000.

Henry De Zarala and wife, of Brooklyn, to Job Male, of Plainfield, land on Southeast side of Fifth street, 65 feet Northeast from Franklin place, 50x100 feet, $5,000.

—A stage load of the lady members of the Crescent League spent July 2 picnicing at Chimney Rock. The party arrived home early in the evening.

Not only delicious for the palate, but an exceedingly health-giving beverage is Hires' Root Beer. It is the thirst quencher. Not intoxicating, and yet gently stimulating in its effects. Cheap enough for any body.

MAY HAVE BEEN DEACONS' DAUGHTERS.

A Picnic Party from Tottenville, Staten Island, Spend the Day in This City.

Two nervous looking and unprotected drivers, and as many stage loads of pretty girls, drove up in front of Reynolds' pharmacy Tuesday last week, and stopped while one of the drivers inquired the way to the City Park. Inquiry revealed the fact that the party was made up of young ladies from Tottenville and that they were simply out for a day's pleasure and recreation. The girls were in joyous spirits, and when they reached the park they alighted and at once commenced to make preparations for a day's outing.

Lunch, consisting of sandwiches, cake and peanuts was served on the "lawn," after which the girls made a tour of the city on foot, raiding the soda water fountains and ice cream saloons. Later in the day the party was driven through some of the principal streets, and before eight they started for home, but whether or not the poor drivers were alive when they reached there is not known.

"If You Don't See It in THE PRESS, it Isn't So."

At a special meeting of the board of education held on Friday night E. S. Hunt, a graduate of Amherst college, was appointed assistant principal of the public schools.—Central Times.

As has become the people's by-word, "If you don't see it in THE PRESS it isn't so." The above item is therefore a misstatement.

It was told in these columns exclusively, last week, that the name of Edward S. Hunt, an Amherst senior, was being considered by the Board of Education to succeed E. H. Lewis as teacher of the Senior Class of the High School. It was also stated that Mr. Hunt had been sent for to meet the Board on Friday evening.

He came, made a good impression, and was given two weeks to consider the Board's proposition. If he accepts, THE PRESS will tell of it. Until then the appointment of "assistant principal" is still open.

OBITUARY.

VOLNEY GREEN.

Volney Green, an old resident of Brooklyn, died Thursday at No. 19 Decatur street, in that city, from an attack of apoplexy. He leaves a daughter and one son, Fred S. Green, of East Fifth street, this city. Mr. Green was a sincere believer in the future of South Plainfield, and owned a large amount of property there at the time of his death He was an uncle of Councilman S G. Smith.

A Report by Way of the Chimney.

The concussion from the report of No. 2's one-horn cannon, blew out the cover of a stove-pipe hole in one of the rooms of Laing's Hotel, Friday morning. The occupants of the room heard something drop on the floor in the dark, and thought the ceiling was falling.

Somerville Wants Fire Horses, Too.

The city of Plainfield, says a Somerville paper, has purchased five horses to work on the streets and for use of the fire department. The horses will do all of the carting needed for street purposes. This is just what we have advised the Somerville Commissioners to do several times. It would be a saving of money in the long run.

Struck by Lightning.

During the heavy thunder storm which passed over the city on Thursday afternoon, a bolt of lightning struck a house owned by Jacob Grieb, situated at No 211 West Third street, tearing open the attic shutters and destroying a portion of the roof and weather-boarding. The bolt passed through one of the bed rooms on the Second floor, setting fire to the bedding, but the flames were quickly extinguished.

Plainfield Wins the Bicycle Race.

Among the athletic sports at Westfield, Friday, under the management of a committee consisting of Cornelius Patton, was a two-mile bicycle race which was made exciting by the mud, a few tumbles and a dead heat for second place. The time was good considering the road. Stanton Smith of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, won on an Eagle, while James Murray and Lute Waring, on Safeties, came in second neck and neck.

A Revolutionary Relic.

The "One Horn Cannon," which the members of No. 2 Engine Company, have held for some years past, was, shot off on Washington avenue, near the bridge. at midnight, on Thursday. Later the old relic of the revolutionary war was drawn through the streets, and at intervals the cannon was discharged.

It was stated during the evening that an organized party was coming up from Westfield to capture the old cannon, but the visitors failed to materialize

His Fourth of July Was Spoiled.

Frank Wyckoff a former driver for F. D. Randolph, was painfully injured by the premature discharge of a cannon on Arlington avenue, about midnight on Thursday. He was about to touch off the cannon when a spark from his lighted cigarette accomplished the work for him, the concussion tearing open the flesh on the right cheek and forehead.

The injured man was taken to the Park House where Dr. Allis dressed the wounds.

The Camera Club Moving.

The House Committee announces to the members of the Plainfield Camera Club, that their rooms at No. 17 East Front street—the new post office building—have been fitted up with a dark room in complete order, sky-light, burnisher, outside shelves for printing and will soon have a camera, backgrounds and all accessories for taking portraits. Printing and mounting can also be done by a competent person should any member wish to employ him.

The rooms are being furnished tastefully, and are open every Wednesday evening for the reception of members and their friends.

The Netherwood's Successful Day and Night.

The Fourth was celebrated at the Netherwood Friday in a glorious and gratifying manner to the hotel full of guests. A wealth of day fire works were burned in the morning to the delight of the little folk; a concert by Diller's full brass band—a detachment of Gilmore's—entertained the older ones in the afternoon; while the night was a scene of gaiety for the belles and swells, never equaled in the history of the house.

Messrs H. D. Brewster, W. E. McCready and F. F. Robins were the committee of reception that brought about the perfect consummation of all the evening's plans, and carried the ball through until its close at two o'clock this morning, without a break in its entire faultlessness and finish. There were twelve sets on the floor at a time, composed of the guests and their chosen friends only—cards of admission being required for the occasion. The display of gowns and jewels was grand. Mr. Miller added to the social entertainment he accorded his people, a supper that was all that could be desired in quality, quantity and service.

The music was by a quartette from Grecnop's Philharmonic Society of Brooklyn, engaged for the season at The Netherwood.

John have you seen that woman lately? John in astonishment! What woman?

That woman picking grapes for Speer's Wine. Just see her in another column and read about it, the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. The Board of Health in large cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

THE FULL BOARD PRESENT.

Librarian Adams Granted a Vacation, and Miss Petrie Fills Her Place.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room was held on July 2. The meeting was called to order promptly at eight o'clock by the President, Mayor Main. There were also present A. C. Baldwin, Jos. W. Yates, H. P. Talmadge, M. W. Tyler, Geo. H. Babcock, J. B. Dumont, and Wm. M. Stillman.

The treasurer read the annual report of the directors to the Common Council, for the year ending May 31, 1890, and on motion the same was adopted and ordered engrossed in the minutes.

The librarian's report for June was read and ordered on file, as given in full below. It was resolved that the thanks of the board be extended to Andrew D. Mellick, Jr., for his gift to the library of the book entitled: "The Officers and Men of New Jersey, in the Revolutionary War." The request of John W. Stimson for the use of the library, was referred to the Library Committee. The Librarian, Miss Adams, was granted a leave of absence for three weeks in August, during which time Miss Petrie will take her place.

INVESTING OUT OF TOWN.

A Plainfield Man Interested in a Street Railway at Ocean Grove.

The Ocean Grove and Shark River Street Railway company has filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State, with the objects in view of constructing a street railway from the intersection of Main street and Cookman avenue, in Asbury Park to the public road leading from Asbury Park to Belmar, a distance of two miles. The company has a capital stock of $75,000. The incorporators are: Howard L. Chandler, of Philadelphia; W. L. G. Thomas, of Wilmington; James Middleditch, of this city; Edward M. Fielder, of Ocean Grove; Daniel W. Sisson, James E. Wartmen and John Hubbard, of Asbury Park.

A Prosperous Plainfield Paper.

(From the New York World)

The Plainfield Daily Press has been forced to enlarge on account of the pressure of business. It is a bright, newsy paper.

He Wanted the Earth.

An apparently crazy ink peddler was about town on Thursday, telling people that he owned every store on the South side of West Front street. The man wanted to borrow a half dozen umbrellas to shelter him from the rain.

A North Plainfield Girl Acquitted.

In the Court of Quarter Sessions, held at Somerville recently, a girl named Perkinson of North Plainfield, was put on trial on a charge of grand larceny, made by Hannah Vandervoort, a colored woman. She was acquitted.

A PRESS Poet's Personal Experience.

Now the maiden spends her hours,
In the shady hillside bowers,
And the flowers blush with envy when she smiles;
While the idol of her soul,
Hies him to the swimming-hole,
And the waters of the brooklet gently riles.

Doesn't Like that Kind of Game.

The young man who was on Tuesday night presented with a neat package containing what he supposed to be a pair of quail, and which he asked a certain hotel proprietor to put on the ice until he was ready to go home, was much chagrined upon opening the package, to find a full grown crow. The crow was shot during the day by a party of local sportsmen.

Injured by a Train of Powder.

Willie McDonald, a fourteen-year-old boy from New York, who came to this city on Thursday to spend the Fourth with some relatives on South Second street, met with a serious accident on Plainfield avenue during the afternoon of that day. The boy was playing with another lad named John Lawlor, and the two made a train of powder. Lawlor applied the match while young McDonald was yet leaning over the powder, and in an instant there was an explosion, the flames shooting up, burning the boy's face, hands and breast in a horrible manner.

The unfortunate youth was carried to the home of his relatives and Dr. Endicott was summoned to dress the wounds

Accused of Larceny, But Acquitted.

Some six months ago Amos B. Stites of Grove street, in the borough of North Plainfield, packed his household goods and furniture and stored them in a dwelling on the aforesaid street; he and his wife then took a pleasure trip to the far West.

On their return a few days ago, upon an examination of their stored goods, several articles were missing and upon inquiry, they were informed by some one (evidently of an envious or malicious disposition), that a certain married lady of the borough, of unquestioned integrity, had been seen about the premises, and upon this information Mr. Stites immediately sought Justice Hardy, made a charge of larceny and the woman was arrested. The accused employed W. R. Codington, of Jackson & Codington, and at 7 P. M., Tuesday the trial took place, resulting in a verdict in her favor.

In all probability a suit for false imprisonment against Mr. Stites will follow.

Transfers of Real Estate.

The following changes in real estate were made on July 2, and the deeds for the same were recorded in the County Clerk's office at Elizabeth:

Elizabeth Mary Whelan and Patrick J., her husband, of Newark, to Henry McCready, of New York, 3 tracts of land in Fanwood and Westfield townships, viz: one track on Jerusalem road, 10 59-100 acres; second tract on Jerusalem road, John street and Evarts avenue, 180,000 square feet; third tract on Fanwood avenue, 900x200 feet, block H, bounded by Fanwood avenue, Harrison avenue, John and Smith streets, $1 and other valuable considerations.

Plainfield Land Improvement Co., to William M. Stillman, of Plainfield; land on West Fourth street, se s, 50 feet from Peacock place, 50x150, $400.

Jacob VanDeventer and wife of Plainfield, to Caroline E. Brunson of North Plainfield, one-fourth acre on Second street, Plainfield, $9,800.

Edward H. Sebring, of Plainfield, to Charles P. Sebring, of Plainfield, tract land 25x127 feet on Second street, Plainfield, and tract 38x25 feet, nws of North avenue, $1.

Charles P. Sebring and wife to Samuel Q. Lawson of New York, same tract on North avenue, 100 feet from Peace street, and an other tract, 58x38 feet, $22,000.

EXCITING EVENTS IN THE VALLEY.

John Bicknell has gone to Northfield to Mr. Moody's Summer school.

A large pine tree was struck by lightning Friday afternoon during the heavy shower.

Alexander Howatt of Jersey City, has been spending a week here with his aunt, Mrs. John Wilson.

Joseph Hawkins of New York, spent Sunday with his friend, E. W. Milligan, at Maplewood Cottage.

Robert S. Doyle of Somerville, has been spending a few days with friends in this vicinity where he formerly taught school.

The members and friends of the Sunday school expect to go on the First Baptist excursion to Ocean Grove and Asbury Park on the 11th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer and daughters, the Misses Emma and Mabel, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, and Miss Phillips, all of Brooklyn, are visiting at Stephen H. Beeching's.

Jared Underhill had a very fine Alderney bull of which he felt proud. A few days ago the bull took the responsibility of running the place himself. When his owner was trying to drive him into the pen, he resisted and plunging into a large cistern of water which was in the yard, was drowned before he could be got out.

Edward Allen has started a stage from Plainfield to this place, filling a long felt want in quick and cheap transportation, and placing a picnic in the most picturesque part of the State within the possibilities of the people of Plainfield. With permanent stage facilities this place will soon be one of the most beautiful and pleasant locality for homes to be found anywhere. The stage will make three trips daily.

J. F. Schwab while going out to milk his cows Friday evening, placed his hand on a barbed wire fence just as a flash of lightning lit up the surroundings. He felt a sting in his hand and arm, and in trying to use it found it partially paralyzed, while the fingers that grasped the wire looked as though they were touched by a red hot iron. Hastening to the house he bathed his arm freely, and in a short time the numbness disappeared, but the stinging sensation yet remains. He considers he had a close call.

A SUGAR MAN IN THE BOOK BUSINESS.

James Taylor One of the Incorporators of a Big Publishing Concern.

At the office of Secretary of State Kelsey, yesterday, the United States Book Company, a New York concern, filed articles of incorporation. Their New Jersey office is to be located in Jersey City. The objects of the company are to manufacture, sell, deal in, print and publish books, magazines and pamphlets, etc. The capital stock amounts to $3,250,000, divided into 32,500 shares of $100 each. The entire amount is paid up The incorporators are: Horace K. Thurber, Samuel Thomas, Chester W. Chapin, Edward Lange and John W. Lovell of New York city; Michael A. Donahue of Chicago; James D. Sofford of Springfield, Mass.; James A. Taylor, of this city; Erastus Wiman of St. George, N. Y. Edward Lange holds 32,492 shares of the stock.

Will Not Interfere With the Work.

About a dozen Italians were brought out from New York, Tuesday, to work on the water works plant at Netherwood, and today the men quit work, after demanding $1.50 per day. The men were offered $1.35 a day, which is fifteen cents more than the laborers on the New Jersey Central Railroad get. A gang of new men have been engaged to proceed with the work.

COMPETITION.

Its the life of business and the only thing that keeps it in a normal condition. We welcome it because we have confidence in the goods we offer. We only want what the word means to be properly understood. Competition is rivalry for first place between two or more parties having equal claims. Now, the truth is, that in the clothing business there is little competition with such goods as we sell. The bulk of Ready-made Clothing, manufactured for sale to the jobbers and passed on from them to the retailers, don't compete with the Clothing we sell at all. There is a good deal of shouting done about it, and its merits are insisted upon most vigorously, but it don't compete The merchant tailors are the only houses with which our Ready-made Clothing competes, in quality, style and finish; while, of course, it has a marvelous advantage when it comes to price.

We don't claim any monopoly in making such an article as we offer, but we insist that there's art in it. There's no patent in selling as good a suit as we do for the money, all we say is, it isn't done. We'll prove it to you. Select a suit, any price you like, one that is pressed upon your notice as down to "rock bottom," "below cost," or any other term which denotes cheapness. Select such a suit, we say, in some store noted for its advertisement of bargains, and then come and let us show you a suit at the same price, and you'll have proof before your own eyes of what we claim. We don't fear competition; we've no reason to; least of all would be competition from an inferior article.

HOW CAN THE LONG BE THE SHORT ?

A line may be a very long one and yet be the shortest between given points. For instance, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has over 3,000 miles of road; magnificently equipped and managed, it is one of the greatest railway systems of this country; for the same reasons it is the traveler's favorite to all points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. It is the only line to Great Falls, the future manufacturing center of the Northwest; to the fertile free lands of the Milk River Valley; and offers a choice of three routes to the Coast. Still it is the shortest line between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Winnepeg, Crookston, Moorhead, Casselton, Glyndon, Grafton, Fergus Falls, Wahpeton, Devils Lake, and Butte City. It is the best route to Alaska, China and Japan; and the journey to the Pacific coast, Vancouver, Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco will be remembered as the delight of a life-time once made through the wonderful scenery of the Manitoba-Pacific Route. To fish and hunt; to view the magnificence of nature; to revive the spirit; restore the body; to realize the dreams of the home-seeker, the gold-seeker, the toiler, or the capitalist, visit the country reached by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. FREEHOLDERS' PROCEEDINGS

(OFFICIAL.)

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 5, 1890.

Regular meeting of the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union, held on Thursday, June 5, 1890, at 2.30 o'clock p. m.

Present—Director Hubbard and Freeholders [illegible]

[illegible]

From committee on appropriations.

To the board of chosen freeholders of the county of Union:

Gentlemen—The committee on appropriations after carefully estimating the probable necessities of the various departments of the county government, providing for the payment of bonded debt $27,000, maturing during the year;

Making necessary provisions for the largely increased burden of interest on county road and bridge bonds;

Extra and unusual expenses consequent upon the adoption and prosecution of work under the county road act and allowing for the very large increase in election expenses imposed upon the county by the new election law, would respectfully report and recommend that the sum of $175,000 be appropriated for the fiscal year ending May, 1891.

And your committee would further recommend that the additional sum of $25,000 be appropriated in accordance with the unanimous request of the mayor and council of the city of Elizabeth and citizens of the county generally for continuing the county road improvements, and that said amount be raised by special tax for improvement of county roads and levied under the provisions of the county road act, and that the amounts above named be certified to the county board of assessors and placed in the tax levy for 1890, as per resolution herewith submitted.

Very respectfully,
WM. T. WEST,
WILLIAM HOWARD,
A. VANDERBEEK,
WILLIAM W. RUSSELL,
GEO. W. DOTY,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Roll received and recommendations adopted unanimously.
